THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL

The true inwardness of the National Transcontinental situation is not known to the public. When Parliament reassembles, there will be the opportunity for some explanation of the doings not kept under cover. The Grand Trunk Pacific, it may be noted, is not taking over the completed sections of the road from New Brunswick west for operation. The Dominion Government is going to operate these sections until such time as the whole road is completed, or the Grand Trunk Pacific takes over the road according to agreement.

The rumors that are afoot about the Grand Trunk Pacific refusing to take over that part of the road east of Cochrane may have some foundation. They are so persistent that in spite of the Grand Trunk's denials, there must be something in it. Where there is so much smoke, there must be some fire. It would be of advantage to the Grand Trunk Pacific, as at Cochrane the traffic could be diverted by the T. & N. O. railroad to the Grand Trunk railway system of older Ontario, and the outlets to the Atlantic seaboard that it provides, could be utilised. The blunders of the Laurier Government in drawing up that agreement were monumental, both in the contract covering the guarantee of bonds by which Canada had to pay $10,000,000 to cover the deficiency in the market price, and in the contracts that allowed the G. T. P. to postpone taking over or operating the National Transcontinental (Eastern section) until the whole of it was ready for use. The Grand Trunk Pacific must pay 3 per cent interest on the cost of the road, which is very high, and certainly would be in no hurry to commence the period when interest would accumulate, unless given the whole line to meet traffic charges. If the Government were to use the Eastern section of the Transcontinental as an extension of the Intercolonial, there would be some justification for a deal by which the G. T. P. would be let out of its agreement. But these are speculative matters, and in the present condition of affairs quite futile. The National Transcontinental mix-up is going to be a difficult one to handle in the interests of the country, but it is certainly in the hands of a capable administrator, Major Leonard. The revelations sure to be made, especially as regards the findings of the investigating commissioners, will be awaited with interest.

THE NAVAL QUESTION

Within another week Parliament will have assembled at Ottawa. The members will be full of curiosity as to the events of the session, which promises to be replete with interesting features. One of the first things Mr. Borden will do will be to announce his naval policy. That is the reason given for summoning parliament to meet at this rather early date. Had it not been for the emergency crisis, there would probably have been no necessity for Parliament assembling before the New Year. The Toronto Star, the Globe and the lesser satellites, continue to dance like dervishes around the question of the naval emergency. They go over and over the same old ground, pounding into the heads of their readers what they claim is the only way to preserve Canadian autonomy from encroachment. Not so much has been heard lately about Canada surrendering any of its rights of self-government, though the Toronto Star frequently takes up the subject of the benefits derived from self-government as though it were parading something rather novel. Certainly Canada has practical self-government, and intends to keep it. There never has been any suggestion to the contrary. The naval proposal that Mr. Borden will lay before the country will in nowise endanger any of our previous privileges in this respect. If Canada gives a contribution of money, or its equivalent in ships, to the British navy, there is an end on't, so far as Canadian obligation is concerned. Canada is not acting any constraint now, and never will. It is a matter of loyalty to Britain and to the Empire, a sentimental affair, and also a recognition of the great debt Canada owes to Britain for protection when this country was younger and unable to assist itself. But it is rather amusing that the Laurier newspapers should keep harping on the emergency business. Winston Churchill said a few days ago, that this year would be a notable one in naval history, not only because a sixth battle squadron would be completed a year ahead of time, but because it marked the great development of imperial naval defence, as including Canada's decision to actively contribute to the British naval strength.

The Laurier naval policy is not popular in Canada, never was, and will not now be. It has no element that appeals either to purse or imagination. It was right in so far as it provided for a small cruiser force for the immediate protection of Canada shores, but as for the principle that it would most effectively aid the Imperial Defence scheme, it has been devoid of all merit. Mr. Borden is the authority to whom Canada must look for information as to how great the emergency is. He has consulted personally with the Home authorities, with the naval officers. He knows, and no one else in Canada knows as well, what the actual conditions are. These are facts which are not communicated at large. They are secrets guarded with the utmost zeal. We can but take Mr. Borden's word for the existence of the peril, and then debate the measures he proposes to meet it with. Before two months are out, the Laurier newspapers will look rather sick after all their months of grouching, and complaining, all their picayune efforts to get the Laurier policy from under.

CANADA SUFFERS BY THE G. T. P.

The following editorial of the World containing extracts from the Globe and Toronto Star, ought to open the eyes of the people of Canada to the conduct of the late government and certain Liberal financiers:

AN EARTHQUAKE COMING!

G.T.P. Needn't Take Over Line Until it's All Completed.

Wins a Great Victory by Persuading Government of the Force of its Contention That It Need Pay no Rental Till Line from Winnipeg to Moncton is All Ready.

Government Will Operate Line for the Benefit of Shippers and Contractors.

The above is a two-column wide heading on the first page of The Toronto Star, a paper that professes to be a friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and one of the loudest defenders of his all-Canadian Transcontinental railway. Practically the Transcontinental road is within six months of completion, except for the bridge at Quebec; hundreds of miles of finished road are standing idle, and Grand Trunk Pacific does not propose to operate any of it except on its own terms, and The Globe has said as much, that it does not intend to operate it all.

In other words, the great Laurier national transcontinental system is about to fall down, and 1800 miles of railway is to be left on the hands of the government at a cost of three hundred millions of dollars; and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which was built on money largely guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada, is seeking to repudiate its obligation to take over the road in Ontario and New Brunswick and instead is getting ready to do its business outside of Canada wherever it possibly can and regardless of that Canada that financed it.

In the meantime the public must sit down and wait for further information. We imagine, however that the revelations made in The World during the past few days in regard to the Transcontinental are the most surprising ever yet unfolded in this country. Read this for a cool statement in The Toronto Globe of yesterday:

> Ottawa, Nov. 12.—(Special to Globe.)—Another development may be expected before long. It is rumored in usually well informed circles here that the Grand Trunk will next year succeed in getting a connection from Chicago through Winnipeg, either by arrangement for running rights over the Hill lines or else or else by purchase of the necessary connecting links.
>
> Thus the company with two main outlets from the west, one via Chicago and one via North Bay, would have no need for the N.T. east of Cochrane, and would naturally use every influence to get out of leasing and operating the whole of the National Transcontinental.

Similar news items have been appearing in The Globe of late, but no editorial explanation has been forthcoming. Surely Sir Wilfrid Laurier's reputation is worthy of some attention from The Star and The Globe.

WAS WILLING TO PAY HALF COSTS

Claude Harris Given Award of $8.25 at Police Court

At Police Court this morning, Magistrate Dumble settled a dispute over wages, between Joseph Gray and Claude Harris, by awarding $8.25 to Harris and charging costs of $2.60 against Gray, the defendant.

Harris claimed $8.75, that amount being due him while in the employ of Gray for 6 1-2 days at $1.50 per day. This aggregated only $8.25.

Mr. Gray couldn't understand why the costs should be borne by him when Harris had lost his case and suggested to the plaintiff that he pay half. This, Harris was willing to do.

The explanation from Mr. Gray was that he did not have the money when Harris requested payment, but promised to settle on Saturday.

"He shouldn't have to run around after you," was the Magistrate's comment.

75C FOR EGGS

All Records for New York City are Broken

The price of fresh eggs at New York yesterday soared to 72 cents a dozen, breaking all records. This is the figure asked for strictly fresh eggs, and the ordinary "nearby barnyard fresh laid eggs" were selling at 60 cents. The rise in price began yesterday and eggs were at a prohibitive figure when the market closed. Receipts in New York to date for 1912 are over 338,000 crates less than for the same period in 1911. Butter also has risen to 34 cents a pound wholesale.

EVERYBODY SIGNS AT NEWMARKET

Council Has Complicated Question to Deal With

As the result of the fickleness of petition signers in the town of Newmarket the council are now facing a peculiar local option situation, which has created a great deal of controversy among the residents.

A short time ago a petition was submitted asking for a vote on the repeal of local option in town. This was followed by another expressing satisfaction with the present state of affairs. On examining the lists it was found that 29 of those opposed to local option were not qualified voters, while as many more had signed the second petition stating that they were satisfied with the present condition. This left the antis with four less than the required number.

While the council are empowered to act on the initiative, the presence of the second petition urging no change and a third signed by 400 who make no pretentions of being eligible to vote, still further complicates the situation.

QUALITY AND CHARACTER

Quality in a man's character is of the greatest importance.

In the matter of clothes quality is also of equally important.

Therefore quality is the first essential in all things for the making of success.

In the matter of clothes that a man wears he is often judged, rightfully or wrongfully, such is the case, nevertheless.

So that a man should exercise great care in his selection of Clothes.

This is made easy for the man when he can walk into a man's store and buy a suit of clothes or an Overcoat when he gets with it a positive guarantae of the quality, with a further stipulation of money refunded if not satisfactory. These are the kind of Clothes that are sold at Cameron's New Men's Store on George-st. Not another thing is handled in this store but men's wear.

Every article in the store is brand new. Every Suit and Overcoat is made so as to carry the marks of good quality till it's worn out.

Don't be afraid to walk into the store, take a look at the goods whether you buy or not—it will be nice to get acquainted. Don't forget that it is CAMERON, near the corner of Charlotte. 3d

HUSBAND AND WIFE WILL PART

Wife Will Operate Farm and Keep the Children

John Stewart, who, it is said, sometimes styles himself "The King of Belmont," has agreed to live apart from his wife, who thinks that he is of unsound mind. Both parties appeared before County Police Magistrate Geo. Edmison, K.C., at nine o'clock this morning, and a mutual understanding was reached.

Mrs. Stewart wanted to take over the farm and allow her husband $150 per annum for his maintenance, while he lived with a sister in Belmont. The three children would remain on the farm.

In the opinion of the Court, Stewart was not insane but his wife persisted that such was the case.

Papers were drawn up embodying the arrangements agreed upon.

H. BEAL IS PRESIDENT

New Officers Elected by the Local Horticulturists

Canadian Society to Hold Convention in Peterboro

The Canadian Horticultural Society have decided on Peterborough as the place to hold their annual convention next August. This was decided upon at Ottawa a few days ago and the effort of local florists and horticulturists were largely influential in bringing the convention to the city. The matter was discussed at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society in the Council Chamber last evening, and it was decided that the society help in entertaining the visitors in the city.

Mr. Harry Beal was elected President. The other officers elected were:

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Hazen Ritchie.

2nd Vice-President—Mr. G. E. Wainwright.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. C. H. Williamson.

Directors—Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Messrs. Peter Campbell, D. W. Dumble, H. B Cowan, Walter Stocker, Frank Wise, W. J. Kennedy, John Riddell.

Auditors—Messrs. G. C. Wainwright and R. M. Glover.

Park Committee—Messrs. Peter Campbell, Walter Stocker, and Frank Wise.

A letter was read from the Toronto Horticultural Society inquiring as to whether the Peterborough Society intended to hold an exhibition next year, and stating that they would give silver and bronze medals as a prize for hardy perennials.

Mr Dumble favored the idea and thought it would give citizens a taste for flowers. While he was on the floor he took the chance to comment on the fact that Peterborough had [illegible] little park to show her horticultural display. He thought that there were other suitable situations for other parks, such as the vacant lots near the West Ward school, and also on Weller street. It would cost a little money to do this, but no money could be spent in a more worthy cause. The armories was an excellent place to hold exhibitions, and he was in favor of booming the show.

Mr. Beal suggested a committee be formed to get subscriptions for prizes. The cost for the armories was $10 a night. The following gentlemen were chosen for the committee:—Messrs Beal, Stocker, Wise and Williamson.

Mr Dumble thought Peterborough had excellent facilities for boulevards, avenues and parks, and that much might be done to cover up the crudeness of the city. A landscape gardener of Brown Brothers is to visit the city shortly. He moved that he send a report to the Council on the various improvements, such as he had mentioned. The motion was carried.

The treasurer's salary was raised from $50 to $75.

HAPPY THOUGHT

There is One Most Important Thing About a Stove

And that is this,—What heat value will it develop from the fuel you put into it?

Mind you, heat in the firebox does not count for anything. The heat must be in the oven or at the holes—where you need it for cooking.

So, when we say that from every ounce of fuel you put into a HAPPY THOUGHT you get the full return in heat value, we mean that you get something more than you get from other stoves.

A small fire in a HAPPY THOUGHT is equivalent to a big fire in a less efficient stove. It does more work. It saves you the difference in fuel.

That is the kind of saving that it pays you to invest in. A good stove is not a cheap article. It should be carefully selected. It should be chosen chiefly on this one point of greatest importance.

That is why a Quarter Million Canadian women use the HAPPY THOUGHT every day.

ASSAULT CASE WAS HEARD

Magistrate Edmison Hears Story of Both Sides

The hearing of the assault charge against William Greene preferred by Neil C. Cameron commenced at 11 o'clock to-day before County Police Magistrate Edmison, K.C.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in Mr. Cameron's interests and Mr. D. O'Connell appeared for Mr. Greene.

Mr. Cameron, the complainant, went into the box first. The assault was alleged to have occurred on the night of October 17th at the home of Mrs. Hamilton, on Wolsley avenue, an aunt of a young lady to whom complainant is engaged.

Cameron's story was to the effect that on the night in question he had accompanied the young lady home from a prayer meeting. He was standing in the dining room afterwards when Greene entered the room noiselessly, with a handkerchief tied over his eyes and his boots encased in stockings to deaden the noise of his footsteps.

Greene looked very wild according to complainant and commenced to ask him questions, one of which was 'Aren't you ashamed of yourself?' The young lady, who was present, pleaded with Greene to leave the house quietly, which he refused to do. Greene then, according to complainant made a lunge at him with his fist, complainant escaping the full force of the blow by dodging. His ear, however, suffered the loss of a piece of skin when Greene's fist struck him, and one thumb was badly injured, necessitating medical attendance. Cameron knocked Greene down three times in the scuffle which ensued, and finally the young lady's aunt who was in the house came down stairs and Greene was induced to leave.

Examined by counsel for defence complainant was asked why he had waited so long before laying an information against Greene. The latter said he wanted to show that Greene was insane and that he had been advised to take action by Chief of Police Thompson, and other prominent citizens.

Mr. O'Connell then questioned complainant about a later occasion when Greene had been enticed to the home of an uncle of the girl where he was asked to sign a document retracting statements about the girl's character. Complainant admitted producing a letter in the house which he read to Green, which was written by Greene's solicitor to complainant's solicitor accusing the young lady of familiarity with complainant. Cameron confessed to pointing his finger at Greene and commanding him to sign a letter of retraction of statements against the chastity of the girl. Counsel for complainant objected to examination of Mr. O'Connell, on the ground that it was not relative to the case under trial.

Mr. O'Connell submitted however that he was proving animus on the part of Cameron against Greene.

Frequent clashes between counsels for the two parties occurred during Mr. O'Connell's examination of complainant. Under continued questioning, Cameron told the story of his movements on the latter occasion after leaving the house of Mr. Lewis, the girl's uncle, where he was asked to sign the paper. Greene left the house after agreeing to sign the paper.

Going back to the night of the assault, Mr. Cameron betrayed a reluctance to speak of his movements when he was in the comapny with the young lady, previous to Greene entering the room.

Mr. O'Connell explained to the court that he had not the slightest desire to drag the actions of the principals into court. He argued that he had done all in his power to prevent it being hauled into court when first consulted in the case.

On suggestion of counsel for defence, the complainant was excluded from the court until the Magistrate and Messrs. Gordon and O'Connell endeavored to arrive at the exact nature of the circumstances which brought about the charge. Both Mr. Cameron and the young lady volunteered their willingness to have all the facts come out in order to vindicate the characters of each.

Mr. O'Connell then afforded complainant an opportunity to state exactly what occurred that night, which he did, and which appeared to justify the contention that nothing improper had occurred between he and the young lady previous to Greene's entry into the house, and his interference.

Mr Hamilton, the young lady's aunt, testified to a fracas having occurred on the night of October 17th, at her house, between Cameron and Greene. She heard a noise downstairs and her niece scream. She saw that Greene's face was blood-stained as if his nose had been bleeding. Whether his eyes were blackened she did not know. Greene went out after being asked by her to depart.

The young lady involved was next called by Mr. Gordon. Asked to relate what occurred that night, she said she had arranged to meet Mr. Cameron after prayer meeting. He escorted her home, and they were sitting in the dining room afterwards when Greene entered in the disguise, which has been mentioned. Witness asked him what was the matter.

"Are you crazy?" she asked him. He replied "No, but I'm ashamed of you." "He then brushed me aside and struck at Cameron, and in the melee which occurred Greene was knocked down three times."

The young lady received attentions from Greene over two years ago.

GREENE'S STORY

Mr. O'Connell placed Greene in the box and had him relate his story of the affair. He said he had been a special friend of the young lady and felt justified in watching her actions. He looked through the window on the night of October 17th and saw Cameron and the young lady scuffling playfully on the sofa in the parlor. Greene then stated that he saw Cameron commence to take what looked like improper advantage of the young lady. Unable to stand it longer, he rushed in by way of the kitchen door and confronted Cameron with the statement: 'Aren't you ashamed of yourself, taking advantage of an innocent girl like that.' He was knocked down by Cameron three times. He then left the house on the request of Mrs. Hamilton, the young lady's aunt.

Mr. Greene then briefly related what occurred at Mr. Lewis' house on the night of October 52th. A 'phone message induced him to visit the former's place, where Mr. Lewis asked him to sign a paper retracting statements which witness was alleged to have expressed about the young lady's character.

Greene emphatically testified that Cameron had said to him:—

If you don't sign this paper, I'll see you buried."

In order to escape from his supposed dangerous predicament he agreed to sign the paper if he was allowed to go to Mrs. Hamilton's house. The entire party then left the house, giving Greene an opportunity to break away and run into a house where he 'phoned for police protection. A police constable responded and escorted him home.

Examined by Mr. Gordon, Greene said he never defended himself against Cameron on Oct. 17th until after he had twice been felled to the floor. He then caught him around the legs.

G. denied having attempted to force his company upon the young lady within the last year. He admitted having asked the young lady for permission to visit her, and she told him he might come and see her auntie.

At 2 p.m. the case was adjourned until 4 o'clock when the evidence of prosecution and defence could be summed up and submitted.

Magistrate Edmison stated he would give his judgment at four o'clock.

Music by Electricity.

The "telharmonium," invented by Dr. Thaddeus Cahill, furnishes what is called "electric music," not merely as a transmitter and imitator, but as direct producer of musical tones, by means of alternating electric currents. By combining these currents in different ways the operator at the keyboard produces different qualities of tone.

Dr. Cahill has recently made improvements which render the instrument capable of producing all sorts of entirely new tones of its own, while its imitation of trumpets, horns, viols and violins may be so perfect as to deceive even the practiced ear of a musical hearer. A single receiver, it is said, responds satisfactorily to any sound from deepest bass to highest treble, and from a single note of pure tone to a full chord of composite tones.

Two Kinds.

"There are just two kinds of liars in this world."

"Two kinds?"

"Yes—the ones who lie to help themselves and the ones who lie to injure others."

HARVEST OFFERINGS

Startling "Fruits of the Earth" Brought to Church.

There have been some extraordinary things in evidence at harvest thanksgiving services at various times, but the live pig which figured at the festival at the Fishermen's Church at Grimsby the other day is certainly the latest novelty in this line.

On being asked by a farming shopkeeper what he would like, Rev. James Davis, replied, "Oh, anything from the farm." Shortly afterwards the pig was delivered at the church; and at the service it was given an honored place, in a wooden crate, at the base of the pulpit.

Report gravely states that the grunter "behaved splendidly," and did not even sleep through the sermon. But, notwithstanding its excellent conduct, Piggy was afterwards sold with the other thanksgiving offerings for the benefit of the church funds.

At one harvest festival at Folkestone there was quite an array of fish amongst the decorations, including cod, crabs, mackerel, plaice, and soles. Some fine codfish were suspended from the ceiling, and during the sermon one of them fell, to the amusement of the congregation. Perhaps the preacher's discourse was too long for it, or maybe the cod resented being taken from its natural element and treated as a "bird" of the air.

Last month, too, offerings of fish from the dealers at Billingsgate Market were a prominent feature at the harvest festival at the Church of St. Magnus the Martyr, Lower Thames street. A quantity of fish of all kinds was arranged between large bunches of flowers on a bench in the central aisle of the church. Besides a dish of fine whitebait was an enormous cod, and on either side were herrings, rows of oysters, and fish of all sorts and sizes.

Magnificent bunches of grapes have often figured in harvest offerings, but only once have they been seen growing in a church on such an occasion. Two or three seasons ago a very fine pot vine occupied the place of honor in the chancel of a Herefordshire church, to the astonishment of the members of the congregation.

It had been specially trained for the purpose, and the greatest care was exercised in conveying it to the sacred edifice, so that neither the vine nor the grapes should be injured in the course of transit.

The luscious fruit was very much admired by all who saw it, and, after the festival, was cut and forwarded to a neighboring hospital for the delectation of the inmates.

Cultivate Neatness.

There are many girls who without being at all good looking always appear neat and smart.

They may only have a small dress allowance, but with it are able to appear more attractive than girls who with twice their amount of money often look overdressed or dowdy.

What is the secret of this?

Surely it is due to the neat girl's taste. She always puts on her clothes with care and makes a point of her appearance being neat and tidy. She keeps her wardrobe orderly and has a place for everything; her ribbons, gloves, handkerchiefs, etc., are never bundled into a drawer just to get them out of the way, but are carefully put in their proper places.

On the other hand, a girl clad in an expensive dress will often spoil her appearance by the careless way in which she puts on her clothes, losing the daintiness that she might have had with a little more care.

It is a mother's duty to see that her children are taught from childhood to be careful and tidy; otherwise by the time they are grown up they will have become so accustomed to carelessness and untidiness that these will be second nature to them.

Her Line.

"Now our cook has gone away I don't know what we shall do."

"I thought you told me your wife was such a good cook?"

"Not a bit of it. I told you my wife was an expert in broils, roasts and stews."—Baltimore American.

The Potent Factor.

"Can't I get a steak here and catch the 1 o'clock train?"

"It depends on your teeth, sir."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

How much the world needs kindness! How easily it is done!—Drummond.

Culprit—"The first drink I ever took was one you brought me when you were trying to get my vote."

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

VARSITY OR McGILL FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE HONORS

Toronto Collegians Passed Through the City To-day —Denison May Play for Alerts.

The Varsity Rugby team passed through the city to-day enroute to Ottawa, where they play McGill tomorrow for the championship of the Intercollegiate Union. A special coach was attached to the 11.17 C.P.R.

There is all kinds of interest in this fixture and of course both teams are confident of winning.

Peterborough fans are pulling hard for the blue and white fourteen and a victory for Captain Pete Campbell's boys is hoped for. Down at the Capital City, the prices have been boosted; the fans are complaining and altogether interest is at a high mark.

Hamilton Alerts and Toronto meet at the Varsity Stadium. Fred Denison will likely take care of one of the outside wings for the Alerts, which team should carry off the honors.

SENIOR SERIES

In the semi-final of the senior series, on November 23, Argonauts, winners of the Inter-Provincial, will play the winners of the Inter-Collegiate on Inter-Collegiate grounds, either McGill or Varsity, as the game on Saturday in tOtawa will decide.

On November 30, the final will be played between the winner of the game of November 23 and the team winning the O.R.F.U. championship on grounds suitable to the Canadian union. If Alerts of Hamilton win the O.R.F.U. championship, their grounds at Britannia Park will be measured and inspected by the Canadian union, and if deemed unsatisfactory the game will be ordered played at the cricket field at Hamilton.

INTERMEDIATE SERIES

November 23—Ottawa II at R.M.C. Kingston.

November 30—Winners of game of November 23 and Hamilton Rough Riders in Hamilton. If this game conflicts with senior final it will be ordered to be played in the morning

CANADIAN LEAGUE CLUBS AT $1,400

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 15. — The question of minimum salary limits affecting baseball teams which are members of the National association of Professional Baseball Clubs, was disposed of last night when all classes with the exception of AA reported to the convention as follows:

Class A, $3,600 per month.

Class B, $2,500 with the exception of the Northwestern league which it was agreed should be allowed $1,000 additional.

Class C, $1,400.

Class D, $1,200.

These amounts do not include the salaries of managers. If a manager also holds a playing position, an arrangement can be made whereby he may be allowed a certain amount as a player and additional compensation as manager.

Y.M.C.A. SPORTS

The second game in the championship series of the Employed Boys' Class was played last night, when the Hustlers and Champions met, and after a lively game the Champions won; score—16-4. Referee, D. Loomis.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Members of the Norwood Hockey Club are rehearsing for the presentation of "The Great Catastrophe" which will be given in the town hall.

Fred Doherty will likely be seen on the line-up of the new Toronto professional team this winter, but may possibly play again in the Maritime Province League, having recently received an offer of $700 for the season with Halifax.

The Post has been informed that a well known local hockey enthusiast has rounded up a fast septette for the Trent Valley Hockey League. He has secured the best players in town and his team will make a strong bid for the championship.—Lindsay Post.

Montreal, Nov. 15—The expression of opinion at the fifty-seventh annual meeting of the Montreal Lacrosse Club, was that the M.A.A.A. should remain connected with professional lacrosse again next season, notwithstanding the fact that there was a deficit of over $7,000 this year.

ONE MAN TO RUN THE LEAGUE

London Club Would Have One Official for Canadian League

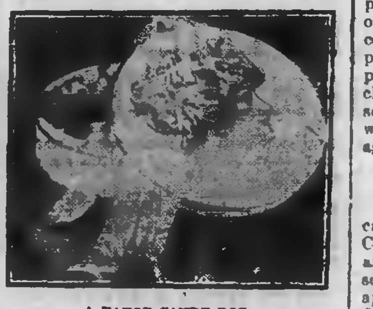
London, Nov. 15—The London Baseball club is much in favor of discarding the individual offices of president and secretary of the Canadian League, and in favor of adopting an office covering both these offices into one, with a competent man at the head of all the league's affairs, under a salary sufficient to warrant his whole time being devoted in looking after the organization's business.

JAP IS EXPERT WITH THE CUE

New York, Nov. 15—Kodji Yamada, the Japanese cue expert, proved his worth as a billiard player, and his right to be in the front rank by defeating Willie Hoppe, the world's champion at 18.2 balk line in the professional championship tournament, by a score of 500 to 497. Early in the game by running 56 and 138 in his second and fourth innings, Yamada showed wonderful billiards and demonstrated that he has a thorough knowledge of all the intricacies of the game. Hoppe made two runs of 100 and 102 in his third and tenth innings, and played a strong earnest game throughout, but the Tokio player outlasted him through the severe strain which both experienced toward the finish.

For the Bridal Supper.

At a recent wedding the supper table for the bridal pair and their attendants was provided with handsome favors in the shape of bonbon boxes. On the cover of each box was a band painted bride's head with a bona fide wedding veil of tulle glued to the box cover.



A FAVOR CANDY BOX.

In Stewing Corn.

When about to stew left over corn in milk remember that it must not cook long. Only a few minutes will suffice. Always score the corn first before cutting it from the cob, and in cutting do not cut close to the cob. Cut down through the middle of the kernels. Then scrape the cob. This will give you all the juice and pulp that cling to it, but not the hard end of the kernel.

PRIZES FOR BEST PACKED APPLES

Northumberland and Durham Association Took First

Toronto, Nov. 15.—So keen was the competition that it took the judges at the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition nearly four hours last night to decide who was the winner of the $200 prize for the best half carload of box-packed apples. The result was announced shortly after 11 o'clock as follows: First prize, $200, Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association; second prize, $150, Northumberland and Durham Co-operative Fruit Growers' Association; Norfolk Fruit Growers' Association, baldwins, 91 3-4 points.

Struck at Level Crossing.

Chatham, Nov. 15.—Matthew Tomlinson, a dairyman, was struck on a level C.P.R. crossing on LaCroix street by the 10.50 a.m. express from Windsor. The rig was smashed and the horse was dragged some distance, but little hurt. Mr. Tomlinson was thrown to the ground and received severe cuts and bruises on his face and body.

The train stopped and carried Mr. Tomlinson to the C.P.R. depot and he was afterwards removed to his home.

Scramble For Solicitorship.

Kingston, Nov. 15.—J. B. Walkem, K.C., William Mundell, T. J. Rigney and D. A. Givens are mentioned for the position of city solicitor, made vacant by the appointment of D. M. McIntyre to the position of chairman of the Ontario Railway Board.

Social Justice Demanded.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 15.—At the close of a day of addresses by fraternal delegates from Great Britain and Canada, the reports of religious and philanthropic associations organized in the interests of labor, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, defended the non-political policy of the federation and declared that the only thing that will end the struggle between capital and labor is recognition of the right of the toilers to the best that is produced.

"I may call attention to the fact that while we do not pin our faith to the pledges made by any political party, the American methods of our organized labor movement have accomplished results," said Mr. Gompers. "Never were there so many people who voted for propositions, declarations, demands and promises for social justice as the 14,000,000 people who voted in this country two weeks ago."

Sessional Indemnity Taxable.

St. Catharines, Nov. 15.—E. A. Lancaster, M.P., has appealed to the St. Catharines Court of Revision against an income assessment of $2,000 on his sessional indemnity and says he will appeal higher if it is confirmed. The decision has been deferred. An assessment of $1,000 on the allowance of Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., was not appealed against.

TORONTO'S NEW HARBOR.

Big Nineteen Million Dollar Scheme Is Announced.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—By the expenditure of more than $19,000,000 the Toronto harbor commissioners propose to turn the wide expanse of water fronting on Toronto, which at present is useless for shipping, into one of the finest harbors on the American continent.

Out of all this will spring a veritable garden of Eden, because a great deal of attention has been devoted to the aesthetic side. Beautiful driveways and bridges will be built, extending from the easterly limits of the city to the Humber Bay, right along the water's edge, except where in the case of necessity it has been found advisable to divert the boulevard to the centre it has been found advisable to divert the boulevard to the island for bridge purposes across the western gap.

In addition to the driveway will be the magnificent park system, extending the whole of the aforementioned distance; a protected waterway, with an average width of 600 feet between the shore and the structure will extend the whole distance.

The commercial side of the new harbor scheme has been considered the most important, and the city will ultimately possess a modern harbor, with a uniform depth which will accommodate vessels with a draught of 24 feet; permanent docks, equipped with up-to-date freight sheds, warehouses and appliances; an industrial area containing 644 area of available land in Ashbridge's Bay district, capable of accommodating factory buildings, with a value of $30,000,000, which will produce a ground rent of half a million dollars a year; a ship canal 6,000 feet long, 400 feet wide and 24 feet deep, with a turning basin 1,000 feet square, and six miles of quays.

The necessary finances for this stupendous scheme have already been provided, so that the work will not be hampered on this account. The Government has given $6,128,234.66. The rest will be made up by the commission from its assets.

Bought Bankrupt Trolley Line.

New York, Nov. 15.—A trolley line was sold at auction from here yesterday afternoon. The line was the bankrupt 59th Street Crosstown Railway, which has been unable for several years to pay interest on its bonds. It was purchased for $1,673,000 by Edward Cornell, a lawyer. He declined to say for whom he acted.

First Man Dressmaker.

One day in 1730 a beautiful carriage appeared on the boulevard of Paris with an escutcheon in the shape of a pair of corsets and an open pair of scissors painted on the panel of each door. This was the coat of arms of Rhomberg, the first man who made a name as a woman's dressmaker. Rhomberg, who was the son of a Bavarian peasant from the neighborhood of Munich, owed his rapid success to his genius for concealing and remedying defects of figure. He left an annual income of 50,000 francs to his heirs.

Camphor for Flies.

A piece of camphor burned over a candle is an Indian method of driving away winged pests.

Drinking Cups.

The danger of infection from drinking cups was noted 360 years ago and probably before that time.

The approach of Christmas excites a storekeeper as much as the approach of an election excites a politician.

What has become of the old-fashioned woman who, when her little boy told a lie, washed his mouth with soap and water?

If you let your enemy alone, and attend faithfully to your work, some day a man will come along and do him up for you.

THRILLING FILM AT THE RED MILL

Manager Cl[illegible]ton, of the Red Mill theatre, has secured two big features for to-day and to-morrow at the popular picture play house. The special feature is a two thousand-foot film of "The Massacre of the Sante Fe Trail." He claims this is one of the greatest films depicting Indian war scenes ever presented to the people of Peterborough. In it 2,000 soldiers and 500 [illegible] shown. The other extra feature is a story of "The Poor Invention." There are 3,000 feet of film in this picture. The admission fee remains the same—5 cents. 1d

PIANISTE WITH ABSOLUTE TEMPO

Absolute pitch is that sense by which a musician can give the right name to a sound without referring to an instrument. Absolute tempo would therefore be that sense by which one could name the right time rate per minute at which a composition was being played or sung, without reference to a metronome or watch.

Mme. Mary Hallock, the famous pianiste, who will be heard here very shortly, possesses this sense. This is not to be wondered at in view of her wide and important researches in beat. When Paderewski once played in A minor Concerto for her in private that she might have the right conception of this beautiful work, Mme. Hallock was able, much to the amazement of the greatest of pianists, to jot down the tempo as he played.

Chinese Similes.

Some of the ordinary expressions of the Chinese are pointedly sarcastic enough. A blustering, harmless fellow they call "a paper tiger." When a man values himself overmuch they compare him to "a rat falling into a scale and weighing itself." Overdoing a thing they call "a hunchback making a bow." A spendthrift they compare to "a rocket" which goes off at once. Those who expend their charity on remote objects, but neglect their families, are said to "hang a lantern on a pole, which is seen afar, but gives no light below."

THOMAS A. EDISON'S LATEST INVENTION, THE BLUE AMBEROL

Played 3,000 Times in Laboratory Tests Without Signs of Wear.

Mr. Edison has just perfected a new cylinder Phonograph Record—The Blue Amberol. It possesses greatly increased volume and decidedly the finest tone of any Phonograph Record of any kind now on the market.

In Laboratory tests, a Blue Amberol Record has been played three Thousand times, and the three thousandth reproduction was as fine as the first. In other words, exhaustive tests demonstrate that the Blue Amberol Record is practically impervious to wear.

This Record is to all practical intents and purposes unbreakable. The sweet tone of Edison cylinder Records have been somewhat fragile and more or less susceptible to wear. Some of your favorite Records may have been broken or played so frequently that they show signs of wear. You can play a Blue Amberol Record as often as you please without any apprehensions that its playing qualities will be diminished, nor any fear that it will be broken through careless handling.

It is intended that every Blue Amberol shall be a gem—the kind of Record that you will want to play three hundred and sixty-five times each year and keep forever. In the first place, the selection must be one that will appeal; in the second place, the performance must be by the person or person best able to do justice to the selection; and in the third place, the recording must positively be of the best. It will perhaps be of interest to you to learn that Mr. Edison has lately conducted a number of acoustical experiments which have resulted in a vast improvement in our cylinder recording. The new methods adopted as a result of Mr. Edison's experiments are unknown to other manufacturers, and a very marked superiority in our Records will be noticed.

You should by all means hear the Blue Amberol Record. We will be very glad to give you a recital, and we trust you will take advantage of the opportunity to familiarize yourself with this wonderful advance in the art of sound production. The price remains the same, 65c. each.

BULGARIA TELLS BASIS ON WHICH SHE WILL GIVE PEACE

Turkish Army at Tchatalja Must Surrender and Withdraw, Territory Must be Given Up and War Indemnity Must be Paid the Declaration of the Victorious State.

Cholera's Ravages May Hasten the End of the War—One of Many Reports is That Adrianople Has Fallen—Nazin Pasha is Said to Have Capitulated But Confirmation is Lacking.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Sofia, Nov. 16— The subject of peace negotiations is absorbing the entire attention of the Bulgarian Government for the moment. The Cabinet lost no time in communicating the contents of the letter from the Grand Visier, on the subject of an armistice to its Allies, and an interchange of views between the Balkan governments is in active progress. It is stated that peace conditions will be formulated with the least possible delay, and presented to Turkey for acceptance or rejection. Unless these are accepted within 24 hours after presentation, hostilities will be continued.

London, Nov 61.—Bulgaria's terms of peace to Turkey as reported at Vienna and sent from that city by the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, consist of seven stipulations. Included in the first stipulation is the surrender of the Tchatalja army and its withdrawal, guarded by Bulgarians.

The second provides for the evacuation by the Turks of Adrianople, Scutari, Monastir, and Janina.

The third calls for payment of a war indemnity.

The fourth demands the surrender of conquered territory.

The fifth calls for internationalization of Constantinople.

The sixth provides for the opening of the Dardanelles and the manning of Salonika, a free port.

Since Bulgaria already has expressed a willingness to leave the status of the Dardanelles and Constantinople to the powers, says the correspondent, the fifth and sixth clauses of the terms as reported here are improbable.

The rigidity of the censorship permitting no news to come from the front, the scene of the fighting in the Balkans is more perplexing than ever to-day.

Various reports have drifted in, however, among them that Adrianople had fallen, that the Bulgarians had captured Hedemkoi, the headquarters of the Turkish commander-in-chief, that Nazim Pasha, the Turkish generalissimo, had capitulated, and that the Bulgarians, either by sea or [illegible], had reached the vicinity of Kil[illegible] on the Black Sea coast, a short distance from Constantinople. These [illegible] are still without confirmation.

A vague despatch is published at Sofia stating that six forts along the Tchatalja line, have been captured after heavy sacrifices on the part of the Bulgarians.

The Vienna Richsport reports go to show that the Bulgarians are having no easy task. Nothing is known as to whether or not the battle continues.

The British Government has received no news from the seat of war for some days.

What perhaps is of graver import than the progress of hostilities in southeastern Europe, however, is the revelation of the tremendous ravages cholera is making, not only among the destitute refugees, who daily are arriving in thousands at Constantinople, but among the Turkish troops at Tchatalja. It is supposed that this danger well might suffice to give the Bulgarian commanders a pause and induce the Bulgarian Government to arrange an armistice and negotiate peace, since all the practical objects for which the war was undertaken already have been secured, and therefore it is useless to run the risk of an epidemic of cholera in the Bulgarian army for the sake of a formal entry into Constantinople, to avoid which it is believed Turkey is ready to agree to almost any terms.

A significant article appears in the Bulgarian Government organ Miru. It declares that peace is imminent and holds out the olive branch to Turkey to enter into a good understanding with the Balkan league.

A Constantinople despatch to The Cologne Gazette, declares that Bulgaria has abandoned her intention to enter Constantinople, being thus advised by Russia and Great Britain. Altogether, although the report that an armistice already has been arranged, has not been confirmed, all indications point in that direction, and it may be supposed that the terrible conditions of famine and destitution prevailing among the refugees in the neighborhood of Constantinople, which are calculated to provide a hotbed for the spread of cholera, may have had something to do with Bulgaria's decision.

Fund For War Sufferers.

London, Nov. 16.—The Lord Mayor of London, in response to a request signed by 312 members of the House of Commons, has opened a public fund for the aid of non-combatants who are suffering from the effects of the war in the Balkans.

Japs Get Naval Base.

New York, Nov. 16.—A despatch to The American from Mexico City says: Foiled in its first attempt to procure a base for naval operations on the eastern shore of the Pacific Ocean by the purchase of land for a coaling station on Magdalena Bay, Lower California, the Japanese Government has been, for more than two months, busy with secret negotiations looking to the purchase of 500 acres of land on the shores of Manzanillo Harbor, the most important port of Mexico's Pacific mainland coast.

By providing great sums for development, the Japanese Government has obtained from President Madero the valuable grant desired.

HUGE DAMS FOR POWER

Capitalists Have Scheme to Develop on St. Lawrence.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The damming of the St. Lawrence at two points between Montreal and Prescott is proposed in two gigantic power schemes, now before the Borden Government for consideration.

The Long Sault Development Co., the Aluminum Co. of America, the Eastern Canada Power Co., Sir Max Aitken and D. Lorne McGibbon, and other eminent Montreal, English and United States capitalists, are laying plans for the damming of the St. Lawrence above the Long Sault Rapids from the American to the Canadian side, and of developing 800,000 electrical horsepower. The second scheme involves the bringing of the level of the St. Lawrence in the vicinity of Coteau, Cedar, Split Rock and Cascade Rapids to the level of the water in Lake St. Francis, which would provide a head of 85 feet and dam the water Cascade Point to the Cornwall Canal.

The different islands down the river, for a distance of over fifteen miles, would be connected with its retaining dams. The whole of the rapids division would be eliminated and part of the Soulanges Canal would be flooded. The electrical energy to be generated is estimated at one million horsepower. This latter scheme is even more gigantic in magnitude than the first.

Two years ago the scheme of the Long Sault Development Co. was rejected by the late Government because of opposition of the Conservation Commission of Canada and big Montreal shipping interests. It also met with strong opposition in the United States, and the scheme is now pending before Congress.

The latter and greater proposition has never been considered by the present Government, but a charter was granted to D. Lorne McGibbon by Hon. F. D. Monk early last winter. Just what attitude the Government will take on the matter it is impossible to say.

Mr. Borden, while leader of the Opposition, strongly opposed the Long Sault Development project, taking the ground that no such huge power monopolies should be permitted, and that the development of Canada's water power should be undertaken for the benefit of the people, and not for private interests.

COCHRANE OFF TREASURY BOARD

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—It was announced after the Cabinet session yesterday that William Nickle, M.P. for Kingston, would move the reply to the speech from the throne. The seconder will be J. H. Rainville of Chambly Vercheres. Mr. Rainville is one of the most finished speakers among the French Conservative members.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, because of the pressing duties of his Department, has resigned from the Treasury Board. He will be succeeded by Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Customs.

Tariff Revision Coming.

New York, Nov. 16.—Governor Woodrow Wilson announced last night that immediately after his inauguration as President he would call an extraordinary session of Congress to convene not later than April 15 for the purpose of revising the tariff. He does not say what he proposes to do.

The Minister of Railways and Canals has resigned from the Treasury Board

PROTEST BY PRESBYTERIANS

Brandon, Man., Nov. 16.—The Presbyterian synod meeting adopted a resolution calling for the dominance of the English language in all public schools of the province, compulsory education, and Governmental inspection of private institutions.

After a discussion of the recent bye-election in Macdonald, the synod adopted, unanimously, a resolution moved by Rev. M. C. Rumball, of Morden, and Rev. C. W. Gordon, Winnipeg, deploring the "recent evidence of deliberate prostitution of justice to personal or party ends and the trampling under foot sacred rights of citizens to individual liberty and fair trial."

Fractures His Skull.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—George Farmer, a single man, about 35 years of age, who resides at 257 Macdonnel avenue, Parkdale, and works at the Cowan Chocolate Works, fell from the ground floor to the cellar in his home last night about 12 o'clock and fractured his skull. He may recover.

SHOOTING IN WESTERN CAFE

Victor Ross When Pursued Uses Revolver Again

Canadian Press Despatch.

Edmonton, Alta., No. 16.—Victor Ross, a well-known youthful habitue of Calgary pool rooms, entered Lewis Bros' crowded cafe at an early hour this morning and began shooting up the place. Ross then ran from the place and in the direction of Howard Ave. Several inmates of the cafe pursued, among them being Samuel Law a Canadian Northern employe. Ross turned and fired at Law, the bullet entering the left ear and passing through the base of the brain. Ross has not been captured. It is understood both men formerly lived at Vancouver, and men have had an old quarrel.

STORM TIES UP RIVER TRAFFIC

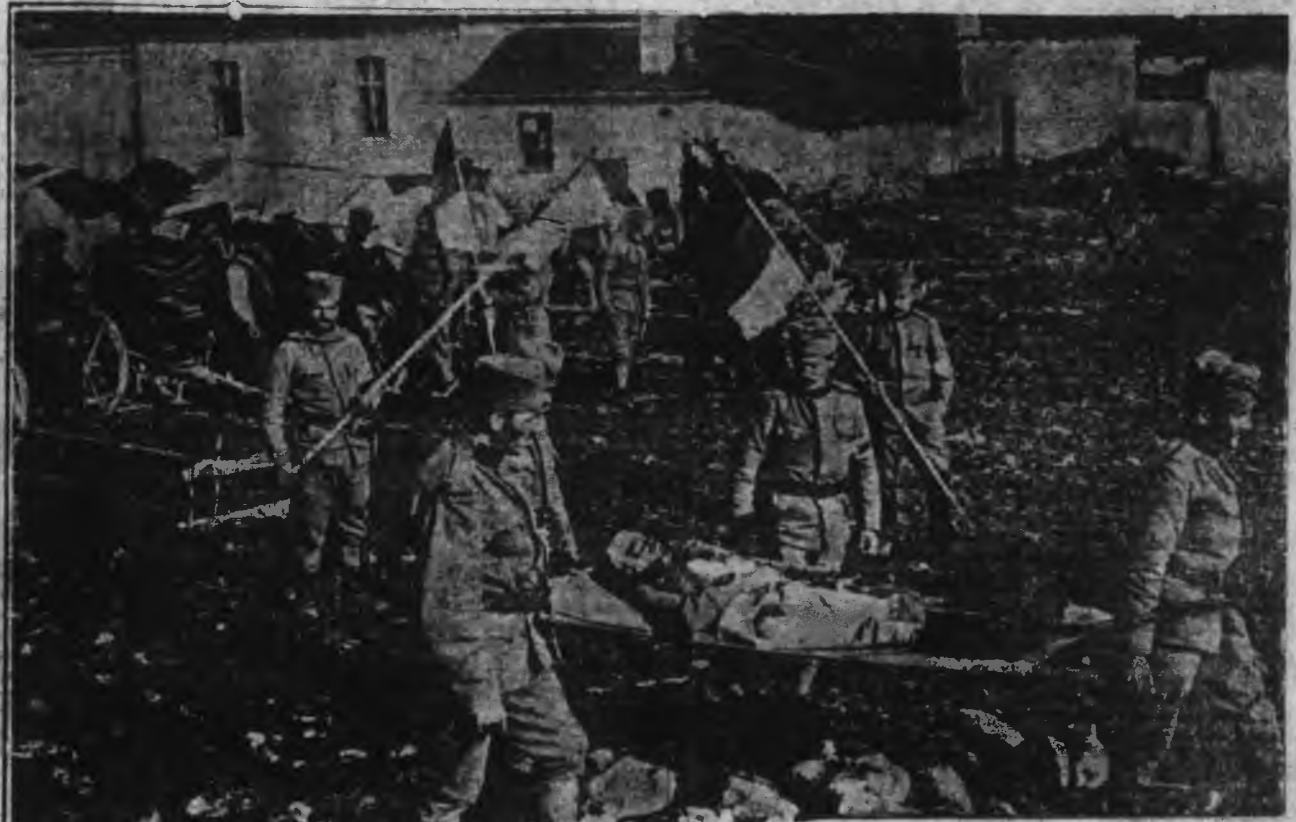
Allan Liner Compelled to Anchor at Three Rivers.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—The storm which has raged throughout Quebec province for the past 24 hours has effectually tied up navigation on the St. Lawrence. The Allan Line Pretorian, which was due here Wednesday, has not arrived, being compelled to anchor near Three Rivers. It was decided not to start the Allan liner Tunisian yesterday morning, owing to the storm.

The suspension of work in the harbor comes at a bad time, as the lake steamers are pouring in huge cargoes of grain, which, if not quickly exported will cause a big congestion.

Companies Case To Go Over.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—When the companies case comes before the Supreme Court on the 26th inst. a formal motion will be made on behalf of the provinces to postpone the hearing with the view of reconstructing the questions submitted in the reference. It is understood that the Government will not object, and, consequently the case will likely go over.



SERVIAN RED CROSS IN ACTION AT KUMANOVA.

WOMAN BURNED; SHE MAY DIE

Boys Saved Her From Burning to Death.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—While preparing supper for herself about seven o'clock last night, Mrs. Johannah Davis, a widow, 66 years of age, living alone at 275 Concord avenue, was burned so badly that there is little hope of her recovery.

Had it not been for two boys living near the corner of Ossington avenue and Bloor street, Mrs. Davis would probably have been burned to death in her home before help could have arrived.

Kauffmann Is Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Phillip Kauffman was found guilty by a jury in the criminal assize court yesterday of the charge of manslaughter. At the request of T. C. Robinette, K.C., sentence was deferred and the prisoner allowed out on $5,000 bail.

Kauffman is the man, who, on the 24th of May last, while driving along Queen street, jumped the curb with his motor and ran into an excavation, carrying with him Lilian Stein, who died of the injuries she received.

PACKING PLANT IS DESTROYED

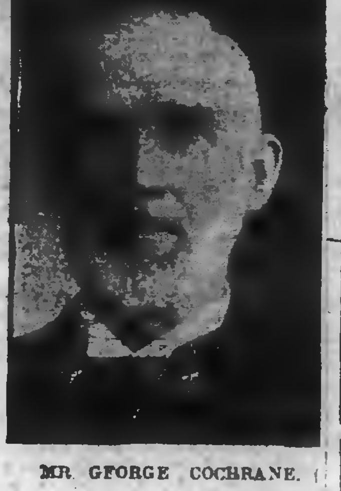
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 16.—The Van Camp Packing plant caught fire this morning and is being destroyed. The plant is valued at eight hundred thousand dollars.

HAS RECORD OF SAVING 9 LIVES

Among the life-savers of Peterborough, none has had a more distinguished career than Mr. Geo. Cochrane, the well known High County Constable.



MR. GEORGE COCHRANE.

He has the record of saving nine lives, some of them at the risk of his own, and an application will be made to have his services recognized by the award of a medal.

No one in Ontario deserves it more.

The man who expects something for nothing has a little bandit blood in his veins.

C. N. R. LAYS PLANS FOR AN OUTLET ON THE ATLANTIC

Mackenzie and Mann Road Will Ask for Permission to Extend Their Line Through Quebec to the Border—May Run into Boston.

Montreal, Nov. 16—While the Grand Trunk has abruptly suspended building operations on its proposed line through New England to Boston, the Canadian Northern Railway is to apply to Parliament this session for permission to extend its line through the Province of Quebec in such a way as to give them a connection that will permit of running rights over the Boston & Maine to Boston, and thus an Atlantic outlet.

Although it was believed that the C.N.R. would apply at this session for running rights over the Intercolonial they have apparently decided that the New England route will suit their purpose.

The facilities enabling the C.N.R. to connect with the port of Boston are to be brought about in the following way: The C.N.R. to apply for permission to construct lines of railway: (1) From a point in Montreal, crossing the St. Lawrence River opposite the city, and from thence to Levis (opposite Quebec). (2) "From a point on the last mentioned line east of the St. Lawrence River to a point at or near St. Rosalie Junction, thence to Sherbrooke or Lennoxville."

This means that the C.N.R. will construct from Montreal to Levis, with a branch running down from St. Hyacinthe to Sherbrooke. It is at Sherbrooke that the connection with Boston would be made over the Boston & Maine to the Atlantic.

Should the C.N.R. desire a Canadian outlet on the Atlantic it will be in a position to connect with St. John, N.B., by making an arrangement for running rights over the C.P.R. from Sherbrooke to that port.

An official of the Canadian Northern said that this does not mean that the C.N.R. may not eventually secure rights over the Government road.

Unfair Censure.

New York, Nov. 16.—President E. J. Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk issued a statement last night in which he characterizes as "harsh and unfair" the statement issued by Herbert A. Rice and William C. Bliss, after a conference between him and these Rhode Island officials yesterday over the Southern New England railroad situation.

He denies that he is "disgusted" with New England. He said in alluding to their attitude over the suspension of work on the road's projected extensions in New England, that he had used the word "disappointed."

"I know the people of New England too well and admire them too well to express disgust. I said that I was disappointed with the people of Rhode Island for the action they had taken in connection with the Southern New England matter," he said. "In answer to an urgent request that I state definitely when work would be resumed I replied to them that it depended on weather conditions and our board of directors."

THREE YOUTHS CHARGED WITH SHOOTING MACEDONIAN

Inspired by Dime Novels, Toronto Boys Started Out on a Jesse James Career—They Confess to Holding Up and Assaulting Their Victim Who Fortunately Was Not Fatally Wounded

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The arrest yesterday of three boys—Benjamin Gilbert, 10 Trefan street, 15 years of age; Willie Cook, 130 Berkeley street, 12 years of age, and Lyman Atwell, 4 Ashby place, 13 years of age—by Detectives Mulholland, Levitt and Elliott, throws light on one of the most daring holdups ever perpetrated in Toronto, namely, the shooting, with intent to kill, of Taley Bosheff, the Macedonian, on Nov. 11 in broad daylight.

In this case the police department had very little to work upon, and the arrests made yesterday therefore came as a surprise. Cook, the youngest boy, was arrested in the east end yesterday morning by three detectives, but Gilbert was not brought in until nine o'clock last night, the arrest having been made at his home. At 10.30 Detective Levitt brought in the third boy, Atwell.

Last night the first two lads to be arrested were brought down to the detective office and submitted to an examination by Inspector Kennedy. After going over the story of the shooting, the boys told of where the revolver was hidden, and at the end of the examination they directed the detectives in the search for the firearm, which the boys say they found at the rear of a house in Amelia street. The boys walked out of the detective office with tears in their eyes.

The boys give dime novels as the cause of their downfall. Gilbert, it is said, saturated himself with this kind of literature, and having the imagination of a poet, he conceived the idea of working wonders in Jesse James style. He has confessed to the shooting, while the other two are held as accomplices.

On Nov. 11, it is alleged that the boys entered a cottage at 11 Erin street, where they stole four razors and two watches. So far the sun seemed to shine upon them and they were pleased with their luck. From 11 Erin street, they went up to No. 25, went in by a side door and saw Bosheff sitting in a chair in the kitchen. Gilbert's hand slipped to his pocket, and in another instant a bullet had entered Bosheff' body just above the heart. The boys then slipped out by the side door, and Mrs. Annie Cook, 58 Oak street, was the only one to see their escape.

One redeeming feature of the holdup is the fact that the bullet has not caused death. Bosheff is still in St. Michael's Hospital, but his recovery is certain. It is said that a number of Macedonians were living with Bosheff, and it is alleged that the shot was fired with the intention of robbing the man after he had fallen. As it was, the man had very little money when found.

It is also alleged that not long ago boys broke into three houses of business, one in East Queen street, another in Frances street, and the third near the corner of Bay and Front streets. The three boys were taken down to the shelter about midnight last night, and spent the night there. To-day they come up for trial.

MEDAL FOR STRATHCONA

His Services Are Recognized in London

London, Nov. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Royal Society of Arts last evening Lord Sanderson, on behalf of the Duke of Connaught, who is president of the society, presented Lord Strathcona with the society's Albert medal for services in improving railway communication and developing the resources and commerce of Canada and for services to the Empire in general.

In making the presentation, Lord Sanderson read a message from the Duke of Connaught expressing the great satisfaction it afforded his highness in having been able to select him for the distinguished honor. During his term of office he had had special opportunities of realizing the great services the high commissioner had rendered in the industrial and commercial progress of the Empire. His highness rejoiced to add yet another mark of appreciation of his long, valuable career of usefulness.

Lord Strathcona, in the course of a brief acknowledgment, said he deeply appreciated the gracious message his royal highness had sent and that he regarded it as a signal honor to be numbered among the distinguished men upon whom the medal had been conferred, recalling that the first recipient was Rowland Hill.

Falls Out of Window.

Brockville, Nov. 16.—William Fox, who, with his wife, was committed from the village of Maitland to the Athens House of Industry three weeks ago, met his death at that institution by a fall from his bedroom window. Fox was 92 years old and blind. There was no inquest. Fox had served at the Battle of the Windmill in 1837, and was possibly the last survivor of that historic engagement. His wife is 83.

He was presented with the Albert medal from the Royal Society of Arts.

HUGE DAMS FOR POWER

Capitalists Have Scheme to Develop on St. Lawrence.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The damming of the St. Lawrence at two points between Montreal and Prescott is proposed in two gigantic power schemes, now before the Borden Government for consideration.

The Long Sault Development Co., the Aluminum Co. of America, the Eastern Canada Power Co., Sir Max Aitken and D. Lorne McGibbon, and other eminent Montreal, English and United States capitalists, are laying plans for the damming of the St. Lawrence above the Long Sault Rapids from the American to the Canadian side, and of developing 800,000 electrical horsepower. The second scheme involves the bringing of the level of the St. Lawrence in the vicinity of Coteau, Cedar, Split Rock and Cascade Rapids to the level of the water in Lake St. Francis, which would provide a head of 85 feet and dam the water Cascade Point to the Cornwall Canal.

The different islands down the river, for a distance of over fifteen miles, would be connected with its retaining dams. The whole of the rapids division would be eliminated and part of the Soulanges Canal would be flooded. The electrical energy to be generated is estimated at one million horsepower. This latter scheme is even more gigantic in magnitude than the first.

Two years ago the scheme of the Long Sault Development Co. was rejected by the late Government because of opposition of the Conservation Commission of Canada and big Montreal shipping interests. It also met with strong opposition in the United States, and the scheme is now pending before Congress.

The latter and greater proposition has never been considered by the present Government, but a charter was granted to D. Lorne McGibbon by Hon. F. D. Monk early last winter. Just what attitude the Government will take on the matter it is impossible to say.

Mr. Borden, while leader of the Opposition, strongly opposed the Long Sault Development project, taking the ground that no such huge power monopolies should be permitted, and that the development of Canada's water power should be undertaken for the benefit of the people, and not for private interests.

SERVIAN RED CROSS IN ACTION AT KUMANOVA.

WOMAN BURNED; SHE MAY DIE

Boys Saved Her From Burning to Death.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—While preparing supper for herself about seven o'clock last night, Mrs. Johannah Davis, a widow, 66 years of age, living alone at 275 Concord avenue, was burned so badly that there is little hope of her recovery.

Had it not been for two boys living near the corner of Ossington avenue and Bloor street, Mrs. Davis would probably have been burned to death in her home before help could have arrived.

Kauffmann Is Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Phillip Kauffman was found guilty by a jury in the criminal assize court yesterday of the charge of manslaughter. At the request of T. C. Robinette, K.C., sentence was deferred and the prisoner allowed out on $5,000 bail.

Kauffman is the man, who, on the 24th of May last, while driving along Queen street, jumped the curb with his motor and ran into an excavation, carrying with him Lilian Stein, who died of the injuries she received.

THREE YOUTHS CHARGED WITH SHOOTING MACEDONIAN

Inspired by Dime Novels, Toronto Boys Started Out on a Jesse James Career—They Confess to Holding Up and Assaulting Their Victim Who Fortunately Was Not Fatally Wounded

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The arrest yesterday of three boys—Benjamin Gilbert, 10 Trefan street, 15 years of age; Willie Cook, 130 Berkeley street, 12 years of age, and Lyman Atwell, 4 Ashby place, 13 years of age—by Detectives Mullholland, Levitt and Elliott, throws light on one of the most daring holdups ever perpetrated in Toronto, namely, the shooting, with intent to kill, of Taley Bosheff, the Macedonian, on Nov. 11 in broad daylight.

In this case the police department had very little to work upon, and the arrests made yesterday therefore came as a surprise. Cook, the youngest boy, was arrested in the east end yesterday morning by three detectives, but Gilbert was not brought in until nine o'clock last night, the arrest having been made at his home. At 10.30 Detective Levitt brought in the third boy, Atwell.

Last night the first two lads to be arrested were brought down to the detective office and submitted to an examination by Inspector Kennedy. After going over the story of the shooting, the boys told of where the revolver was hidden, and at the end of the examination they directed the detectives in the search for the firearm, which the boys say they found at the rear of a house in Amelia street. The boys walked out of the detective office with tears in their eyes.

The boys give dime novels as the cause of their downfall. Gilbert, it is said, saturated himself with this kind of literature, and having the imagination of a poet, he conceived the idea of working wonders in Jesse James style. He has confessed to the shooting, while the other two are held as accomplices.

On Nov. 11, it is alleged that the boys entered a cottage at 11 Erin street, where they stole four razors and two watches. So far the sun seemed to shine upon them and they were pleased with their luck. From 11 Erin street, they went up to No. 25, went in by a side door and saw Bosheff sitting in a chair in the kitchen. Gilbert's hand slipped to his pocket, and in another instant a bullet had entered Bosheff' body just above the heart. The boys then slipped out by the side door, and Mrs. Annie Cook, 58 Oak street, was the only one to see their escape.

One redeeming feature of the holdup is the fact that the bullet has not caused death. Bosheff is still in St. Michael's Hospital, but his recovery is certain. It is said that a number of Macedonians were living with Bosheff, and it is alleged that the shot was fired with the intention of robbing the man after he had fallen. As it was, the man had very little money when found.

It is also alleged that not long ago boys broke into three houses of business, one in East Queen street, another in Frances street, and the third near the corner of Bay and Front streets. The three boys were taken down to the shelter about midnight last night, and spent the night there. To-day they come up for trial.

PROTEST BY PRESBYTERIANS

Brandon, Man., Nov. 16.—The Presbyterian synod meeting adopted a resolution calling for the dominance of the English language in all public schools of the province, compulsory education, and Governmental inspection of private institutions.

After a discussion of the recent bye-election in Macdonald, the synod adopted, unanimously, a resolution moved by Rev. M. C. Rumball, of Morden, and Rev. C. W. Gordon, Winnipeg, deploring the "recent evidence of deliberate prostitution of justice to personal or party ends and the trampling under foot sacred rights of citizens to individual liberty and fair trial."

SHOOTING IN WESTERN CAFE

Victor Ross When Pursued Uses Revolver Again

Canadian Press Despatch.

Edmonton, Alta., No. 16.—Victor Ross, a well-known youthful habitue of Calgary pool rooms, entered Lewis Bros' crowded cafe at an early hour this morning and began shooting up the place. Ross then ran from the place and in the direction of Howard Ave. Several inmates of the cafe pursued, among them being Samuel Law a Canadian Northern employe. Ross turned and fired at Law, the bullet entering the left ear and passing through the base of the brain. Ross has not been captured. It is understood both men formerly lived at Vancouver, and men have had an old quarrel.

STORM TIES UP RIVER TRAFFIC

Allan Liner Compelled to Anchor at Three Rivers.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—The storm which has raged throughout Quebec province for the past 24 hours has effectually tied up navigation on the St. Lawrence. The Allan Line Pretorian, which was due here Wednesday, has not arrived, being compelled to anchor near Three Rivers. It was decided not to start the Allan liner Tunisian yesterday morning, owing to the storm.

The suspension of work in the harbor comes at a bad time, as the lake steamers are pouring in huge cargoes of grain, which, if not quickly exported will cause a big congestion.

Companies Case To Go Over.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—When the companies case comes before the Supreme Court on the 26th inst. a formal motion will be made on behalf of the provinces to postpone the hearing with the view of reconstructing the questions submitted in the reference. It is understood that the Government will not object, and, consequently the case will likely go over.

Rainville of Chambly Vercheres. Mr. Rainville is one of the most finished speakers among the French Conservative members.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, because of the pressing duties of his Department, has resigned from the Treasury Board. He will be succeeded by Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Customs.

Tariff Revision Coming.

New York, Nov. 16.—Governor Woodrow Wilson announced last night that immediately after his inauguration as President he would call an extraordinary session of Congress to convene not later than April 15 for the purpose of revising the tariff. He does not say what he proposes to do.

C. N. R. LAYS PLANS FOR AN OUTLET ON THE ATLANTIC

Mackenzie and Mann Road Will Ask for Permission to Extend Their Line Through Quebec to the Border—May Run into Boston.

Montreal, Nov. 16—While the Grand Trunk has abruptly suspended building operations on its proposed line through New England to Boston, the Canadian Northern Railway is to apply to Parliament this session for permission to extend its line through the Province of Quebec in such a way as to give them a connection that will permit of running rights over the Boston & Maine to Boston, and thus an Atlantic outlet.

Although it was believed that the C.N.R. would apply at this session for running rights over the Intercolonial they have apparently decided that the New England route will suit their purpose.

The facilities enabling the C.N.R. to connect with the port of Boston are to be brought about in the following way: The C.N.R. to apply for permission to construct lines of railway: (1) From a point in Montreal, crossing the St. Lawrence River opposite the city, and from thence to Levis (opposite Quebec). (2) "From a point on the last mentioned line east of the St. Lawrence River to a point at or near St. Rosalie Junction, thence to Sherbrooke or Lennoxville."

This means that the C.N.R. will construct from Montreal to Levis, with a branch running down from St. Hyacinthe to Sherbrooke. It is at Sherbrooke that the connection with Boston would be made over the Boston & Maine to the Atlantic.

Should the C.N.R. desire a Canadian outlet on the Atlantic it will be in a position to connect with St. John, N.B., by making an arrangement for running rights over the C.P.R. from Sherbrooke to that port.

An official of the Canadian Northern said that this does not mean that the C.N.R. may not eventually secure rights over the Government road.

Unfair Censure.

New York, Nov. 16.—President E. J. Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk issued a statement last night in which he characterizes as "harsh and unfair" the statement issued by Herbert A. Rice and William C. Bliss, after a conference between him and these Rhode Island officials yesterday over the Southern New England railroad situation.

He denies that he is "disgusted" with New England. He said in alluding to their attitude over the suspension of work on the road's projected extensions in New England, that he had used the word "disappointed."

"I know the people of New England too well and admire them too well to express disgust. I said that I was disappointed with the people of Rhode Island for the action they had taken in connection with the Southern New England matter," he said. "In answer to an urgent request that I state definitely when work would be resumed I replied to them that it depended on weather conditions and our board of directors."

MEDAL FOR STRATHCONA

His Services Are Recognized in London

London, Nov. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Royal Society of Arts last evening Lord Sanderson, on behalf of the Duke of Connaught, who is president of the society, presented Lord Strathcona with the society's Albert medal for services in improving railway communication and developing the resources and commerce of Canada and for services to the Empire in general.

In making the presentation, Lord Sanderson read a message from the Duke of Connaught expressing the great satisfaction it afforded his highness in having been able to select him for the distinguished honor. During his term of office he had had special opportunities of realizing the great services the high commissioner had rendered in the industrial and commercial progress of the Empire. His highness rejoiced to add yet another mark of appreciation of his long, valuable career of usefulness.

Lord Strathcona, in the course of a brief acknowledgment, said he deeply appreciated the gracious message his royal highness had sent and that he regarded it as a signal honor to be numbered among the distinguished men upon whom the medal had been conferred, recalling that the first recipient was Rowland Hill.

"Mista Tickot says, 'Go to baid!'"

"Of all the disgusting countries! Heah, don't put that thah—heah."

The porter flung his load anywhere, and absolved himself with a curt, "I's got otha passengers to wait on now."

"I shall certainly report you to the company," the Englishman fumed.

"Yassah, I p'sume so."

"Have I got to go to bed now? Really, I—" but the porter was gone, and the irate foreigner crawled under his curtains, muttering, "I shall write a letter to the London Times about this."

To add to his misery, Mrs. Whitcomb came from the Women's Room, and as she passed him, she prodded him with one sharp elbow and twisted the corner of her heel into his little toe. He thrust his head out with his fiercest, "How dare you!" But Mrs. Whitcomb was fresh from a prolonged encounter with Mrs. Wellington, and she flung back a venomous glare that sent the Englishman to cover.

The porter reveled in his victory till he had to dash out to the vestibule to give vent to hilarious yelps of laughter. When he had regained composure, he came back to Mallory, and bent over him to say:

"Yo' berth is empty, sah. Shall I make it up?"

Mallory nodded, and turned to Marjorie, with a sad, "Good night, darling."

The porter rolled his eyes again, and turned away, only to be recalled by Marjorie's voice: "Porter, take this old handbag out of here."

The porter thought of the vanquished Lathrop, exiled to the smoking room, and he answered: "That belongs to the gemman what owns this berth."

"Put it in number one," Marjorie commanded, with a queenly gesture.

The porter obeyed meekly, wondering what would happen next. He had no sooner deposited Lathrop's valise among the incongruous white ribbons, than Marjorie recalled him to say: "And, porter, you may bring me my own baggage."

"Yo what—missus?"

"Our handbags, idiot," Mallory explained, peevishly.

"I ain't seen no handbags of you-alls," the porter protested. "You-all didn't have no handbags when you got on this cah."

Mallory jumped as if he had been shot. "Good Lord, I remember! We left 'em in the taxicab!"

The porter cast his hands up, and walked away from the tragedy. Marjorie stared at Mallory in horror.

"We had so little time to catch the train," Mallory stammered. Marjorie leaped to her feet: "I'm going up in the baggage car."

"For the dog?"

"For my trunk."

And now Mallory annihilated her completely, for he gasped: "Our trunks are on the train ahead!"

Marjorie fell back for one moment, then bounded to her feet with shrill commands: "Porter! Porter! I want you to stop this train this minute!"

The porter called back from the depths of a berth: "This train don't stop till tomorrow noon."

Marjorie had strength enough for only one vain protest: "Do you mean to say that I've got to go to San Francisco in this waist—a waist that has seen a whole day in Chicago?"

The best consolation Mallory could offer was companionship in misery. He pushed forward one not too immaculate cuff. "Well, this is the only linen I have."

"Don't speak to me," snapped Marjorie, beating her heels against the floor.

"But, my darling!"

"Go away and leave me. I hate you!"

Mallory rose up, and stumbling down the aisle, plounced into berth number three, an allegory of despair.

About this time, Little Jimmie Wellington, having completed more or less chaotic preparations for sleep, found that he had put on his pyjamas hindside foremost. After vain efforts to whirl round quickly and get at his own back, he put out a frowsy head, and called for help.

"Say, Porter, Porter!"

"I'm still on the train," answered the porter, coming into view.

"You'll have to hook me up."

The porter rendered what aid and correction he could in Wellington's hippopotamine toilet. Wellington was just wide enough awake to discern the undisturbed bridal-chamber. He whined:

"Say, porter, that rice-trap. Aren't they going to flop the rice-trap?"

The porter shook his head sadly. "Don't look like that flopper's a'goin to flip. That dog-on bridal couple is done divorced a'ready!"

CHAPTER XVI.

Good Night, All!

The car was settling gradually into peace. But there was still some murmur and drowsy energy. Shoes continued to drop, heads to bump against upper berths, the bell to ring now and then, and ring again and again.

The porter paid little heed to it; he was busy making up number five (Ira Lathrop's berth) for Marjorie, who was making what preparations she could for her trousseauless, husbandless, dogless first night out.

Finally the Englishman, who had almost rung the bell dry of electricity, shoved from his berth his indignant and undignified head. Once more the car resounded with the cry of "Pawtah! Pawtah!"

The porter moved up with noticeable deliberation. "Did you ring, sah?"

"Did I ring! Paw-tah, you may draw my tub at eight-thutty in the mawning."

"Draw yo'—what, sah?" the porter gasped.

"My tub."

"Ba-ath tub?"

"Bahth tub."

"Lawdy, man. Is you allowin' to take a ba-ath in the mawnin'?"

"Of course I am."

"Didn't you have one befo' you stahted?"

"How dare you! Of cawse I did."

"Well, that's all you git."

"Do you mean to tell me that there is no tub on this beastly train?" Wedgewood almost fell out of bed with the shock of this news.

"We do not carry tubs—no, sah. There's a lot of tubs in San Francisco, though."

"No tub on this train for four days!" Wedgewood sighed. "But whatever does one do in the meanwhile?"

"One just waits. Yassah, one and all waits."

"It's ghahstly, that's what it is, ghahstly."

"Yassah," said the porter, and mumbled as he walked away, "but the weather is gettin' cooler."

He finished preparing Marjorie's bunk, and was just suggesting that Mallory retreat to the smoking room while number three was made up, when there was a commotion in the corridor, and a man in checked overalls dashed into the car.

THE MARTYRS TO DIABETES

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the business men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely, but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and heedlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they were piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far-off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES (in the United States EXPURGO-ANTI-DIABETES), which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of various cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg Man. THE GREAT QUESTION.

—Nov. 17.—Mark 8:27-9:1.—

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. 16:16.

FOR a considerable period of His ministry our Lord did not declare Himself, even to His disciples, to be the Messiah. Undoubtedly He chose the wiser course. It was better that the thought should gradually come upon the minds of His followers than that He should have started in with making that claim—better that the people should claim it for Him. He did, however, wish His disciples to know, and He asked, Who do men say that I am?"

Later came the point of the question: "But who say ye that I am?" St. Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus said, "Blessed art thou, Simon, son of Jonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven." Forthwith Jesus began to explain to the beloved twelve the experiences that lay before him—and His death and resurrection. Doubtless all of the Apostles were disappointed, but only St. Peter had the courage to express himself, saying, "Be it far from Thee, Lord, this shall not happen."

"Get thee behind me, adversary."

In this course St. Peter was opposing the Divine will and Plan, of which the death of Jesus was the very Center or Hub. To make the matter very emphatic Jesus said to St. Peter, "Get thee behind Me, adversary," thy words savor not of the things of God's Plan, but the things of men. Then He began to make clear to His followers what had not been "meat in due season" to tell them clearly before, namely, that whoever desired to be counted in with Him in any part of His work must realize that it would cost him all he possessed of an earthly kind; he must deny himself, take up his cross and follow in the footsteps of the Redeemer.

Any one solicitous of maintaining his rights and holding on to the present life, unwilling to sacrifice all, will lose the great Prize of the Divine nature, which will be given to those who take up the cross and make a full sacrifice of earthly interests. And on the other hand, he who will faithfully lose his life for Jesus' sake will save it—will gain the reward of life on the spirit plane.

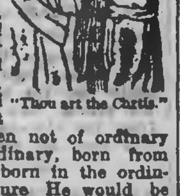
"What Shall It Profit a Man?"

God has provided a future life for every soul of man through the Redemption accomplished by Jesus, but only the noble of heart, of character, of life, who will accept this great blessing through the Divinely appointed way, will get it. If they selfishly seek for the whole world, the selfishness thus developed will make them unfit for the eternal life. For what would a man take in exchange for the loss of his life? Would he consider wealth or fame or name for a few years in the present time worthy of exchange at profit, if it were to cost him eternal glory and eternal life? Surely not. We are therefore to have in mind that character-building is absolutely essential to our attaining eternal life.

Whoever becomes a follower of the Lord and hopes to gain the prize of everlasting life and glory on the spirit plane must come out fully and courageously and properly acknowledge Jesus and His words. To be ashamed of the Truth, of the Divine Plan, to be ashamed of what we find to be the teachings of God's Word, because it is unpopular with men, is to offend the Lord and to prove ourselves unworthy of His favor.

The Great Question.

The great question of eighteen centuries ago is the great question of today. Who is Jesus? If, as some claim, He was merely a good man, a most able Teacher, then He was not the Christ, for the Christ, although the embodiment of all those qualities, was more, much more. To be the Christ, He must have been the Man Christ Jesus, who gave Himself a Ransom price for all, to be testified in due time. (I. Tim. 2, 5, 6.) And that signifies that He must have been not of ordinary birth but extraordinary, born from above, because if born in the ordinary course of nature He would be like others of Adam's sons, subject to the sentence of death and unable to save either Himself or others. But if He was The Christ, the Sent of God, who left the glory of the Father and was made flesh, that He might "taste death for every man," then we behold Him as the great Redeemer of the world, whose death was necessary as a Ransom, or corresponding price, to secure the release of mankind from the death sentence and make possible the resurrection of Adam and his race.



"Thou art the Christ."

More than this, the word Christ signifies the Anointed. The Bible declares that the Anointed Lord shall be the Great King, Prophet and Priest, whose Kingdom shall last for a thousand years, and shall destroy sin and all who love sin, and lift up all humanity willing to return, into harmony with God. This is who Jesus is, according to the Scriptures. And His present work is the gathering of a Bride class, to be His joint-heir in His glorious Kingdom, which will be set up soon after the Elect Church shall have been completed by the glorious change of the First Resurrection.

WHY SHOULD NOT OLD PEOPLE RETAIN THEIR YOUTHFUL VIGOR

No Reason Why Men And Women Of Sixty, Seventy And Eighty Should Not Be Well—The Secret Of Happy Old Age

"Fruit-a-tives", The Famous Medicine Made Of Fresh Fruit Juices, Again Proves Its Great Value In Curing Kidney Trouble.

Old age pays the cost of living. Few men and women of fifty, sixty and seventy are free of Kidney Trouble. Hard work, mental strain and general debility, tell in the long run. And many men and women show they have Kidney Trouble by suffering with pain in the back, headaches, rheumatism, sciatica, bladder disease.

To such people "Fruit-a-tives" has proved one of the wonders of the age—and the most remarkable discovery of the century in modern medical science. This fruit medicine has performed hundreds of cures where the sufferer had been told that the case was incurable.

Take, for instance, Mr. Geo. W. Barkley, a prosperous farmer and one of the leading citizens of Dundas County, Ontario.

At seventy-six, he is the picture of health—with the vigorous actions and the sprightly step of a man of fifty.

Yet for twenty years, he suffered with Kidney Trouble. He took "Fruit-a-tives" and it cured him.

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., JAN. 25th, 1911

"For over twenty years I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and said I would be a sufferer all the rest of my life. Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using them all the time since and am glad to say that I am cured. I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible."

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit, and is the only one that acts directly on the kidneys. It cures. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

HYDRO REPORT ON COST OF DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

At a special meeting of the City Council held last evening a letter was read from the Hydro-Electric Commission confirming the verbal information given to the Council on Nov. 5th relating to power. The Commission estimated that a system to duplicate the service now given by the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and the Otonabee Power Company, would cost $80,000 approximately. The estimated cost of installing seven hundred 100 watt Tungsten lamps instead of the present number of arcs would be $7,920 or approximately $8,000. The estimated cost additionally for proposed ornamental street lighting on George street from the C.P.R. to McDonnell street, would be $31,696 or approximately $32,000. The three items total $120,000.

It should be borne in mind that a large portion of this third item of $32,000 could be covered by a local improvement tax on the district supplied.

Raiment of the Coster.

The English costermonger must be fearfully and wonderfully clothed, judging from the following coster tailor's advertisement in a London paper:

"A slap-up togs and kicksies builder, with upper Benjamins snipped on a downy plan, with moleskins of hanky-panky design, with a double fakement down the sides and artful buttons at bottom, with kicksies cut pegtop, half tight, or to drop loose over the trotters, with fancy vests made to flash the dickey, or to fit tight round the scrag."

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jory at $1.50 per bottle.

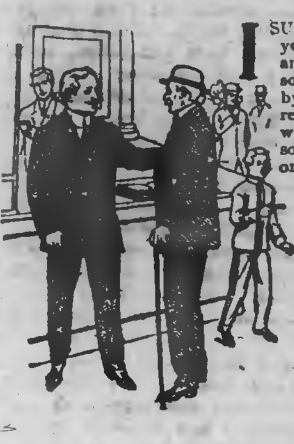
HAD RHEUMATISM IN ALL MY BONES

"Sometimes I Could Hardly Walk!" 2 Boxes of Gin Pills Cured Me



I SUFFERED from Kidney Trouble for five long years. I also had Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles—could not sleep at night—and sometimes could hardly walk. I was treated by some of our best physicians but without relief. I lost over fifteen pounds, was very weak, and friends, who had not seen me for some time, were astonished. One day, I met one of our leading hotel keepers, who had been cured by Gin Pills, and he advised me to try them, so I bought two boxes at my druggist's.

Before I had used one box, I felt a big change for the better, and before the second box was gone, I was completely cured.

I assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had known what I know now about Gin Pills, I would not have spent over one hundred dollars for nothing, when two boxes of Gin Pills cured me.

Anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism, should never be without Gin Pills.

THE PEACE PROSPECTS

The dispatches from Europe indicate that Austria and Servia have managed to reconcile their conflicting interests sufficiently to prevent the danger of an outbreak of war. The basis of the agreement, as stated by a reliable correspondent, is the abandonment by Servia of claims for an Adriatic port, and there will be no partition of Albania. Austria is to allow Servia port at Salonica. The question of what should be done with Albania, and of whether Servia could get to the Adriatic, thus giving the Russian bear a chance to get into the Austrian sea if necessary, having been fairly well disposed of, if no further complications arise, there is very little doubt that remaining questions over the partition of territory, and the readjustment of the balance of power, can be successfully solved.

The magnitude of the war that would be precipitated if a peaceful way out of the Balkan troubles were not found, is just now beginning to be fully appreciated. With the whole of Europe sitting on the brink of the wildest fight that ever was known to history, exceeding the Napoleonic wars as a mature man can outfight a boy, it is no wonder that the utmost resources of diplomacy have been working to obtain a peaceful settlement. The results hinging on the success of the effort were so huge, so universal, that it is not to be wondered that however warlike some of the lesser powers may have been, the large ones worked feverishly against the occurrence of fresh dissensions. The reply of the Russian minister of foreign affairs to the Servian attache, that Russia was not prepared to go to war in any event, settled the matter so far as Servia's demands were concerned. Probably the powers would be ready to see that the little kingdoms get fair treatment, but forward or foolish claims will not be sanctioned, by mutual agreement.

THE GOOD ROADS' BILL

Notice has been sent out from Ottawa that the Borden Government will lose no time in reintroducing its Highways Bill which was thrown out last session by the Liberal majority in the Senate. In the campaign a general promise had been made that the Federal Government would contribute to good roads building in each of the provinces. Hon. Mr. Cochrane introduced the bill, which was carried in the Commons, and sent to the Senate, in due form. But the senators urged that it was unconstitutional, in that it did not provide for the handing over of the Federal money to the provinces direct, to be spent by the provincial Governments. But Mr. Cochrane said that this was unnecessary. The Department would be responsible for the expenditure of the money, and proposed to see that it was expended to its satisfaction. That would best be done in such a case by direct expenditure. No province was going to refuse federal money being spent on building good roads for it. There would be no clash of authority, no division of jurisdiction. After the federal work was done the roads would belong to the province or municipalities, just as much as if it had never been done.

The Ontario share of that good roads money would have been, for 1912, about $250,000. The money was appropriated, but is standing idle because the bill authorising the expenditure is not in force. But it remains to be seen whether the Liberal senators will again have the nerve to face and angry people, denied of money for good roads that would be an inestimable boon. Some of that money might well be spent around Peterborough, where it is needed badly enough. In fact, there are few cities and towns in this province, or any other, which are not liable to benefit most directly from the worthy effort of the Government to aid good road building.

QUEBEC AND EDUCATION

The Quebec Liberals have held a caucus to protest against the threats and criticisms leveled at them by L'Action Sociale, the clerical organ. L'Action Sociale says that these Liberals are Reformers, and that certain of them were conspiring, with a constancy worthy of a better cause, to slip some subtle paragraphs into coming provincial legislation, in order to open the door to more sweeping reforms. These reformers are alleged by the clerical organ to openly desire to get rid of the church in school matters. The Liberals' object to being described as anti-clerical, though many of them sympathise with Godfrey Langlois, M.L.A., in his efforts to improve the public school standards, and to obtain compulsory education for all children in Quebec.

It is one of the crying shames of modern civilization that the conduct of public affairs cannot go ahead with regard to the chief interests of the mass of the people, when powerful influences are opposed. In the case of education in Quebec, the secularisation of education is as much opposed by the Church of Rome as was the freeing of the schools of England from the domination of the Church of England. Godless schools, as the American schools are described, because no religious bias of any kind is permitted, have the defect, certainly, that they can never lead the pupil into knowledge of or sympathy with religious work. Unless the church is able on its own account to attract the service of the young, it loses a grip on them entirely. A secular, non-church going, generation springs up. But while there cannot be any just moral objection in the influence of the church upon the school population, there can, and most surely will be, objection if the power of a church be directed toward proselytising among the pupils. No one church should have any more advantage than another in wielding influence over pupils not of its own denomination. When the power of a church in denominational schools is so used that the secular educational progress of the children is held back then surely there is time for open protest from the Reformers. Mr. Langlois has waged a long and hard battle for the improvement of education, and the starting of compulsory attendance, but so far he has not made much headway. If Quebec had a premier who was in a position to deal with the matter as decisively as Sir James Whitney dealt with the bi-lingual school question, there would not remain much doubt as to where things would end.

RAILWAY COMMISSION SPEAKS

Premier Borden's intimation that the Canadian Privy Council cannot go on hearing appeals from the decisions of the Railway Commission on trivial matters certainly was timely. The law as at present constituted provides for an appeal from the Commission to the Privy Council on any matter in which the railway companies cannot agree to accept the commission's finding. In other words, the decision of the Railway Commission are by no means final unless the companies are willing to accept them as such. The outcome of this system is that the Canadian Privy Council is burdened with appeals covering questions of fact, and minor matters that should never get past the railway board. The most glaring instance of this was the appeal of the C.P.R. in the Humber Valley case, concerning Toronto. Premier Borden rightly complained about the council being burdened with the consideration of this small dispute. He said: "For example we are asked to make orders regarding gradients at highway crossings and the like. I think that some other method of appeal will have to be found, or appeals to us must be limited to those cases which are certified by the Railway Commission."

There will, of course, be a hungry time from the Toronto World and some of the other Toronto papers who find some pleasure, and perhaps profit, in corporation-baiting, but vapid complaints about the railway companies overriding the Commission aside there ought to be a reform here. Seven years ago the Canadian Pacific Railway appealed against the Union station order in Toronto. Three years ago it appealed against the viaduct order. In neither case is actual work yet started. The policy of obstruction succeeded, though in the case of the Union station, work is to be started in the spring. But there assuredly ought to be more finality to the finding of the Railway Commission. If it were vested with power to allow only such appeals as it deemed desirable, there would be nothing lost from a public standpoint.

MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

The Ontario Electrical Association has passed a resolution requesting the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission to report on the probable cost of building electric railway lines between the principal municipalities utilizing Hydro-Electric power. This is in line with the idea advanced by Hon. Adam Beck, that the Hydro-Electric municipalities should co-operate in electric railway operation. On paper the idea looks well. The electric lines would provide municipal competition for steam railroad traffic, thus giving accommodation that is now frequently denied. There would be transportation for farm products, and for urban commodities to the rural districts, practically at cost. A large area of rural Ontario would be suburbanised.

It is to be regretted that so many practical difficulties are in the way. In the first place to follow the Ontario Electrical Association suggestion that the car lines be run alongside the territory now acquired for the general transmission lines would be an impossibility. The steel towers were laid in the most direct line possible between the central stations and the cities. The line from Dundas to Brantford, and from the trunk line to Caledonia climbs the Niagara escarpment. In very few cases would it be possible for electric railways to be operated directly in connection with the transmission lines. Then again, there are existing electric lines which it would be far harder to compete against than Hydro-Electric power can compete against private power. The cost of railway construction is enormous, and though the Hydro-Electric has been a magnificent success in most of the municipalities they are yet too much involved in working out their local systems, in obtaining sufficient consumption to meet their contractual obligations, for them to be in any position to assume huge fresh liabilities. The municipalities would be well advised to make absolutely sure of their financial position before engaging in any such great project. There may come a time when an electric railway system will be as much a feature of Ontario Municipal Co-operation as is power supply, but it can be safely said that this is still on the lap of the gods.

EDITORIAL NOTES

From Toronto Telegram—Is coal to be so scarce that the winter air of Ontario will be once more melodious with the voice of the bucksaw?

The Windsor Record tells of a motor-car company up Windsor way which has just declared the annual dividend of its employes, amounting to $20,000, which represents five per cent of the wages of workers who have been with the company one year or more. It is safe to say that the company will find the payment of these dividends a good investment.

The Stratford Herald says—Mackenzie King called Lord Roberts "a tin-pot or jingo warrior," at London Liberal Club meeting Wednesday night. Disgust and pity struggle for supremacy at the spectacle. Lord Roberts was anything but a "tin-pot" warrior in South Africa. Nor were Canadians the last to cheer for "Little Bobs" when he brought victory out of chaos in the South African war.

Y.M.C.A. OUT TO RAISE $2000

Two Day's Campaign on Monday and Tuesday

$100 FROM C.G.E.

Amount Must Be Raised to Earn $1000 Offer

A banquet was held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening, at which many prominent citizens gathered to discuss the forthcoming two days' campaign to raise $2,000 in aid of the Y.M.C.A. It will be remembered that Mr. E. R. Wood, of Toronto, made an offer of $1,000, the only stipulation being that $2,000 be subscribed by citizens of Peterborough. The total is sufficient to free the Y.M.C.A. from debt. The meal was provided by Coleman Bros. Speeches were made, encouraging the work, by Mayor Bradburn, Messrs. J. J. Turner, jr., G. A. Gillespie, A. A. Hainsworth, G. N. Gordon, James Conna and W. R. Morris.

Mr. W. R. Morris, in his speech suggested that when a man gave $5 or more he be given a membership of the Y.M.C.A., and this make it possible to increase the present enrollment from 4?? members to a thousand.

Mr. Sheppard representative of the Central Association, was called upon to give a few words of advice.

Mr. Sheppard said he had intended to caution Peterborough men on the better system, but from the remarks he had heard it would not be needed. He had had experiences in Paris and Woodstock in such campaigns, and although at first doubting their success, both cities had succeeded in collecting more than the amount aimed for. Mr. Sheppard spoke on the great work the Y.M.C.A. was doing in the large cities. Speaking on the coming campaign he felt sure of success.

Mr. Morris' idea of giving membership to those who donated $5 he thought very good, and suggested that those who gave $10 be given two memberships, and so on, and in this way the membership list would soar up as was desired.

In many of the speeches there had been protestations as to the unfairness in the way a certain few people had been supporting the local Y.M.C.A., and he thought that the workers of this campaign would make it, as should be—the people keeping up this very worthy institution.

HOME CONTRIBUTIONS.

Mr. E. A. Peck, as chairman, announced that the following contributions had already been received:

C.G.E.	$100.00
Gold Medal Camp Manufacturing Co.	10.00
De Laval Dairy Supply Co.	25.00

The campaign is to be carried out with five teams, each team having five or six men. On Monday evening at 6.15 o'clock a report of the first day's work will be given at a banquet in the Y.M.C.A., and a report of the whole campaign will be given on Tuesday evening at the same hour and place.

BETWEEN THE EYES

The upper part of the face is what you notice first when you meet a person.

A scowl there, is often so disfiguring that it doesn't matter how attractive the person otherwise appears—the scowl spoils it all.

In most cases scowls are the direct result of eye strain. Remove the strain the scowl passes away.

If you have any symptoms of eye strain have your eyes examined by a Specialist at once. Don't wait until ugly lines appear between the eyes.

If you need glasses he will prescribe the correct lenses. If you do not need glasses he will tell you so.

We guarantee satisfaction.

Pythons Like Milk.

"The fondness of pythons for milk is notorious," said an official of the zoo. "A python will follow a bowl of milk for miles and then be perfectly satisfied with the milk as a reward for its journey. In India sometimes the natives in traveling through the forests carry a torch ahead for fear of wild animals, and one man will bring up the rear carrying a bowl of milk. In this way they sometimes enter a town, followed by half a dozen pythons, as they say in India, 'wagging their tails behind them.'"—N. Y. York

ANNUAL TAG DAY IS IN PROGRESS

Subscriptions From the Schools Made Total of $110.81 --- Many Workers in Campaign

Tag Day is on at full pressure today, and the response is reported as very satisfactory. At an early hour this morning a host of willing workers started out on their campaign and to-night will no doubt have realized their ambition of securing a large sum for the Children's Aid Society.

The statement on the proceeds from subscriptions at the schools yesterday, showing a total of $110.81, is as follows:

South Central...	$ 18.01
Central...	17.13
West Ward...	5.0
King Edward...	6.3
Queen Alexandra...	10.12
East Ward...	7.67
St. Peter's...	3.64
St. Mary's...	3.27
	$ 74.17
Normal School...	9.36
Collegiate Institute...	27.2
	$ 110.8

The way in which the young maid was turned down was really cruel. With a bashful, timid voice she accosted a farmer, who was driving past her in a rig:

"Aren't you going to buy a tag?" she asked in pleading tones.

Result—completely ignored.

One good farmer, slightly deaf and accompanied by his wife, was entering the market arcade. His better half carried a basket of eggs and he a basket of butter. A fair tagger drew a bead on "hubby." He bent over to hear what she might say. His wife, who was behind, failed to see him stop, and in a moment she had bumped into him. The farmer was knocked down, his knees sinking into the nice soft butter. The eggs carried by his wife dropped and the pavement took on yellow and white.

The maid apologized and left hurriedly without a sale, deeming discretion the better part of valor.

The "have no loose change about me" story was very common and was responsible for haunted looks and dodging around corners, although the young ladies never believed it, usually replying, "Oh, you fib ber."

One early tagger, in the person of little Laura Soden had disposed of one hundred of the paste boards before eight-thirty this morning, to employes of the Canadian General Electric Company. She was at the gatehouse of the works at 7, at 7.30 a.m., and reaped a rich harvest of silver as the men went into their work.

A Hunter street man had one young lady pretty badly frightened. She had requested him to buy a tag. Seeing that she was young and rather timid, the man sought to jolly her.

"What do you mean by encroaching on this street?" he inquired, sternly; "don't you know I'm the president of the Children's Aid Society and I won't have you coming in on any other tagger's territory."

"Please, sir, I didn't know that," said the maid," shrinking away.

Seeing that the girl was really alarmed the would-be joker hastened to disillusion her by laughing and at the same time buying a tag.

One man claimed to have bought several tags, and "left them at home for the "kiddies." Another stared at the young lady, who accosted him, and said: "I'm dumb." No tags were sold to either party. The girls had hard work to keep their opinions of the two men from escaping.

LIQUOR CASE

Two Bartenders in Court But Case is Adjourned

Magistrate Dumble heard evidence this morning in the charge against Geo. McKenzie of selling liquor to minors. Another bartender Alfred Switzer, is named in the case, and when the two appeared in Court, the two boys, Harry O'Hara and Andrew Sullivan, were pretty certain that Switzer was the man who served them.

The case was adjourned till Monday.

LAD KICKED IN THE FACE

Ennismore Boy Had His Jaw Fractured

Vincent Murphy, the nine year old son of Mr. Timothy Murphy, Ennismore, had his jaw fractured by the kick of a horse last night. The young lad was leading the animal to to the barn when it turned and kicked him in the face. He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital and attended by Dr. McNulty.

SALE OF LOTS

An Attractive Offering at the Munro House on Wednesday

Outside capitalists have lately secured considerable property in Peterborough for investment and speculation, and a prominent realty dealer said to-day that 100 per cent. profit had been made in less than six months in more than one instance. For the size and importance of the city, realty prices are very low here, and there is little doubt but there will be a general advance before the spring. John D. Rockefeller says: "More large fortunes have been made from the rise in real estate values than from any other thing."

In connection with the development on the south side of the city, the Bell sub-division has attracted considerable attention. An auction sale of lots on the attractive sub-division will take place next Wednesday. For particulars see display ad on page eight.

He Must Be Shy.

"Pretty bashful sort of chap, isn't he?"

"Bashful? I should say so. He's the kind of fellow who'd stammer and stutter and break and run if opportunity came up smiling and tried to shake hands with him."—St. Louis Republican.

QUALITY AND CHARACTER

Quality in a man's character is of the greatest importance.

In the matter of clothes quality is also of equally important.

Therefore quality is the first essential [illegible] things for the making of success.

In the matter of clothes that a man wears he is often judged, rightfully or wrongfully, such is the case, nevertheless.

So that a man should exercise great care in his selection of clothes.

This is made easy for the man when he can walk into a man's store and buy a suit of clothes or an Overcoat when he gets with it a positive guarantee of the quality, with a further stipulation of money refunded if not satisfactory. These are the kind of Clothes that are sold at Cameron's New Men's Store on George-st. Not another thing is handled in this store but men's wear.

Every article in the store is brand new. Every Suit and Overcoat is made so as to carry the marks of good quality [illegible] worn out.

Don't be afraid to walk into the store, take a look at the goods whether you buy or not—it will be nice to get acquainted. Don't forget that it is CAMERON, near the corner of Charlotte. 3d

COAL SMASHING

But It's not in the Direction of Prices

Last night the City Council gave permission to the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co., to use the stone crusher for an experiment with coal, in which it is intended to reduce the large grate coal to stove and furnace sizes.

The company will pay a rental of $2 per day.

"The coal smashing is to be more or less an experiment," said Ald. Buller, "and if it doesn't work out satisfactorily why its all off. We are adopting this method to help out during the coal shortage period."

HELP OUT THE GARBAGE MAN

It is the homely duties of life that with their constant iteration tire out our patience. Still they have to be done, and one of these duties is the disposal of ashes from the furnace or coal stoves.

At present some arrangements exists that ashes can be removed once each week by the garbage collector. Now, he is only human and is trying fairly well to carry out his contract. At the same time citizens must not throw onto him a deal more work than he is entitled to perform. He is to remove ashes, but it is not fair to expect him to dig the ashes out of boxes too heavy to lift.

All should join in making the removal convenient. Ashes should be put in several boxes or vessels, holding about as much as a man may lift. Not set on the ground to freeze solid, but up on something to hold free of snow. If this can be done the box will be done, every time. Why not give him a hand both in our own interests and his!

All sorts of queer people are necessary to make a world; and there are those who say you are one of the queerer kind.

The Understudy of the Sun
McClary's Sunshine Furnace

WHEN Old Sol swings low and far away he appoints an understudy for the purpose of keeping Jack Frost where he belongs—Outside.

Years ago McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace, by reason of its marvelous heating capacity and the balmy June air it suffused the house with, was specially appointed Understudy to the Sun. That appointment has been confirmed year after year, and—your "Sunshine" Furnace—Jack Frost's Master awaits your orders for the coming winter.

Remember the past winter—the Frost King was very active — He battered us with a three months' siege of snow and ice — Almost conquered the thermometer by chasing the mercury out of sight. But he failed to penetrate thousands of homes, because the Understudy of the Sun — McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace —was on the job in the cellars of these homes.

It's easy to keep Jack Frost at a safe distance with the "Sunshine" Furnace. He may storm and rave outside, but there is no place for him within—because, the Understudy of the Sun has demonstrated its mastery in the home.

The average furnace is a glutton for coal—it literally burns up money. The "Sunshine" Furnace saves money—earns its cost in a very few years because it burns coal sparingly. Call on the McClary agent of your locality and ask him to prove that statement true. If he cannot convince you—show you that the "Sunshine" Furnace will cut your coal bills by a very pleasing margin we don't want your order. That's the fairest way we know of doing business—does it appeal to you?

There are a multitude of reasons why the "Sunshine" Furnace does save fuel—reduce coal bills—reasons that will be printed in the following advertisements. Here is one that should make you call on the McClary agent at once—the "Sunshine" Furnace has four radiating surfaces—surfaces that gather up the heat greedily and diffuse it liberally all over the house.

But—you just call on the McClary agent and ask to be shown. If you do not know him write us at our nearest address and we'll tell you.

You certainly owe it to yourself to find out why McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace is called the "Understudy of the Sun."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—All honor to the young ladies who know that the Lord's work is service. Be kind to children, the old and neglected. God bless the young girls who do not need any association to keep them right when young men and women need service. They are far from being in that noble position to do it, which is the sure mark of a Christian. "It is more blessed to give than receive." Did Our Lord speak the truth or did He not?

Catarrhal Bad Breath

Corrected Quickly by the Use of

Catarrhozone

Catarrh is an inflammation. Where there is inflammation there is always more or less offensive secretion. Inflammation may be of the very active sort, but it is often of the slow kind, and this is the particular form in which the breath is rendered offensive and the presence of the sufferer becomes an offence to every person of delicate sensibility.

Bad breath is in itself sufficient to urge you to correct it, because one dislikes to be unpleasant to their friends, but this form of catarrh is dangerous because it supplies a hotbed for the development of Consumption or of other diseases of the throat and lungs.

Bad breath is an evidence that the microbes have found a good resting place and are carrying on their evil inroads into the health of the body.

Catarrhozone acts at once and destroys these minute organisms, but it does more—it heals the inflamed surfaces in which they found a nesting place and consequently removes both cause and effects of their action.

If we only highly estimated the value of prevention and used Catarrhozone at the beginning of a cold or just before it becomes well seated, the deadly ravages of Consumption would be stayed and the terrible agonies of sufferers of Asthma or Bronchitis completely abolished.

There is no remedy as effective for bad breath, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., as Catarrhozone. Besides being healing and soothing it is germ destroying. Nothing ever offered to the public can compare with it in its promptness, efficiency, and permanency of action, and you can buy it from any dealer in medicine throughout the Dominion of Canada, 25c, 50c, and $1.00 sizes. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

COULD NOT PASS PETERBORO LOCK

At the annual meeting in Toronto of the Lord's Day Alliance, Mr. Rochester secretary, made an address, maintaining that the work of the Alliance was bearing fruit and assisting in the maintenance of Sunday as a day of rest.

The meeting was strongly opposed to Sunday concerts as being practically the thin end of the wedge that would lead to Sunday frivolity, and presently to Sunday work.

"A titled gentleman was coming down the Otonabee on the Lord's Day this summer, and experienced no difficulty in passing the different locks until he got to Peterborough, where the lock-tender, a Scotsman, refused to open the locks for him, and necessitated the titled gentleman staying over Sunday in Peterborough." Mr. Rochester cited this case, as an instance of the good work the organization was doing and the ground it was gaining in Ontario

PROSPECTS FOR O.H.A. HOCKEY IN LINDSAY NOT BRIGHT

The Lindsay Post says— As suggested a few evenings ago by Mr. A. M. Paton, a meeting of local hockey enthusiasts will be held in his office over Wonderland, this evening, to discuss the hockey situation. Other towns in this district have organized for the season, and it behhoves Lindsay to get busy.

From here it looks as though Lindsay will hardly be represented in the O. H. A. this year. There was some talk of a junior O. H. A. team being organized, but a number of last year's players announce that they will not be in uniform. It has been suggested that the Town League be boomed more than ever this year. There is plenty of hockey material in town, so it is claimed, and the league could be made the most successful in its history.

That Lindsay will be represented in the Trent Valley League by a strong septette, is assured. A local lover of the game has signed up a fast bunch, including a former O.H.A. intermediate player, as well as a number of Junior O.H.A. men.

JOHNSON GETS HIS FREEDOM

JACK JOHNSON.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—It was rumored in the federal building yesterday that Jack Johnson, champion pugilist, would be released from the county jail before night. After having spent one week in a cell in default of $30,000 bail on charges violating the Mann Act, it was indicated that U. S. District Attorney Wilkerson would accept a bond.

The prospective bondsmen are Mrs. Tiny Johnson, the negro's mother, and Matthew S. Baldwin, a real estate dealer. The latter was prepared to schedule property valued at $48,000.

"We are inclined to think," said Mr. Wilkerson, "that this new bond will be satisfactory."

Johnson was released during the afternoon on $30,000 bail.

HUNTING DOG HAS SPECTACLES

Are Held in Place by Strap and Resemble Goggles

Lead Hill, Ark., Nov. 16.—Minnesota Fanny, a thoroughbred English setter, a granddaughter of the famous Joe Cummins, wears spectacles. She is owned by Troy Cantrell, of this city, and was fitted out this week with "specs" by an oculist, who found that she was suffering from astigmatism. She is the best hunting dog in Northwest Arkansas.

The dog's "specs" are held in place by straps and appear much like goggles. The lenses are protected by protruding rims of metal. The dog hunts like an old-timer with them on.

Parting the Mist.

The kaiser is reported to have said that his son will be the last emperor, as the march of republicanism is steadily gaining. It is doubtful if the strenuous descendant of the Hohenzollerns did make such an admission, but the mere report is a straw showing how the political wind is blowing over the nations. The day is already gone when any monarch would venture to say again that his personal will is the supreme law of the land.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

The Co-Operative Movement has for its object; the improvement of the position of the working classes. It seeks to place capital in their hands, and to moralize trade, moderate competition, educate men as citizens, and unite them in brotherly sympathy.

The plan on which Distributive Co-operation is carried out is the same as that devised by twenty-eight weavers at Rochdale, Lancashire, England, in 1844.

They began with £28 each subscribing £1, and became their own shopkeepers. The little society shopkeepers. The little society bought goods at wholesale prices; each member then bought goods from the society at retail prices, no credit being allowed. The difference between these two prices was the profit made by the society. After the payment of expenses, the profits were divided in the following manner—

1. For each £1 subscribed, five per cent interest (that is one shilling in the year) was given.

2. Every member (that is every holder of £1 share) had a share in the profits according to the amount he bought.

Societies in Canada are run on the same principle as above. In our society, shares are $5.00 which entitles anyone to full membership.

Shareholders will receive a full dividend on all their purchases.

By becoming member of a store —

1. You help a movement that aims at economic, social, and moral reform.

2 You recognize the claim men have on each other for help and sympathy.

3. You foster such virtues as prudence, forethought, self-control, toleration and trust, without which it is impossible for Co-operation to succeed.

4. You give to yourself and others the opportunity of higher education by means of libraries, lectures etc., and to administrative experience by means of attendance at committees, congresses, etc.

5. You join in improving the position of the employed class, by making it to their interests to serve you well, and of the productive class by ensuring fair wages and well ordered factories.

6. You save without effort by means of the dividend.

7. Your savings obtain a higher interest than can be had with equal facility elsewhere.

8. You obtain pure foods and good of guaranteed quality at the usual market prices.

Although the quarterly profits of these people may not be in dollars it is no reason for throwing quarter away. Other advantages besides money are gained — good articles, freedom from debt, lecturers, reading rooms, libraries, classes, etc., besides the opportunity of taking part in a great movement, and the facility that membership gives for persuading others to join. Any further information will be cheerfully given on Saturday evening, November 16th at the Workmen of the World Hall, where applications for shares will be received by the committee. Ladies specially invited.

WONDERS OF BAALBEC.

A Building Problem That Has Puzzled Modern Engineers.

Baalbec, or Baalbek, is the name given a ruined city lying in ancient Coele, Syria, forty-five miles northwest of Damascus.

There is nothing particularly remarkable about a ruined city being found in the locality mentioned, but the size of the blocks of stone used by the ancient builders of this particular city is something that has puzzled the modern engineers since the day when Baalbec was first made the Mecca of the oriental traveler.

There are immense stones on every side of the visitor to this ancient pile of ruins, but the three most remarkable blocks—said to be the largest ever used in the construction of a building—are in a wall back of the temple of Baal.

These immense stones are respectively sixty-four, sixty-three and sixty-two feet in length and each is thirteen feet in thickness, but the most wonderful thing in connection with them is the fact they are at a place in the wall twenty-five feet from the ground. How these immense blocks of granite were ever raised to such a height is a question that has never yet been answered.

Tiger and Lion.

"One time, in order to test the courage of a Bengal tiger and a lion," said a well known showman, "we placed Chinese crackers in the respective cages and fired the fuses. As soon as the fuses began to burn they attracted the attention of both animals, but in a widely different manner. The lion drew into a corner and watched the proceedings with a distrustful and uneasy eye. The tiger, on the contrary, advanced to the burning fuse with a firm step and unflinching gaze. On reaching the cracker he began to roll it over the floor with his paw, and when it exploded beneath his nose he did not flinch, but continued his examination until perfectly satisfied. The lion betrayed great fear when he heard the report of the explosion and for quite a time could not be coaxed out of his den."—London Tit-Bits.

A Freak of Nature.

A tree that is a freak of nature is the Asiatic star tree. It grows sixty to eighty feet tall, and for a height of about forty feet the trunk is wholly bare. From that point there spring a number of tangled limbs, which shoot out clusters of long pointed leaves, and these, grouped together, emit at night a phosphorescent light.

Sickness is usually caused by the accumulation of waste matter and impurities within the body.

TORONTO WOMAN WAS ASSAULTED

Toronto, Nov. 16.—While struggling with a ruffian in the parlor of her home in defence of her honor yesterday forenoon, Mrs. Schreek, a young married woman living at 20 Rainsford road, was subjected to an assault of such a savage and brutal nature that he now lies in the General Hospital at the point of death. Her assailant is unknown.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

Eczema sufferers who have never tried the oil of wintergreen compound (known as D.D.D. Prescription,) are now enabled to get a trial bottle of this recognized remedy at only 25 cents. This is a special offer, this compound having sold for years in $1.00 bottles only.

The oil of wintergreen as compounded with thymol and other healing ingredients in D.D.D. Prescription is now recognized by scientists in both America and Europe. It takes away the itch the very moment it is washed into the skin and the cures all seem to be permanent. At any rate we ASSURE you that the itch is allayed INSTANTLY; we know this and VOUCH for it. Hence, we specially urge a trial—now—while the patient can get a bottle at only 25 cents. Be sure to ask for the oil as properly compounded under the name of D.D.D. Prescription. — McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, Druggists.

Should Destroy Diseased Trees.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association held their concluding meeting at Victoria Hall yesterday morning. The following statistical report regarding the peach situation was presented by W. E. Biggar of Winona.

"I have figures from seven townships and there are 15,200 diseased trees reported. When all the reports are in there will be about 25,000 trees on the list. This will be about half of last year's number. I cannot urge too strongly the destruction of all diseased trees."

He advocated the appointment of inspectors by the department. "Under the present system," he said, "one man received only 25 cents a day for his work."

People are always doing things they would condemn in others.

Truth is stranger than fiction and equally dangerous.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares "Nerviline" Is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

Nerviline CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 50c, trial size 25c, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CORNS CURED IN 24 HOURS

It never burns, leaves no scar, contains no acids; is harmless, because composed only of healing gums and balms. Fifty years in use. Cure guaranteed. Sold by all druggists. 25c bottles. PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

WIT IN THE PULPIT

Preachers With a Sense of Humor or the Gift of Repartee.

A DUEL BETWEEN PUNSTERS.

The Exchange of Compliments That Spiced the Sermons of Rev. Mr. Walker and Rev. Mr. Read—Brother Moore's Grim Retort.

When the march of pulpit oratory and humor was less advanced than at present a number of pious parishioners resolved to compliment their beloved pastor with a horse. After a great deal of scraping together they accumulated funds sufficient to purchase a saddle, which was forthwith dispatched to the minister, with an intimation that the horse would be sent at a more convenient season.

Week after week, however, passed on, and no word of the minister's nag. This dilatoriness would never do, thought the reverend gentleman, and accordingly one Sunday afternoon he took occasion to introduce the subject in winding up a discourse on the unspeakable loveliness of charity.

"Now, my friends," said the preacher, "if that said horse be na nipping grass yont by at the manse in a day or twa, I ken what I'll do"

Here the minister smote the pulpit in a manner that made the hearts of the congregation melt within them like wax, while he, stern man, continued his appeal to their pecuniary feelings so long, and repeated the fearful threat, "I ken what I'll do!" so often that one frightened hearer said:

"And what will you do, sir?"

"Why, man," said the minister coolly, "I'll just sell the saddle."

The Rev. Mr. Walker of Connecticut saw his friend, the Rev. Mr. Read, sitting in one of the pews on a Sunday morning and, leaving the pulpit, went to Read and urged him to preach for him. Read begged off, as he was providentially detained in town over the Sabbath and had no "preparation" with him. But Walker was pressing, and at length his friend yielded to his importunity and entered the pulpit. But he had no text, and after some reflection pitched upon Job i, 7, "Then Satan answered the Lord and said, From going to and fro in the earth and from walking up and down in it."

From this passage he drew the doctrine and announced it boldly, that the devil was a great Walker. He rung the changes on the name of his friend till the people signified their notice by a general smile.

Walker took the pulpit in the afternoon and returned his friend's compliments by taking for his text Matthew xi, 7, "A reed shaken with the wind." "The doctrine of the text," he said, "is the instability of Reads." On this theme he discoursed till Read wished that he had never ventured his wit in the pulpit at the expense of his friend Walker.

In the south of New Jersey some years ago there traveled over some of the hardest counties a good, faithful, hard working brother named James Moore. He was devoted to the itinerancy and a true loyal Methodist, plain, pointed and sharp in all his preaching and exhortations. He had been laboring a year on one of his circuits, and, before leaving for his new field, he gave his people his farewell sermon. At the close he said:

"My dear brethren, this is my last address to you. I am going from you, and you may never hear the voice of James Moore again."

"Amen!" came loudly from the seat before him.

He looked at the man with a little surprise; but, thinking it was a mistake, went on. "My days on earth will soon be numbered. I am an old man and you may not only never hear the voice of James Moore, but never see his face again."

"Amen!" was shouted from the same seat, more vigorously than before.

There was no mistaking the design now. The preacher looked at the man. He knew him to be a hard, grinding man, stingy and merciless to the poor. He continued with his address: "May the Lord bless all those of you who have done your duty, who have honored him with your substance, who have been kind to the poor, and," pausing and looking the intruder straight in the eye and pointing to him with his finger, "may his curse rest on those who have cheated the Lord and ground the poor under their heels! Say amen to that, brother!"

He was not interrupted again.

It was the Rev. Rowland Hill's habit to ride to church in an old family carriage, a practice too aristocratic, in the judgment of one of his flock, who determined to rebuke it. It was customary in his chapel for notes to be sent to the pulpit, requesting prayers for various objects, and one Sabbath Hill was proceeding with the reading of these requests as usual when he found himself in the midst of one to the following purport:

"Prayers are requested for the Rev. Mr. Hill, that he may be more humble and, like his divine Master, who, instead of riding in a carriage, was content to be borne on an ass."

Having read the notice, he lifted the spectacles to his forehead and, looking around the house, observed that it was quite true he had been guilty of the fault alleged, but if the writer would step around to the vestry door after service, saddled and bridled, he would have no objection to ride home, after his Master's example, on the back of an ass.—George Bancroft Griffith in New York Tribune.

Montreal Has Flood.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Another water main broke yesterday afternoon. This break was in the big service main which passes through St. Antoine street, and immediately after the great pipe had split under the immense pressure a great portion of the city was without water.

The pressure on the broken main was so strong that St. Antoine street was simply a series of roaring cataracts, the water being from two to three feet deep.

Liberal Supports Coderre.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Mayor Rutherford, of Westmount, who had been talked of as the Liberal candidate to oppose Hon. Louis Coderre in Hochelaga county, has come forward publicly in support of Mr. Coderre and the Government's naval policy.

"I am a Liberal," he said, "but I am a Britisher, and I believe that all true British Canadians should stand together in favor of a reasonable naval policy."

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. COMMITTEE APPOINTED

To Meet Representatives of Township Regarding Sewage Trouble

IT'S A PLEASURE

Says Mayor Bradburn in Signing De Laval Factory Bylaw

The position of the city in regard to the notion brought by the townships to restrain the emptying of sewage into the Otonabee River is approaching a crisis.

At council meeting last night Ald. Gordon strongly urged that the city wake up to the seriousness of its position, or else the corporation would be involved in a suit, which would undoubtedly go against it.

A committee comprised of Ald. Butler, Gordon, Duffus, Gillespie and Mayor Bradburn was appointed to arrange a meeting with representatives of the townships and explain to them that action would be taken to prevent the sewage trouble, as speedily as possible.

The reports of the various committees were read and adopted.

A by-law authorizing the execution of the snow ploughing contracts passed its several readings.

NEW LIGHTS.

A petition for the placing of an arc light at the corner of Wolfe and Aylmer streets was left in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee with power to act. It was at this point that the burglary of H. B. Taylor and Son's coal office occurred this week and the residents strongly felt the need of a light.

A request from the C.G.E. Company, verbally presented by Superintendent F. G. Patterson for permission to lay a water main for their new building on Albert street, was readily granted.

The by-law to aid the De Laval Dairy Supply Company, Limited, passed its third reading.

"Its a pleasure to sign this by-law," said Mayor Bradburn.

THE MARKET.

Ald. Brown favored a motion recommending that a new by-law be drafted to have the hour of the market opening changed from ten o'clock to eleven.

The matter was left with the Property committee who promised to report on their finding at the next council meeting.

NO BRIDGE BY-LAW.

Mayor Bradburn brought up the question of submitting a by-law for the building of the Hunter street bridge. Council decided not to submit the by-law in January owing to the Hydro-Electric by-law going to the people then.

$1000 FOR STREETS.

The Peterborough Cereal have submitted a cheque for $1,000 to the city. The Mayor suggested that the money be devoted to the proposed opening of Babb's Lane. It was decided to devote the $1,000 to street improvement.

NEIGHBORS CAN SETTLE THEIR OWN DISPUTES

The Sanitary Inspector Has Troubles of His Own

The Sanitary Inspector is determined to maintain the standard of cleanliness he has set and any violation of the by-law and particularly that clause regarding the providing of receptacles will be brought to Court.

The Inspector does not pay any attention to the numerous anonymous communications but will investigate all complaints made in writing and properly signed. He does not propose to be made a tool for the venting of spite between neighbours.

Music and Drama

William A. Brady, whom every other manager in New York envies for his ability to pick dramatic successes has been happy in the number of plays he has produced originating in book form. The latest instance of his faith in the novel as the parent of the play, is "Carnival," by Compton McKenzie.

The tremendous success of "Little Women" goes to prove once more that a play based on a book can be a real play, and I am positive we are going to have the same kind of a success with "Carnival," said Mr. Brady a few days ago. "It has been my belief for years that a play with a book basis has everything in its favor, provided the adaptation is rightly done. The trouble about dramatizing novels has always been that the people who wrote the plays, and the managers who put them on, have been bothering about trying to reproduce the book exactly. I don't read the book. Then I don't have any trouble in telling whether I have a play.

"Which do you consider the most melodious Wagnerian opera?" asked Mrs Comrox.

"There are several I haven't heard aren't there?" rejoined her husband.

"Yes."

"Then I guess it's one of them."

Local theatres goers will be pleased to know that Winchells Smith's great comedy, "The Fortune Hunter," will be seen here during the present season. The play abounds in rich humor and deals with the adventures of a young man, who is out of employment, down and out, hiding from his friends in sheer disgust, but who is lifted to his feet by a well-meaning life-long friend. The friend gives him good advice and outlines a plan for him to get a fresh start in life by marrying a rich heiress. He follows the "rules" to the letter by going to a small town, becoming the idol of the feminine sex by his winning style of dress and manners, and he finally wins the heart of a wealthy girl. It took time, however, to do this, and before it was accomplished he performed all kinds of good Samaritan acts in the town. He became affiliated in the drug business with an old man, saving him from bankruptcy, and in a short time building up a large and prosperous business. Meantime, the old druggist's daughter took some of his time when the rich heiress wasn't about, and something more than friendship grew between them. instead of carrying out his former desire to marry the rich heiress, he married the girl of his choice.

Regarding the presentation of "Elijah" as a music drama, in Toronto last week, the Canadian Courier says—

"And in all probability a large number of church people who read the announcements in the press, expected that it was a case for the Morality Department. But it wasn't. Those who remembered "Elijah" only as it had been given by the Philharmonic Society, of Montreal, under Prof. Couture, the choruses of Dr. Torrinton, the Oratorio Society of Dr. Broome, and the Sheffield Choir, on tour under Dr. Coward, decidedly missed a real religious and musical treat if they thereby stayed at home, thinking the opera would be a burlesque. There are people in Toronto who were present at the first performance of "Elijah" under Torrington in 1873, and many who heard it last year by the new Oratorio Society under Dr. Edward Broome. If any of these were present at the Opera they were well repaid for their time, trouble and money."

Not even the lilting strains of "The Dollar Princess" or "The Siren" waltzes compare with the delightful melody which gives Leo Fall's latest composition "The Eternal Waltz," its name, the American production of which has just been made by Joseph Hart by arrangement with Martin Beck. "The Eternal Waltz," is a colossal success from every view point.

Lionel Walsh, who plays one of the most laughed at "silly ass" English characters on the English-speaking stage in support of Alice Lloyd in "Little Miss Fix-It," is really an Englishman and came out of the Boer War a full fledged captain in rank. He can tell stories of rough life on the great ranch in the far West, of which he is part owner, that seem to agree but poorly with his thin appearance, but the stories have plenty of coroboration.

When a policeman succumbs to the allurements of a $500 bill and consents to loan his uniform and dignity to a perfect stranger, he cannot expect much sympathy from his superior officers. This is what happens in the farce "Officer 666," but as this particular blue coat has come to be a huge success with the theatre going public, he can afford to laugh at the gibes of his brothers of the night stick brigade. "Officer 666" is one of the successes that will be seen here this season.

THOMAS A. EDISON'S LATEST INVENTION, THE BLUE AMBEROL

Played 3000 Times in Laboratory Tests Without Signs of Wear.

Mr. Edison has just [illegible] new cylinder Phonograph Record—The Blue Amberol. It possesses greatly increased volume and decidedly the finest tone of any Phonograph Record of any kind now on the market.

In Laboratory tests, a Blue Amberol Record has been played three Thousand times, and the three thousandth reproduction was as fine as the first. In other words, exhaustive tests demonstrate that the Blue Amberol Record is practically impervious to wear.

This Record is to all practical intents and purposes unbreakable. The sweet tone of Edison cylinder Records have been somewhat fragile and more or less susceptible to wear. Some of your favorite Records may have been broken or played so frequently that they show signs of wear. You can play a Blue Amberol Record as often as you please without any apprehensions that its playing qualities will be diminished, nor any fear that it will be broken through careless handling.

It is intended that every Blue Amberol shall be a gem—the kind of Record that you will want to play three hundred and sixty-five times each year and keep forever. In the first place, the selection must be one that will appeal; in the second place, the performance must be by the person or persons best able to do justice to the selection; and in the third place, the recording must positively be of the best. It will perhaps be of interest to you to learn that Mr. Edison has lately conducted a number of acoustical experiments which have resulted in a vast improvement in our cylinder recording. The new methods adopted as a result of Mr Edison's experiments are unknown to other manufacturers, and a very marked [illegible] Records will be noticed.

You should by all means hear the Blue Amberol Record. We will be very glad to give you a recital, and we trust you will take advantage of the opportunity to familiarize yourself with this wonderful advance in the art of sound production. The price remains the same, 65c. each.

Death of James H. Fife Removes Life-Long Resident From Otonabee.

Otonabee township lost one of it's oldest and most highly respected residents on Wednesday morning in the person of James H. Fife, when he passed away at the ripe old age of 80 years.

The late Mr. Fife was the last of the family of John Fife, the early Scotch settler.

He was born and lived all his life in Otonabee and was a life long worker in the Conservative cause. Some time ago he carried on the cattle business extensively in the country, although most of his life has been spent as a farmer. A few years ago he retired to spend his remaining years in peace and quietness. He was one of the best known men of Otonabee, and his death is regretted by all who knew him. In religion he was a Methodist. His wife predeceased him 16 years ago.

Surviving him are five sons and two daughters. They are Harvey, of Slocan, B.C., Richard C., and Stewart L. of Vegerville, Sask., Charley and George living on the homestead; Elizabeth J. and Phoebe P. at home.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon to the Fife Burial Grounds. A large number of relations and friends from all over the township, followed the cortege to the grave.

LEGISLATION IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Sask., Nov. 16.—J. A. Sheppard, M.P.P., of Moose Jaw county, was yesterday chosen Speaker of the Legislature.

The speech from the throne foreshadowed bills making provision for direct legislation, consolidated schools, the abolition of local improvement districts, for the regulation and control of loan companies, for adopting a better system of municipal assessment, and to place the rural telephone companies on a sounder financial basis.

Action will also be taken relative to the inability to secure a conference with the Federal Government toward a transfer of land and natural resources to the province.

More Smallpox Cases.

Montreal, Nov. 16.—Dr. Louis Laberge, medical officer of health, for the city, states that the smallpox situation in Quebec is approaching such a point that very severe measures must be instituted to see that large companies and corporations obey the law, which makes it necessary for every employe to be vaccinated, unless he can show a certificate that he could not be vaccinated without danger.

There were nine workers sent to the smallpox hospital at Moreau street on Wednesday, and one Thursday, nearly all of them having come from the same boarding-house. There are now thirty-one cases at the hospital.

A STRANGE JEKYLL AND HYDE CASE IS REVEALED

Maniac Sends Postcards to the Police and Recovery of Boy's Body Follows—Writer of Epistles Says He Has Already Murdered Three Boys and Tried to Kill Others.

Buffalo, Nov. 18.—Confession of at least three murders and admission that there are still more, is the startling disclosure contained in postal cards from a modern "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," in the person of the murderer of six-year-old Joseph Josephs, received by the police and made public here last night. The murder of the Josephs boy, whose entire body in decomposed fragments was found on Saturday in a cesspool near his home in Lackawanna, after a search of over a year, is believed by the police to be but one of a long series of similar crimes committed throughout the country by the man who, according to his own confessions, has an irresistible mania for killing boys. Saturday's gruesome discovery was made by following the minute instructions contained in the postcards which Supt. Regan of the Buffalo police has been receiving from time to time.

Young Josephs disappeared about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 12, 1911. His father, George Josephs, a prominent merchant of Lackawanna, insisted from the start that the boy had been kidnapped and a country-wide search was instituted. The case at the time attracted widespread attention, as the father from time to time received anonymous letters warning him to discontinue the search on pain of having his son murdered. Saturday's developments indicate that the murderer took this means of creating the belief that the boy was still alive.

In one postal card mailed from Boston, the unknown writer speaks of murdering a boy in Central Park, New York City. It reads:

"Wednesday night, Dec. 10, 1902, I enticed Michael Ricca Oruik, a newsboy at 86th street and Central Park West, New York City, into the park opposite the entrance to the arsenal police station. I strangled him and just escaped the officer who found him as I came back (few words here illegible). Three times have I taken life, 12 times have tried, and cannot help it."

Another card, dated Boston, Mass., Nov. 9, 1912, and written apparently by the same person, and also unsigned, states that the writer "unfortunately had too much money," that he was a prominent fraternity man of a high degree, "honored and respected." "[illegible] son," it continues, "is married and happy. Can I, under the circumstances, give myself up? I can, of course, but there are still more murders I have not told you. Shall I come?"

The first postcard received was postmarked Boston, Sept. 11, 1912, and was addressed to Supt. Michael Regan of the Buffalo police department. It read: "I am sick of trying to fool myself. I am a homicidal maniac. I killed Joseph Josephs of Lackawanna, N.Y. I strangled him as I did others. Please advertise the fact. Post it or write for information. Come to (ink smudges make the balance of the card indecipherable.)

The second postcard was addressed to Chief Roy Gilsen of the Lackawanna police force, as follows:

"Boston, Mass., Sept. 17, 1912.—If you only knew the remorse in my heart on account of the murders I have committed as the result of my homicidal mania, even you and George Josephs would pity me. I am writing this just getting over another drunk to try to forget the ones I killed, but, like Banquo's ghost, it will not down. I am fast going to pieces mentally and spiritually."

The last postal card was dated New York, Nov. 12, 1912, and stated that the writer expected to be in Buffalo Wednesday, the 13th, and that he would call at the police station at 11 a.m., "so shall expect you to be in your office." It was signed "R. Dennisson," and was the only card of the series to bear a signature. The writer did not keep the appointment.

The police and federal authorities in Boston and New York have been asked to assist the local officials in the attempt to locate the murderer.

Newsboy's Murder Confirmed.

New York, Nov. 18.—Records in the coroner's office in this city bear out the text of the postal card written to the Buffalo police, giving information on the strangling of Michael Kruck, a newsboy, in Central Park.

Kruck's body was found on Dec. 10, 1902, the date mentioned on the card, in an excavation at the point where West 76th street terminates at Central Park. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death "from asphyxiation, by strangling, inflicted by some person or persons unknown."

J. B. CARLISLE PASSES AWAY

Former Insurance Magnate Expires in Doctor's Office.

Was Once Worth Half a Million and Was Widely Known.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—J. B. Carlisle formerly one of the best known men in Canada, died in a doctor's chair while waiting for attention Saturday. The body was removed from the office, that of Dr. Hutchinson, 317 Sherbourne street, to the morgue.

He had dropped into the doctor's office at 1.30 p.m. Saturday. The doctor was absent, and the maid left him seated in a chair. When the physician came in ten minutes later he found a lifeless body. Heart failure was the cause of death.

J. B. Carlisle founded the Manufacturers' Life Assurance Co., helped to start the North American Life Insurance Co., and in many other ways was connected with the insurance business from its earliest days in Canada. He was intimate with all the big men in the business and political life of the country three decades ago. In fact few of the younger men who have become prominent in Toronto's activities but knew him.

At one time he drew almost the largest salary in the country and made a very big fortune as fortunes were counted in the days of thirty or forty years ago.

Practically all the insurance acts of the various provinces are based on his recommendations and expert opinion. He was counted the most expert actuary of his time. He took some part in political life, and one notable instance remembered by many was his trip to Ottawa with a satchel containing $80,000 cash, which he gave as a campaign contribution to his friend, the late Sir John A. Macdonald. The noted leader was the first president of the Manufacturers Life, which Mr. Carlisle founded. His ability as a business man, besides personal attributes, made him countless acquaintances, including practically all the present day big business men of the city.

He was 79 years of age. Sixty-one years ago he came to Toronto from Yorkshire, where he had been an auctioneer. He joined the Confederation Life Insurance Co. and quickly was a big man in the insurance field, which was naturally rather restricted at that time. He soon started in to found new companies and made himself half a million dollars in a very little time.

He formerly owned one of the best kennels of dogs in the country and a string of racehorses, together with valuable collections of pictures and bric-a-brac. He was of Romany descent, and before leaving England followed the calling of an auctioneer, selling works of art and bric-a-brac.

REDUCTION IN PHONE RATES

Affects Montreal, But Judgment is of Wide Interest.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The Railway Commission has issued its judgment in the Montreal telephone case, and there are several points in it of interest to other Canadian cities.

The application was one on the part of the city for the reduction of rates to $30 and $50 for residences and business phones respectively, from $35 and $55; and the abolition of excess mileage charges and discrimination as between one district of the city and another.

The effect of the judgment as to rates is that the farthest extending flat rate, that to Montreal West shall be taken as a radius of a circle to be described with the main phone exchange as a centre. Within this circle the ordinary flat rate shall be given.

"The value of the service is a most important factor," says the judgment. "With every addition to the telephone network the range of facility is widened for one already using a telephone, and consequently he is constantly sharing in the progressive utilization of so-called idle plant."

Can't Win, Says Lavergne.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—Armand Lavergne, M.P.P. for Montmagny, in an interview yesterday stated that the Nationalists would be defeated in Hochelaga on Tuesday, but that the cause would triumph in the end.

Being asked what he thought Premier Borden would be justified in doing supposing the French Ministers were to resign, as he said they ought to do, Mr. Lavergne replied that Borden would be justified in appointing Englishmen in their places and for his part he did not see any difference between English and French, but he was sure they would soon come to recognize the justice of the Nationalist claim. He claimed that if the people pronounced for contribution in any shape, Canada should have a directing hand in the expenditure.

EFFORTS OF THE TURKS TO SECURE TRUCE PROVES FUTILE

Bulgarians Renew Their Attack at Tchatalja ---Artillery Duel Continues.

Allies Are Forcing Turkey to Accept the Peace Terms.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 18.—That Turkish soldiers died of starvation within sight of plenty is the statement made by Ashmead Bartlett, a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, writing from the Turkish headquarters at Hademkeui. The whole country between the Turkish lines and Constantinople is crowded with live stock driven by refugees, yet the men only receive a bare ration of bread with rice occasionally. The explanation is that the Turks are not meat eaters, and are not capable of looking after themselves on the field.

London, Nov. 18.—A Daily Mail special from Uskup says a battle is proceeding at Monastry between forty-five thousand Turks with forty guns, and one hundred thousand Servians with two hundred guns. The despatch is dated Saturday.

London, Nov. 18.—The negotiations for an armistice have failed and the Bulgarians yesterday opened the attack against the Turks all along the Tchatalja lines. The heavy artillery duel continued throughout the day.

It appeared to be a Bulgarian preparation for an infantry attack. The Turkish fleet participated vigorously in the defence at the Marmora end lines, and presumably Turkish warships assisted at the Black Sea end also.

Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, in a despatch last evening, claims to have repulsed the Bulgarian attack and destroyed three Bulgarian batteries.

No news of the battle has been received as yet from Sofia, and no information as to the strength of the forces engaged on either side.

Nazim Pasha's headquarters are near the Hademkeui Railway station. According to the latest reports, the battle ceased with nightfall.

The resumption of hostilities is not regarded as indicating the collapse of the peace negotiations, but rather as a means to hasten Turkey's acceptance of the allies' terms, by proving her complete helplessness, or, as one correspondent phrased it, "to establish an accomplished fact before making further communications."

The Bulgarian Government organ, Mir, reverts to the subject of peace, and plainly intimates that the allies are prepared to consider the question of an alliance with Turkey, provided the latter promptly accepts their terms, which would give Turkey the opportunity of welding her territories into a modern state and making friends of her conquerors.

The Balkan states clearly have in mind the formation of such an alliance as would be able to defy European interference in the disposition of the spoils of war.

Every day brings fresh despatches recording the terrible spread of cholera. It is now stated that there are a thousand cases daily, with a mortality of 50 per cent., while the Turkish authorities are impotent to take any measures to prevent its further spread. This being the case, it is still doubted whether the Bulgarians will risk the danger of a march to Constantinople. It is, therefore, believed that hostilities have been resumed in order to hurry the Porte's acceptance of whatever terms the allies dictate.

The sanitary board at Constantinople has adopted a resolution expressing grave concern at the prospect of either the Turkish or the Bulgarian army coming into the capital. The ambassadors of the powers have taken prompt measures and will land detachments to-day from the foreign warships, for the protection of the foreign residents and property.

The war continues at other points. The Montenegrins have captured San Giovanni di Merua, and the battle for the possession of Monastir is now going on. All the approaches to that town are reported to be in Servian hands.

The political situation in Constantinople is serious. Arrests of Young Turks continue and there are still rumors of the possibility of the restoration of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid.

It is reported in the Italian papers that Austria has greatly modified her demands on Servia. Demonstrations of sympathy with the Balkan aspirations are causing trouble in the Bosnian diet, which has publicly protested against the Austrian Government's attitude in favoring the Albanians and opposing the Servians. The town councils of Spalato and Sebenico, in Dalmatia, have been dissolved by the Government on account of their pro-Servian sympathies.

The Daily Mail despatch from Constantinople, timed 9 p.m., says:

Unofficial reports say that the Turks have gained a great success. The battle opened at 8 o'clock in the morning. The Turks succeeded, after some hours of violent fighting, in defeating the right Bulgarian wing, and in repulsing the left wing. They captured 12 guns and 8,000 prisoners. The Turkish warships contributed largely to their success.

Montenegrins Defeated.

Constantinople, Nov. 18.—The Turkish commander at Scutari telegraphs under date of Nov. 15 that a battle occurred on the heights east of Muslemkeni. It lasted two days and terminated in the complete defeat of the Montenegrins, who lost 1,000 killed and many more wounded. The Turkish losses numbered 385 killed and wounded.

The commander of the western army, under date of Nov. 15, telegraphs that a decisive battle will begin to-day in the region of Monastir.

Hundreds of Turks Blown Up.

Athens, Nov. 18.—The explosion of a Turkish magazine at Saloniki several days ago did immense execution. The magazine was close to the cavalry barracks, where many Turkish prisoners were confined. Three hundred and twelve of the Turks were killed and 450 wounded.

MARINE DISASTER IS TO BE PROBED

Investigation Into the Loss of the Mayflower.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has ordered a searching investigation into the cause of the loss of the steamer Mayflower, which sank near Barry's Bay Tuesday last, when nine persons were drowned. It is understood that the steamer had no lifeboats and only one or two lifebelts when she left on the trip. She was inspected by an official of the Marine Department on May 28 last, and granted a certificate.

Two divers from the Department of Railways and Canals are now searching for missing bodies.

HYDRO WANTED AT NORTH BAY

Crowded Meetings Are Held Preparatory to Voting.

North Bay, Nov. 18.—Crowded meetings have been held every night last week at the Royal Theatre preparatory to the voting on the Hydro-Electric and Nipissing Power Co. franchise bylaws. Friday night the theatre was packed to the doors when Mayor Scott of Galt spoke at considerable length and enthusiastically of two years operation by the Hydro-Electric Commission in that town, where the service has been profitable from the start and this year is piling up a big surplus.

DECREASE IN FODDER CROP

Decreases Are Shown all Over Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—A bulletin issued yesterday by the Census and Statistics Office contains estimates of the yield, quality and value of the root and fodder crops of Canada during the past season, based upon returns from agricultural correspondents at the end of October.

Upon total areas for potatoes, turnips, mangolds, etc., hay and clover, alfalfa, fodder corn and sugar beets, amounting to 7,732,000 acres, as compared with 9,160,000 acres last year. The total value of the products is $192,500,000, compared with $223,790,000, a decrease in value of $35,290,000. The decrease is caused by the diminution, both in area and yield, of the hay and clover crop, which is less than last year in area by 426,000 acres, in yield by 2,000,000 tons and in value by $28,380,000.

All the other crops show increases, except alfalfa, the area of which in Canada is relatively small.

The area estimated to be sown to fall in five provinces of Canada this season aggregates 1,086,000 acres, as compared with 1,156,900 acres, the area sown last year. This represents a net decrease of 70,100 acres, or six per cent.

The condition of this crop on Oct. 31 was 92.67 per cent. of the standard for the five provinces. It was above 90 in each province, except Manitoba, where the small area of about 4,000 acres had a per cent. condition of 88 1-2.

The percentage of fall plowing completed upon land intended for next year's crops ranges from 45 in Ontario to 77 in Prince Edward Island for the east and from 24 in Alberta to 38 in British Columbia for the west.

EAGER TO HEAR THE NAVAL PLANS OF PREMIER BORDEN

Every Available Gallery Seat Being Taken For Opening Day.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—There was no Cabinet session on Saturday. The entire Cabinet took a day off and Premier Borden, Hon. W. T. White, Hon. J. W. Crothers, and Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes went out to Lansdowne Park and watched old McGill defeat Varsity for intercollegiate honors.

Practically everything is in readiness for the opening on Thursday.

"The cards are stacked for what I believe will be a great session," was the way one of the Ministers summed up the situation Saturday. Not very often in the past has such interest been awakened on Parliament Hill in an approaching session. "Standing room only" signs are hung around the corridors of the House of Commons, every available gallery seat being taken for the opening day.

Enquiries as to the probable date of Premier Borden's announcement of his naval proposal are pouring in from all parts of the country, and it is being predicted that when the Prime Minister rises to make his much anticipated naval speech he will have the biggest and most representative audience that has ever greeted any speaker in a Canadian Parliament.

FAILURE OF BULGARIANS

Whole Army Advanced on Tchatalja Without Success

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 18.—The first Bulgarian attack on the Turkish lines of fortifications defending Constantinople at Tchatalja has failed. The whole Bulgarian army was engaged. Every available man was moved to the front from Bulgarian forces investing Adrianople. The Bulgarians found the Turkish position so strong they could make no impression, and for the moment at least are compelled to relinquish the attempt.

GERMANY CUTS NAVAL EXPENSES

Owing to Approaching Completion of Naval Program.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Some of the leading items in the budget of the German empire for the coming year are given in The Boersen Courier Saturday, one of the leading financial dailies.

The total income and expenditure are balanced at approximately $762,000,000 each, an increase of about $74,000,000 over last year.

The estimate for the navy is given at $119,250,000, or an increase of $1,500,000. The ordinary naval expenditure increases by $4,000,000 and the non-recurring expenditure by $5,250,000, but the extraordinary expenditure on the navy is reduced by $7,750,000 owing to the approaching completion of the naval construction program.

Death of Hon. J. D. Rolland.

Rolland Paper Co. and ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He was prominent in all temperance movements in Quebec and was a governor of Laval University. Hon. MICHIGAN CENTRAL THREATENS LONDON

London, Ont., Nov. 18.—The special committee of the Board of Trade, which was appointed to consider Hon. Adam Beck's scheme to electrify the London and Port Stanley road, which is owned by the city, Friday night refused to recommend the proposal until it was given further and more minute consideration. The scheme involves an expenditure to the city of $890,000. Sir George Gibbons declared the information furnished by the Hydro-Electric Commission was too meagre.

Saturday morning it was stated by a Michigan Central official that the company would withdraw its London connection if Mr. Beck's scheme was adopted.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 By H. K. FLY CO.

His ear was slightly red, and he held at arm's length, as if it were a venomous monster, Snoozleums. And he yelled:

"Say, whose durn dog is this? He bit two men, and he makes so much noise we can't sleep in the baggage car."

Marjorie went flying down the aisle to reclaim her lost lamb in wolf's clothing, and Snoozleums, the returned prodigal, yelped and leaped, and told her all about the indignities he had been subjected to, and his valiant struggle for liberty.

Marjorie, seeing only Snoozleums, stepped into the fatal berth number one, and paid no heed to the dangling ribbons. Mallory, eager to restore himself to her love by loving her dog, crowded closer to her side, making a hypocritical ado over the pup.

Everybody was popping his or her face out to learn the cause of such clamor. Among the bodiless heads suspended along the curtains, like Dyak trophies, appeared the great mask of Little Jimmie Wellington. He had been unable to sleep for mourning the wanton waste of that lovely rice-trap.

When he peered forth, his eyes hardly believed themselves. The elusive bride and groom were actually in the trap—the hen pheasant and the chanticleer. But the net did not fall. He waited to see them sit down, and spring the infernal machine. But they would not sit.

In fact, Marjorie was muttering to Harry—tenderly, now, since he had won her back by his efforts to console Snoozleums—she was muttering tenderly:

"We must not be seen together, honey. Go away, I'll see you in the morning."

And Mallory was saying with bitterest resignation: "Good night—my friend."

And they were shaking hands! This incredible bridal couple was shaking hands with itself—disintegrating! Then Wellington determined to do at least his duty by the sacred rites.

The gaping passengers saw what was probably the largest pair of pajamas in Chicago. They saw Little Jimmie, smothering back his giggles like a schoolboy, tiptoe from his berth, enter the next berth, brushing the porter aside, climb on the seat, and clutch the ribbon that pulled the stopper from the trap.

Down upon the unsuspecting elopers came this miraculous cloudburst of ironical rice, and with it came Little Jimmie Wellington, who lost what little balance he had, and catapulted into their midst like the offspring of an iceberg.

It was at this moment that Mrs. Wellington, hearing the loud cries of the panic-stricken Marjorie, rushed from the Women's Room, absent-mindedly combing a totally detached section of her hair. She recognized familiar pyjamas waving in air, and with one faint gasp: "Jimmie! on this train!" she swooned away. She would have fallen, but seeing that no one paid any attention to her, she recovered consciousness on her own hook, and vanished into her berth, to meditate on the whys and wherefores of her husband's presence in this car.

Dr. Temple in a nightgown and trousers; Roger Ashton, in a collarless estate, and the porter, managed to extricate Mr. Wellington from his plight, and stow him away, though it was like putting a whale to bed.

Mallory, seeing that Marjorie had fled, vented his wild rage against fate in general, and rice traps in particular, by tearing the bridal bungalow to pieces, and then he stalked into the smoking room, where Ira Lathrop, homeless and dispossessed, was sound asleep, with his feet in the chair.

He was dreaming that he was a boy in Brattleboro, the worst boy in Brattleboro, trying to get up the courage to spark pretty Anne Gattle, and throwing rocks at the best boy in town, Charlie Selby, who was always at her side. The porter woke Ira, an hour later, and escorted him to the late bridal section.

Marjorie had fled with her dog, as soon as she could grope her way through the deluge of rice. She hopped into her berth, and spent an hour trying to clear her hair of the multitudinous grains. And as for Snoozleums, his thick wool was so be-riced that for two days, whenever he shook himself, he snew.

Eventually, the car quieted, and nothing was heard but the rumble and click of the wheels on the rails, the creak of timbers, and the frog-like chorus of a few well-trained snorers. As the porter was turning down the last of the lights, a rumpled pate was thrust from the stateroom, and the luscious-eyed man whispered:

"Porter, what time did you say we crossed the Iowa state line?"

"Two fifty-five a. m."

From within the stateroom came a deep sigh, then with a dismal groan: "Call me at two fifty-five a. m.," the door was closed.

Poor Mallory, pyjamaless and nightshirtless, lay propped up on his pillows, staring out of the window at the swiftly shifting night scene. The state of Illinois was being pulled out from under the train like a dark rug.

Farmhouses gleamed or dreamed lampless. The moonlight rippled on endless seas of wheat and Indian corn. Little towns slid up and away. Large towns rolled forward, and were left behind. Ponds, marshes, brooks, pastures, thickets and great gloomy groves flowed past as on a river. But the same stars and the moon seemed to accompany the train. If the flying witness had been less heavy of heart, he would have found the reeling scene full of grace and night beauty. But he could not see any charm in all the world, except his tantalizing other self, from whom a great chasm seemed to divide him, though she was only two windows away.

He had not yet fallen asleep, and he was still pondering how to attain his unmarried, unmarriable bride, when the train rolled out in air above a great wide river, very noble under the stars. He knew it for the Mississippi. He heard a faint knocking on a door at the other end of the car. He heard sounds as of kisses, and then somebody tiptoed along the aisle stealthily. He did not know that another bridegroom was being separated from his bride because they were too much married.

Somewhere in Iowa he fell asleep.

CHAPTER XVII.

Last Call for Breakfast.

It was still Iowa when Mallory awoke. Into his last moments of heavy sleep intruded a voice like a town-crier's voice, crying:

"Lass call for breakfuss in the Rining Rar," and then, again louder, "Lass call for breakfuss in Rininrar," and, finally and faintly, "Lass-call breakfuss ri'rar."

Mallory pushed up his window-shade. The day was broad on rolling prairies like billows established in the green soil. He peeked through his curtains. Most of the other passengers were up and about, their beds hidden and beddings stowed away behind the bellying veneer of the upperworks of the car. All the berths were made up except his own and number two, in the corner, where Little Jimmie Wellington's nose still played a bagpipe monody, and one other berth, which he recognized as Marjorie's.

His belated sleep and hers had spared them both the stares and laughing chatter of the passengers. But this bridal couple's two berths, standing like towers among the seats, had provided conversation for everybody, had already united the casual group of strangers into an organized gossip-bee.

Mallory got into his shoes and as much of his clothes as was necessary for the dash to the washroom, and took on his arm the rest of his wardrobe. Just as he issued from his lonely chamber, Marjorie appeared from hers, much disheveled and heavy-eyed. The bride and groom exchanged glances of mutual terror, and hurried in opposite directions.

The spickest and spannest of lieutenants soon realized that he was reduced to wearing yesterday's linen as well as yesterday's beard. This was intolerable. A brave man can endure heartbreaks, loss of love, honor and place, but a neat man cannot abide the traces of time in his toilet. Lieutenant Mallory had seen rough service in camp and on long hikes, when he gloried in mud and disorder, and he was to see campaigns in the Philippines, when he should not take off his shoes or his uniform for three days at a time. But that was the field, and this car was a drawing room.

In this crisis in his affairs, Little Jimmie Wellington waddled into the men's room, floundering about with every lurch of the train, like a cannon loose in the hold of a ship. He fumbled with the handles on a basin, and made a crazy toilet, trying to find some abatement of his fever by filling a glass at the ice-water tank and emptying it over his head.

These drastic measures restored him to some sort of coherency, and Mallory appealed to him for help in the matter of linen. Wellington effusively offered him everything he had, and Mallory selected from his store half a dozen collars, any one of which would have gone round his neck nearly twice.

Wellington also proffered his safety razor, and made him a present of a virgin wafer of steel for his very own.

The Spanish Hair Wave.

The coiffure illustrated shows the simple, unaffected type of hairdressing favored just now for wear in the house.

It is called the Spanish wave, and one can imagine how alluring a dark type of beauty would be with her dusky tresses severely parted in front and brushed back softly over the forehead in these undulating waves.

All that is needed to complete the picture are a Spanish lace mantilla and a red rose poised coquettishly over the ear.

POPPING CORN.

Why the Heat Literally Turns the Grains Inside Out.

A grain of popcorn is filled with tightly packed starch grains. The interior of the grain is divided into a large number of cells, each of which may be likened to a tiny box, the walls whereof are sufficiently strong to withstand considerable pressure from within. Upon the application of heat the moisture present in each little box is converted into steam that finally escapes by explosion.

To obtain a satisfactory popping there is required a very high degree of heat. This causes the greater part of the cells to explode simultaneously. The grain of corn then literally turns inside out and is transformed into a relatively large mass of snow white starch.

If corn be old and dry it will not pop satisfactorily. A few cells near the center of the grain may burst, but the general result will be unsatisfactory. At the base of the kernels, where they are attached to the cob, the cells appear to be driest, and it has been observed that these cells are seldom broken in the popping.

Practically all the popcorn raised for market in this country comes from New England. Great quantities of it are popped, buttered and packed for sale all over the United States.—Harper's Weekly.

An Offer Declined.

Dr. Portal, the favorite medical attendant of Louis XVIII. of France, was offered an unusual reward for his services. Having cured Vestris of a severe illness, the famous dancing master said to him: "My dear doctor, I should never dream of offering you money. Between artists there can be no dealings except those of gratitude. To demonstrate mine, I will give you a valuable hint as to your deportment. I have often noticed that you have a most ungraceful way of carrying yourself. I can remedy that in a few lessons and teach you how to enter a sick room in such a way as to please the most exacting patient. We can begin now if you like." Much to the amazement of Vestris, Portal declined this offer and so lost the esteem of his illustrious patient.

Top Buttonhole of a Coat.

The buttonhole in one's coat does not owe its origin to the once universally worn flower, but to our ancestors' habit of buttoning their coats right up to the neck. Fashion changed, the coat was turned back, forming what the tailor calls the "lapel," and the buttonhole was utilized for the flower, which old portraits tell us was before this time tucked into the waistcoat near the waist, or if a belt were worn, in the belt. The primitive use of the buttonhole is still seen in the overcoat, which has a companion button on the other side for use in rough weather.—London Chronicle.

Victoria and the Future.

Queen Victoria's childlike faith in the future life is touchingly revealed in her published letters to Dr. Boyd Carpenter. The only fear that troubled her was lest those she loved who had left this world before her might have outgrown her companionship. "I feel only this doubt," she wrote to Carpenter, "on account of my dear husband, whose tastes were of a higher and different order from mine and who had different interests perhaps from mine. I am far more fit now to be his companion than I used to be, but still I know that he must have soared higher than me."

No matter how young you are, you are probably old enough to know better.

SOMETHING ABOUT FRENCH ZOUAVES

These Fighters Won Their Greatest Fame in the Crimea.

One of the most interesting class of soldiers of modern times has been the French corps called the zouaves. This body of daring and picturesquely attired fighters reached the heights of its reputation during the Crimean war.

The zouave corps at that time was supposed to consist of Frenchmen. It was, however, quite international, since many daring young foreigners had joined it, and it was known to include in its ranks men from Oxford, Gottingen and other universities. It is probable that a majority of its members were in it more for love of fighting than for any love of country.

It is not strange, therefore, that its fame as a fighting body should have spread throughout the world. When our war between the states broke out several corps of zouaves, wearing the glittering oriental uniforms of the French corps or a modification of them, were formed on both sides. On the Union side the best known was that corps commanded by Elmer Ellsworth, a young officer from New York and the first killed on the Union side. In the Confederacy the most famous corps of zouaves was that called the "Louisiana Tigers."

While in American military life the zouave uniform has practically disappeared, in France the zouave name and uniform still survive.—Harper's Weekly.

The Queer Chameleon.

There is nothing in the world will induce a chameleon to take even the slightest apparent interest in its surroundings unless it be the sight of what it considers a toothsome insect. The chameleon's method of taking its prey is very curious, being effected by shooting out an enormously long, wormlike tongue, the end of which is clubbed and covered with a viscid secretion, to which the insects stick and are thus drawn into its mouth. The actual projection of the tongue is made with marvelous rapidity. The eyes of the chameleon are very curious. They are very large, but, with the exception of a small opening in the center, are covered with skin. They are also entirely independent of each other, with the result that occasionally the creature is looking forward over its nose with one eye, while with the other it is intently watching something directly behind it.

Too Strong.

A young woman from the west who lately has been admitted to the intimacy of "the artistic set" of Washington recently made this query of an artist with reference to the work of a fellow painter:

"Why does Blank stand off and half shut his eyes when he looks at the pictures he is painting? When I visited his studio the other day he made me do it too."

"The explanation is simple enough," said the other. "Did you ever try to look at them with your eyes wide open? Well, don't; you can't stand it."—New York Press.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

THE EVIL EFFECTS OF IDLENESS— Ever since it was said to man, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," work has been necessary to sustain life. And not only so, but the greatest happiness in this life is also obtained only by working.

Idleness does no good. It makes a person aimless. A man who works has a purpose in so doing. He would not be as one who beats the air, but he would be known as a man who "Does Things." The idler however, since he does not intend to work has no ambition to do anything, for why should a man with a gun "take aim" unless he intends to shoot? And if at first he has a faint desire to reach a certain goal, unless he takes off his coat, rolls up his sleeves and works for it, he will never get there. And if he crushes his first ambition to "be somebody," his next desire in this direction will not be so strong, and will be more easily defeated. And finally, he will have no ambition at all, and his life will be aimless.

Then too, he will be dependent, since work is necessary to sustain life, if one man is idle, some one else must do double his own share of work. The idler, in this way, becomes a burden to his friends.

Because of the fact that he does no positive good, the idler is worthless. He not only drifts with the tide and lives off others, but by the very fact that he occupies space—space that would be better occupied by someone else—and by the facts of his demands upon the time and energy of those who are capable of more worthy efforts and who have higher ambitions, he also proves himself to be of no earthly value.

If this were the worst, we might pity the idler and let him live. But he actually does harm. That "an idle brain is the Devil's work-shop" is veritably true. Even though a man does not work with his hands, it is beyond his power to stop the activity of the mind. And since he is an aimless, dependent, worthless idler, he will have nothing good of which to think. Consequently, his thoughts will run in channels that are shallow and low. This being the only part of his body that is exercised, his capacity for this kind of thinking will develop, and these few shallow thoughts will soon become many evil ones; then, they will find expression in foolish words; and sooner or later misconduct, if not some hideous crime, will be the result, for "Every word and deed lives in the thought that prompted it."

This kind of a life is not a happy one. His evil thoughts, foolish words, and misconduct are sure to get the idler into trouble. And although he may be clothed and fed by others, yet the consequences of his sin must be borne by himself.

Therefore, have a definite aim and work for it. "Aim high; this is a good motto." Have lofty ambitions for them, even though you do fall short of the work, your attainment will still be higher than that of those with low ideals.

But do not expect to reach the desired haven without work. Get busy and stay busy, for this is the only way to avoid the evil effects of idleness.

ATTACKS OF HICCUPS.

If Persistent They May Carry With Them a Grave Warning.

Hiccup is the spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. It may be a symptom of the most trivial importance that yields to the simplest kind of treatment or of a serious and intractable affection that persists for a long time and even produces death by exhaustion. No one may hope to be entirely free from hiccup; in its simple form it is extremely frequent, but upon the whole it is more common with children than with adults.

Sometimes the attack comes on without any apparent cause, but it may follow a sudden chill, such as that caused by stepping from a warm bed to a cold room; it may accompany a violent fit of crying, or it may be due to the distension of the stomach by food or gas. Severe fright or nervous shock has also been known to lead to intractable attacks of hiccups.

A feeble infant with whom hiccup comes to be of daily occurence often falls into a state of extreme exhaustion. In such a case great care should be taken to ward off or put an early stop to the attack.

Where there is any serious disorder of the abdominal organs, persistent hiccup is a disquieting symptom, and when it occurs as an accompaniment of kidney disease it is almost always of grave significance.

In simple cases very slight measures are sufficient to put an end to the attack. Anything that causes a feeling of suffocation will generally effect a cure, because that feeling naturally results in a forced contraction of the diaphragm. One old fashioned remedy is the slow sipping of a glass of water; another is the drawing and holding of deep breaths at regular intervals.

In the case of small babies, a mere change of position will sometimes stop an attack. When the hiccup does not yield promptly to simple measures, careful search should be made for the cause. In the case of infants or small children, this is usually connected with the diet.—Youth's Companion.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—A large number of orders were received from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but the volume of business done was small, as the prices bid were generally from ½c to 1c per bushel below cost, but exporters state that, judging from the demand, they want our wheat, and will be up for it as soon as prices here show any firmness. The local demand for American corn is fair, and sales of a number of car lots of new crop were made at 58½c track for shipment from Chicago in fifteen days, and old crop at 65½c for prompt shipment. A good trade has been done in oats for local account during the week, and sales of 300,000 bushels were made at prices ranging from 40½c to 43½c, c.i.f. here, for December, January and February shipment from Fort William. Owing to the steady decline in wheat values a weaker feeling developed in the flour market for spring wheat grades, and millers reduced prices 20c per barrel, but winter wheat flour is still firm, owing to the limited supply. Bran is also weaker and $1 lower, but other millfeed steady. Butter is fairly active and firm. Receipts for week were 7477 packages, as against 5751 a year ago. Cheese quiet and easy. Receipts for week, 37,510, against 23,454 a year ago. Eggs fairly active and firm. Receipts for week were 2014 cases, against 4011 a year ago.

CHESS WITH BULLETS.

The Most Remarkable Game of Its Kind In All History.

Devotees of the ancient game of chess will be interested in the following account of a game played by Charles XII. of Sweden with his lieutenant, Grothusen, while encamped at Bender in 1713. According to the late Willard Fiske in "Chess Tales," the Swedish monarch had exhausted the patience of his Moslem enemy, whose army had begun a sharp fusillade on the headquarters of the exile king.

Charles and Grothusen were playing chess one afternoon in the latter part of January, 1713. The morning had been spent in riding about the defences round which thirty thousand Turks and Tartars lay encamped. Although the violent assaults that took place a few days afterwards had not yet commenced the Moslem army warned the besieged monarch of what he might expect by sending an occasional ball whistling over the house in which the headquarters were established.

The game was far advanced, and Charles, who played the white, had a decided advantage. With the admirable calmness that he knows so well how to assume in the presence of danger, he gazed for a long time at the position, and at last announced mate in three moves.

Hardly had the words escaped from his lips when a bullet, shattering one of the windowpanes, ended its flight by removing from the board and breaking into fragments the white knight. Charles, who was about to lean back in his chair with the self-satisfied air of a victor, looked vexed at this unexpected loss. But Grothusen, who was not his equal in coolness, leaped from his seat in dismay. Charles reproved him with a laugh, and said, "Where is my other knight, Grothusen? Find it and work out the mate.

But before the Minister could find the piece, the eye of Charles was struck by the position of the forces; and he remained for some minutes gazing at the board. At length he raised his head with a smile. "I don't think we need the knight; I believe that I can afford to give it to you and still be able to mate you in four moves."

The monarch had just made this announcement when a second bullet actually flew through the open door and took its way merrily as the first had done toward the royal chessboard. The white pawn at the rook's second square shared the fate of the knight; and fell in small pieces of ivory upon the floor. Grothusen, remembering the satirical laugh of Charles, only turned pale without stirring from his chair.

"You have our good friends, the Turks, upon your side, Grothusen," said the King. "It will hardly be expected that I can compete both against you and 30,000 heathen, especially if you employ such powerful weapons. This is the first time I have seen chess played with muskets. But wait a moment and let me see if my game is not good enough to allow me to dispense with this unlucky pawn also. I have it!" he shouted, and laughed so loudly that he might have been heard beyond the entrenchments. "I have it! I have great pleasure in informing you that there is undoubtedly a mate in five moves."

And Charles would not allow Grothusen to leave the apartment until he had solved the problem.

Parisians' Bread.

There is no city in the world where so much bread is consumed as in Paris. It is estimated that every inhabitant eats one pound a day on the average. Even in past centuries the French—especially Parisians—had a horror of stale bread. And, as in those days people manufactured their own bread, they had a curious way of making it palatable. Strange as it may seem, the bread they prepared—huge round or square slabs—was used as a dish on which the meat was carved and bore the name of "transchoirs," or "tailloirs." The juice of the meat having penetrated into the bread imparted a pleasant taste and prevented it from becoming dry.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast by Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill, P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

NERVILINE AN INSTANT RELIEF

Repotting Plants.

Repotting plants becomes necessary at intervals from two considerations. The plant uses up the available fertility in the soil and fills the pot with roots. In repotting plants it is well to shake off whatever earth can be separated without breaking and injuring the roots. Then water and shade for a few days.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8¾ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

HYDRO POWER QUESTION

In deciding that the people of Peterborough shall be given the opportunity to vote upon a by-law, to raise $120,000 to cover the cost of a new electric power distributing system, the City Council has acted in accord with what is known to be the sentiment of the people. The test vote taken upon the question of whether Peterborough should negotiate with the Hydro-electric Commission, indicated the trend of public opinion. The negotiations with the representatives of the Electric Power Company, revealed the willingness of that corporation to make considerable concessions to the city. The rates for power and light were to be so arranged, if the city became a partner in the electric ring, that Peterborough would have a measure of control. But though all the conditions upon which the Electric Power Company offers were based may be regarded as not too niggardly, the fact still remains that under any of propositions short of actual expropriation, the city would have a minority interest in the electric power and lighting situation.

The terms of the Electric Power Company's offers have been well discussed, and the opinion prevails that the company made as generous an offer as it could possibly afford. It was much more concerned to keep the Hydro-Electric Power Commission out of the Trent Valley, than to keep itself entrenched on all sides in the distribution of power in Peterborough. The Electric Power Company would, it is to be inferred, not be unwilling to let the local distribution question go pretty much as it pleased, if assured that it would still have Peterborough as an exclusive market for its power. This raises the broad principle of whether Peterborough should make any deal which involves the continuance of the Electric Power Company as a monopolist of Peterborough power for public use. Shall Peterborough consent to be tied down, hand and foot, to the Electric Power Company, for 80 years and possibly longer, without the option of recourse to the Hydro-Electric Commission for a supply of power, or shall it, by facing the question squarely now, ensure competition? The Electric Power Company offers may be adjudged as generous as the company could reasonably make. Several of the options cannot be looked upon in any other light. But the principle, as we stated before, of competition remains, and that can be settled permanently, in the right way, only by the introduction of Hydro-electric power. The record of the Hydro-Electric Commission in its dealings with the western municipalities has been eminently satisfactory on all sides. What the Commission has promised it has carried out. What it promises to Peterborough, may reasonably be relied upon as a quarantine, backed by good faith, and the ability to perform its obligations.

IS COMPULSORY SERVICE COMING?

With Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg, Paris and Rome secretly shivering at the proximity of the long expected and much discussed European Armageddon Lord Roberts has received effective extrinsic aid in his campaign for compulsory military service in Britain. The high state of preparedness in the military camps on the Continent has thrown a more revealing light upon Britain's incapacity to carry out her considerable military obligations as the predominant partner in the Triple Entente. Outside of the "Expeditionary "Force" of 160,000 men, reserves, and about 20,000 Territories who have engaged for service abroad, if need be, Britain is without offensive military power. As compared with Germany's mobile force of 1,760,000 men, Austria-Hungary's 820,000 soldiers, Italy's mobile force of 300,000, the British field power is so insignificant that it could not become very deeply involved in the "vortex of European militarism" even if the crisis demanded it should. The London Daily Mail has been publishing letters from officers and men in the Territorials blazoning forth the inefficiency and disorganization rampant in the forces. The Haldane scheme of army reform put a better face on a bad job, but by common consent of the best military judges it is pronounced utterly inadequate to the real needs. Lord Roberts lacks no endorsement for his views. Behind the ostensible army establishments of all the larger European states lie reserves of men trained in active service, in the first line, varying from 100 to 600 per cent. of the regular establishment. The little Balkan States, by furnishing 600,000 men, or 25 per cent. more than the total military forces of the United Kingdom, have provided another telling illustration that Britain cannot adhere to her present system of army recruiting. The Asquith Government, being already on its last legs, is in no position to consider making any unpopular innovation in respect of military service. But if it were free of the Home Rule difficulty of Welsh disestablishment, of the troubles incident to its social legislation, it could not be looked to for any action along this line. It has copied ideas for social legislation from New Zealand and Australia, but also to copy the compulsory training systems in use in those British Dominions would be too shocking a perversion of its party principle. At the same time Lord Roberts is the spokesman of an increasingly large body of opinion that some such change cannot be postponed in perpetuity.

ASQUITH IN TROUBLE

The position of the Asquith Government in reference to the Home Rule Bill is very embarrassing. When the Unionists declined to proceed with Premier Asquith's motion that the Unionist amendment be rescinded and the bill go forward as though it had never been passed, the precarious position of the Government was made plain. The unseemly row that the Unionists commenced when Premier Asquith failed to produce adequate precedents for his action, was practically a victorious bit of tactics. Speaker Low then adjourned the House, and upon the repetition of the trouble, the House reassembled, the King intervened to procure a further adjournment. This must have been rather annoying to Premier Asquith, since it was further proof that the map division had put the Government into a bad hole. The amendment, unless rescinded, practically destroys the usefulness of the Home Rule Bill. It remains to be seen whether Premier Asquith has sufficient strength, now that the European crisis is well over, to prevail over the determination of the Unionists not to permit a reversal of parliamentary practice.

WAS COAXED TO LEAVE HER HOME

The Story Told By Fifteen Year Old Girl

Allie Clarke appeared in the police court at Port Hope on a charge that he did unlawfully take an unmarried girl, who was under the age of sixteen years, to wit, one Bertha A. Heard out of the possession and against the will of her father, Moses Heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Heard swore that the girl was taken away without their permission or knowledge.

The girl in her evidence stated that Clarke coaxed her for some time to leave home, telling her that they would go to the States.

She was absent from home about a week with Clarke, and during that time they visited Newcastle, Bowmanville, Osaca and Peterborough. Finally they walked from Bowmanville to Newcastle, where Clarke hired a livery rig and drove the girl home. The girl was 15 years of age last May.

The Magistrate committed Clarke to Cobourg for trial.

STUDENTS' CONVENTION

Citizens Are Asked to Entertain the Visitors

Reference was made yesterday in the churches, to the Missionary Conference of the Colleges of Ontario and Quebec, which will be held in Murray Street Baptist Church, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, November 29, 30, and December 1. An appeal was made for the entertainment of the delegates during their stay in the city.

Three years ago a number of Students from Canadian institutions had the privilege of attending the quadrennial Student Volunteer Convention in Rochester, N. Y. Two years ago there was held at Guelph a conference whose purpose was to convey the privileges of Rochester to the general student body of Ontario. Such a conference is to be made an annual event. Peterborough is the site chosen for that of this year and it is so located as to permit of the attendance of representatives from Quebec. The conference offers a more definite training in mission study and finance than is possible at a large gathering. The combination afforded of technical training and missionary inspiration renders attendance a very great privilege.

In connection with the conference there will be displayed an exhibit of missionary books periodicals, pamphlets, pictures and illuminating facts and statistics which will be of great interest and value. All correspondence concerning this exhibit should reach Mr. H. L. Troyer, 526 Lansdowne Ave., Toronto, not later than Friday, November 22nd.

SPEAKERS.

The speakers of the Conference are all persons of broad experience and large vision. Among them are:

President Falconer, University of Toronto.
Dr. J. A. Macdonald, Toronto.
Prof. J. L. Gilmour, Toronto.
Dr. Ed. Hume, China.
J. Lovell Murray, New York.
Miss Anna Brown, New York.
Rev. Lawrence Skey, Toronto.

BETWEEN THE EYES

The upper part of the face is what you notice first when you meet a person.

A scowl there, is often so disfiguring that it doesn't matter how attractive the person otherwise appears—the scowl spoils it all.

In most cases scowls are the direct result of eye strain. Remove the strain the scowl passes away.

If you have any symptoms of eye strain have your eyes examined by a Specialist at once. Don't wait until ugly lines appear between the eyes.

If you need glasses he will prescribe the correct lenses. If you do not need glasses he will tell you so. We guarantee satisfaction.

All lenses ground on the premises.

INSPECTION IN SCHOOLS

Board of Education Satisfied that the Move is a Good One

The Board of Education at Kingston some time ago took up the "Medical Inspection of Schools" question which has been discussed by the local Board of Education but without definite action being taken.

The Kingston Board engaged a nurse who at the last meeting reported that 890 pupils had been inspected; instructions given to 107; 37 consultations with parents and 45 home visits.

The Kingston Whig in a report of the meeting says:

After hearing the report Trustee Meek stated that he thought the report should be taken up by the management committee and commented upon. When the question of the appointment of a nurse had first been taken up he had been somewhat opposed to such an appointment, but now he was of the opinion that the nurse was doing a grand work. In fact, too much could not be said in favor of the work which was being accomplished, and for this reason he considered that it was but right that the management Committee should take up the matter. Citizens who were behind the board in the work could understand clearly that the work was meeting with great success and was growing from day to day.

Chairman Walkem said that the suggestion of Trustee Meek was a good one.

Trustee Elliott also spoke of the great value derived from medical inspection. At the recent convention of the Ontario Educational Association the matter had been taken up and at that time he had referred to the good work which was being accomplished. One great point to be considered was that of the number of days saved the children for school attendance. The prevailing ills of children were checked by the school nurse and this resulted in a great saving of time. He considered it would be a good move to have the management committee report on the work.

HOTEL-KEEPER FINED $200

Stranger Was Supplied With Liquor on Sunday

Port Hope Guide—William Howard Proprietor of the Ontario House appeared in the Police Court charged with selling liquor on Sunday, Nov. 10th. In the information it was alleged that Mr. Howard was convicted on similar charges on the 10th of April, 1911 and the 12th July, 1908.

Mr. Chisholm, who appeared for the defendant, pleaded guilty to the charge of Nov. 10th, but declined to answer to the other two. Mr. Morrison, Provincial License Inspector, then submitted copies of the previous convictions, one signed by Police Magistrate White and the other by Crown Attorney Kerr.

Mr. Chisholm stated that while pleading guilty, he wished to make an explanation regarding the case of last Sunday. Two strangers, evidently whiskey spotters, went to the Ontario House on Saturday night. On Sunday morning one came rushing down stairs and implored Mr. Howard for liquor, stating that he was dying for a drink. Mr. Howard was in the hall near the dining room at the time and out of sympathy opened the bar. The bartender was cleaning up and Mr. Howard ordered him to give the stranger a drink. The man, pretending to be in such distress, invited Mr. Howard to have a drink, but he refused. Not knowing how he could pull through the remainder of the day, he asked Mr. Howard for a bottle of whiskey to take to his room and this was given him.

The bar was immediately closed and no more business was done until the following Monday morning. Mr. Chisholm pointed out that it was quite evident that Mr. Howard did not open the bar from a financial point of view, and he considered the means adopted by these whisky spies to secure a conviction quite unfair. The drink was served because Mr. Howard thought the man was sick and in view of this Mr. Chisholm asked the Magistrate to deal as leniently as possible.

The Magistrate pointed out that hotelmen should not listen to any pleadings. They had their hours for doing business and should abide by them. Further it was very unfortunate that Mr. Howard sold the bottle of whisky. He considered the house must be run in a loose manner when a perfect stranger could secure drink, especially so when Mr. Howard knew of the severe penalty. He couldn't understand why a man would take such a chance of having to pay a heavy fine for the sake of selling a ten cent drink. All these offences had been committed on Sunday and it must be understood that it will not be tolerated. A fine of $300.00 and $16.85 costs was imposed.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTION WITHDRAWN

Peace Follows Storm in the House of Commons

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 18— Amicable arrangements of the Home Rule quarrel in the Commons were arrived at this morning, the Government announcing the intention of reaching the desired end by a more roundabout means, and the Unionists having made good for the observance of the precedent, raised no objections. Asquith attributed the decision partly to a repugnance to a repetition of disorderly scenes and partly to desire not to ignore the chair. The Commons then on motion of the Premier negatived the original financial resolution and another will be substituted for it.

EIGHT DEER FOR KETCHECUM CLUB

The Hoodoo Number 13 Was in Evidence

The Ketchecum Lake hunt party returned on Saturday night from two weeks' hunting in the north country near Ketchecum Lake. The party got 8 deer, which is a smaller number than in former years, and is perhaps due to the fact that there were 13 in the party, 13 dogs, and a tree fell over the lodge on November 13.

The first animal fell before the unerring aim of Mr. George Bennett.

FULL COMPLEMENT FOR SHAWANAGANS

Shawanaga Club Had Good Time at the Annual Hunt.

The Shawanaga Hunt Club comprising seventeen members, returned on Saturday night from two weeks' hunting in Shawanaga County, Parry Sound District. The party bagged their full quota of 17 deer.

One buck weighed 210 pounds and two others 190 pounds. The partridge were scarce but the deer hunting was very good considering that 90 hunters in various parties got off the train at the same station. On the first day 8 inches of snow fell and it stormed so that the Shawanagans were obliged to stay indoors.

DEATH CAME AS HE READ

Young Man Was Stricken with Heart Failure

William Armstrong Miller, the 18 year old son of Mr. John Miller, lot 25, con. 7, Otonabee, passed away very suddenly last evening.

The young man had been troubled with heart disease for some time. He was sitting reading at about 7 o'clock, when, without word or warning he fell off the chair dead. His death is a great shock to the family and numerous friends as he was a very popular young man.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Wilbert and James, at home; two sisters, Mrs. William Stark, of Otonabee, and Margaret.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

HYDRO BY-LAW AT NEXT MEETING

Come Before Council at December Session

The by-law that will be presented to the people in January favoring the expenditure of $118,000 for Hydro-Electric will be introduced at the next regular council meeting in December. Mayor Bradburn will have a complete history of the Hydro proposition prepared, immediately after, which will be published and which will trace the power question for Peterborough from its inception up to the present moment. By this means the public will be afforded an opportunity to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the exact nature of the proposition.

LUCKY STOCKINGS.

Strange Wedding Superstitions Which Are Still Prevalent.

Stockings figure in some curious superstitions touching old customs, especially those connected with marriage. Everyone knows that there are actions both lucky and unlucky. Among the former it is commonly held that to put on any article of clothing wrong side out is decidedly a sign of good luck, but it must be done accidentally, and when the mistake is found out no change must be made, else the luck will immediately vanish. This idea is very firmly held about stockings, probably because it is more easy to make such a mistake in putting on a stocking than in donning other garments. It would be hard, indeed, for a woman to put on her dress or a man his coat or vest inside out without noticing what he was doing.

Another superstition touching the use of hose is connected with dreaming. This is a Scotch notion. If a person be about to sleep in a bed that he or she has never slept in before, the certainty of dreaming can be assured by placing the stocking taken off the right foot under the head. Not only will the sleeper be sure to dream, but the dream will certainly come to pass.

Of the superstitions attached to marriage ceremonies, most people have heard of "throwing the stocking." This rite would hardly be regarded now as consistent with modern notions of decorum, but it was highly popular in former days. The ceremony was performed at the conclusion of the wedding day's festivities by young men and girls seated at the bed-foot—the former having the bride's and the latter the bridegroom's stockings—whose object in throwing the hose backward over their heads was to hit, if possible, the head, and especially the nose, of one or other of the newly-married couple. A successful shot meant marriage at an early date for the thrower.

Another old custom which the superstitious sometimes remember when they get married is to wear one old stocking and one new one, following the thought, perhaps, that every bride should wear "something old, something new." To this day many brides adhere to this old habit, or superstition, but they do not confine the apparel to stockings.

Can Control His Muscles.

A man recently exhibited himself in London who it is said gave "an extraordinary demonstration of phenomenal muscle manipulation and stopping the beating of the heart before members of the medical profession in London." By years of hard work, careful study, and immense concentration of mind, the athlete in question can manipulate his muscles to an extent never before deemed possible in medical history," says the report. Many men have by exercises developed enormous muscles, but they have been invisible and remained firm to the touch even when relaxed. But this athlete can relax his muscles to such an extent that "by shaking his arm he can make the triceps quiver like reeds shaken by the wind." More than this, he can stop the beating of his heart for more than 20 seconds and retard or accelerate his pulse at will, thereby defying the laws of nature. There is no authentic case of this feat ever having been accomplished before. It is also claimed that this performer can remain under water from six to eight minutes, and that he can live for a protracted time when buried.

The Blot

And How It Was Wiped Out

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The new house was finished. No detail had been omitted to make it homelike as well as beautiful and comfortable. Still it lacked something. Paul Main paced the terrace, smoking an after luncheon cigar, pondering why he was not happy and contented after all the expense and bother he had endured while building this handsome country home.

Below Fairdale village lay steeped in the brilliant October sunshine. From his house on the hilltop the village looked like a collection of toy houses, quaintly picturesque, without one jarring note of ugly line or crude coloring.

Paul's eyes lingered on the village and then lifted slowly to the one blot on his landscape. Hidden from view of his own estate because of a projecting spur of the mountain, the railroad circled the hill and disappeared, a glimmer of shining tracks, through a cut among the ranges.

The railroad was innocent of offense in Paul's eyes, but on a strip of hilly land bordering the tracks, quite in plain view of Paul's windows, was an immense signboard bearing in six foot letters an advertisement of "Windmuller's Balsam For Coughs and Colds." That abomination of black and yellow paint was the blot on Paul Main's landscape and on his peace of mind.

"If I had known that sign was to be put there I would never have built here. I'll see Coombs about it," he decided, and, whistling up his favorite pointer, he pulled his cap down over his eyes and tramped down the avenue to the main road.

He found Lawyer Coombs in an unresponsive mood regarding the signboard.

"I dare say; I dare say," replied Mr. Coombs after Paul had stated his case, "but as I understand the situation the owner of the property wishes to derive some income from the land. As you are aware, that hill runs sheerly to the tracks below, and it is useless for building purposes."

"But it is a blot on my view," persisted Paul impatiently. "I'm willing to buy the land if necessary to"—

"You couldn't buy the land, my dear sir. It is held in trust and cannot be disposed of until a minor has reached his majority, which will be in exactly eighteen years."

"Perhaps I'll buy the balsam factory," threatened Paul ruefully as he left the lawyer's office.

He went down to the railroad and skirted the tracks, looking up at the offending signboard with speculative eyes. "I'd like to talk to the owner of that property," he pondered thoughtfully.

"Oh, dear!" cried a sweet voice in distress.

Paul turned quickly. On the railroad crossing behind him a woman's form was bent in evident perturbation. Instantly he surmised the cause of the trouble and was beside her in a few swift strides.

"You have caught your heel?" he asked quickly.

"Yes," she panted affrightedly, "and a train is coming too. Oh, dear!"

A shrill whistle echoed from the cut among the hills, sounding a warning to clear the track upon which the woman stood. Paul bent down, untied the ribbon bow and gently lifted the little silk stockinged foot from its prison.

"Run for your life," he commanded briefly, and she obeyed him. He vainly wrenched at the imprisoned little shoe, held by its absurdly high heel between the track and one of the crossing planks, but he could not budge it, so leaped aside in time to allow the train, a long string of freight cars, to pass. The second car tossed the mangled little shoe at his feet, and he placed it in his pocket.

When the last car had passed he crossed over to where the owner of the shoe was waiting to thank him. For the first time he really saw her—as a matter of fact, for the first time he really lived from that moment.

She was small and dainty, with a lovely, flower-like face, which retained its youthful beauty and charm in spite of the softly graying brown hair that fluffed under her black hat. She was gowned in white with touches of black, and Paul surmised that she was a widow from the wedding ring on one little white hand. I am afraid he would have been bitterly disappointed if he had found otherwise.

"How can I thank you?" she cried gratefully as he came toward her.

"By allowing me to assist you home," was Paul's gallant reply. "I am afraid you will have difficulty with only one shoe, but there was nothing to do but leave it there."

"Oh, I live quite near by, and I can take off the other shoe and get home nicely, thank you," she said pleasantly, adding with a little toss of color, "If you had not arrived—think of what would have happened to me!"

"Don't think of it, please," said Paul hastily. "If you feel faint or ill perhaps I can find you a restorative of some sort. I believe there is a drug store down the road, but my own house is quite near." Involuntarily he glanced upward, and her eyes followed his to the beautiful home on the hilltop.

"Never mind getting anything," she said hastily. "I will thank you again and go."

She held out a little white hand, and for an instant it was inclosed in Paul's; then he lifted his hat and left her.

Instead of going directly home he stopped in the drug store, and with his mind still on the blot on his landscape he asked a question of the druggist.

"Who owns that piece of property on the other side of the track?"

"You mean the hill where the billboard stands?"

"Yes."

"Mrs. Covington is the owner. Her husband died a couple of years ago and left all of his property to her in trust for a nephew who is only three years old at the present time. She has recently had the billboard erected there—or at least the balsam people have leased the ground from her for the purpose."

"Thank you," said Paul Main, and he went home.

He wrote a letter that evening to Mrs. Covington and explained to her what a blot that billboard was on his outlook, and as he understood the property was not for sale and that the contract could not be bought he added an appeal to her sense of the beautiful and her consideration for his feelings on observing the hideous sign from every point of view of his estate.

After he had sealed the letter and sent it to the postoffice he felt better and went out to the terrace to smoke, and under the magic of the full moon he fell to dreaming of the lovely little woman he had saved from death that day, and his hand unconsciously strayed to the little slipper in his pocket.

The next evening he received a visit from Mr. Coombs, who looked very much displeased over something and if possible appeared paler and with white hair more upstanding than usual. Paul had him out on the terrace, where they paced to and fro as they talked.

"You've gone and done it now, Main," said the lawyer bitterly.

"Done what?" demanded Paul, mystified.

"I knew you were a rich man, but I never supposed you to be a screw. It never occurred to me that robbing the widow was in your line!"

"A screw? Robbing the widow—what widow? I don't know any widows. I keep away from 'em every time!" he protested.

"You write letters to them," said Coombs testily.

"Letters?" repeated Paul vaguely, and then suddenly a light broke over him. "Do you mean Mrs. Covington?" he asked lamely.

"Yes. Man, do you know that it nearly broke that woman's heart to have that signboard put up there, but she did it to keep body and soul together. Covington died and left her pretty well off, but all the property was in trust, because I suppose he was certain she would marry again some day. A few months ago she lost some securities through a robbery in her house and has been hard pressed for money to live upon. The signboard business is merely a sop to the hungry wolf until she can find some means of earning a living for herself. She talks of taking boarders, because she has a well equipped house here in Fairdale."

"She has been to you?" Paul found voice to ask out of his depth of self condemnation.

"Yes. She has ordered me to break the contract with the balsam people and have the board removed. She does not feel that she ought to impose upon her neighbors in that way."

"What can be done to make things right?" asked Paul sharply.

"I don't know, if anything, now, only you might go around and tell her as delicately as possible that you think a strapping six footer of a man who doesn't have to worry about the butcher or baker can stand it to gaze upon a black and yellow billboard better than a frail woman can give up the income derived from said advertisement. She is a proud woman, too, Main."

"You needn't make me feel like any less than thirty cents," complained Paul.

"You ought to be made to feel—you think too much about yourself, Main."

"You're right," admitted Paul, "and now that you've ripped me to pieces let's have a little friendly talk about what I can do to make myself most useful and inoffensive in Fairdale."

The next day found Paul Main seeking the home of Mrs. Amy Covington in Fairdale village.

The Covington place was a pleasant, old fashioned white house set in the midst of comfortable grounds. Paul's ring at the doorbell brought him face to face with the blue eyed woman he had rescued two days before.

"Mrs. Covington?" she repeated, smiling, though he was sure she had been weeping. "I am Mrs. Covington. Won't you come in?"

Afterward, when he told Mr. Coombs about the interview, he added the story of the pretty shoe he had retained.

"Coombs," he said thoughtfully, "I persuaded Mrs. Covington to leave the billboard there as a reminder to me that I am a selfish sort of beast. Now I shall spend the rest of the year in persuading her that because I saved her life she should intrust that precious life to me for better or worse. If I can win her for my wife the whole landscape can be dotted with billboards advertising Windmuller's balsam and I shall not care!"

"You have it bad, my dear Main," grinned Mr. Coombs, rubbing his hands delightedly. "As I understand it, there will be no blot upon your landscape if you can persuade Amy Covington to marry you."

"As I understand it," amended Paul Main, "the only blot on the landscape then will be where she is not!"

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

The Word "Asphalt."

Of deceitful ancestry is the word "asphalt." Apparently it means "not slippery." The Greeks themselves were tempted to derive "asphaltos" from "a," not, and "sphallo," make to fall or slip. However, the word is really of unknown barbarian origin—Phoenician, some say. Asphalt was in use very early in history. It is said to have been the slime with which the infant Moses' ark of bulrushes was daubed and which the builders of the tower of Babel used instead of mortar.

All players who wish to turn out with the junior O.H.A. team are asked to call and give their names. THE MAT

Roller Broke a Rib in Bout With Le Marin

The wrestling match at Ottawa Friday night between Dr. Roller, of Seattle, and Constant Le Marin, the big Belgian grappler, had a very unfortunate climax. After they had been wrestling just a few minutes in the presence of a very large crowd, Roller tried to throw Le Marin with a body hold, and fell heavily. In doing so he broke a rib in the right side of his chest. Roller was almost knocked unconscious, but he gamely arose and explained that he had been hurt, after Le Marin, with the Seattle man unable to offer any resistance, had secured the first fall. Dr. Alford and other physicians who were present jumped into the ring, and after an examination announced that Roller's rib was really broken. They ordered him to stop, but Roller gave another exhibition of pluck and offered to continue.

The crowd was howling for Roller, and Promoter Kennedy and others thought that he might continue, but Roller finally decided to take the advice of the doctors and did not do so. Then Le Marin threw himself down in the ring and placed his shoulders on the mat, this giving a fall to Roller and making it a draw. The crowd cheered Le Marin, and Referee Burke declared the match a draw.

Some of the spectators clamored for their change back, but it was apparent that Roller had been badly hurt and when he saw that he could not continue, they filed out without a murmur. Roller sustained a terrible fall, and many thought that he had broken his neck when he went down with a crash. Le Marin had a big advantage in weight, and Roller evidently underestimated his avoirdupois when he tried to hurl him with a body hold. Le Marin regretted the accident as much as anyone, however, and his stand was a manly one.

Roller suffered greatly after the match, and was attended by several doctors. He left last night, but will not be able to wrestle again for a month or six weeks, and will be obliged to cancel several of his big bouts. When he recovers he will stack up against Le Marin again. Roller has been in the ring for many years and last night's was not the first of which he has been the victim. Le Marin was almost speechless when he saw how badly Roller had been injured, and the big Belgian was not by any means responsible.

Until the accident occurred the match was very promising. Neither man had shown much of an advantage, and had Roller not been injured the bout would likely have been one of the best of the season. Roller went at him quickly, and it was his desire to finish the bout in double quick time that led to his broken rib.

HOCKEY DOINGS IN LINDSAY

Lindsay Warder.—The placing of teams in the O. H. A. did not meet with the approval of all present as many were of the impression that the material available was not fast enough for junior O.H.A. although a good intermediate team could be placed on the ice. A well known local concern is very anxious to place last year's winners of the Hughes cup in the Trent Valley league so that they will be able to defend the cup this coming season. If they played O. H. A. hockey they could not compete for the Hughes cup as O. H. A. players are barred.

The town league will also be organized, and any person, club or business concern wishing to enter a team are requested to attend. Let every business man and citizen turn out next Friday evening and by their efforts once more place Lindsay on the hockey map where she belongs.

Some of the players available for this season are: Newton, McMahon, Mercer, Sylvester, Paton, Metherell, Connors, Preston, McConnell, Dougan, Gamble, McPhee, Brown, Scott, Callaghan and Carew.

Columbia River Thrice Named.

The Columbia river has had three names. It was first called the Oregon. Afterward it was called the St. Roque, but when it was discovered by Robert Gray in 1792 it was given the name of his vessel, the Columbia, in place of the two floating appellations, Oregon and St. Roque. According to Whitney, the original name of the river was the Orejon, "big ear" or "one that has big ears," the allusion being to the custom of the Indians who were found in its region of stretching their ears by boring them and crowding them with ornaments.

Galt to Seek Incorporation.

Galt, Nov. 18.—At noon Saturday the special assessment commissioner, J. M. Scully, handed out the assessment returns for 1913. Returns are exceptionally gratifying, showing an increase in population 11,126, and the total assessments $7,942,210, an increase over last year of $1,627,220.

It was through the work of commissioner Scully, at the instigation of the Town Council, that the assessment of the whole town was revised, and a big change in the figures made. It means that without doubt the tax rate will be lowered for 1913; also that city incorporation will be sought.

COMMENTS ON THE WEATHER

That Is About All Our "Conversation" Nowadays Consists Of.

Conversation, declares a magazine writer, seems to be going into decadence and it's too bad. We all, whether we have given it much thought or not, must, on reflection, admit that people, generally speaking, do not talk with one another very often, or very long at a time, these days. We do not converse and exchange ideas to any great extent. We continue to meet, to see and greet one another, more or less [illegible]ly as the relation of the degre[illegible]ntimacy may seem to require, and occasionally the greeting extends into a passing comment on the weather, or some equally noncommittal subject; and both parties seem to hasten on to the next person, or duty, or thing that seems to be incessantly bearing them on and on. These same people may at heart feel quite a friendly interest in one another, and perhaps would like to know one another better. If they could, they might possibly be a mutual help and delight in meeting life's problems; but in spite of these kindly altruistic feelings they go on ceaselessly exchanging the briefest conventionalities.

Possibly, among the many causes that have led up to this seeming decadence of conversation, perhaps not the least is the tendency of the times toward noncommittal ideas, the participants in a conversation erecting a mental wall, or battlement, about themselves before entering into the conversational combat, making it so high and so strong that the other participants can by no means discover what lies in the mind so protected, and at the same time keep within the borders of good breeding. In this way conversation has become such an intricate encounter that few try it.

And why should it be so? Certainly there is no good reason for it; but it is true, nevertheless, and mostly so among people best qualified to entertain and enjoy one another. The only answer that seems plausible is that there appears to exist a "fools rush in where angels fear to tread" sort of feeling, together with a nervous dread of the mental criticism on the part of the other participant, lest the thing said may not have been the most eminently proper thing in the circumstances.

This is all wrong, and makes one ask, "Are we growing too critical for our own good, and especially for our own happiness?" No doubt the strenuous life now so generally lived is largely responsible for this condition; yet because we are so strenuous most of the time is the best reason why this precaution which amounts to strenuosity should be more completely thrown off whenever and wherever we can, and life be made more simple and sincere. Then, and only then, may we hope that people will again resume conversation.

Feburary Legends.

Why February has twenty-eight days is explained in the legends of the past. One is of an old woman who, tending her flock, ridiculed the month of February because he had dealt so leniently with her and her sheep. Then February felt insulted and made leap year and borrowed a cold day from March and froze her and her flock. There is a Norman legend which makes it out that February had originally as many days as the other months, but February was a confirmed gambler and lost at dominos a day both to January and to March. Strange to say, there is an old story of Egypt wherein the god of February plays forfeits with the moon and loses certain days.

Pantheon and Parthenon.

The Parthenon, or what is left of it, stands upon the Acropolis of Athens. The most famous building on earth was erected under the administration of Pericles about B.C. 442. Its present ruinous condition was caused by the explosion of a bomb during the war between the Venetians and Turks in 1687. The Pantheon at Rome was built by Agrippa in B.C. 27 and, unlike the more beautiful temple at Athens, is still in a fair state of preservation. The Pantheon is, of course, well worth seeing both for its own sake and on account of its historic interest, but it does not hold the fame belonging to the incomparable building on the Acropolis.

Antarctic Titbits.

People with delicate appetites would not care to depend on the fare which is provided by antarctic animals. Dr. Lionville, a French traveler, states that the birds of the polar regions taste like duck which has been thoroughly steeped in cod liver oil. The seal gives the idea of boiled beef. It is insipid, with a marked flavor of fish. The various species of whales are of diverse value. Europeans find it impossible to swallow the jubarte, though the Japanese eat it willingly. The rorqual is very good for twenty-four hours. Its meat is pale and oily, recalling veal. The fin whale is exquisite, like veal of the first quality.

The Donjon.

The donjon, or keep, of the castle was a tower within, much stronger than the rest of the structure and designed as a last resort for the garrison when the walls and other portions of the fortification had fallen into the hands of the enemy. The donjon was generally provided with a secret exit, a tunnel being constructed, often many hundreds of yards in length, leading to some concealed outlet through which the besieged could receive succor or, in time of necessity, escape.

LAST SLAVE MARKET

HUMAN CHATTELS ARE STILL SOLD AT MARAKESH.

Traffic Which Will Be Stopped by the French In Morocco Is One of the Last Relics of Barbarism Which the Powers Have Not Succeeded In Suppressing—Auction Is Opened With Prayer.

S. L. Bensusan writing to The London Daily Mirror, regarding the slave trade in Morocco, says:

As soon as the tricolor is hoisted permanently over Marakesh, the southern capital of the Moorish Empire, the French will put an end to the operations of the slave market, which is to-day the largest in Africa.

It has been fed for centuries by the caravan traffic that came from Timbuctoo and the banks of the Niger across the Sahara desert. These caravans used to leave Marakesh and go for a considerable journey through the Sahara to a place where there are great salt deposits. There the camels used to be loaded with salt, and the journey would be resumed across the desert to Timbuctoo and the lesser towns along the Niger, where there is an enormous demand for salt. It was paid for in gold dust, ostrich feathers, and slaves, and these unfortunate human beings, many of them of tender years, were carried back on camels across the Sahara under conditions that frequently resulted in the death of 30 or 40 per cent.

Since the French occupied Timbuctoo the value of the slave traffic has dwindled very considerably, but to this day a few caravans manage to struggle through. In the great southern capital there are many Kaids who own a great number of slaves and sell those they do not want; and I heard when I was in Marakesh some years ago that one or two men ran institutions on the lines of stud farms and used to rear child slaves for the market.

The business is in the hands of a group of auctioneers called dilals. They receive the slaves either from their owners or from the masters of the caravans, in which case they are given two or three days' rest and some special feeding, and before the sales they are dressed in bright and attractive garments, generally of calico, which are only worn during the sale, and must be returned to the auctioneers by the purchasers.

When I was in Marakesh about ten or twelve of these men were engaged in the sale of slaves, and each had his own enclosure in which the slaves he proposed to sell were herded. The markets are held two or three times a week.

Before the sale the auctioneers ranged themselves in line, and on behalf of all of them the senior auctioneer offered up a prayer aloud. He called upon the patron saint of the city to bless those who bought and those who sold the slaves, and his utterances, which did not err on the side of brevity, were met with a frequent response, not only from his brother auctioneers but from the assembled buyers. As soon as the prayer was over each auctioneer hurried to his pen, sorted out his slaves, and led them slowly round the market while the intending buyers scanned the slaves as they passed and listened to the extravagant praise each auctioneer gave to the members of his company.

The slaves, without exception black, were of all ages and physique, from old men and women who could command only a few dollars, down to little children, who were sometimes offered with their mothers, but could be separated if necessary. This separation led from time to time to scenes too painful for description here.

When a purchaser had selected the slave likely to suit his requirements there would be some examination, consisting generally of feeling the muscles and examining the teeth, for the Moors attach great importance to the condition of a slave's teeth, and one whose mouth is in a bad plight can find no purchaser save at a very low figure.

The middle aged and the young would probably be purchased for work in the fields, while the young girls were bought for the harem, and the boys were often bought to be companions to the sons of the buyer, it being the custom in Morocco to give a lad a slave-companion of about his own age who grows up with him and becomes his confidential servant, often reaching a position of importance in the household.

When a buyer had selected his slave he would make an offer for him, and the dilal would then resume his tramp round the market-place, leading the slave or slaves selected and naming the price that had been offered. If after two or three promenades nobody bettered this price the sale would be concluded.

The behavior of the slaves varied very considerably. The old people for the most part were not going into slavery for the first time, and were consequently indifferent. Some of the younger ones were obviously keenly interested, doubtless wondering whether fate would send them a good or a bad master. The children were clearly frightened, some of them clinging passionately to their mothers and needing force before they could be separated, while a few who were suspected of having an untractable disposition were led through the market with their arms tied behind their backs. Sometimes two unruly slaves are tied together.

The strong men and the attractive women and girls are always sold first, and the prices in some cases rise to hundreds of dollars, though I never saw more than the equivalent of £60 in English money paid for anybody, and this was exceptional.

COUPLE ARE ADVISED TO MARRY BY THE MAGISTRATE

Wm. Payne Was Charged With Assault — Complainant Says She Was Not Legally Wedded.

Charge Against Bartender is Dismissed—Minor Pays $2.00.

Police court was held this morning amid the most luxurious surroundings which feature the renovated court room. The first prisoner to occupy the new dock was Edward Donahue, who confessed to being drunk in a public place. It is eighteen months since Donahue last went out for a time, and he endeavored to remind Magistrate Dumble of the fact, as a reason why he should be extended leniency. His Worship acquiesced to Chief Thompson's request that the penitent one be given a remand until Thursday and thereby allow him time to clear the whiskey from his system.

FAMILY PRESCRIPTION

"Keep your mouth closed and your hands to yourself," was the specific remedy for a family dispute, prescribed by the Magistrate for William Payne, whose "wife" charged him with assault. Payne said he was "not guilty."

A rather peculiar condition exists in the Payne household. The complainant said she was not legally wedded to Payne, having one husband from whom she had not heard for nine years. Payne and she have been residing together however, for eight years.

"Why didn't he marry you?" queried the Magistrate.

"Because I didn't ask him," she retorted.

The woman said that Payne had hit her with his fist on the side of the head.

"We've been fighting all the time we've lived in Canada," she added. The root of their domestic infeli[illegible] centres around one of her own [illegible] whom Payne turned out of [illegible] because he refused to [illegible]

HONORABLY DISCHARGED.

The charge against George McKenzie, a bar-tender at the Montgomery Hotel, Simcoe street, of selling liquor to a minor, was dismissed. McKenzie's counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, submitted that in view of the conflicting evidence of the two boys, who secured the liquor and their inability to clearly recall who it was served them, that there was absolutely no case presented justifying the conviction of McKenzie. Magistrate Dumble granted Mr. Gordon's request and McKenzie was honorably discharged.

Harry O'Hara, the minor who secured the liquor, was given ten days to raise a $2 fine.

NAMED AFTER SIR JOHN

While the new Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel in Edmonton has been christened after Sir John A. Macdonald, the great Canadian statesman, it is also said to be a fact that the original settler in the Albertan capital, was also named John Macdonald, who came from Garth at the close of the eighteenth century, and established what is to-day a thriving city of 35,000 before the Hudson's Bay Company erected its fort and trading station on the banks of the Saskatchewan River. It is said that he crossed the plains with an ox team in the summer of 1789 and located on a farm over-looking the river within a stone's throw of what is now the principal business thoroughfare.

MAY CHANGE THE METHODS

American Laborites May Adopt Industrial Unionism

Rochester, Nov. 19.—The question whether the American Federation of Labor is to adopt industrial unionism in place of its present policy of recognizing, except in certain instances, the autonomy of trade or craft organizations will be discussed to-day. Near the close of yesterday afternoon's meeting the committee on education reported on a resolution for the adoption of industrial unionism. A majority of the committee voted for its rejection and a minority report favored industrial unionism where practicable, and where not practicable a close federation of trade unions for unified action.

The resolution was introduced by John Mitchell, Duncan McDonald, John P. White, Frank J. Hayes, Wm. Green and J. H. Walker of the United Mine Workers of America, and is as follows:

"Whereas, the lines are being more closely drawn between capital and labor, and,

"Whereas, the capitalists of the country have organized the National Manufacturers' Association and other large employers' organizations, compact, cohesive bodies, having for their purpose the destruction of the trades' union movement, and realizing that in unity there is strength, therefore, be it

'Resolved, that in order to combat these compact and powerful organizations of employers of labor, this convention adopts and endorses the plan of organisation by industries instead of by crafts, which often divides the forces of labor and that the officers of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to use every effort to bring this about and that they visit the different labor conventions and use their influence to mould sentiment along these lines."

The majority of the committee desired to substitute for the resolution the autonomy declaration of the Scranton convention in 1901, which favored the retention of the policy of recognizing and maintaining craft or trade autonomy insofar as it was compatible with modern organization of industry. By special order of the convention, discussion of the resolution was set for to-day, directly following the discussion of the influence of the Sherman anti-trust law on the labor movement.

CANADA HAS AN EYE ON UNITED STATES PARCEL POST LAW

MR. E. A. BRECKENRIDGE.
Manager Gourlay, Winter & Leeming's, Toronto, who will speak in Knox church on Sunday, Nov. 24.

It's Operations Will be Investigated by Postmaster General Pelletier.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—That the Government will follow with keenest interest the operation of the new parcels' post law in the United States with a view to the prompt expansion and wide extension of the system in Canada was stated yesterday by Postmaster-General Pelletier.

The "Bourne bill," which passed the U. S. Congress at the last session, brings into effect on Jan. 1 a comprehensive parcels post system. The charges are regulated by distance, the country for this purpose being divided into eight zones or districts, the weight limit is increased from four pounds to 11 pounds, and special provisions are made for the transportation and insurance of live fowl, fresh eggs and other farm products.

The rates rise from 5 cents a pound with one cent for each additional pound in cities and suburbs to a maximum rate of 12 cents a pound for all distances exceeding 1,800 miles, including the Philippine Islands. The zones are so regulated as to make the carriage by post considerable cheaper than the rates now charged by the express companies and make possible direct shipment by farmers, dairymen, and market gardeners to their customers in nearby towns and cities.

Mr. Pelletier stated yesterday that the Department would follow with the closest attention the progress of this first great experiment by the United States with parcel post, as the conditions in the United States were more analogous to Canadian conditions than those which obtained in the Mother Country. The Bourne bill has been sharply criticized in the United States, and the Dominion Government is naturally anxious to observe its practical workings before framing the details of its own policy of parcel post extension.

In this connection it may be stated that the Department may detail an official to visit various points in the United States for the purpose of observing the administration of the new parcels post regulations after Jan. 1.

"That will be a matter for the deputy Postmaster-General," Mr. Pelletier observed. "We want to learn the facts thoroughly, and if sending officers to the United States for an inspection tour will aid us, that will certainly be done. If the new law proves to be a success in the United States, we will not be slow to profit by the example. At this very moment Dr. Coulter has under consideration the anomaly by which our domestic rates for parcel post are higher in Canada than are the rates for like service between Canada and the United Kingdom.

Dr. R. M. Coulter, deputy Postmaster-General, asked about the foregoing, agreed with the Postmaster-General that the conditions in the United States were to such an extent analogous with conditions in Canada, that the Department would be keenly interested in the working out of the new U. S. parcels post regulations. It might take some months, perhaps a year, to demonstrate whether or not the plant provided by the Bourne bill was a success.

BOUND WOMAN TO COW'S HORNS

He is alleged to have bound a woman to the horns of a cow and then driving the beast through the bush, dragging the unfortunate woman, who was very badly hurt.

DETECTIVES SHOT IN BATTLE WITH NOTORIOUS CROOK

One Is Dead and Another May Die—Crook Killed Woman Companion and Suicided

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 19.—John Allen a detective, died this morning as the result of a battle with Henry Vogel, an international crook at a hotel in the Bronx, last night.

Lugi Gerardi, a private detective, and a waiter wounded in the same battle, will likely recover, but no hope is held out for the recovery of Martin B. Fay, a detective, and Louis Mordschtin, proprietor of the hotel, both of whom were shot through the abdomen.

After emptying the eleven chambers of a large automatic revolver, reinforced by shots from an ordinary revolver in the hands of Lottie Vogel, his woman companion, the man shot and killed the woman and then put a bullet through his own head, dying instantly.

Vogel and the woman were suspected of stealing diamonds, and the pair opened fire when the detectives sought to enter their room.

LAST CRUSHING BLOW IS ADMINISTERED TO TURKEY

Fifty Thousand Ottoman Soldiers Fall Into the Hands of the Victorious Servians at the Close of the Most Signal Victory of the War.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 19.—Reviewing the campaign the Sofia correspondent to the Times estimates that 50,000 men have succumbed to wounds and disease. That is about one in forty of whole male population.

Sofia, Nov. 19.—Balkan allies have determined to discuss terms of armistice and eventual peace with Turkey.

London, Nov. 19.—Any idea that the Turkish Government may have had of benefiting by continued resistance must be shattered by yesterday's news of the fall of Monastir. In the capture of that important town the Servians took three pashas, including the commander-in-chief, Zekki Pasha, 50,000 men and 47 guns, thus achieving the greatest individual success of the war.

Monastir was the second city of importance in European Turkey. It was Turkey's stronghold in Macedonia, and by its downfall Macedonia passes completely out of Turkish hands.

What part the Greeks played in the capture has not yet been ascertained. It is known that the Greek army was marching to the assistance of the Servians, and it is supposed that the Greeks were able to cut off the Turkish retreat to the south.

The Servians naturally will be elated at this victory, which outshines the capture of Saloniki and must have a great moral effect on the future course of the war.

Another of the strange silences which have been characteristic of this war appears to have fallen over Constantinople, from which city only brief despatches have been received telling of the resumption of the Tchatalja battle, and that the Sultan has made a fresh personal appeal to the European sovereigns to intervene for the termination of the war. Quite as little may be expected to come of this appeal as of the previous attempt at mediation of the powers.

With the cholera and typhus ravaging her demoralized army and a powerful enemy hammering at the gates of the capital, Turkey must again appeal to the allies for terms. Undoubtedly the object of the commanders in ordering the attack on the Tchatalja lines was to compel this course. It seems incredible that Bulgaria for the mere glory of a triumphal entry into a city she does not desire possession of should wish to take her army into a disease infected zone.

The Turkish reports, even the officers' official despatches of the result of the operations, have been so unreliable throughout that little attention can be paid to the reports of the Tchatalja battle, issued at Constantinople on Sunday and Monday. The operation probably was little more than an artillery preparation which in all important battles lasts several days, for the purpose of drawing the enemy's fire and locating the enemy's batteries.

As the effect of the victory at Monastir will be to stiffen the Servian Government in resistance of Austrian pretentions, the consular troubles at Prisrend and Mitrovitza are breeding a dangerous spirit of ill-feeling between Austria and Servia, which is litte calculated to favor diplomatic negotiations. The newspapers of both capitals reflect this feeling.

No news has yet reached Vienna at the Austrian consul Prochaska at Prisrend. The Servian Government has declined to comply with Austria's request to allow an Austrian representative to go to Pristend to make enquiries, and practically ignores Austria's protests on the subject. Except for an unconfirmed report of the fall of Scutari, no military news of importance has been received.

Proof that the cholera has affected the Bulgarian army comes in a report that the noted German doctor, Roth, has been summoned to the Bulgarian headquarters to assist in stamping out the disease.

Belgrade, Nov. 19.—The fighting which preceded the surrender of Monastir lasted two days. On Saturday a Servian division was ordered to storm a position west of the town held by 20,000 Turks with 17 guns.

According to unofficial accounts the Turks suffered the loss of 200 killed and wounded, including several superior officers.

In the meantime the Servan right wing swung around and seized the Dolintze-Giawar road, cutting into the Turkish line of communication. The Turks thus surrounded fought desperately, and it is supposed that the arrival of the Greek army from the south rendered surrender inevitable.

Guarding U. S. Embassy.

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—A detachment of 100 British bluejackets has been lent by the British cruiser Weymouth to guard the United States embassy, as the American stationship Scorpion has been allotted to duty on the Upper Bosphorus and the American cruisers are not expected to arrive here before the end of the month.

REAL PLOT WAS FAILURE

Pardinas Was to Have Thrown a Bomb

Canadian Press Despatch.

Madrid, Nov. 19.—Police investigation in the assassination of Premier Canalejas disclosed the fact that a plot was arranged in Havana at a meeting of international Anarchists. Pardinas drew the lot to execute the design but apparently was unwilling. He was to have hurled a bomb at the Ministerial bench during a sitting of Cortes. It is believed that Pardinas in desperation killed the Premier to avoid having his own life taken by Anarchists who dogged his footsteps.

O. A. C. Judging Team Chosen.

Guelph, Nov. 19.—The team to represent the O. A. College in the judging competition at the Chicago International Stock Show, have been finally selected. Messrs. Harding, King, Nixon, Shafter and Tisdale have obtained the coveted honors. Prof. C. E. Day left Sunday night with the team for a short trip through New York State for final practice, particularly on some breeds of fat hogs, which are very little known this side of the line. They will return to Ontario and judge stock at various points before leaving for Chicago.

Clancy Fainted Away.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 19.—How Eugene A. Clancy, a labor union official of San Francisco, fainted and remained unconscious when after making admissions in the district attorney's office in Los Angeles, he looked through the crack of a door and saw standing in another room Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was related at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

Oscar Lawler, special assistant to the attorney-general, and Arthur L. Veitch, who gathered evidence in the dynamiting cases in California, said Clancy collapsed in December, 1911, after admitting in their presence that he knew J. B. McNamara was on the coast to blow up non-union jobs.

Lawler and Veitch also named Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Anton Johannsen, San Francisco; W. H. Pohlman, Seattle, and J. E. Munsey, Salt Lake City, as being aware of McNamara's dynamiting mission. Pohlman and Johannsen are not among the 45 defendants here, but when the defence objected to quoting what Johannsen might have said, the court ruled the evidence was competent, "because it had been shown that Johannsen was a co-conspirator."

MAN AND WIFE NEARLY KILLED

Had Narrow Escape From Asphyxiation

Woodstock, Nov. 19—H. G. Benfield, a prominent cattle dealer of Oxford County, and his wife, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation by gas early yesterday morning, and it required several hours for doctors to bring them around.

At an early hour Mr. Benfield awoke in a semi-conscious condition and discovered that the room was full of gas. He endeavored to rouse his wife, but she had lapsed into unconsciousness.

Mr. Benfield then attempted to get out of the room, but he fell to the floor, striking his head and inflicting a serious gash. He continued in his efforts to leave the room, but fell again in the hallway. The noise awakened other members of the household, who found Mr. Benfield lying prostrate in the hall and Mrs. Benfield unconscious on the bed.

Both were quite ill as a result of their experience.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE.

COPYRIGHT 1911 By H. K. FLY CO.

With this assistance, Mallory was enabled to make himself fairly presentable. When he returned to his seat, the three curtained rooms had been whisked away by the porter. There was no place now to hide from the passengers.

He sat down facing the feminine end of the car, watching for Marjorie. The passengers were watching for her, too, hoping to learn what unheard-of incident could have provoked the quarrel that separated a bride and groom at this time, of all times.

To the general bewilderment, when Marjorie appeared, Mallory and she rushed together and clasped hands with an ardor that suggested a desire for even more ardent greeting. The passengers almost sprained their ears to hear how they would make up such a dreadful feud. But all they heard was: "We'll have to hurry, Marjorie, if we want to get any breakfast."

"All right, honey. Come along."

Then the inscrutable couple scurried up the aisle, and disappeared in the corridor, leaving behind them a mighty riddle. They kissed in the corridor of that car, kissed in the vestibule, kissed in the two corridors of the next car, and were caught kissing in the next vestibule by the new conductor.

The dining car conductor, who flattered himself that he knew a bride and groom when he saw them, escorted them grandly to a table for two; and the waiter fluttered about them with extraordinary consideration.

They had a plenty to talk of in prospect and retrospect. They both felt sure that a minister lurked among the cars somewhere, and they ate with a zest to prepare for the ceremony, arguing the best place for it, and quarreling amorously over details. Mallory was for one of the vestibules as the scene of their union, but Marjorie was for the baggage car, till she realized that Snoozleums might be unwilling to attend. Then she swung round to the vestibule, but Mallory shifted to the observation platform.

Marjorie had left Snoozleums with Mrs. Temple, who promised to hide him when the new conductor passed through the car, and she reminded Harry to get the waiter to bring them a package of bones for their only "child," so far.

On the way back from the dining car they kissed each other good-bye again at all the trysting places they had sanctified before. The sun was radiant, the world good, and the very train ran with jubilant rejoicing. They could not doubt that a few more hours would see them legally man and wife.

Mallory restored Marjorie to her place in their car, and with smiles of assurance, left her for another parson-hunt through the train. She waited for him in a bridal agitation. He ransacked the train forward in vain, and returned, passing Marjorie with a shake of the head, and a sour countenance. He went out to the observation platform where he stumbled on Ira Lathrop and Anne Gattle, engaged in a conversation of evident intimacy, for they jumped when he opened the door, as if they were guilty of some plot.

Mallory mumbled his usual, "Excuse me," whirled on his heel, and dragged his discouraged steps back through the Observation Room, where various women and a few men of evident unclericality were draped across arm chairs and absorbed in lazy conversation or bobbing their heads over magazines that trembled with the motion of the train.

Mrs. Wellington was busily writing at the desk, but he did not know who she was, and he did not care whom she was writing to. He did not observe the baleful glare of Mrs. Whitcomb, who sat watching Mrs. Wellington, knowing all too well who she was, and suspecting the correspondent—Mrs. Whitcomb was tempted to spell the word with one "r."

Mallory stumbled into the man's portion of the composite car. Here he nodded with a sickly cheer to the sole occupant, Dr. Temple, who was looking less ministerial than ever in an embroidered skull cap. The old rascal was sitting far back on his lumbar vertebrae. One of his hands clasped a long glass filled with a liquid of a hue that resembled something stronger than what it was—mere ginger ale. The other hand toyed with a long black cigar. The smoke curled round the old man's head like the fumes of a sultan's narghile, and through the wisps his face was one of Oriental luxury.

Mallory's eyes were caught from this picture of beatitude by the entrance, at the other door, of a man who had evidently swung aboard at the most recent stop—for Mallory had not seen him. His gray hair was crowned with a soft black hat, and his spare frame was swathed in a frock coat that had seen better days. His soft gray eyes seemed to search timidly the smoke-clouded atmosphere, and he had a bashful air which Mallory translated as one of diffidence in a place where liquors and cigars were dispensed.

With equal diffidence Mallory advanced and in a low tone accosted the newcomer cautiously:

"Excuse me—you look like a clergyman."

"The hell you say!"

Mallory pursued the question no further.

CHAPTER XVIII.

In the Composite Car.

It was the gentle stranger's turn to miss his guess. He bent over the chair into which Mallory had flopped, and said in a tense, low tone: "You look like a thoroughbred sport. I'm trying to make up a game of stud poker. Will you join me?"

Mallory shook his heavy head in refusal, and with dull eyes watched the man, whose profession he no longer misunderstood, saunter up to the blissful Doctor from Ypsilanti, and murmur again:

"Will you join me?"

"Join you in what, sir?" said Dr. Temple, with alert courtesy.

"A little game."

"I don't mind," the doctor smiled, rising with amiable readiness. "The checkers are in the next room."

"Quit your kiddin'," the stranger coughed. "How about a little freeze-out?"

"Freeze-out?" said Dr. Temple. "It sounds interesting. Is it something like authors?"

The newcomer shot a quick glance at this man, whose innocent air he suspected. But he merely drawled: "Well, you play it with cards."

"Would you mind teaching me the rules?" said the old sport from Ypsilanti.

The gambler was growing suspicious of this too, too childlike innocence. He whined: "Say, what's your little game, eh?" but decided to risk the venture. He sat down at a table, and Dr. Temple, bringing along his glass, drew up a chair. The gambler took a pack of cards from his pocket, and shuffled them with a snap that startled Dr. Temple and a dexterity that delighted him.

"Go on, it's beautiful to see," he explained. The gambler set the pack down with the one word "Cut!" but since the old man made no effort to comply, the gambler did not insist. He took up the pack again and ran off five cards to each place with a grace that staggered the doctor.

Mallory was about to intervene for the protection of the guileless physician when the conductor chanced to saunter in.

The gambler, seeing him, snatched Dr. Temple's cards from his hand and slipped the pack into his pocket.

"What's the matter now?" Dr. Temple asked, but the newcomer huskily answered: "Wait a minute. Wait a minute."

The conductor took in the scene at a glance and, stalking up to the table, spoke with the grimness of a sea-captain: "Say, I've got my eye on you. Don't start nothin'."

The stranger stared at him wonderingly and demanded: "Why, what you drivin' at?"

"You know all right," the conductor growled, and then turned on the befuddled old clergyman, "and you, too."

"Me, too?" the preacher gasped.

"Yes, you too," the conductor repeated, shaking an accusing forefinger under his nose. "Your actions have been suspicious from the beginning. We've all been watching you."

Dr. Temple was so agitated that he nearly let fall his secret. "Why, do you realize that I'm a—"

"Ah, don't start that," sneered the conductor, "I can spot a gambler as far as I can see one. You and your side partner here want to look out, that's all, or I'll drop you at the next tank." Then he walked out, his very shoulder blades uttering threats.

Dr. Temple stared after him, but the gambler stared at Dr. Temple with a homage. "So you're one of us," he said, and seizing the old man's limp hand, shook it heartily: "I got to slip it to you. Your make-up is great. You nearly had me for a come-on. Great!"

And then he sauntered out, leaving the clergyman's head swimming. Dr. Temple turned to Mallory for explanations, but Mallory only waved him away. He was not quite convinced himself. He was convinced only that whatever else anybody might be, nobody apparently desired to be a clergyman in these degenerate days.

It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

WINDOW DRESSING.

Effective Casement Curtains to Be Had at Small Cost.

One of the neatest and prettiest ways of dressing the window of a room in which it is not desirable to have flowing draperies, is to use the casement scheme of decorations. For this purpose there comes a specially sheer and fine cotton material called casement cloth through which the light shines, although the interior of the room is shielded from outside eyes, but a similar charming effect may be produced by cotton voile, by Chinese or wash silk, none of which materials are costly. The arrangement of the drapery is simple. It is shirred scantily at both its ends upon fine sliding rods of brass, which fit into groves at top and bottom of the casement, if it be a full length French window, and against the sliding casements if the window is of the American type. Another advantage of this scheme of window dressing is the ease with which the draperies may be laundered, for, being straight, guiltless of ruffles and always unstarched, the merest tyro may wash, iron and readjust them.

Hint For Home Sewers.

The home dressmaker who would like to take advantage of the present fashion for contrasts in dress materials will do well to study the smart gown pictured in today's cut. The skirt is machine plaited at the bottom and is of a different fabric from that used for bodice and upper skirt. In this instance the plaited portion is of charmeuse and the drapery and waist of cloth.

FROCK WITH PLAITED SKIRT.

Particularly good looking is the modified Robespierre collar, which may be changed at will of the woman who wears the costume.

Her Idea of Business.

"Fanny," said the head librarian to a small girl who acted as page on her staff, "if you are really going to resign you must write me a businesslike resignation that I can send in to the trustees." So Fanny, the page, sat down and wrote this businesslike resignation, which has since been filed with the library trustees:

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Head Librarian:

Dear Miss—This notification is to notify all trustees and those it may concern, excluding you, that I'm going to resign because of getting a better job. Yours with love, FANNY.

FRENCH IN MOSCOW AGAIN

To Rebuild Ancient Capital on the Anniversary of Its Destruction.

It is significant of the commercial spirit of the age that at the very time when Russians are preparing to celebrate the centennial of Napoleon's defeat at Moscow, the French are preparing to rebuild the city which was the great religious capital of the Muscovites prior to 1812. The change that has been wrought in the spirit of the world from the day when the great French general sought to conquer the Russians shows that instead of worshiping military genius these days, the world pays homage to the financial and industrial genius. It is down with the captain of the armed hosts and up with the captain of industry.

For the French do not propose to rebuild Moscow as a charitable act or as a memorial to their great general and emperor, not a bit of it. They are seeking investments for their capital. It is merely a coincidence that the same year that sees Russia celebrating the centenary of Napoleon's downfall—for the defeat at Moscow was the beginning of his undoing—sees also French capitalists projecting the rejuvenation of the ancient city, the city where eastern and western Russia meet, the city of almost Oriental splendor. In a way it is the final triumph of the French, for their great commander failed, their capitalists are succeeding; it is merely a difference of aim. He desired to conquer and devastate; they desire to build up and conquer. He was unwelcome; they are welcome.

The coincidence about Moscow calls attention to the fact that of late years French capital has been seeking investment in Russia to the exclusion of the United States. Where formerly American securities drew forth French savings in abundance, now the frugal Gauls hold their funds to buy Russian bonds, one of the recent issues of which was oversubscribed more than ten times.

The project to rebuild the western section of Moscow in such a manner as to make it one of the most beautiful cities in the world was undertaken by a group of French capitalists, who have purchased immense tracts of the city property and are ready to improve them as soon as the Czar signs the necessary papers. The stock for this enterprise will be subscribed by the French public and thus the descendants of those who followed the general who was responsible for the destruction of the old city in 1812 will furnish the cash for the rebuilding of the city in 1912.

In many branches of industry the Russians have shown a progressiveness that would surprise those who have the notion that the great bear of the north is a sluggish animal. On occasion even a bear can give a man a chase. For example in their dairying, the Russians have adopted methods most advanced and scientific, entering into competition with dairy interests of England and western Europe most successfully. Every week from four to six special, white-painted trains leave Siberia loaded with butter which will be sold in London cheaper than English butter. Every train consists of from 20 to 25 refrigerator cars. The greatest feature of this dairy renaissance is not the extensive production of butter, nor even the modern scientific machinery and methods that have been adopted, but the selling organization that has been formed by the makers. These marketing corporations formed by the producers constitute the latest development in the art of distributing cheaply and adequately country products to consumers with the minimum delay and the minimum cost for middlemen and other selling expenses.

So, while the Russians are hunting up all the vivid Verestchagin pictures of the Napoleonic campaign in their country, the French are preparing for a new invasion, this time one with their francs not their guns and one which will not arouse the opposition of the natives.

Deadly Marshes of Siberia.

The largest extent of marsh land in the world is to be found in the lowlands which form part of the steppe of Baraba, between the rivers Intish and Obi, in Asiatic Russia. The region is flat and covered with forests, salt lakes and quivering marshes, extending over an area which is not less than 100,000 square miles. During the summer dense clouds of mosquitoes float over the treacherous ground. Immense areas of these dreaded urmans have never been visited by man. The marshes, treacherously concealed under a swaying layer of grassy vegetation, can only be crossed by means of a kind of snowshoe in winter except at the peril of one's life.

Orange Blossoms.

Much uncertainty exists as to why the orange blossom has been so much worn by brides, but the general opinion seems to be that it was adopted as an emblem of fruitfulness. According to some authorities, the practice has been derived from the Saracens among whom the orange blossom was regarded as a symbol of a prosperous marriage, a circumstance which is partly to be accounted for by the fact that in the east the orange tree bears ripe fruit and blossoms at the same time.

Nothing worries a nagging wife so much as a husband who won't get mad.

NOBLEMAN'S SON MARRIES SQUAW

Settles in Northern Alberta With Cree Wife

Trapping and hunting big game and fishing along the upper branches of the Peace river district, Alberta, in the mysterious, silent, expectant north country, accompanied by his young wife, a full-blood Indian acknowledged to be the most beautiful woman in the Cree tribe, and their child, is a man who will eventually be a peer of the British nobility. He is known as Travers and is educated and accomplished.

Travers was one of those unfortunates known in the old country among the higher class as "a younger son."

When sixteen years of age, his family shipped him off to South Africa, where he served five years in the Mounted Rifles. Returning to England at the end of this time the life of his set palled upon him. The years spent in the wild, free life of the veldt had awakened the wanderlust in his heart and after a week at home, Travers was once more ocean bound, this time for Canada.

BELLE OF THE TRIBE

Arriving in Edmonton he joined the Royal North West Mounted Police and was shortly assigned to a post in the north country. Travers proved himself a splendid officer, so invaluable that his superiors for a long time overlooked his failing. But finally he was sent farther north, where there is no liquor nor white women.

There he came almost daily in contact with Indians and breeds; in fact, they were his only companions, and being a man with red blood in his veins, he fell to the charms of an Indian girl, who, according to white traders in the country, is the most beautiful woman in the remote region.

Within the last year the clergy began to go into the upper country more frequently than before and one of the newer kind, who failed to understand the ways of the north raised his voice against Travers and his common-law wife. Travers and the native woman were married shortly afterward with all the benefit of the clergy.

Soon after this event, Travers, the mounted policeman, came to head quarters with a prisoner, and after delivering his charge, was himself placed under arrest and lodged in the guard house, without his spurs. The disgrace of being "cashiered," from the service faced Travers and would have been carried out only for one thing.

ARRESTED FOR MARRIAGE

Several months previously, Travers had applied to buy himself out of the service, and when he faced the superior officer, he protested against the proceedings. Guessing shrewdly Travers figured that his application by that time must be nearly first upon the list, and he stated that fact to the commanding officer. The records were searched, and Travers was found to be right. He was allowed to leave.

Travers returned to his home in the north, and took up the life of a trapper, but a great change had come over the country. Many of the chechakkos (tenderfeet) had come in and these white people, unlike the old timers, closed their doors against the young man and his wife. In a land where he had once been popular he now found himself looked upon with disfavor by the newcomers. For months he braved the coldness of these settlers, then packed his wordly belongings and with his wife and child traveled farther into the north country, where creed and color do not matter.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 16 were 2500 cattle, 2000 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 550 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1650 cattle, 980 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 350 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle today. The offerings were somewhat larger than expected, and in consequence buyers held off to some extent during the early part of the day, with the expectation of buying cheaper than a week ago; consequently trade was rather slow. Drovers and dealers were firm in their views, and held out, which resulted in bringing buyers up to the market, and a good demand, with fairly good trade, followed. Choice steers were in demand, at from $6.25 to $6.75 per 100 pounds. The demand for canning stock continues good, cows selling at $2 to $3.60, and bulls at $2.75 to $3.15 per 100 pounds.

Owing to smaller receipts of sheep and lambs, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market, and prices were 25c per 100 pounds higher than a week ago. Demand was good, and Ontario lambs sold at $6.50, and Quebec at $6 to $6.25, while ewe sheep brought $4 to $4.25 per 100 pounds.

The trade in calves was fairly active, at 2½c to 3c for grass-fed stock, and at 5c to 7c per pound for milk-fed.

In spite of the recent weakness and the lower prices ruling in the Toronto market for hogs, a stronger feeling developed in the local market today, and prices advanced 25c to 40c per 100 pounds, as compared with last week. Selected lots sold at $8.75, and some lots coming from north of Toronto sold as high as $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $5.75 to $6.25; do., medium, $5.25 to $5.50; do., common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2 to $3.15; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $4.75 to $5; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.50; do., bulls, $3.25 to $3.75; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; do., common and medium, each, $70 to $80; springers, [illegible] ewes, $4 to $4.25; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.75 to $9.

Calves, $3 to $12.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Nov. 18.—Cattle—Receipts, 5000 head; active and 5c to 15c higher; prime steers, $9 to $9.25; butchers, $6 to $8.65; bulls, $4.25 to $6.25; stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.65; shipping, $7.50 to $8.75; heifers, $4.75 to $7.90; cows, $3 to $6.65; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $7; fresh cows and springers active and firm at $35 to $75.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 18.—John Rogers & Co. cable that there was a brisk trade at Birkenhead today, good cattle, especially, being in demand, and Saturday's prices were well maintained at 11½c to 13½c per pound for Irish steers. [illegible]

WOMAN DIZZY PARTLY NUMB

Doctors Did Her No Good—Testifies How She Was Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Zanesville, Ohio.—"Last fall I had female weakness very bad, and was nervous and run down. I was dizzy and had numb feelings and my eyes ached. I took doctor's medicines but they did me no good, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and how I feel stronger and better. I have told other women what Mrs. Pinkham's medicines have done for me and give you permission to publish this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. HULDA ERICKSON, 506 Maysville Avenue, Zanesville, Ohio.

More Proof.

Burlington, Iowa.—"For years I suffered a great deal from female troubles. I had awful pains and felt sick nearly all the time. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and heard that it had helped other suffering women so I felt sure it would do me good. Sure enough it did. The first bottle helped me and now I am a strong and well woman. I would not be without it in the house."—Mrs. ANNA HIGGINS, 1125 Agency St., Burlington, Iowa.

There need be no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to remedy woman's diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical. Why don't you try it?

MAN'S ARTERIES.

And Some of the Causes That Tend to Make Them Harden.

"A man is as old as his arteries" is a common saying among physicians, which has come to be taken up by their patients. Dr. Herbert O. Clapp of Boston in the New York Medical Record comes forward with an article declaring that worry is a common cause of arteriosclerosis, the hardening of the arteries is not infrequently considered as one of the customary and proper accompaniments of a ripe old age—sometimes even of middle life—it is not universally so, and that even at fourscore years, as proved by autopsies, the arteries have been found to be perfectly sound. He cites the case of the champion old man, Thomas Parr of England, who died at the advanced age of 152 and whose arteries were found by Harvey—who discovered the circulation of the blood—on examination after death to be perfectly sound.

Dr. Clapp says that within certain limits the arteries do not harden because they are old, but are old because they are diseased. Among causes for arteriosclerosis he gives overeating, excessive muscular strain and excessive brain work. Worry produces functional disturbances and undue blood pressure. This brings with it arteriosclerosis. He holds that most worries are indulged in without an adequate reason, therefore, and cites the following quotation: "I am an old man and have had many troubles, but most of them never happened."

Child Struck by Iron.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Blasting operations on defective castings were being carried on at the Canada Foundry when a chunk of iron weighing about eight pound wa thrown over 700 yards distant, through a window and struck little nine-year-old Nellie Hubbard, 34 Cooper street, Saturday afternoon. The blew knocked out two teeth.

Fighting the Current.

Papua has swift streams well stocked with fish. An explorer tells of Papuan fresh water mullet which sometimes weigh as much as fifteen pounds. "These fish are wonderfully provided by nature with an appliance which helps them to combat the extraordinary currents. At one moment you will see them being swept down resistlessly, but suddenly they shoot off into the quieter water and attach themselves to the rocks by a strong sucker near the mouth. There they hang just outside the current, their tails moving gently with it, and when they have recovered their strength they make another dash through the swifter waters."

THAT EXASPERATING TICKLING IN THE THROAT

which keeps you coughing away, night and day, will quickly disappear if you take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne.

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne quiets the throat-tickling almost instantly, loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, and cures the inflammation of the mucus membrane.

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne has the great advantage of being absolutely free from harmful drugs of any kind. In support of this statement we are willing to give to any physician or druggist in Canada a full list of its ingredients.

You can therefore give Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne to any member of your family, with perfect confidence that it will be altogether beneficial.

Your druggist can supply you with either 25c. or 50c. bottles. The National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 316

A BATTLE IN THE SEA.

Wanton Slaughter When Bluefish and Menhaden Meet.

Did you ever see bluefish charge a school of menhaden at sea? That is something worth seeing. The bluefish throw their lines forward until they almost surround the menhaden, and they attack them flank and rear. The menhaden fairly make the water boil in their efforts to escape, while all around the enemy is at them tearing relentlessly.

Into all this commotion comes a great shark. It's a picnic for the shark, a school of menhaden all herded up for his benefit. It swims leisurely into the midst of them, opens its mouth and takes in half a dozen menhaden at a gulp. It swims around and bites out half a dozen more from the school. It gorges itself without effort.

But the menhaden are not nearly as much disturbed by the presence of the monster swimming about among them as they are by the charging bluefish. The shark takes half a dozen fish or more at a bite, while the bluefish only bites a piece out of a single fish, but there is only one shark, while there may be thousands of bluefish plunging and tearing incessantly and killing and maiming at every stroke.

The shark's a brute, but under such circumstances the menhaden have less of fear than they have of contempt for him.

The average woman knows more about some other woman than she knows about herself.

Tree Snakes of Borneo.

The flying frogs of the Malays appear to be mythical, but the tree snakes of Borneo are credited with taking flying leaps from the boughs of trees to the ground. It is found that scales on the lower part of the body may be drawn inward so that the whole lower surface becomes concave. The resistance to the air is thus greatly increased, and experiments indicate that the snakes do not fall in writhing coils, but are let down gently in a direct line by the parachute-like action of their peculiar bodies.

Lindsay, Nov. 6th, 1912.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 6 % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

THE COAL SCARCITY

The supply of coal for the coming winter has been a burning topic (sic) in the larger cities. There is likely to be a shortage as soon as the very cold weather commences, and the rush of the late ones for coal becomes acute. It may be safely stated that the effects of the coal strike last spring have been overcome. There is now no scarcity to justify any panic, or a prolonged increase in the price. The regular operators have not increased their price, only the independent operators taking advantage of the exigencies of the situation. As soon as navigation ends there will probably be a cessation of the rush of coal westward and stores in the east will be replenished. There are many small cities and towns in Ontario with stocks of coal very low. Some newspapers have been advising the people to buy only one ton at a time lest a coal panic result. In the larger cities the circular prices are being rigidly observed and the assertion that the shortage amounts to 20,000,000 tons is disputed. The coal shipments up to October 1st of this year show an aggregate decrease of only about 6,000,000 tons, and the indications are that there will be no such scarcity as some of the pessimists are wont to predict.

NARROW PATRIOTISM

If Mr. Lavergne's boasted love for his country were characterized by greater understanding he would recognize that the interests of Canada and the Empire at which he scoffs are one and indivisible. If the larger political organization is menaced, the Dominion as a part of the greater whole is also in danger. If Mr. Lavergne's local patriotism were less narrow he would admit that for one hundred and fifty years the Canadian people have grown and prospered under the protection of the Royal navy, maintained by the taxpayers of the Mother Land, and that a self-respecting community can no longer shirk its obligations. The Nationalist orator places himself beyond the pale when he declares that it is Great Britain's duty to continue to defend us, and that we should do nothing in return.

If Mr. Bourassa's echo were more honest in his affection for his native land he would not misrepresent the British Premier as still denying this part of the Empire a voice in Imperial questions of peace and war. If he cared more for his own reputation for straightforwardness he would tell his compatriots that the British Ministers have responded cordially to Mr. Borden's request that Canada be given a part in the formulation of Imperial policies. A much abler French Canadian, the Postmaster-General has shown a surer grasp of the situation, for he has wisely impressed upon the people of Hochelaga the incontrovertible truth that in a world of powerful confederations the safety and glory of the Dominion lie in full co-operation with all parts of the mighty British Empire. — Toronto News.

BETWEEN THE EYES

The upper part of the face is what you notice first when you meet a person.

A scowl there is often so disfiguring that it doesn't matter how attractive the person otherwise appears —the scowl spoils it all.

In most cases scowls are the direct result of eye strain. Remove the strain the scowl passes away.

If you have any symptoms of eye strain have your eyes examined by a Specialist at once. Don't wait until ugly lines appear between the eyes.

If you need glasses he will prescribe the correct lenses. If you do not need glasses he will tell you so.

We guarantee satisfaction.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE MUSEUM

Many Gifts Are Received by Mr. T. A. S. Hay

Mr. T. A. S. Hay, curator of the Museum in the Public Library building, reports a very general response in the matter of donation of relics and articles of historical interest, to the museum.

These are being placed on exhibition as rapidly as accommodation and time will permit. The work is also retarded on account of lack of funds no appropriation having been made by which equipment, such as show cases can be secured. It is necessary that many of the exhibits be placed under lock and key, to prevent their being taken away, or damaged by careless handling.

This is borne out by a recent incident, in which a sword, used at the battle of Waterloo, by the grandfather of Mr. Edward Courtney, East City, and loaned by him, was stolen by a small boy.

He hid the sword in a lumber pile but the detective department, after a search and enquiry among the second-hand stores of the city, finally found a clue which led to the apprehension of the youngster.

A number of Mauser bullets, which came from South Africa, at the time of the Boer War, were also taken by the lad, but these were not recovered, as according to his statements, he gave them away to other boys.

In taking the sword from it's case in the museum, the lad used a pocket knife to draw the screws. This must have been quite a task as on a preceding occasion, the operation with a screw driver was found difficult enough.

Such a case is, of course, an isolated one.

REPORT FOR FIRST DAY

Y. M. C. A. Campaign to Rais $2000

The first day's report of the two day campaign to raise $2,000 for the Y.M.C.A was made at a banquet in the Y.M.C.A. last evening, when it was found that $324 had been subscribed. The following reports were brought in:

Team	Pledges.	Amount.
No. 2	16	$64.00
No. 3	14	68.50
No. 4	1	1.00
No. 5	42	190.50
Total		$324.00

Numbers 2 and 3 teams had not all the pledges collected. No. 1 was not present. At the close of the meeting new canvassing sheets were handed out.

After the enjoyable supper, Secretary Hainsworth, spoke on the work of the institution.

Short speeches were made by Rev. Robt. Pogue, Rev. J. N. Clarry, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, Messrs. Sheppard, J. J. Turner, Jr., and E. A. Peck, M. P. P.

Mr. E. A. Peck called upon the teams not to be discouraged at the small amount received the first day as the full quota would probably be made up the following day when the people had become warmed up to the movement.

The captains of the teams are:
No. 1—G. N. Gordon.
No. 2—W. R. Morris.
No. 3.—W. H. Munro.
No. 4.—Alec McLean.
No. 5.—James Connal.

ONTARIO MINES

Dr. Coleman to Deal With Interesting Subject

Members of the Canadian Club are reminded of the address to be delivered to-morrow (Wednesday) evening at the Y.M.C.A. rooms by Dr. A. P. Coleman, of the University, of Toronto on "Ontario Mines and Miners."

The dinner will be held at 6.30 o'clock sharp, and it is expected that the address will be completed by 8 o'clock, so that evening engagements will not be interfered with.

A full attendance is expected.

CHEAP CUTS OF MEAT.

A Flank of Beef May Be Made as Palatable as Turkey.

The woman who is spending 28 and 30 cents a pound for porterhouse steak is wantonly throwing away her husband's money, when she can serve him better and cheaper with cuts at 8 and 10 cents a pound. Of course the secret of this radical economy lies in knowing how to treat these cheaper cuts.

Plate meat, which is sold at ten cents a pound, has one objection—that of fatness. With, however, care in the matter of timely preparation, this can become the leading element in a delicious stew or pot roast. Of course you can't telephone your order to the butcher at 4 and serve your dinner at 6 if you wish to introduce the element of economy in the evolution of your meat dishes.

For example, one treatment of a flank of beef, by no less a lady than the wife of a famous judge and one time Democratic candidate for the presidency, was to dredge it first entirely of bone, then she rolled it, tied it with a string and pot roasted it. After this she set it out overnight with a heavy weight. It was served cold for Sunday dinner, and, when cut thin with a very sharp knife, the butcher himself couldn't tell what it was, declaring it quite as palatable as turkey. —Edith Townsend Kaufmann in Leslie's.

NATIVE OF PETERBORO WHO HAS CLIMBED THE LADDER

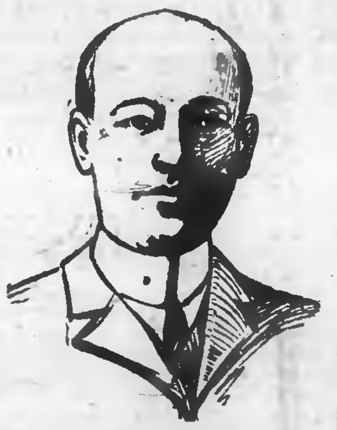
Herbert C. Cox is One of Canada's First Business Men.

Youngest of Senator George A. Cox's Sons Who Has Just Been Made President of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. Is a Music Patron and Horse Lover as Well as a Master of Finance.

Herbert C. Cox of Toronto, the new president of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., is one of the foremost young business men in Canada and inherits in a marked degree the financial ability for which his father, Senator Geo. A. Cox, is distinguished.

In the first place his face could not be mistaken for any but the Cox countenance—and it is a physiognomy famous in Canadian finance. He has more paternal traits than are exhibited in an external physical resemblance to the Senator. He possesses a desire to do things for himself and map out new lines of action.

He believes in getting started as early as possible. As a youth at the University of Toronto he could not wait to graduate, his fingers so "itched for the feel of a typewriter," as he once expressed his ambition. The Senator gratified his youthful commercial tendencies by taking him out of college and giving him a job in the Canada Life. He rose through all the grades to managing the business of that big insurance company. As he grew in business stature, he found his services in demand in the board rooms of leading corporations throughout the country.



HERBERT C. COX.

He is the youngest son of Senator Cox, and was born in Peterborough, Ont., in 1873. He entered the service of the Canada Life Assurance Co. in 1894 and in 1899 entered into partnership with his father under the firm name of George A. & H. C. Cox, in the management of the eastern Ontario and Michigan branches of this company. Not long afterwards he became sole manager of these branches and now has been appointed to the responsible position of president of the Imperial Life.

He is connected with numerous business and financial concerns besides being a director of the Dominion Securities Corporation, the Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., the Robert Simpson Co., a trustee of the Toronto General Hospital and the Toronto Conservatory of Music, vice-president of the local branch of Underwriters Association of Canada, and vice-president of the Provident Investment Co. and chairman of the Symphony Orchestra. In religion he is a Methodist and a trustee of the Metropolitan Church. He belongs to several of the leading clubs of Toronto, among these being the National Club, Ontario Club, Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto Hunt Club and Lambton Golf Club.

Away from his office Mr. Cox has cultivated a variety of interests. He is one of the leading patrons of music in Toronto; in his devotion to the affairs of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra resembling a young Montrealer, Col. Frank S. Meighen, who has been trying to give Canada grand opera at his own expense. Horses are another of Mr. Cox's diversions. He owns some of the best known thoroughbreds on the continent. He is a breeder rather than a race track devotee, and has exhibited with much success in Montreal, Toronto and New York.

Taken at His Word.

When Rossetti was a student of art he one day happened to go with some fellow students to the east end of London. There at a wharfside inn he saw an immense canvas on the barroom wall. After laughing at it for some time and thus provoking the innkeeper's wrath the following conversation took place:

"Where did you get that picture?"

"Oh, never mind, young man, where I got it!"

"What price do you set on it?"

"More than you can afford."

"Indeed!" said Rossetti. "Now, how much?"

"Three thousand pounds," replied the innkeeper.

At this there was a loud burst of laughter from the young artists.

"Do you know how much I would give you for your £3,000 picture?"

"How much?" asked the innkeeper.

"Three pounds," said Rossetti.

"Done," said the innkeeper promptly. And to his amazement and amusement Mr. Rossetti found himself the owner of the colossal daub.

NO REPORT ON MILK SUPPLY

Publication of Reports would be Mistake, says M.H.O.

Medical Health Officer McPherson at a Board of Health meeting today did not favor publishing the reports made from examinations of the milk supply. The question arose when the M.H.O. stated that there appeared to be an agitation to have the public informed on the condition of the milk. Dr. McPherson thought that the inspection of dairies which is being carried on, was not primarily intended to enlighten people as to who supplied the best milk, but to merely show that it was produced under perfectly sanitary conditions. Those behind the agitation wished to learn the percentage of butter fat contained in the milk yield.

WOULD BE A MISTAKE.

Dr. McPherson contended that it would be a mistake for several reasons, to publish the reports, principally because the milk inspection around Peterborough was just in its infancy and so far the efforts put forth have been largely educative, in order to bring the milk supply up to a certain standard.

"In Toronto," said the M. H. O., "they publish only the reports of dairies when an examination showed them to measure up to the standard required."

"Since we commenced inspection," he continued, "we find that the quality of the milk has improved greatly."

The latter suggested however, that it be given out this year, that the dairies will be graded and only reports be published of those which come up to the standard, namely of 3 per cent. butter fat in the milk yield.

It was finally moved that the Medical Health Officer be authorized to advise the dairymen that following the inspection of dairies, reports will be published of the findings made of those which are up to the standard.

The condition of Lafayette Ave. was pointed out by Sanitary Inspector Spence. The street is urgently in need of sewer connection for the convenience of a row of householders there. The sewer will be built this year if possible, although its construction will largely depend on the weather conditions.

BROTHERHOOD AT KNOX CHURCH

Special Meetings Arranged for Next Sunday

Knox Church is planning for a most strenuous Brotherhood Day on Sunday next, Nov. 21. Two of the men who made very marked impressions on the occasion of the recent visit of the Toronto Brotherhood men, will be here and address all the meetings of the day. These men are Mr. W. A. MacRae and Mr. E. A. Breckenridge. In anticipation of the day, a male choir has been practising and will be heard to advantage at the evening service.

Picture post-cards having on them pictures of the two speakers and announcement of meetings, will be sent to all men of the congregation whose addresses are known.

The Day will commence with a devotional meeting at 10 a.m., addressed by Mr. Breckenridge. Mr. McRae will give an address at the morning service. A meeting for men will be held at 3 p.m., in the Brotherhood room and at the evening service, Mr. Breckenridge will give an address.

C.P.R. WILL PAY $900 FOR WATER

Under New Agreement With Water Commissioners

An agreement between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the City Water Commissioners was read at a meeting of the latter yesterday afternoon, whereby the Commissioners agreed to supply water to the C.P.R. water tanks for the sum of $900.0. One of the conditions is that the agreement shall remain in force for a period of five years, but either party desiring to terminate it, shall be given six months notice in writing.

No contract has yet been made with the Grand Trunk Railway.

The application of the Nicholls Hospital trustees, for the enlargement of a 2 inch water main to a 4 inch, to supply increased service for the addition to the hospital was granted. There is only one hydrant at the Nicholls Hospital, and the Commissioners felt that the Fire, Water and Light Committee should undertake to instal another, as one hydrant appeared to be very inadequate.

The addition to Nicholls Hospital will cause the use of about twice the present quantity of water.

57th REGIMENT

The Date of Examinations Are Announced

Col. Clegg, Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment, has received word as to the dates of the examinations for those who have been attending the classes of instruction. The examinations in this portion will be held on December 19th and 20th.

The classes of instruction have been progressing very favorably under Sergt. Instructor MacKay, five nights in the week. Eleven officers besides the N. C. O's. have been attending and it is expected that they will put up a very creditable showing.

INSPECTOR MADE LIQUOR SEIZURE

Wet Goods Were to be Taken to Local Option District

While License Inspector Thornbury was on his rounds, he noticed two men carrying a valise on their way to the Grand Trunk station. They had a stick running through the handle, and the Inspector's suspicions was aroused, as he felt something heavier than clothing was in the valise.

He followed the men as far as Russell St., where they were stopped and the contents of the valise were inspected. It was found to be loaded with wet goods, and was being taken to Haliburton a local option district, where the men lived.

The License Inspector seized the consignment, and will report at once to the License Department at Toronto.

One of the party was under the age of 21 years.—Lindsay Post.

PROVINCE TO HELP.

Ontario May Give $50,000 to Anti-Tuberculosis Movement.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—It was learned from authoritative circles yesterday that the Provincial Government might help the fight against consumption by making a grant of $50,000 to the National Sanitarium Association. This fund will not be placed at the disposal of the association to help swell its building and endowment funds, but to be devoted wholly to research work.

The fight being waged since 1896 has been towards effecting the cure of consumption rather than prevention of infection, and it has been definitely decided that this department should be developed.

It was decided at the recent convention of medical officers of health that the disease was being treated in such a manner as to not sufficiently prevent its spread, and that something should be done towards trying to effect some improvement in the matter of scientific research work.

Advocates of the granting of $250,000 by the city to the National Sanitarium Association turned up in force at the City Hall yesterday, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Sir John Gibson, W. J. Gage, A. P. Gourlay, Hugh Blain, W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., Ambrose Kent and Hon. W. A. Charlton, who appeared before the council at yesterday's meeting, to urge that body to submit the money bylaw covering the amount asked for, which the council subsequently did.

The speakers emphasied the fact that they wish the city to control the administration of the civic grant, even going so far as to advocate that they construct special quarters for Toronto patients, and the extra $400,000 to be collected to complete the King Edward Memorial Fund.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to submit the vote to the electorate on Jan. 1.

Niagara Publishers Organize.

St. Catharines, Nov. 19.—The Niagara District Printers' and Publishers' Association is the title of an organization formed here yesterday, one of the first moves of which will be to increase the price of all class of job printing. Secretary John Imrie of the Canadian Press Association addressed the association showing that considerable work is being done below cost.

The officers were elected as follows: President, W. J. Burgoyne, St. Catharines; vice-president, J. H. Thompson, Thorold; secretary, Louis Blake Duff, Welland.

GENERAL BOOTH MEMORIAL

To the Editor of the Review.

I have been asked to say a word in regard to the Booth Memorial which in Canada is to take the form of a "Training Institution" for the better equipment of the officers of the Salvation Army. General Booth was one of God's greatest gifts to England—yea, to the world. His whole life was spent in lifting people to a higher standard, and it is inspiring to know that during the last of his life his mind was much occupied with one great problem, viz., the more efficient training of the officers. This is in accord with all great Christian leaders. What is needed in all lands is a trained ministry to grasp the great truths which must be re-incarnated in every age. None can be too well equipped for the work of preaching the gospel and moulding public sentiment. For this purpose we must have our training institutions and stand loyally behind them. Those churches have been most permanently influential that have stood for education.

It is suggestive to remember that the three greatest evangelists of the last century, Charles G. Finnie, Chas. H. Spurgeon and Dwight L. Moody, devoted their last years to the founding of Christian institution of learning and were perhaps the best remembered by such fruits of their labors. We need our colleges to give us the proper viewpoint to teach us that the great essential to any genuine interpretation of the Scriptures is to regard them as a historic unfolding.

That they are the record of the progressive growth of the Divine Thought in Israel's thinking and of the gradual revelation of the Divine life in Israel's living, not to look upon the Bible as a flat surface of revelation—like a Chinese picture—in which all objects are without perspective or distinction of value, but rather to see the Bible as a living growth, an organism of various facts and values, all of them throbbing of one great vitality. Hence the erection of the Training Institution in Canada should commend itself to the citizens of Canada.

May God's blessing rest upon the great Salvation Army of the world, and may the efforts to lift fallen humanity be more potential than ever.

YOUNG VAGRANT IS IN THE TOILS

Police Will Make Some Enquiries About Him

Although Thomas McKinley protested that he was not drunk last night, he was, nevertheless, fined $2 and costs to be paid forthwith. Detective Newhall testified to McKinley's condition when arrested. He was so drunk that it was necessary to drag him into the cells after taking him to the police station.

A mere boy giving Hugh Patterson as his name, stated that he had no home, when a vagrant charge was read to him this morning in police court.

Oshawa was the last place he visited. Chief Thompson asked to have him remanded until enquiries about him were answered. He will appear again on November 27th.

Robert L. Anderson said he was guilty of being drunk and disorderly in a public place.

"I don't know what we are going to do with this boy" remarked the Chief. "His mother paid his last fine and she had notices posted in all the bars, asking the bartenders to refrain from supplying liquor to him.

Anderson is not yet 21 years of age, and comes of a respectable family.

He was ordered to pay a $2 fine forthwith.

GOT RID OF THE BAKER

The Persians Took Shuster's Remark In Deadly Earnest.

In his book, "The Strangling of Persia," W. Morgan Shuster, the American who took such a prominent part in Persian affairs a few months ago, tells this: "In connection with the bread supply a rather grewsome incident occurred. The chief baker of Teheran was one of the principal grafters in the 'municipal bread ring' and a great trouble maker for the treasury. He was a man of evil record and reputed to have baked an offending subordinate to death in his own oven on more than one occasion. Speaking of him and his intrigues one day to several prominent nationalists, I remarked that he was the cause of most of the trouble with the bread supply in the capital, was feeding inferior bread to the people and that he should be 'gotten rid of.'

"A morning or so afterward, on entering my office rather late, I was informed by one of my Persian assistants that 'the chief baker had been killed in accordance with my wishes!' I leave the reader to imagine my surprise and feelings. As a matter of fact, he had been assassinated, and though I have no reason to believe that my own remarks had anything to do with his taking off, I determined thenceforth to be more cautious and precise in my language.

"The unfortunate man was a murderer and had waxed wealthy by stealing from the poor, often starving people of the city, so no great injustice was perhaps done, but the interpretation put by my young Persian friend on his untimely end gave me quite a shock. From that time on the control of the bread became much easier."

MYSTERY GOLD.

A New Amalgam That Is Puzzling the Jewelers of London.

Jewelers, pawnbrokers and others in London whose business concerns itself with the precious metals are greatly concerned just now over a new amalgam which has recently made its appearance and to which experts have given the not inappropriate name of "mystery gold." It seems that there are quantities of articles of jewelry on the market which are made of this new metal.

In appearance it exactly resembles 18 carat gold. Its weight, too, in proportion to its bulk is identical with the real thing. It resists acid and all other known tests. In fact, the only way to tell it from genuine gold is to melt it in a crucible and separate it so far as possible into its component parts.

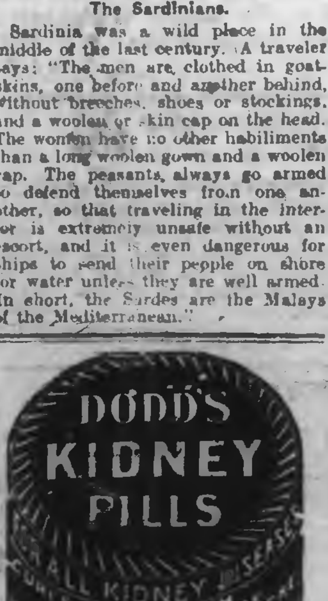
But to treat in this way a watch chain or other article of jewelry is, of course, to render it valueless forever, a thing which pawnbrokers and others who may think that they have been victimized are naturally reluctant to do.

The great trouble is that nobody seems to know where the mysterious amalgam comes from or who makes it. You cannot buy it anywhere, and so far neither the police nor anybody else has succeeded in unearthing the factory where it is made up into "snide" articles of jewelry, mostly watch chains and curb bracelets.

These are invariably hall marked 18 carat, and even experts are deceived by them.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Sardinians.

Sardinia was a wild place in the middle of the last century. A traveler says: "The men are clothed in goatskins, one before and another behind, without breeches, shoes or stockings, and a woolen or skin cap on the head. The women have no other habiliments than a long woolen gown and a woolen cap. The peasants always go armed to defend themselves from one another, so that traveling in the interior is extremely unsafe without an escort, and it is even dangerous for ships to send their people on shore for water unless they are well armed. In short, the Sardes are the Malays of the Mediterranean."



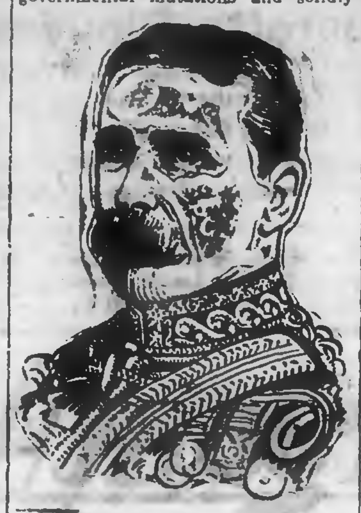
GEN. FRENCH A VISITOR

FAMOUS BRITISH SOLDIER HAS COME TO SEE CANADA.

The Premier Member of the Imperial Army Council Is a Leading Figure In Military Affairs and Has Had a Remarkable Career—Entered Navy and Served Four Years Before Joining Army.

England's greatest war hero, next to Lord Kitchener, is visiting Canada. He is Gen. Sir John Denton Pinkstone French, the daring cavalry leader during the Boer war. Inspector-general of the British forces since 1907, general officer commanding in chief of the first class and lieutenant-colonel of the Nineteenth Hussars since 1902, he is a leading figure in British army affairs. He was born in Kent, England, in 1852, and after serving four years as a naval cadet and midshipman in the royal navy he entered the British army in 1874. Since then his record has been full of brave deeds and high honors. He was lieutenant-general commanding the cavalry division in South Africa, 1900-1902. He figured in the relief of Kimberley, and under Lord Robetrs was instrumental in the capture of Bloemfontein and Pretoria. He was made a general in 1907.

Gen. French holds a unique position in England. He is the premier military member of the British army council, absolutely independent of governmental mutations and solidly entrenched as a successful soldier in the minds of his countrymen. His appearance is the antithesis of all that is usually associated with the idea of a dashing cavalry leader. There is nothing reminiscent of Skobeloff or of Ney about him. The short squat figure, extremely awkward on horseback, has no suggestion about it of the daring raider that paralyzed the Boer communications in South Africa and went far to help Lord Roberts in turning prospective failure into ultimate victory.



GEN. SIR JOHN FRENCH.

Throughout their history the British people have preserved the admirable habit of adequately rewarding their successful generals. Sir John French is the natural descendant in the military hierarchy of Roberts and Kitchener. Roberts is old. Kitchener is too dangerous a man to let loose in a free country and consequently his later activities have been confined to much useful work in India and Egypt. French is therefore chief of the imperial general staff with a salary of $20,000 a year and very generous allowances. Although of Irish descent, he is extremely popular with the landed gentry of England.

A Naval Treasure.

Great satisfaction has been expressed throughout the country on account of the purchase of the logbook of Nelson's ship, Victory, by the well-known art collector, Mr. Thomas J. Barratt. The logbook contains a vivid account of the Battle of Trafalgar, written on the day after the action. Private collectors were particularly anxious to secure the log, and one of them even made an offer for the two leaves recording the events of October 21, 1805. Mr. Barratt, however, promptly paid several thousand pounds for the book, and thus secured for the nation one of the most precious relics of Nelson.

The logbook is unique because it was actually written by Nelson's sailing master, a man named Atkinson. It is not, of course, the official logbook, which is the property of the Admiralty, and which is kept at the Public Record Office, together with all other navy logbooks. Atkinson, however, apparently kept a rough logbook of his own, with the aid of which he prepared the official logbook which he had to send to the Admiralty in order to comply with the rule. "No log; no pay."

A New Method of Nature Study.

A novel method of studying the colored patterns of nature is suggested by Dr. Hall-Edwards, an English experimenter.

He takes dyes of various colors, and drops them in regular order and definite amount on absorbent paper, the result being diffusion figures of regular geometrical shapes and great beauty.

The investigation may not only throw light on nature's methods, but may give new hints to designers and decorators.

LADY AMELIA POINDEXTER

An Experience on an Ocean Liner

By RUFUS B. HENDERSON

The flood of the tidal wave of tourists to Europe had ended and the ebb had set in. Reginald Fairchild, an American gentleman of means, had been spending the summer and a part of the autumn abroad and was returning on an ocean liner. Mr. Fairchild, though he had reached middle age, was still unmarried. He had been much abroad, where society is made up, or at least led, by aristocrats.

Mr. Fairchild was coming home from his trip especially dissatisfied at being obliged to resume his position with what he called the commercial aristocracy of America. This was the more galling because in his veins ran the blood of that older aristocracy whose members had been leaders in colonial times. His family had felt themselves better than soap boilers. Now, there were soap boilers who felt themselves better than he. Some of them at least lived in far better style, spending thousands where he spent hundreds.

One day when the wind was fresh Mr. Fairchild was walking the deck. A lady sat in a steamer chair wrapped in rugs with a little writing case before her, evidently getting up her correspondence. She was perhaps twenty-four years old and very pretty, with light English hair and rosy complexion. There was about her the air of one who had mingled with well bred persons. As Mr. Fairchild passed her she very naturally raised her eyes from the paper before her, but, seeing his gaze fixed upon her, immediately lowered them.

Mr. Fairchild walked back and forth past the lady a number of times, and every time he thought her more charming. She faced the bow of the vessel, the motion increasing the force of the wind. Walking aft, Mr. Fairchild saw a sheet of writing paper blown past him and become pinned by the wind to the stern rail. When he reached it he took it up. It was a partly finished letter—a family crest stamped on the paper—and he could not help seeing the first words, which were "My Dear Duchess."

Mr. Fairchild, assuming that the lady engaged at her correspondence had written and lost the paper, turned toward her. Her back was to him, and she did not look around. He hesitated, being tempted to read the letter with a view to discovering the social status of the writer, but the habit of gentility was too strong in him, and without again looking at it he walked back to the lady and with a courteous bow asked her if it was not her property. She took it from him, glanced at it, seemed surprised, thanked him and asked him where he had found it.

The incident broke the ice for an acquaintance. Later, when they were talking about the lost letter, Fairchild admitted that he had felt strongly moved to read it, whereupon the lady, remarking that there was nothing in it to be concealed, took it from her writing case and handed it to him.

Fairchild declined to read it, but the lady insisted, so he ran it over. It proved conclusively that she was of a noble family, her elder brother being an earl and her nephew and nieces being lords and honorables. Furthermore, the lady left lying on her lap several letters, on one of which Fairchild read the address "Lady Amelia Poindexter."

One feature grated a bit on Fairchild. While the composition of the letter he read was such as a titled lady would write, the chirography was defective, there were one or two errors in grammar, and here and there a word was spelled wrong. But the world is full of bad writers, bad spellers, and, as for grammar, a genius of literature has admitted that he was unable to learn the correct use of "shall" and "will."

Fairchild remarked upon the crest, and the lady admitted that, strictly considered, her brother, the Earl of Entwater, alone had the right to use it. When told that in America, where there were no patents of nobility, almost any family adopted a crest who could afford to pay for the stamping of it on his or her writing paper, Lady Amelia was astonished and said she didn't think she would like America at all.

Fairchild had a few acquaintances among the nobility in England and spoke of them to his new acquaintance. She seemed to know all about most of them and told him things concerning them he did not know himself. Naturally refined, not caring to boast of his acquaintances, he refrained from telling her how intimate he had been with them. But she had no such qualms herself. This was not surprising to Fairchild, for he had noticed that persons of rank considered themselves as good as other persons of rank and were unconscious of anything boastful in speaking of them familiarly.

Before the voyage was half completed Fairchild saw that he had met the opportunity of his life. A pleasing vision came up before him. If he could win Lady Amelia Poindexter he would place his property in America in the hands of an agent, go to England to live and resume a position that had been held by his ancestors several centuries ago. Then he would not be disgruntled by American soap boilers and shopkeepers assuming airs of superiority over him.

Of course the sister of a British earl was not to be won during a voyage across the Atlantic ocean, but Lady Amelia showed Fairchild an invitation from Mrs. T. V. W. Harker-Boyington to visit her at Newport and he might follow her there. His family had three generations before, when New York and New England persons had begun to build cottages at Newport—they were really cottages then—spent their summers there and owned a cottage. Many of those now inhabiting palaces at Newport had sold fish and vegetables to his ancestors, but the present generation knew nothing of that, and Fairchild was not admitted to their charmed circle. However, he could call upon Lady Amelia at Mrs. Harker-Boyington's and would be welcomed as the latter's friend.

Having asked permission to do this and received it, he felt comparatively easy—that is, as to gaining access to Lady Amelia. As to the matter of winning her, he could not but consider himself presumptuous to think of such a thing. Besides, he had but a beggarly half million, and he suspected the noble lady was to visit America with a view to making a match with some rich man.

As the ship neared port Lady Amelia grew ill at ease. She said that no arrangement had been made with any one to meet her and she dreaded landing alone and unprotected on the shores of a new country. Were she landing in England her brother would send his man, Conners, who had been in the family since his birth and had waited upon her since she was a little girl. But landing in America was far different.

This was gratifying to Fairchild, since it gave him an opportunity to place Lady Amelia under obligations to him and become initiated to relying upon him. He told her that he would be only too happy to assist her in getting her luggage through the custom house and would see her to her carriage and to any place she proposed to go. She accepted his offer, but somehow that dread she felt in landing in a new country did not disappear. He assisted her in making out her "declaration" for the customs officers, and she asked him if she must declare jewels she had inherited. She had brought them all since she would need them in New York and Newport. He gave her full instructions on this point and all others that concerned her.

When the ship was docked Lady Amelia and Fairchild stood together near the gangway, he carrying her hand baggage. He noticed that she was pale and seemed to be laboring under suspense. He escorted her down the gangway, and they had scarcely set foot on the dock when a man stepped up to Lady Amelia and said:

"Come this way, please."

"What for?" asked Fairchild, bristling.

"Don't you interfere, sir. I have a telegram from England to arrest a woman answering to her description. I don't think I am mistaken."

Fairchild, thunderstruck, followed the man and his prisoner into a private room, where the officer read the telegram directing the arrest of Mary Thompson, maid to Lady Amelia Poindexter, who had decamped with her mistress' jewels and was supposed to have sailed for New York on the steamer just arrived. The man then took a suit case belonging to the so called Lady Amelia and asked for the key. She produced it, he opened the case, and there, rolled in underclothing, was a small fortune in jewels.

Fairchild would not believe but that a mistake had been made till he was informed that Lady Amelia had consented to go back to England without making any trouble, trusting to her mistress to be lenient with her. Then he gave it up. It turned out that Mary Thompson had been born a servant in a noble British family and from constant contact with its members had acquired the manners of a lady, which she could assume at will. She and a valet had concluded to make way with some of the family property, go to America and set up for themselves. The valet arrived on the next steamer and was also taken in.

The maid had appropriated some of her mistress' writing paper with the family crest on it, but she was unable to write her native language grammatically or spell correctly, not having received much of an education. She had been brought into contact with the aristocratic friends of her mistress, who not only knew everybody in the upper circles in England, but had been to New York and been entertained at Newport. Indeed, her maid before leaving her had stolen an invitation she had shown Fairchild, having changed the date.

Fairchild came to believe that she had purposely let slip the letter that had been blown away from her on the steamer's deck to get a grip on him, but what she intended to do with him after getting him he remained in ignorance about.

Fairchild has become socially misanthropic. He is beginning to think that after all refinement comes usually with—or, rather, after—the possession of wealth, and the fact that a man is refined comes from his ancestors having acquired money to be used in his refinement. He goes still further, averring that, while in America our aristocracy comes from the possession of funds acquired in trade, abroad it originally came from robbery, most of the powerful families in England today having obtained their fortunes from the dispossession of some one who likely originally stole it from another.

We would like to see a picture of the man who can always please himself and his wife at the same time.

Napoleon and His Tutor.

Napoleon was a great soldier, but he could not spell. His handwriting was also so bad as to give rise to the rumor that he used undecipherable characters to conceal the fact that he, the master of Europe, could not master French orthography. In the early days of the empire a man of modest aspect presented himself before the emperor.

"Who are you?" asked Napoleon.

"Sire, I had the honor at Brienne for fifteen months to give writing lessons to your majesty."

"You turned out a nice pupil," said the emperor, with vivacity. "I congratulate you on your success." Nevertheless he conferred a pension upon his old master.

The Cardinals' Red Hats.

To the Countess of Flanders, so tradition has it, the cardinals owe their red hats. She complained to Pope Innocent IV. that in an assemblage she could not distinguish cardinals from abbots and other great personages of the church, so the council of Lyons in 1245 prescribed the red hat to replace the miter, and red hat it has been ever since. In the constitution of Boniface VIII. it was enacted that cardinals should wear robes of royal purple, but since 1464 red robes have been worn, and the purple usually appears only at Lent and Advent, when cardinals can be distinguished from bishops by the red skull cap, biretta and stockings.

Suicide In Japan.

An American traveler, in commenting on the Japanese attitude toward suicide, so strikingly exemplified in the death of General Nogi, produced a clipping from a Japanese paper and an accompanying translation. The newspaper article told of the suicide of a young woman in Tokyo. She came to the door of her house and bemoaned her hard fate, attracting the attention of all her neighbors. Finally she took a silk cord and, winding it around her neck, began to strangle herself. "At this point," said the Japanese newspaper, "the neighbors were almost tempted to interfere." The temptation, however, was overcome, and the young woman succeeded in killing herself. Suicide is still regarded in Japan as an inalienable right.—New York Tribune.

Artificial Coal.

What geologists say nature took millions of years to produce a German scientist has accomplished in hours in his laboratory. He has made hard coal from peat and even from cellulose, which is the chief part of the solid framework of plants, by heating it in a specially constructed apparatus under great pressure. At a temperature of 590 degrees F. cellulose was converted into coal in sixty-four hours and at 644 degrees in eight hours.

One on the Kaiser.

Switzerland has always been famous for her marksmen, even before the days of William Tell. Recently a Swiss picture postcard appeared apropos of the official visit of the kaiser. It showed the kaiser interrogating a Swiss militiaman as follows: "So you have got 100,000 of these sharpshooters? Well, what would happen if 200,000 Prussians came?" "That won't matter," replied the recruit. "All of us would simply shoot twice."

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

PLAYERS OF O.H.A. TEAMS WILL TRAIN AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The Hockey Club Executive decided last night that the players should go into training at the Y.M.C.A. as was the case last season. These workouts in the gym. are a great help to the players.

About a dozen junior players have handed in their names and will endeavor to make the team. There are others yet to come.

Trainers Dillon and Hurtubise will look after the teams. Their work last season made a big hit with the players.

The rink management will be asked to supply 15 tickets for Juniors and 12 for seniors. These numbers can be cut down once the schedules are under way. Additional tickets will allow the Executive to keep a string on players and they be fortified against accident or sickness.

An arrangement will also be made so that players desiring tickets of admission to games will be provided without having to apply at the ticket office in the rink.

It is not known to a certainty which series the first team will enter. It may be Intermediate and it may be Senior. There is a scarcity of Intermediate teams in this locality and Senior O.H.A. hockey for Peterborough is not an improbability.

HEFF ANXIOUS TO PLAY GAME

He Broke Quarantine to Play With the Torontos

Toronto News.

A Police Court summons was served this morning on J. Frank Heffernan, the big flying wing of the Toronto Rugby and Athletic Club, who broke a smallpox quarantine on Saturday in order that he might participate in the contest at Varsity Stadium against the Alerts, of Hamilton.

Heffernan, who is a star player of the Toronto club, was boarding at a Gloucester street house where a mild case of smallpox was discovered, and all the inmates were placed in quarantine. The period of confinement was to expire to-day, but Heffernan was so anxious to play in the game on Saturday, upon which the championship virtually depended, and confident that there was no danger as he had already been in quarantine for 12 days, that he decided to take his regular place on the team.

Egan was already to play as flying wing and the teams were just lining up for the kick-off, when Heffernan appeared on the field, entirely unexpected by the players or officers of the club.

It is said that members of the Alerts visited the Health Department officials prior to the game and found that Heffernan would still be under quarantine during the Saturday contest. When he took his place in the line-up they objected strenuously, and appealed to Referee Simpson. Officials of the O.R.F.U., however, stated that the player was qualified and that the quarantine restriction was a matter for the Medical Health authorities, and outside the jurisdiction of the Union.

When Heffernan appeared on the field officers and members of the club assumed that his quarantine had expired. The game was finally played by the Alerts under protest. Five minutes before the game was called Heffernan retired in favor of Egan.

At the office of the Medical Health Department it was stated this morning that the Alerts had instituted proceedings against the Toronto player, who will appear on Wednesday on a charge of breaking quarantine.

It was also said that representatives of the Hamilton team made inquiries on at least two occasions prior to the game. The first instance was on a Wednesday last, and it was through their activities, it is said, that the Medical Health Department got wind of the matter and decided to take action.

CHARLEY RAY OUT OF HOCKEY

It will be a source of regret to the numerous friends of Charley Ray to learn that he will not be able to play hockey again.

He took ill while attending McGill University, and is now at his home. His illness is in the nature of a general breakdown.

LEAGUE FOR YOUNG PLAYERS

Will Have Consideration of Hockey Executive

It was suggested at the meeting of the Hockey Club Executive last night, that a league be formed for young players, who, while they might not have the qualifications to compete in Junior O. H. A. games, would develop into O. H. A. players for the future.

This question will receive attention at the hands of the executive.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The contracts have been awarded for the new rink of the Saskatoon Curling Club, which, taking into consideration the amount of ice upon which play can take place, has the largest curling rink in Western Canada.

No less than eleven sheets of ice will be provided for, and the building will cover an area of 160 square feet. This provides even more ice than the New Granite curling rink in Winnipeg, which is in process of construction at the present time, but which is only 150 feet wide. The biggest curling rink in Regina has only nine sheets of ice, the Moose Jaw rink ten, but Saskatoon's will eclipse them all with eleven sheets.

POLICE LOOKS FOR MISSING BOY

Was Going to Start Life Over Again he Said

Any information that will lead to knowledge of the whereabouts of Henry Oscar Burley, a sixteen year old Hamilton youth, will be gratefully received by his brother Ross A. Burley of Hamilton. Young Burley disappeared from Hamilton and left a note saying he "was going away to start life over again." He is reported to have secured employment with a farmer, three or four miles from Peterborough. The local police have instituted inquiries but so far without success. From a couple of photos which his brother forwarded to the police, the runaway is a good-looking chap with an oval face and black hair parted on one side.

The local police would gladly welcome any information about the boy, that they might send to his brother, who may be found at the Waldorf Hotel, Hamilton.

HAPPY WEDDED LIFE.

There was a man in our town, and he was so unwise
He thought in matrimony he'd secured the greatest prize.
The love abiding in his heart for his helpmate was such
He never growled or tore his hair when she would make a touch.
She'd see a pony coat in town and go to him in doubt,
And he would say: "Yes, go to it! You should have sent it out."
So she grew most unhappy, and they came to have such spats
As add spice to the wedded life of two black alley cats.

Then when things came to such a pass between him and his bride
As meant a trip to Reno or a dose of cyanide
He took thought of the distant time when he was but a boy—
How then his home was ever full of good old fashioned joy.
He thought how father held the purse and mother had to try
To save for every furbelow she felt inclined to buy.
So next time when his wife had gone and bought a pound of tea
He growled at her and chased her to the yard and up a tree.

He made her an allowance, such a little bunch of rocks
She had to scrimp and plan a month to get a pair of socks.
Her mind thus grew so occupied in making both ends meet
She hadn't time to snarl and scratch, so both their lives were sweet.
If she were not to darn her socks and mend her wears and tears
And plan and save she'd have less duds than any mermaid wears!
And so she keeps tab on the cook and carols all the day
And makes his home a place of joy, for that is woman's way.

A Poser For Nursie.

"Nursie!"

Little Freddie's voice broke the twilight stillness of the nursery for the twentieth time, and "nursie" began to get angry.

"Well, what do you want now?" she snapped.

"I only wanted to ask you"—

"I'll answer no more questions this night," said nursie firmly as she went on folding up her charge's clothes. "Don't you know that curiosity killed a cat, Freddie?"

The small boy lay in silence, stunned by the wonder of this statement. Then he burst out again:

"Nursie, what did the cat want to know?"—Answers.

Columbia River Thrice Named.

The Columbia river has had three names. It was first called the Oregon. Afterward it was called the St. Roque, but when it was discovered by Robert Gray in 1792 it was given the name of his vessel, the Columbia, in place of the two floating appellations, Oregon and St. Roque. According to Whitney, the original name of the river was the Orejon, "big ear" or "one that has big ears," the allusion being to the custom of the Indians who were found in its region of stretching their ears by boring them and crowding them with ornaments.

Both Hate Him.

"Funny thing," remarked Wilson musingly. "Tom Wilkins and Edith Brown used to be great friends of mine. I introduced them to each other. They got married, and now neither of them will speak to me. Wonder what the reason can be?"

Russia's Gray Wolves.

Gray wolves still abound in Russia. Thanks to the demand for their pelts (at $0.50 apiece), 16,500 of them were slaughtered last year. Of brown bears 1,500 were killed. They brought only $7.50 each. The price of this fur has gone down for some time, owing to the fact that travelers now are provided with warm and comfortable railway cars.

Asquith Patches Up Squabble.

London, Nov. 19.—An amicable arrangement of the home rule quarrel in the House of Commons was brought about yesterday when the dispute as to the Government's method of procedure which led to such disorder last week, was settled.

The Government announced yesterday afternoon the intention of reaching the end desired by a more roundabout means, and the Unionists, having made good their demand for the observance of precedent, raised no objection.

Premier Asquith attributed his change of mind "partly to repugnance at the possible recurrence of disorder, and partly to a desire not to ignore the appeal of the chair."

The House of Commons then, on the motion of the Premier, negatived its original financial resolution, proposed by Sir Richard Banbury, the passing of which in committee, led to the trouble. Another resolution will be substituted for it.

The net result of the squabble will be to delay the progress of the home rule bill for ten days.

Lots of poor men are the architects of other men's riches.

Catarrhozone

It Quickly Cures Whooping Cough, Grippe, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Hay-Fever, Asthma, and Colds.

Catarrhozone is not like other remedies, but is so healing and soothing that when it is breathed through the inhaler it kills the germs that cause diseases of the throat and lungs.

Catarrhozone quickly soothes and heals the mucous surfaces so that in a short time the whole mucous lining is healed.

If you are subject to throat irritation or have a tendency to consumption you should use the "Medicine that is breathed."

Thousands who have used it tell of its merit.

Air which you breathe through the Catarrhozone inhaler carries healing to the very spot affected, and there is no chance of failure by going to the wrong place. That is why it cures.

Catarrhozone

Approved by Doctors, Druggists, and thousands of Canadian people who have used it. Little drops of healing for weak places in the throat and nasal passages—that's Catarrhozone.

A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart Church early this morning, when Mr. Alfred Bishop was united in marriage to Miss Delia Barrette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Desire Barrette, Park street, by the Rev. SANDERSON—ELLIOTT

A pretty wedding took place last Wednesday evening, Nov. 13th, at the home of Mr. Isaac Elliott, Smith township, at 6.30 p.m., when his daughter, Laura May, was married to Howard Sanderson, son of Mr. M. F. Sanderson, also of Smith.

To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Bradley of Otonabee, the wedding party entered the drawing room where the ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Coon of Lakefield.

The bride looked very pretty in cream santoy with Irish lace and silk trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Emma Elliott, who was dressed in gray santoy and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Stewart Sanderson.

The ceremony over, and congratulations given, all retired to the dining room, where a dainty banquet was served to about fifty guests.

The bride was a recipient of a large number of costly and useful presents, which testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held. They will take up their residence on the 14th concession of Smith at "Hazelbye."

LONDON CLUB'S NEW FEATURES

Airmen to Visit Ball Grounds During Games

London, Nov. 19. — The London Baseball Club are making arrangements to hold an exhibition of aviation stunts as one of the big features of the baseball season in London next summer. A school for aviation is being opened in Port Huron, and next spring it will be in full operation. Already arrangements have been made with the founder of the school to send an aviator from Port Huron to London, the landing to be made at Tecumseh Park during a ball game. A day will be set for the flight and the aviator will be an added attraction. He will fly direct from the grounds in Port Huron, and will attempt to reach London without a stop. The bird man will carry a letter from the mayor of Port Huron to the mayor of London. He will fly back to the Michigan city after the ball game.

This is only one of the new features planned by the London directors for next summer. Several other attractions will be given throughout the season.

DEATH OF F. M. VAN BLARICOM

Was the Father of Former Editor of the Review

The many friends here of George B. Van Blaricom, formerly editor of The Review, now on the editorial staff of the Acton Publishing Co., Toronto, will be sorry to learn of the death of his father, F. M. Van Blaricom, at the family residence in Belleville. Deceased had been ill for over two years.

Power From Sea Waves.

At a recent meeting of the British association the question of economical production of power from tides and winds was under discussion, and it has been taken up widely by scientific journals in Europe. In France attention has been called to a system of utilizing the power of sea waves to actuate a dynamo, which has been employed for some time past at the mouth of the river Gironde. An air chamber is connected with a well which communicates with the sea at a depth below the level of the lowest tides. By the advance and recession of the waves changes of pressure are produced in the air chamber, and a system of valves enables the resulting air currents to be applied to rotating a kind of turbine. It is reported that the apparatus works equally well in calm and in stormy weather.—Harper's.

MANIAC WITH BOMB CAUSES PANIC IN POLICE STATION

Lunatic With Infernal Machine on His Hands, Holds Detectives at Bay For an Hour, Before Detective Fells Him With "Billy"—Bomb Sputters But Does Not go Off.

Los Angeles, Nov 20.—Armed with an infernal machine containing enough dynamite to destroy an entire city block, a bottle of nitro-glycerine and a 45-calibre revolver, a masked maniac took possession of the central police station yesterday and held it for more than an hour, while hundreds of occupants of the buildings and those for blocks around the place, in panic, sought safety in distance.

When Detective James Hosick knocked the man unconscious with a leather "billy," after slipping up behind him, the fuse of the internal machine was automatically ignited, but Detective S. L. Brown grabbed the box, with its fuse sharply spluttering, and hurled it into the street. Stocks of high power dynamite scattered over the pavement, while hundreds of spectators stood apparently paralyzed with fright. Through a freak of chance there was no explosion, and Brown continued kicking the sticks of dynamite, and jumping on the fuse until he had broken the connection and extinguished the fire.

The man, who gave his name as Albert Henry Davis, asked, on entering, that the highest official of the Southern Pacific Railway be sent for, so that he might blow him into eternity.

"This is no joke," said Davis, "and if you don't believe me, try to take this way from me. My hand is fastened in this box, and if I pull it out—bang—we all die."

A hole had been cut in the box and the occupants of the room saw for the first time that the man's hand was hidden in the box.

Realizing that the situation was serious, police officials pretended to call up the desired official by phone.

"In the meantime Chief Sebastian ordered the street roped off for a block either way, and steps to have the 100 prisoners in the city jail removed. Upstairs in the building two justice courts were in session, and both court rooms were crowded.

A detective passed the word to a bailiff in Judge Chambers' court, where a Japanese was having a preliminary examination on a murder charge before a crowd of his countrymen. The bailiff whispered to the judge.

"Court's adjourned until 2 p.m. Clear the court room," ordered the judge promptly, and there was a rush for the stairway. A similar scene was enacted in Justice Frederick's court.

There were not enough patrol wagons to remove the prisoners from the jail to the Doyle Heights Prison, and two street cars were sent for.

At the receiving hospital Davis said last night he "guessed" the fuse was too long, which was the reason there was no explosion. He said he was born in Germany, was 34 years old and had lived in this country 15 years. He admitted that Davis was not his right name, and finally declined to talk about his past.

WINS ON THE NAVAL ISSUE

It may safely be taken that the largely increased majority gained by Mr. Coderre in yesterday's bye-election, and his return again for Hochelaga has more than ordinary significance. His majority has been increased from 1873 to 2206, a very decisive gain.

While the general result was expected, it is gratifying to find that the naval and proposed plan to be put before Parliament by Mr. Borden, received so substitive an endorsement.

His own words express the situation very clearly, when he said that the result shows, beyond the cavil of a doubt, that French-Canadians are ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with Canadians of other extraction in defence of the rights of Canada and the Empire; that they realize that all Canadians must work in concord and harmony in order to develop to the full the wonderful possibilities of this great country. It shows that French-Canadians feel to the full that all their most cherished rights are wrapped up in the maintenance of the British Empire in its present condition; for the day that the British flag falls in battle will be the one on which the rights of Canadians—will be most imperilled.

MEXICO VISITED BY EARTHQUAKE

Severe Shock Was of Three Minutes Duration.

Mexico City, Nov. 20.—A severe earthquake occurred here at 7.15 yesterday morning. The movement was oscillatory and passed from north to south. It lasted more than three minutes.

Many brick walls and a few poorly constructed small houses were thrown down. The street pavements buckled and several watermains were broken.

According to the police reports the only casualty was that of a laborer, who, following the custom prevalent among the lower classes of dropping to their knees in prayer, knelt on the street car track in front of a moving suburban train and was ground to pieces.

Other reports indicate a death list of twelve or fifteen persons and these casualties are reported from widely scattered districts.

BULLET WENT THROUGH HEAD

Haileybury, Ont., Nov. 20—George Thompson, aged twelve, died in the hospital last night, from a bullet wound received on Thanksgiving Day. The bullet passed directly through his head without striking a vital part, but complications caused death.

FOUR GANGSTERS MUST GO TO THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

Jury Convicts Gunmen After Deliberation of Twenty Minutes.

New York, Nov. 20.—"Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Dago Frank" and "Whitey" Lewis, the four gunmen who shot Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, at the instigation of Chas. Becker, and like him must pay the penalty of death in the electric chair. The jury which has been hearing the evidence against the four gunmen so decided yesterday when it returned against them a verdict of murder in the first degree after but twenty minutes of deliberation.

Like Becker, the gunmen heard the verdict pronounced against them without a show of emotion. Remanded to their cells in the Tombs until today, when Justice Goff will fix the day for imposing sentence, they turned and filed out of the court room with as firm a step as when they had entered. "Whitey" Lewis—he who was the most dramatic of the four when he testified on the witness stand — alone walked with head bowed.

As they entered the door leading over the Bridge of Sighs, "Gyp" said something to "Lefty" in a sullen undertone which none could hear. Outside "Lefty's" doll-faced wife, "Lefty's" Lillian, as she is called, wept on the shoulder of her husband's father, who vainly tried to comfort her, for the verdict was quickly flashed from the court room to the waiting crowds outside. "Gyp's" wife, known as "Gyp's Lillian," received the news in the house of detention. The two other gunmen are unmarried.

Former Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, counsel for the gunmen, announced that he would appeal from the verdict, and, as in the case of Becker, many months may elapse before their ultimate fate is determined. Meantime they will occupy cells near that of the former police lieutenant in the death house at Sing Sing.

Although the jury was actually out of the court room an hour and five minutes, it was but twenty minutes after their retirement that word reached the clerk of the court that they had reached a verdict.

DR. HINCKS ON NE TEMERE

Toronto Clergyman Addresses Evangelical Alliance in London.

London, Nov. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Great enthusiasm attended the opening meeting of the campaign of protest against the ne temere decree by the World's Evangelical Alliance last evening. The vast new central hall of Manchester was taxed to the utmost capacity. The chair was occupied by Rt. Hon. Lord Kinnaird, supported by Dr. Hincks, Toronto; Dr. Montgomery, Presbyterian moderator in Ireland; Rev. Chancellor O'Connor, Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin; Rev. Webb Pelee, Sir Robert Perks, Sir Robert Anderson, Rev. Fuller Couch and Rev. Mr. Hincks, whose address was awaited with especial interest, moved a resolution expressing the sympathy of the meeting with Protestants of the Dominion, in their determination to resist the papal decree and prevent its legal enforcement.

Dr. Hincks said that Canadian Protestants were absolutely unanimous against the decree.

No Government, he declared, could refuse a united request. No political party in Canada could survive six months which openly endorsed this infamous decree, yet to-day Romanism on the banks of the St. Lawrence was stronger than on the banks of the Tiber in Italy, he said.

Rev. Dr. Hincks afterwards showed that the main reason of the objection of the German Emperor to the papal decree was that he had the same problem for Germany which the Dominion had, namely, the unifying of differing sects and to a certain extent different races.

His appeal to the audience was received with the greatest enthusiasm, the resolution being carried unanimously.

Sir Robert Perks, who followed Dr. Hincks, proposed the following resolution, which was adopted:

"That as His Majesty's Government has taken no action to protect the civil and religious rights of His Majesty's subjects who contract legal marriages, the meeting calls upon the Imperial Parliament to take steps to give the necessary relief to those who, while lawfully married, are subjected to suffering in consequence of the terms of the decree ne temere."

Canada Registers Protest.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 20—Through Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, the Canadian Government yesterday filed objections, before the International Joint Commission, to the proposed construction of an international dam at Kettle Falls, the outlet of Rainy Lake on the Minnesota-Manitoba boundary. The dam would affect the levels of the Lake of the Woods, which are now a matter of arbitration between the two Governments.

CONDITIONS ON WHICH ALLIES WILL NOT ENTER THE CAPITAL

Adrianople, Scutari and Janina Must be Given up by the Turks---Forts of Tchatalja Must Also be Evacuated---Turks May Accept Terms at Any Moment--Desperate Fighting Still Going On.

Sofia, Nov. 20.—The Bulgarian Premier Gueshoff has telegraphed to Kiamil Pasha, Grand Vizer of the Turks, the conditions under which the Bulgarians will submit to an armistice.

The allies will not enter Constantinople if the forts of Tchataldja are evacuated and four important Turkish towns are surrendered. Before they will hear of an armistice the diplomats of the little States call upon Nazim Pasha to lead every one of his fighting men from the forts in front of the capital, which he has struggled so long to hold.

Adrianople must be surrendered, and Scutari, that the Montenegrins are beseiging and have beseiged since they started the war, and whose commander said he would die with every Turk in the defence, before he surrendered, must be given up by the Turk if he seeks an armistice.

And Janina, beleaguered by the Greeks, and Dibri, in Albania, must open their gates to the allies before they will give their promise not to enter the Sultan's city.

Budapest, Nov. 20 — Servia has yielded to the Austrian demand that an Austrian official be allowed to proceed to Prisrend, to investigate the complaint made by the Austrian Consul there, that the Servians had hindered the performance of his duties. This concession relieves the immediate tension between the two countries.

London, Nov. 20.—The report that an armistice had been agreed to by the Bulgarians and Turks along the Tchatalja lines for the burial of the dead appears to have been unfounded. Despatches from Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, show that the artillery duel continued throughout the day.

The Turks claim successes against the Bulgarians, but there is nothing to indicate that the Bulgarians have yet made any serious attempt to penetrate the lines. The battle may be ended at any moment by Turkey accepting the allies' terms for an armistice, which are said to include the surrender of the Tchatalja lines, Adrianople, Durazzo and Scutari.

There is a possibility, however, that Turkey may decline to surrender Tchatalja. While her western army has been completely defeated, she still possesses, according to the correspondents at the front, a homogeneous army behind the Tchatalja fortifications, largely composed of some of her best fighting material from the Asiatic provinces, which has not yet been in action. Moreover, the demoralization and disorganization which followed the Kirk Kilisser and Lule Burgas retreats appear to have been remedied and the army is now well supplied with food and ammunition.

Under these circumstances the Porte may be induced to make a further stand in the hope of securing easier peace conditions. Evidently Bulgaria has brought up all her available forces to attack Tchatalja, including some of the Servian troops, but the task of crushing the Turkish defence may prove a difficult one. The prospect of European dissensions arising out of the settlement of the numerous territorial claims to be arranged after the war becomes daily more menacing. Austria has not presented an actual ultimatum to Servia setting a time limit for a reply to certain enquiries which she has formulated, but, short of that, the relations between the two countries are very strained, and Servia's evident intention to take Durazzo will be still another defiance of Austria.

Vice-Admiral Mone-Cuccoli, in the Austrian delegation yesterday, warned the members to be prepared for the rise of powerful Balkan navies in the Aegean Sea. This is one of the signs of the rearrangement of Southeastern Europe as a result of the war which is likely to keep the European chancellories in a state of tension for a long time to come. Both Austria and Russia are taking measures so that they will be prepared for any eventuality. It is reported from St. Petersburg that Russia is purchasing several hundred guns abroad.

According to a despatch from Belgrade the disposition of Monastir was not provided for by a prior agreement by the allies, and will likely cause trouble. The Servians wish to establish their claim and it is intended that the King of Servia shall make a triumphal entry into the city. On the other hand, the Bulgarians claim that Monastir is situated in a predominantly Bulgarian district, while the Greeks contend that the leading part of the population is of Greek nationality.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 20.—The most recent news from the front regarding fighting is a day or two old, and speaks of Bulgarians being held in check by the Turks at Tchatalja lines, and of friction between Bulgarians and Greeks at Saloniki. Bulgarian troops have received orders to cease fighting and merely hold their positions pending conclusion of an armistice. The Russian Ambassador at Constantinople is understood to have handed to the Turkish Foreign Minister last evening Bulgaria's reply to Turkey's peace proposals, and Ministers discussed this to a late hour.

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

Plurality for Coderre is 2206—Doyon, the Nationalist Candidate, Loses His Deposit—Victor Given Great Reception.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Hon. Louis Coderre, the recently-appointed Secretary of State of the Borden Government, was returned by his constituency yesterday with the decisive majority of 2,206 over his opponent, Louis Doyon, the choice of the Nationalist combine. In fact, so meagre was the support given to Doyon that his cash deposit was sacrificed, he having failed by ninety votes to poll the necessary minimum.

Of the total vote polled in the constituency of Hochelaga, Mr. Coderre received 4,222, while Doyon was let down with 2,016.

In every ward of the constituency Mr. Coderre received a comfortable majority, that in Westmount being little less than a positive landslide, Coderre getting 1,493 to Doyon's 55.

When last Mr. Coderre stood for election in Hochelaga he was opposed by L. A. Rivet, and at that time was returned with a majority of 1,362 over his Liberal opponent.

"The result shows beyond a doubt, that French-Canadians are ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with Canadians of other extraction in defence of the rights of Canada and the Empire. It shows that French-Canadians feel to the full that all their most cherished rights are wrapped up in the maintenance of the British Empire in its present condition; for the day that the British flag falls in battle will be the one on which the rights of Canadians—and French-Canadians—will be most imperilled."

In these words did Hon. Louis Coderre express himself concerning the result of yesterday's polling. He addressed several gatherings early in the evening, when the extent of his victory was known, and his tour through the various portions of his riding was a triumphal march.

The change is strongly opposed by Gompers and the more conservative element, but the radical wing of the Federation propose to force a fight on the question. The conservatives think a change would mean a step in the direction of changing the Federation into a political party.

A REVISION OF THE ACT

E. M. Trowern Advocates Reduction of Business Tax to 10 Per Cent.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—The Committee of the Legislature enquiring into the Assessment Act, heard this morning the point of view of the railway employes voiced by C. Lawrence, of Ottawa, and William L. Best, who pointed out that engineers, firemen and others only come under the income tax through working overtime, and that such tax on their excess earnings is a tax on thrift. Also that allowance is not made for extra expense they are under by spending much of their time away from home. Mr. Best wanted the amount of the income tax exemption raised from twelve hundred dollars to fifteen hundred, or even two thousand dollars.

Mayor Hopewell of Ottawa, said the people at the Capital were still unanimous in favor of a reduction in the tax on improvements and an increase tax on land which he thought would result in putting a check on land speculators and keeping land in the immediate vicinity of cities under cultivation till it was really wanted for building purposes.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—The select committee composed of members of the Provincial Legislature met at the Parliament Buildings yesterday to take evidence from various authorities as to the advisability of revising the assessment act by accepting the amendment proposed by J. A. Ellis, M.P.P., of Ottawa, or that of N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Liberal Opposition.

E. M. Trowern, secretary-treasurer of the Retail Merchants' Association, advocated that the present business tax be reduced to 10 per cent. "It is absolutely essential in the interest of these men that you do this," he declared, "because the small retailers cannot stand against such taxation, and by making such a reform, you will be pleasing 95 per cent. of them and displeasing the other five per cent.

Chairman Hon. W. J. Hanna wanted to know what the effect on real estate values would be if the act were changed, and was informed that no change would be brought about through this medium.

The assessment commissioners of Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and London were present and gave evidence to the effect that there was little objection in their cities to the business tax.

A. B. Farmer spoke of tax reform in Saskatchewan. He recited the act which at first obtained a revenue by ordering an acreage tax of 2 1-2 cents to 6 cents and said that so much dissatisfaction was incurred through this legislation that an amendment to the act was passed which provided that the land should be assessed at its actual cash value in the matter of rural townsites.

"Honest taxation" was the subject covered by W. A. Douglass, B. A. "By the taxation of improvements you encourage men to do their worst rather than the opposite.

G. B. Byron had an argument for local option taxation. He declared that the Legislature wasn't the proper forum for changing the act. "When it continues to deal with reforms which have caused grievances, a local governing body should have control."

EXCUSE ME!

BY RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT BY H. K. FLY CO.

The conductor returned and threw into Dr. Temple the glare of two basilisk eyes. The old man put out a beseeching hand and began:

"My good man, you do me a grave injustice."

The conductor snapped back: "You say a word to me and I'll do you worse than that. And if I spot you with a pack of cards in your hand again, I'll tie you to the cow-ketcher."

Then he marched off again. The doctor fell back into a chair, trying to figure it out. Then Ashton and Fosdick and little Jimmie Wellington and Wedgewood strolled in and, dropping into chairs, ordered drinks. Before the doctor could ask anybody to explain, Ashton was launched on a story. His mind was a suitcase full of anecdotes, mostly of the smoking-room order.

Wherever three or four men are gathered together, they rapidly organize a clearing-house of off-color stories. The doctor listened in spite of himself, and in spite of himself he was amused, for stories that would be stupid if they were decent, take on a certain verve and thrill from their very forbiddenness.

The dear old clergyman felt that it would be priggish to take flight, but he could not make the corners of his mouth behave. Strange twitchings of the lips and little steamy escapes of giggle-jets disturbed him. And when Ashton, who was a practiced raconteur, finished a drolatic adventure with the epilogue, "And the next morning they were at Niagara Falls," the old doctor was helpless with laughter. Some superior force, the devil no doubt, fairly shook him with glee.

"Oh, that's bully," he shrieked, "I haven't heard a story like that for ages."

"Why, where have you been, Dr. Temple?" asked Ashton, who could not imagine where a man could have concealed himself from such stories. But he laughed loudest of all when the doctor answered: "You see, I live in Ypsilanti. They don't tell me stories like that."

"They—who?" said Fosdick.

"Why, my pa—my patients," the doctor explained, and laughed so hard that he forgot to feel guilty, laughed so hard that his wife in the next room heard him and giggled to Mrs. Whitcomb:

"Listen to dear Walter. He hasn't laughed like that since he was a—a medical student." Then she buried her face guiltily in a book.

"Wasn't it good?" Dr. Temple demanded, wiping his streaming eyes and nudging the solemn-faced Englishman, who understood his own nation's humor, but had not yet learned the Yankee quirks.

Wedgewood made a hollow effort at laughter and answered: "Extremely—very droll, but what I don't quite get was—why the porter said—" The others drowned him in a roar of laughter, but Ashton was angry. "Why, you blamed fool, that's where the joke came in. Don't you see, the bridegroom said to the bride—" then he lowered his voice and diagramed the story on his fingers.

Mrs. Temple was still shaking with sympathetic laughter, never dreaming what her husband was laughing at. She turned to Mrs. Whitcomb, but Mrs. Whitcomb was still glaring at Mrs. Wellington, who was still writing with flying fingers and underscoring every other word.

"Some people seem to think they own the train," Mrs. Whitcomb raged. "That creature has been at the writing desk an hour. The worst of it is, I'm sure she's writing to my husband."

Mrs. Temple looked shocked, but another peal of laughter came through the partition between the male and female sections of the car, and she beamed again. Then Mrs. Wellington finished her letter, glanced it over, addressed an envelope, sealed and stamped it with a deliberation that maddened Mrs. Whitcomb. When at last she rose, Mrs. Whitcomb was in the seat almost before Mrs. Wellington was out of it.

Mrs. Wellington paused at another wave of laughter from the men's room. She commented petulantly:

"What good times men have. They've formed a club in there already. We women can only sit around and hate each other."

"Why, I don't hate anybody, do you?" Mrs. Temple exclaimed, looking up from the novel she had found on the book shelves. Mrs. Wellington dropped into the next chair:

"On a long railroad journey I hate everybody. Don't you hate long journeys?"

"It's the first I ever took," Mrs. Temple apologized, radiantly, "and I'm having the—what my oldest boy would call the time of my life. And dear Walter—such goings on for him! A few minutes ago I strolled by the door and I saw him playing cards with a stranger, and smoking and drinking, too, all at once."

"Boys will be boys," said Mrs. Wellington.

"But for Dr. Temple of all people—"

"Why shouldn't a doctor? It's a shame the way men have everything. Think of it, a special smoking room. And women have no place to take a puff except on the sly."

Mrs. Temple stared at her in awe: "The woman in this book smokes!—perfumed things!"

"All women smoke nowadays," said Mrs. Wellington, carelessly. "Don't you?"

The politest thing Mrs. Temple could think of in answer was: "Not yet."

"Really!" said Mrs. Wellington, "Don't you like tobacco?"

"I never tried it."

"It's time you did. I smoke cigars myself."

Mrs. Temple almost collapsed at this double shock: "Ci—cigars?"

"Yes; cigarettes are too strong for me; will you try one of my pets?"

Mrs. Temple was about to express her repugnance at the thought, but Mrs. Wellington thrust before her a portfolio in which nestled such dainty shapes of such a warm and winsome brown, that Mrs. Temple paused to stare, and, like Mother Eve, found the fruit of knowledge too interesting once seen to reject with scorn. She hung over the cigar case in hesitant excitement one moment too long. Then she said in a trembling voice: "I—I should like to try once—just to see what it's like. But there's no place."

Mrs. Wellington felt that she had already made a proselyte to her own beloved vice, and she rushed her victim to the precipice: "There's the observation platform, my dear. Come on out."

Mrs. Temple was shivering with dismay at the dreadful deed: "What would they say in Ypsilanti?"

"What do you care? Be a sport. Your husband smokes. If it's right for him, why not for you?"

Mrs. Temple set her teeth and crossed the Rubicon with a resolute "I will!"

Mrs. Wellington led the timid neophyte along the wavering floor of the car and flung back the door of the observation car. She found Ira Lathrop holding Anne Gattle's hand and evidently explaining something of great importance, for their heads were very close together. They rose and with abashed faces and confused mumblings of half swallowed explanations, left the platform to Mrs. Wellington and her new pupil.

Shortly afterward Little Jimmie Wellington grew restive and set out for a brief constitutional and a breath of air. He carried a siphon to which he had become greatly attached, and made heavy going for the observation room, but reached the door in fairly good order. He swung it open and brought in with it the pale and wavering ghost of Mrs. Temple, who had been leaning against it for much-needed support. Wellington was stupefied to observe smoke pouring round Mrs. Temple's form, and he resolved to perform a great life-saving feat. He decided that the poor little woman was on fire and he poised the siphon like a fire extinguisher, with the noble intention of putting her out.

He pressed the handle, and a stream of vichy shot from the nozzle.

Fortunately, his aim was so very wobbly that none of the extinguisher touched Mrs. Temple.

Wellington was about to play the siphon at her again when he saw her take from her lips a toy cigar and emit a stream of cough-shaken smoke. The poor little experimentalist was too wretched to notice even so large a menace as Wellington. She threw the cigar away and gasped:

"I think I've had enough."

From the platform came a voice very well known to Little Jimmie. It said: "You'll like the second one better."

Mrs. Temple shuddered at the thought, but Wellington drew himself up majestically and called out:

"Like second one bettef, eh? I supposhe it's the same way with husbandsh."

Then he stalked back to the smoking room, feeling that he had annihilated his wife, but knowing from experience that she always had a comeback. He knew it would be good, but he was afraid to hear it. He rolled into the smoking room, and sprawling across Doctor Temple's shoulders, dragged him from the midst of a highly improper story with alarming news.

"Doc, your wife looks kind o' seedy. Better go to her at once."

Dr. Temple leaped to his feet and ran to his wife's aid. He found her a dismal, ashen sight.

"Sally! What on earth ails you?"

"Been smok-oking," she hiccoughed.

A DAINTY APPETITE.

It Takes Six Meals a Day to Satisfy Queen Wilhelmina.

Queen Wilhelmina, the much beloved queen of Holland, endangers her life by overeating, according to statements made by reputable physicians.

Dr. Leds, one of the queen's own physicians, has said:

"As far as I am able to foresee she cannot remain in good health much longer. She drinks and eats so terribly that Gargantua himself would shrink before the task of making way with the repasts which are served her."

On Queen Wilhemina's recent visit to Paris it is said that only one thing marred the occasion for her; this was that her time was so fully taken up by receptions, state visits and the like that her meals were interfered with.

In the morning, according to the queen's program, immediately after rising, she takes a considerable quantity of coffee with five slices of rye bread liberally spread with butter. At 10 o'clock she eats again. This time it is rich cake, served hot, with red wine or sweet white wine on the side. At 2 o'clock she eats her "first big meal" of the day. This is composed of several courses, mostly rich viands, heavy pastries, etc., the queen partaking royally of each dish. Tea is served at 4 o'clock, the tea being of the Russian variety. Sandwiches go with this. The most important meal of the day is served at 8 o'clock, this being a veritable banquet. Her final repast is partaken of at 11 o'clock, just before retiring, and is of white wine and crackers.

Beef served in English fashion and leg of lamb roasted are her predilection among the meats. Rich cakes and pastries of all varieties. Wines, especially tokay and champaign, likewise tempt her palate.

But her doctors are in despair. Thirty years old, and pretty, the "most gracious queen" is putting on avoirdupois almost daily, and promises to be fair and likewise fulsomely fat at forty.—Kansas City Star.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
are not a new and untried remedy—our grandfathers used them. Half a century ago, before Confederation, they were on sale in nearly every drug or general store in the Canada of that day, and were the recognized cure in thousands of homes for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Rheumatism and Kidney and Liver Troubles. To-day they are just as effective, just as reliable as ever, and nothing better has yet been devised to

TO SEEK FOR SUNKEN CITIES

Submerged Land Off Yucatan Holds Fabulous Riches.

Another party of treasure hunters has left England to look for a lost continent and to salvage the countless millions worth of gold and gems and art treasures of the sunken cities of a region as large as Europe. For nearly 100 years Yucatan fishermen have been bringing up from the waters along the coast beautifully carved stones, vases and small objects of gold and silver. These fishermen are Maya Indians, who believe themselves to be the descendants of a once mighty race.

The report of these finds led an Englishman, Bernard Meekham, to explore the ruined cities of ancient civilization scattered all along the coast of Yucatan. He thus became convinced of the existence of a once populous and rich country, swallowed up by the sea long ages ago, but still accessible. The lost continent is fabled Atlantis, the search for which has been revived by the persistent teachings of the theosophical movement that it was once the home of the human race.

Observations showed that the temples, palaces and houses which formed the cities of this lost country were in far better condition than the land buried cities of Yucatan and Guatemala. Several valuable objects of gold and silver encrusted with jewels and recovered by the crude methods necessarily employed by the searchers made it practically certain that the inhabitants of the doomed land had not had time to escape with their wealth before the final catastrophe.

These discoveries, together with the traces found in the buried cities of Yucatan of a once powerful and enlightened race, indicate a wonderful civilization that was in existence long before the days of Egypt or Babylon. Even when the Spanish conquistadores invaded Yucatan these mysterious cities had been in ruins for centuries.

In some cases other cities had been built upon their sites and some were considered holy, while others were places to be shunned. In the ruins of the ancient city of Tikal, near the border of Guatemala, has been found evidence that its long forgotten people used paper chemically prepared from wood fiber and that they had printed books and libraries. They also had telescopes, accurate astronomical instruments and a perfect calendar, besides theatres and hippodromes, while their art was excellent. Gold and silver were used lavishly, even in their household utensils, and their carvings reveal a higher state of culture than Egypt or Assyria.

Submarines and divers will be employed to explore and loot the sunken cities. From the surface of the sea steel tubes will also drop into the depths of the Caribbean and from their ends will pour streams of light, illuminating streets where only the scaly denizens of the deep have wandered for untold ages.

Weighing Common Air.

The weight of air has often been tested by compressing it in receptacles by the air pump. That it really has weight when so compressed is shown by the fact that the weight of the vessels is increased slightly by filling them with compressed aid and that such vessels become, specifically "lighter" as soon as the air contained in them is exhausted. Many elaborate experiments on the weight of air have proved that one cubic foot weighs 536 gains, or something less than one and a quarter ounces. The above experiment on the weight of air is supposed to be made at the surface of the earth with the temperature at 50 degrees F. Heated air or air at high elevations is lighter.

The Word "Cannibalism."

The word "cannibalism" is really the name of a people. It is identical with Carib, many of the Caribs, who formerly flourished in the West Indies, having been consumers of human flesh. The letters "l," "n" and "r" are interchangeable in certain aboriginal American languages, so that Columbus found one West Indian island saying "Caniba" where another said "Carib," while Shakespeare's Caliban is another variety of the name. Columbus' own conjecture was that the name was connected with the great khan, and later philologists of the old slapdash type associated with "canis," a dog. Apparently, however, the meaning of "carib" was brave and daring.

Man and Art.

In ancient times there stood in the citadel of Athens three statues of Minerva. The first was of olive wood and, according to popular tradition, had fallen from heaven. The second was of bronze, commemorating the victory of Marathon, and the third of gold and ivory—a great miracle of art in the days of Pericles. And thus in the citadel of time stands man himself—in childhood, shaped of soft and delicate wood, just fallen from heaven; in manhood a statue of bronze, commemorating struggle and victory, and, lastly, in the maturity of age, perfectly shaped in gold and ivory.—a miracle of art!

A woman will work, but down at the bottom of her heart she thinks it an outrage that she has to.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL, of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from Jury & Gregory, Druggists, at $1.50 per bottle.

KISSING IN ENGLAND.

Its Prevalence at One Time Used to Puzzle Foreign Visitors.

Kissing, which has been officially prohibited at the railway station of Sarmen, in Switzerland, flourished in England in the seventeenth century to such an extent that the foreign visitor was bewildered by its prevalence. Nicolaus de Bethlen, who traveled in England in 1663, writes that "my brother and I behaved very rudely on one occasion, being unaware that it was customary in that country to kiss the corner of the mouth of ladies, instead of shaking hands, as we do in Hungary. We were invited to dine at the house of a gentleman of high rank and found his wife and three daughters (one of them married) ready to receive us. We kissed the girls, but not the married ladies, and thereby greatly offended the latter. Duval apologized for our blunder and told us that when saluting we must always kiss the senior lady first and leave the girls to the last."

The learned and sedate Erasmus in 1499 wrote a Latin letter from England to his friend Fausto Anfrolini advising him to come here at once for, he remarks: "Here are girls with angels' faces who will receive you with kisses. They come to visit you kisses again. Should they meet you anywhere, kisses in abundance—in fine, wherever you move there is nothing but kisses."

In 1466 a Bohemian nobleman named Leo von Rozmital visited England and in the "Journal of His Travel," published in 1577, he noted. "It is the custom there that on the arrival of a distinguished stranger from foreign parts the hostess with all her family goes out to meet him and the guests are required to kiss them all, and this among the English was the same as shaking hands among other nations."—Chicago News.

An Eye to Business.

The prisoner was charged with so trivial an offense that the judge told him that if he would plead guilty he would let him off with a fine.

"Before we plead guilty," replied the man's lawyer, "we'd like to know what the fine will be."

"Isn't it rather unusual to attempt to bargain with the court?" asked the judge.

"Perhaps it is, your honor," replied the lawyer, "but in this case it is important. You see, the prisoner has only $12, and as my fee is $10 we can't afford to plead guilty if you intend to fine him more than $2."—Youth's Companion.

"FEEBLE STOMACH

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble." writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the [illegible] of the blood. My [illegible] strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

Apocryphal.

Apropos of a certain rich man's purchase of a mine for $400,000 that he sold for $80,000,000, a Chicago broker told, rather bitterly perhaps, an apocryphal story about him.

"When he was a baby," the broker said, "his mother used to sing him to sleep. 'Sing a Song of Sixpence' was the lullaby she employed.

"As soon as he learned to talk his first logical remark was an interruption of this lullaby.

"'Sing a Song of Sixpence,' crooned his mother.

"And the baby, shaking its little head and smiling in a wheedling way, said: "'Make it a quarter, ma, and I'll go right off.'"—Washington Star.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 °/ₒ on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ °/ₒ compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

A MILITARY SCHEME

The proposition which Hon. Sam Hughes is considering, to add a considerable number of men to the military establishment of Canada by the formation of a reserve for every infantry battalion, is one which ought to commend itself as a sensible way of increasing our available defensive forces. The Militia Department is considering giving each regiment, such as the Fifty-Seventh, a reserve that may take the form of a rifle club, special facilities being given to the members to obtain arms and ammunition for shooting practise. Each man after passing the physical examination would be enrolled as a reserve. In case of trouble he would be liable to be called to the ranks his shooting training being his chief qualification for the special service. It is also proposed to have affiliated with each regiment a cadet corps made up of companies attached to the various companies of the senior regiment. This would give an additional stimulus to the cadet movement, which has been a striking success. All over the country applications are coming in to the Militia Department. The whole plan will be under review at an early date, and probably the matter will come up in the House.

Such a program would be of special value in connection with the Rangers. Now that Peterborough is to have its new rifle ranges, there will be plenty of accommodation for practice. The local regiment will become, under the shooting practice it will get, a more efficient body of soldiers. It will approach closer to the standards set by the regiments in Toronto and Hamilton. There will be an attraction for the creating of a shooting reserve, and the encouragement to these men to become active participants in the regular drills and manoeuvres will undoubtedly help to stimulate interest in recruiting, and in general military efficiency. From every standpoint of practical soldiering, there seems to be warrant for the move, especially as the expense of maintaining such a reserve would be very slight.

THE HYDRO RAILWAY SUGGESTION

The proposal that the municipalities which are now taking power from the Hydro-Electric Commission shall unite to build electric railways, to utilise some of the Hydro electric power, has not received the attention in the newspapers that, probably was hoped for it. The reason is not far to find. The various municipalities are engaged in doing so much constructive work, work that is absolutely necessary for the accommodation of their increasing population, that they have no spare funds for ventures into railway building. The electric suburban traffic is yet too small, too undeveloped, for there to be any real assurance that such a proposition—meeting as it would with private competition—would not be financially embarrassing.

The scheme will keep for a while, in cold storage. The Hydro-electric power system will continue to grow and develop, and the strength of the municipalities along with it. The municipalities will always have at their disposal entrances, and sites for stations, since they control their own streets (except when the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council construes Dominion legislation to mean that power companies and the Bell Telephone Company have unlimited right to use the streets of a municipality.) Peterborough is not so much interested in this development for the present as in the question of whether it ought to have Hydro-electric power in the first place. If this city is to share in the benefits of power competition the only way in which it can obtain those benefits is to introduce Hydro electric power. Only power on a municipal basis, sold to the consumers at cost, can bring competition to Peterborough. The Electric Power Company has made several alternative proposals, but they all end practically in the proposition for the exclusion of Hydro-electric power from Peterborough, and the continuance of the present monopoly. It must be said that the result of Hydro-electric competition in Hamilton, where the local company was very strongly entrenched, and fought bitterly for years, has been most salutary upon power and lighting prices. The civic hydro electric system is not in full operating condition yet, but the effect upon the Cataract Company was little short of electrical. Hamilton has probably cheaper power, for large consumers, than any other city on the hydro-electric system, but it has found it profitable to obtain the public power.

BETWEEN THE EYES

The upper part of the face is what you notice first when you meet a person.

A scowl there, is often so disfiguring that it doesn't matter how attractive the person otherwise appears—the scowl spoils it all.

In most cases scowls are the direct result of eye strain. Remove the strain the scowl passes away.

If you have any symptoms of eye strain have your eyes examined by a Specialist at once. Don't wait until ugly lines appear between the eyes.

If you need glasses he will prescribe the correct lenses. If you do not need glasses he will tell you so.

We guarantee satisfaction.

A BANK ACT CHANGE

The ranchmen of the West want the Bank Act amended so that the rancher, or the retail holder of cattle, may be empowered to borrow from the bank upon the cattle in his hands. The Bank Act as at present arranged allows the banks to lend to wholesalers upon the security of cattle in transit or grain in the elevator or transit. But neither grain or cattle in the hands of the farmer or rancher is legal security. The bank managers, knowing the farmers and ranchers, frequently lend them money on their notes, representing general security, but the widening of the Bank Act to this extent would materially increase the prosperity and business convenience of the Western country. This is important to the East, also, as meaning that wider accommodation will be given the Ontario farmer, who is now too much restricted as compared with his Western cousin, and as facilitating collections in the West and enabling the Eastern business houses to handle their Western business more easily. The change is opposed by some conservative bankers as probably giving too generous an opening for the misuse of credit. The farmer or rancher may have other creditors for the cattle or grain upon which he wants to borrow, and thus the spirit of the Act in restricting advances to otherwise unpledged securities, is violated. But the general good that would result may be regarded as outweighing the smaller disadvantages from so radical an innovation.

KEPT AN EYE ON THE HOUSE

A Neighborly Act That Resulted in a Comedy of Errors.

A gentleman and his wife occupying a villa in a London suburb asked a neighbor to "keep an eye on the place" while they were away on their annual holiday. The neighbor consented and on the first night of his caretaking noticed a light in the bedroom of the presumably unoccupied house and saw the light extinguished.

Accompanied by a policeman, the neighbor made a forcible entrance through the scullery window, and quietly the two men made their way to the bedroom. The light of the constable's bullseye disclosed the head of a man in bed, and the policeman promptly drew his truncheon.

As promptly the occupant of the bed sprang out, and a desperate struggle began. Simultaneously a lady dashed across the room shrieking, threw open the window and at considerable peril clambered out. A second constable, passing at the moment, concluded that the lady was bent on suicide and, entering the front garden, held himself in readiness to catch the woman, who appeared to be about to fling herself to the ground.

The neighbor, however, dragged the lady back into the room, and then the truth began to assert itself. The captured invader of the empty house and the escaping lady were the occupant and his wife, who had suddenly changed their holiday arrangements without informing their too vigilant neighbor.—London Globe.

TOPERS HELD LOCAL OPTION MEETING

A number of well-seasoned topers held a local option meeting of their own recently, their headquarters being in the rear of Houedry's pea warehouse.

Their varied expressions of opinion on a matter so vitally important to themselves were decidedly original and amusing.

The talk included adverse comment on the increase in the price of drinks and on the quality of the liquids with which they were served at some bars.

The majority of the gathering however, as gleaned from one who heard their conversation, were in favor of local option.

REMARKABLE OPERATION

Woman and Puppy Literally Growing Together

Chicago Nov. 20.—There's a woman in a hospital here whose flayed arm is bound tightly to a living puppy—open flesh against open flesh! Woman and puppy are literally growing together, the blood of each circulating in the veins of the other.

When the woman is given morphine, for instance, to quiet her pain, the puppy also feels its soothing influence.

All this comprises one of the most remarkable surgical efforts to save human life—not an ordinary skin-grafting case, but a startling new departure in the annals of wonderful modern surgery.

The patient is Mrs. H. W. Johnson, wife of the postmaster of Menominie, Wis.

The other patient is Nellie, a pretty sky-terrier puppy.

NOT CURABLE BY MEDICINE.

Mrs Johnson came to Chicago for treatment for a rodent ulcer, which covered a space of several inches square on her left elbow and upper arm. Rodent ulcer is a very ancient disease, said to have been one of those prevalent when Jesus healed the sick of Palestine. It usually attacks the arms or legs, and while not as frequently fatal as cancer, is not curable by medicine.

"What can you do for me?" asked Mrs Johnson, when Dr. Anderson told her how serious was her malady.

"Nothing," he answered, "unless you will submit to having the skin of an animal grafted on your arm."

"Go ahead," she said.

Two healthy puppies were taken and kept on a diet until their condition was ideal. Then one of them Nellie, the sky terrier, was called upon to risk her life to save a human being. Nellie did not choose to be a heroine, but she played her part bravely.

SKIN FROM THE DOG.

Mrs. Johnson was placed upon the operating table and given an anaesthetic. When her wound had been prepared the dog also was put to sleep. Then its abdomen was shaved.

The surgeon cut away from the puppy's abdomen three sides of a piece six or eight inches square, turning back a flap of skin, with much more of the tissue than is usually taken for skin-grafting.

One side of this flap was left upon the dog's body and the other three were stitched to the woman's arm. Dog and woman were strapped together by bands of gauze and then encased in plaster cast, so it is impossible for them to move.

The operation took only a short while and Dr. Anderson says that unless there is infection the wound will heal rapidly and the dog can be cut away from the woman in a week, when the fourth side of the flap will be stitched to its place on the woman's arm.

"Will hair grow out on the skin that was grafted?"

Probably for a while, the doctors say, but they hope in time it will take on the characteristic of the skin about it.

And what about Nellie?

Dr. Anderson says he will try to save her life.

HUGE PROFITS

Riches in Ships Nowadays Says Vessel Owner

"Shipowners are simply coining money," said a prominent London shipping authority recently.

He drew attention to the Black Sea rates (the price per ton of cargo from the Black Sea home) which were quoted recently at $4.81 a ton as against $1.31 three years ago. "With such exceptional rates prevailing, not only to and from the Black Sea, but throughout the world," he said, "the earning value of the ships has increased tremendously, and so naturally has their purchase value. I have just sold at a net profit of $35,000 a vessel which I purchased five years ago. When such exceptional prices can be obtained for ships, it follows that many shipowners, fearing a collapse sooner or later, are selling steamers which they do not want, thus increasing their year's takings.

"Within recent years the owner of a tramp steamer of 7,000 tons deemed himself fortunate if he cleared a net profit of $5,000 a year. At present rates the same steamer can clear $35,000 in a ninety days voyage to and from the Black Sea, or $140,000 a year. Placing the cost of the steamer at $200,000, this gives an income of over 60 per cent. of her value. The owner of a fleet of ten ships should be making his $1,000,000 a year, and the large company, with its twenty or thirty steamers a small fortune."

PLACED NEXT TO ADVERTISING

Albert B. Kelley, an advertising expert, of Philadelphia, sat in the Markham Club turning the 70 or 80 pages—mostly advertising matter—of weekly.

"Advertising is such an art," he said, "that many people actually buy periodicals as much for the advertisements as for the reading matter."

Mr. Kelley smiled.

"I sat in an editor's office the other day" he continued, "when a poet entered."

"'Glad to see you've accepted that sonnet of mine,' the poet said, feverishly pushing back his long hair. 'I do hope it will be widely read.'

"'It's sure to be,' said the editor. 'It's sure to be. I've placed it next to one of our most striking ads.'"—New York Tribune.

UP JUMPS THE PRICE OF LIQUOR

Standard Brands are Raised to Fifteen Cents

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Whiskey prices are soaring in some of the local bars out are steady in others.

In the places where the rise has taken place, all those standard brands which have been selling at 10 cents per drink have been raised to 15 cents each, or two for twenty-five cents. Draught whiskey is still sold at 2. cents, as well as two lines of gin, but nothing else. Fourteen brands of standard whiskey and gin, the kind most in favor by regular indulgers, which formerly sold at 10 cents each have been jumped five cents per drink or two for 25 cents. This includes four brands of gin, and 10 brands of Scotch and Canadian whiskies.

Worse still, in eight other brands of Scotch and Irish whiskies which formerly sold at 10 cents straight except in a few cases, the price this morning jumped to 15 cents straight. that is two drinks for 30 cents.

FANCY STUFF COMES HIGH.

Nor is this all, for in the case of three special brands of whiskey which formerly sold at 15 cents straight, the price has been raised to 20 cents per drink or two drinks for 35 cents. In the case of four other brands of whiskey, which sold formerly at 15 cents straight, the price has been jumped to 20 cents straight, or two drinks for 40 cents.

In the case of one of the latter brands now selling at 20 cents straight, the hotelman has some justification for raising the price, for the wholesaler hearing of the jump in the ordinary whiskies, raised his price $1.15 per case additional.

Brandy is also up in price, the ordinary kind now selling at 15 cents or two for 25 cents, the former price being 10 cents, while special grades are now 15 cents straight and upwards.

Many of the prominent places yet stick to the old prices, saying the profit is sufficient.

THEY SANG FOR SICK CHORALIST

Cambridge street was the scene of a unique performance in the open air of Handel's chorus from the "Messiah," "And the Glory of the Lord." by the members of St. George's Choral Society, who went in a body after the rehearsal in the Collegiate Hall at 10 o'clock, and sang the chorus, in response to a request from a former choralist, who is seriously ill.

The thanks of the family were conveyed to the singers through Mr. Bertram Reid.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS MET WITH SUCCESS IN THEIR CAMPAIGN

Mr. E. R. Wood's Donation of $1000 and 500 Subsciption From Hon. Geo A Cox Together with Pledges Secured Brings Total to $3022—This Will Free the Institution From Debt and the New Year Will be Commenced With a Clean Sheet

The final report of the two day Y.M.C.A. campaign was given at a banquet held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The amount aimed for was collected with the aid of $500 donated by Hon. George A. Cox.

The rpeorts for the second day were as follows:

Team	Pledges.	Amount.
No. 1	12	$102,50
No. 2	18	111.00
No. 3	16	56.50
No. 4	11	49.00
No. 5	62	179.00
		$498.00
First day reports		324.00
		$822.00
Mr. Cox's donation		500.00
Previously subscribed		700.00
Total		$2,022.00

Number 5, Mr. James Connal's team, is the winner.

Mr. E. R. Wood made the donation of $1.000 provided $2,000 was collected so that the total result of the campaign will be $3,022.00.

Short speeches were made by Canon Davidson. Hon. J. R. Stratton Mayor Bradburn, Messrs. Baker, J. J. Turner, Jr., G. A. Gillespie, Sheppard.

Several speeches made by the team leaders and the above named gentlemen, mentioned that many of the public had the idea that the Y.M.C.A. was endowed. Such is not the case, and every year money to keep up the institution has to be collected.

While the campaign has been closed, many of the teams will continue to canvass for a week or more for a larger amount.

At the close of the evening cheers were given to the teams and various people connected with the campaign.

The Y.M.C.A. is now in a position to pay off all outstanding debts and meet the expenses for the remainder of the year. In the $700 item are included a subscription of $100 from the Canadian General Electric Company and $25 from the DeLaval Dairy Supply Company. When Secretary Hainsworth, took up his duties last May, he found the building sadly in need of repairs, and added to this were debts of considerable proportion. These were handicaps not conducive to progress.

Contrasting the appearance of the interior of the building at that date with the present appearance, it is evident that a good work has been done. There is now an atmosphere of cheer about the institution, that has for some time been lacking. Young men and boys cannot fail to be impressed with the inviting appearance.

That they do appreciate the new surroundings is evidenced by the fact of every member, whose membership expired in the month of September, made renewal. In addition to this, 95 new members were received for the three months, September, October and November.

Facts such as these are eloquent tributes to the general secretary and his staff. They show that the machinery is in operation and working smoothly.

But Alex McLean will not Receive Free Lodging

Died at Lancaster, Pa.

Word was received in the city today of the death at Lancaster, Pa., of Mr. G. E. Porter, brother-in-law of Mr. W. D. Campbell, of Gilmour street. The remains will be brought to Peterborough for interment.

HOT TALK ON COLD SUBJECT

"One hour's hot talk on a cold subject," is the way Rev. C. G. Smith characterizes his lecture on Icebergs which will be given in Murray Street Church on Friday evening at an open meeting of the Willing Workers Society. Mr. Smith came to Peterborough six months ago to deliver an address at the farewell banquet in the old Murray street church and so delighted his hearers that they determined to bring him to the city again. A musical program will also be presented. There is no fee for admission. During the evening an offering will be made for foreign missions.

It always costs more to acquire a grouch than its worth.

MORAL IS PULL DOWN THE BLIND

Peeping Tom Was on Duty at Victoria Park

On Water street near Victoria Park a man was noticed recently lurking in the shadow, behind a telegraph pole, observing a bedroom window of a house opposite. The unknown was apparently engaged in peeping. It was about ten o'clock at night and the occupant of the room was in the act of retiring for the night. The man remained in that position craning his head in the endeavor to obtain a view into the room, the window shade of which was up. He stayed till the light was extinguished and then strolled off down the street.

Men Over 45 Not Wanted By Corporations

Man With Good Head of Hair Has Best Chance in Life

Men Over 45 Need Not Apply

There's the sign that's getting to be a common thing in Canada.

Corporations are retiring men at 50. They are not hiring anyone over 40.

A baldheaded man often looks 10 years older than he is.

A man with gray hair always does.

It is important nowadays that a man look as young as he is; it is vastly important that a man having a family dependent upon him should take care of his hair.

If you have dandruff, get rid of it by killing the germs.

If your hair is falling out, stop it.

If your hair is fading, don't waste any time.

There is one sure remedy that will correct these misfortunes and aid you to remain young.

PARISIAN SAGE, the grand and efficient hair restorer, is guaranteed to permanently remove dandruff in two weeks, or your money back.

PARISIAN SAGE stops falling hair—it prevents the hair from fading. It is not a dye.

It is the best beautifier for ladies' hair as it makes harsh, lusterless hair fluffy, soft and beautiful and is not sticky or greasy.

PARISIAN SAGE Hair Tonic can be obtained at drug and department stores and at counters where toilet goods are sold for 50 cents. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package and W. Madill, druggist, guarantees it.

THE BUREAU OF PLAYS

It Brought Out Some Curious Facts

By EDWIN B. HENRY

I started my career as a theatrical manager. I had no trouble in getting actors—indeed, it was all I could do to get rid of those I didn't need. They would beg for a trial sometimes with tears in their eyes, and since I am of a sympathetic disposition my feelings were often racked almost beyond endurance. As for the women who were trying to make a living on the stage, they nearly drove me distracted.

As for getting rid of the playwrights, I found it a much easier matter. Most plays I received were sent by mail or express, and when found unavailable all I had to do was to send them back by the way they had come. True, now and again an author would bring his play to my office and tell me all about how he got on to the theme and the suggestions that led to his happy hits, and after occupying three-quarters of an hour of my time he would go away satisfied he had made an impression that would insure his work special attention. I had a reader whom I kept all day poring over these manuscripts, and after the author's departure I would toss his production on the reader's desk without a word. He knew that he was to look into it and make a report upon it.

After paying my reader his salary for a year I became satisfied that it didn't pay me to keep him. Not that he was incapable of doing the work assigned him, but little or nothing came in that it seemed to me was worth producing. So I discharged him, and after that I relied for plays upon such playwrights as had established reputations.

It was about this time that I became inoculated matrimonially. The young lady upon whom I placed my affections was Miss Jenetta Starkweather and well worthy the love of any man. Unfortunately she had a father who was a very difficult person to handle. In early life he had tried his hand at acting and playwrighting. After a brief time at each he had failed as signally at one as at the other.

It is needless to say that when I was introduced to him as a suitor for his daughter's hand my calling was greatly against me. Few persons have failed in any artistic line who have not blamed almost any one except themselves for their failure. Among actors the person blamed is the manager, who will never assign an aspirant a part in which he can show his powers. Playwrights blame the manager because he will not produce their plays.

Old Starkweather, who, having failed histrionically, turned his attention to the leather business and made a fortune at it, had passed the principal part of his life grumbling at theatrical managers, whom he accused of being the cause of turning him from what he was fitted for to that which was commonplace and altogether uninteresting. Be this as it may, there was not a better buyer or a better seller in the leather district than old Starkweather.

When I applied for the hand of Jenetta the old man looked me over from head to foot, and I could see that something was moving him against me. He spent a long while talking to me about my affairs, then, after a thoughtful pause, said:

"My daughter seems to have set her heart on you; why I don't know. I never could find out why her mother set her heart on me—natural feminine cussedness, I suppose. But Jenetta seems to want you, and her marriage with you will give me an opportunity to go into a line that I have always wished to enter. I wish to prove that the reason there are no good plays on the boards or very few of them is that the plays sent in by playwrights who have not achieved a reputation is owing to the fact that the plays are not read. I am ready to put up the money to hire a corps of readers to read carefully all plays that are submitted for examination and to produce on the boards those that are found to be meritorious. I wish to be a silent partner, having nothing to do with the management of the business. How would you like to be the active partner?"

It was plain that Jenetta might pass peaceably into my possession if I should consent to enter upon a scheme which would take up a great deal of my time to no purpose and would sink considerable money for my prospective father-in-law. I set him down for one of those persons who "know it all" and believed that any attempt to convince him of the futility of his proposed enterprise would be useless. By such attempt I would risk losing his daughter; by consenting I might possess her at once. I was anxious for an immediate marriage and chose the latter alternative.

"I would be very happy, Mr. Starkweather," I said, "to manage your scheme for you. Indeed, it will only be an addition to what I am now doing. We shall at least prove whether good plays are being wasted or whether authors having strong dramatic instinct are being lost to the world on playwrights through lack of encouragement."

"Very well, sir," he replied. "I will place $10,000 to your credit at the —th National bank for capital. When do you and Jenetta propose to be married?"

"I believe it is the lady's privilege to fix the day," I replied.

Within a month I became a married man and had the "bureau of plays" in working order. I hired a dozen readers of experience in theatrical matters and another dozen who had never tried to write a play or had tread the boards. When all was ready I advertised for plays. They came in by hundreds. I had each play looked into by an expert and an inexpert reader, and those that seemed worthy of attention were passed along up through the others till they came to me.

I had had sufficient experience in my business to enable me to take advantage of Mr. Starkweather's enterprise to solve a problem connected with it that had long interested me. I hired a competent person to pounce upon the motif of each play—wherein there was motif—and enter it in a blank book kept for the purpose with a brief statement of the machinery or the story or whatever it may be considered by which the theme was illustrated. I had a theory in my mind which I believed would be proved or disproved by this record.

Well, I was surprised to find that though we were obliged to go through a great deal of chaff to get a very little wheat we did get some wheat. Much of this wheat turned out to have been produced by playwrights who had already achieved some success, but what astonished me was that we received a number of plays that were based on an excellent dramatic theme and only needed fixing up by one familiar with the technique of the stage to make them acceptable.

I selected one of these plays by an unknown author and took it to my father-in-law with the suggestion that we put it on the boards. He was much pleased with the result thus far of his scheme and gave his consent to the play's production.

The play was called "The Secret Drawer." The plan turned upon the finding of a lost will. There were a number of fine dramatic scenes in it, the author had succeeded in presenting it in a form to hold the attention of an audience, and I was fortunate in finding actors and actresses well fitted to impersonate the different characters. The piece succeeded and proved fairly remunerative. Mr. Starkweather was delighted at the proof of his statement that to get plays managers must read manuscripts.

The day after the production of "The Secret Drawer" I received a call from a gentleman with long hair and beard wearing a rusty suit of black.

"What do you mean, sir," he said, "by stealing the plan of my play, rewriting it and putting it on the boards? It was sent you in confidence, and I did not dream of your appropriating it without paying for it."

"To what play do you refer?" I asked.

"To my play, 'The Lost Will.' You have called your version of it 'The Secret Drawer.'"

"My friend," I said after surveying him for some time thoughtfully, "I am only a passenger in this business. You go to John Starkweather, No. 107 B street, and state your case to him."

"Starkweather, the leather man?"

"Yes."

"He's rich. If he doesn't come down handsomely for this theft I'll sue him." And he went out to find my father-in-law.

A dozen accusations were made either in person or by letter of our having stolen the themes of plays submitted to us and declined. In several instances certain names in the plays we accepted and produced were identical with names in the plays we were accused of stealing. I referred all the claimants to my beloved father-in-law. Two different authors commenced suit against him for appropriating their thunder. Finally he sent for me. I went to him with the book containing the record of themes and methods of their presentation under my arm.

"What's the meaning of all these charges?" he asked angrily.

"I'll tell you. There are hardly a dozen themes on which to base stories or plays, and every author thinks at least one of these themes belongs to him. There are more than a million authors and not enough themes to go round."

I opened my record book and began to read.

"In 10,000 plays examined 9,247 parents objected to the match. In the same number of plays the theme in 1,542 turned on a lost will; 973 turned on a match essential on account of adjoining estates, 805 on a person assuming to have committed a crime to save the criminal, 691 on"—

"Stop!" exclaimed Mr. Starkweather. "I don't care to have any more of these details. They reduce the glorious histrionic art to the level of the leather business. It reminds me of the causes for our bad debts. There are but a few classes of these causes, the principal one being bad management. What do you think it will cost to compromise these cases of plagiarism, breach of copyright or whatever they are?"

"From 25 cents to $25."

"What?"

I repeated.

"Pay 'em off and close the bureau. I've had enough of this business."

"I'll do it at once."

As I was passing out I turned and asked.

"Do you still think, Mr. Starkweather, that you were badly treated by managers when they"—

I saw him reaching for an ink well and closed the door behind me just in time to hear the thing crash against a panel.

No matter how young you are, you are probably old enough to know better.

A woman should, of course, be proper, but without so often calling attention to the work.

AGAINST SHERMAN LAW.

Federation of Labor Spends Day Discussing the Act.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 20.—An all-day discussion of the Sherman anti-trust law, as interpreted in the Danbury Hatters' case yesterday, prevented consideration by the American Federation of Labor convention of the minority report by the committee on education, favoring the adoption of industrial unionism.

Discussion on the Sherman law was ended at five o'clock, and the question of taking steps to encourage its amendment was referred back to the committee on the president's report, which will make a recommendation later in the week. By a special order of business, discussion of industrial unionism was set to follow the Sherman law discussion and will be taken up to-day.

All day speakers arraigned the Sherman law as a menace to the right of workers to associate for purposes of common interest. On this point there was agreement, but a difference of opinion arose as to the best means to combat the law. Members of the radical wing of the convention argued that political action through a party organized in the workers' interests was the only means. President Gompers and other members of the conservative wing held that the remedy lay in the election of labor men of whatever political affiliation to Congress and agitation against the law by time-honored union methods. Whatever means is employed, it was the convention's sentiment that the law must, in the words of President Gompers, "be amended or ended."

Smallpox Closes School.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—The Board of Health of the city has ordered the closing of a school maintained by a religious order at the corner of St. Lawrence and Laurier avenues, because two of its teachers refused to be vaccinated after a case of smallpox occurred among the pupils. One of the teachers is now sick, with probably smallpox.

Publish My Letter The World Over

The Words of Harold P. Bushy, Who Was Permanently Cured of Chronic Lumbago by "Nerviline."

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

LETTER NO. 4311

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

"Please publish my letter the world over. I want all to hear of Nerviline."

Don't be cajoled into receiving anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." Large bottles 50c., trial size, 25c. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Investigate Arrangement.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Vigorous investigation by the Federal Government of the reported traffic arrangement between the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which New England state officials fear will destroy railway competition in that section, was promised yesterday by Attorney-General Wickersham to representatives of the governors of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Members of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission and the Rhode Island Utilities Commission, speaking for the governors of these states, appealed to President Taft yesterday for federal intervention under the Sherman anti-trust law to check the alleged deal and prevent any monopolization of the railroad facilities of New England. It was alleged that the Grand Trunk has abandoned its proposed extensions in southern New England in consideration of tracking privileges from the New Haven.

Great Shipping Combine.

New York, Nov. 20.—A special to The World from London says It is asserted with great circumstantiality in financial circles that preliminary negotiations have been completed to form the greatest shipping combine the world has ever seen, one which in point of tonnage, capitalization and resources, would dwarf J. Pierpont Morgan's International Mercantile Marine.

The companies pooling their interests are:

The Cunard, with a capital of $10,000,000 and thirty-one steamers.

The Peninsular & Oriental, capital $17,500,000, and sixty-four ships.

The British Indian Steam Navigation Co., capital $8,500,000, and 129 steamers.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., capital $60,000,000, and 129 steamers.

Furness, Withy & Co., capital $17,500,000, and 63 steamers.

Sir Owen Phillips is carrying out the deal.

In Celtic Revival.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn, the Nationalist member for Galway City in the British Commons, has played a prominent part in the Celtic literary revival, and has achieved no small measure of fame by his own writings.

He is one of six brothers who have achieved distinction in various walks of life. His father, Dr. John Gwynn, is a Biblical scholar of note, and for many years was regius professor of divinity at Dublin University. Mr. Stephen Gwynn's mother, who died five years ago, was a daughter of the famous William Smith O'Brien, who was sentenced to death for being concerned in the rising of '48.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn was educated in Ireland and at Oxford. He had a brilliant scholastic career, and on leaving the university entered the teaching profession. After a time he drifted into authorship and journalism. He has produced some delightful books of a topographical nature, and one remembers with pleasure "A Holiday in Connemara" and "Highways and Byways in Donegal and Antrim." Mr. Gwynn is an enthusiastic angler, and has written much on his favorite pastime.

$30 NOT ENOUGH FOR HOCKEY PLAYERS' TRAINING

The Directors of the Y.M.C.A. do not feel disposed to accept the offer of $30 by the Hockey Club Executive for the use of the Y.M.C.A. gym. and baths by the hockey players.

One of the Directors said to-day that such a proposition was not fair to the membership, and furthermore, that the cost for extra hot water, which the players would require, would mean an outlay of $22 at least for coal. The balance of $8, if it is supposed to represent the value of Mr. Thompson's services, is certainly not a very glowing tribute o the services of the Physical Director. The trainers divide $10 weekly.

It is evident from opinions expressed by Y.M.C.A. officials, that the Hockey Club will have to pay a larger amount if the players are to receive training at the Y.M.C.A.

RECORD HIGH JUMP

California Athlete Holds Honor For the World

New York, Nov. 19— The high jump of 6 feet 61-8 inches, made by G. L. Horine, in a dual meet at Leland Stanford University, on March 29 last, was accepted as the world's record by the awards committee of the amateur athletic union to-day.

The committee also accepted eleven records made by American athletes at the recent Olympic games in Stockholm.

NO PROOF IN ABDUCTION CASE

Jack Johnson is Free on One Charge

Chicago, Nov. 20—A charge of abduction against Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, was dismissed before Municipal Judge Hopkins, because of the prosecution's inability to prove that Lucile Cameron, the white girl whose association with Johnson led to his arrest, had been abducted by him. The girl and her mother, Mrs. Cameron-Falconnet, both of whom are witnesses against Johnson in the Federal action for alleged violation of the Mann White Slave Act, were not in court when the city case was dismissed.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The Hamilton Spectator says: — The sportsmanlike qualities of the Toronto crowd are shown in the news report received here yesterday, in which it was charged that the Alerts were instrumental in the Toronto police department going after Heffernan. Other than inform Referee Ben Simpson before the game that it was understood that Heffernan had broken quarantine and that it was felt that he should not play, the Alerts took no action in the matter at all. The Toronto club should be ashamed to admit that they allowed Heffernan to play at all under the circumstances, and it can be easily understood that a club which would use a player under such conditions would not be adverse to making such a charge as was sent out yesterday.

The O.R.F.U. Executive has ordered that the Alerts and Torontos play again on Saturday. Alerts say they will not play the game.

The Eaton A. A. has withdrawn from the O.H.A. Frank Rankin will play for St. Michaels.

Rube Deneen is favored among several applications as manager of the London Baseball Club.

Fred Taylor leaves Ottawa this week to play hockey in the Coast League. It is said he will receive $2,200.

Truth is stranger than fiction and equally dangerous.

PIE SOCIAL BY THE REBEKAHS

Large Gathering Enjoyed the Interesting Program

About 200 people enjoyed themselves last night at the Rebekah Pie Social and Concert, held in the Oddfellows Hall. Ald. Johnston made an excellent chairman, and stirred the gathering to laughter by his witty remarks.

Miss Olive Howell sang in pleasing voice, "My Laddie," and the A. Quartette, composed of Messrs. W. Cunningham, Ed. Walton, G. Biggs and F. Deakin, whose voices blended perfectly, rendered Plantation Songs. Little Harry Murdiff surprised the audience with his sweet voice, and two recitations by Col. Miller were received with loud applause. A recitation by Miss Ethel Hill, entitled "Hanging a Picture," was another very pleasing contribution. Mr. F. Whitehouse, violinist, gave Haydn's hymn with variations, and was accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade. Mr. F. Pratt, in military attire, excelled himself in singing "Heroes and Gentlemen out in the Deep," and "The Outpost."

The committee appreciates very much the kindness of those who assisted in the program.

Canada's Navy In Ill-Favor.

London, Nov. 20.—A Portsmouth correspondent says pensioners and fleet reserve men are fighting shy of offers to join the Canadian navy, and asserts that the real cause of the trouble is that Canada is trying to start a navy without proper preparations for the men's training and accommodation.

The Evening News yesterday gave these assertions considerable prominence. The correspondent says that men who went out in the Niobe and Rainbow were picked men, hoping to fill the position of instructors. They found nothing ready for them and the recruits who presented themselves in the belief that they would receive training on a man-of-war found themselves limited to an old fishing schooner.

The Canadian recruits' dissatisfaction has reached the ears of British sailors, who consequently regard the Canadian navy extremely suspiciously.

The Literary Obeisance.

In the past days of literary patronage, a preface reeking with humility was considered indispensable to all books. Then, the literary man was an outsider, and only in rare cases was he admitted into the society of the high-born on other terms than those of humble retainer. Hence, we read—strangely enough to our eyes—the most revered of writers making obeisance before all manner of forgotten nobleman—Bernard Lintot in T.P.'s Weekly.

MAID JOAN

Her Dinner Party Role and the Sequel.

By ETHEL BARRINGTON.

As the last strains of Schumann's symphony died away Joan leaned back, with a sigh. Her enjoyment of music was so acute at times it touched the borderland of pain. Her eyes wandered to the other occupant of the box, who had entered late, and she was surprised to find his gaze fixed on her in recognition. She felt a flush glow beneath her olive skin; then she bowed distantly and with a sort of finality returned to the study of her program. It was one of the small boxes tucked far back in the wide balcony of the academy; but, as Joan assured her mother, music was quite as enjoyable there as in the more conspicuous seats.

When the solo ended she could not resist glancing toward her companion or smiling in recognition of their mutual enjoyment. Besides, had he not saved her at his own risk from a scorching motorcar only the week before? At the time she had been so startled that she barely thanked him, her one desire being to avoid the disagreeable attention caused by her escape. It would be only ordinary good manners to thank him now.

"You were very prompt and courageous the other day," she began graciously. "My thanks were slight, but don't judge my gratitude by that."

"I trust you suffered no ill effects from the adventure?"

"No—that is, nothing material." Joan laughed at her own wit, having confided to her sister that her rescuer's fine eyes and rich deep voice had haunted her ever since. Her laugh loosened the strain of reserve, so that they exchanged criticisms on the orchestra. The girl was delighted to find some one as music mad as herself. She rose regretfully when it was over, but he detained her, asking diffidently:

"Will you permit me to introduce myself?"

Accepting the proffered card, Joan recognized a name given by her sister as that of a fellow guest at their aunt's recent reception. Her hero, then, proved all a maid could desire, though his very prominence left little chance of further acquaintance.

"If I knew your name," he suggested hopefully, "perhaps a mutual friend —I do want to know you better."

Joan hesitated, but because he was so evidently in earnest was tempted to admit: "I'm called Joan, and there is at least one person who knows us both. If sincere you will find out the rest for yourself." Then she hurried home.

A tale of tribulation greeted her. "Bridget has gone, without a moment's notice," her sister complained. "Mother and I have worked all the afternoon. Joan, I'm distracted—unless you'll help me."

"I'm not much good at cooking," protested Joan, "and for a dinner party—Alice, you'll be a fright if you cry or rub your nose any redder. What do you want me to do?"

"Mother will finish the cooking," declared Alice. "Will you serve it? Oh, please," as Joan negatived the suggestion. "I should be so humiliated if compelled to wait on ourselves! There will be no one that you know—only two men."

"Mr. Clive?" inquired Joan. And on her sister nodding assent she yielded, with a grimace.

Before going to her mother's assistance, however, she could not resist relating the afternoon's meeting, winding up triumphantly, "So that my hero proves to be the exclusive Laurence Hale."

While dressing Alice thought uneasily of this revelation. Having told Joan that the proposed guests were strangers, if she now confessed Hale to be one of them would her sister not refuse the part assigned her? Yet much depended on the success of the evening.

The girls' aunt, Mrs. Drew, moved in the circle of Philadelphia's elite, a privilege forfeited by their mother on her marriage to a struggling musician. Of late Mrs. Drew, perhaps because of Alice's resemblance to herself, had taken an interest in her niece and had given her a winter's gayety, an advantage Alice now planned to follow up with an informal dinner in order that her mother might meet Clive, who had shown her considerable attention. Before Bridget's defection everything had promised well; even now there need be no failure if Joan fulfilled her promise.

"Will I do?" demanded Joan, rushing in arrayed in regulation black with a white apron, her naturally wavy hair drawn severely back and pinned closely around her head.

Alice felt reassured. Joan looked so demurely prim!

She received the [illegible] not see them until she announced softly, "Dinner is served," when, meeting the astonished gaze of Laurence Hale, she fled precipitately back to the dining room. Enraged that such a trick should have been played her, her first thought was of throwing up the task and leaving the little party to shift for itself. The harm, however, was done. Alice's eyes pleaded for forgiveness, which Joan willfully misunderstood by offering her the olives. She watched Clive with curiosity, discovering that though he was deferential to her mother and took his part in the conversation he seemed to think only of her sister, and with a rush of tender sympathy Joan forgave the embarrassment of her own position.

That Hale was puzzled and chagrined he showed plainly, but she systematically avoided meeting his eye. When the ladies returned to the parlor with Clive in their wake Hale hung back. Joan, busy with the silver, waited curiously, but apparently changing his intention Hale followed his friend.

"You were perfect, dear," her mother admitted the next day, "but I only consented to the plan because Alice fretted so."

"What can it matter?" exclaimed Joan comfortingly. "I have no society aspirations, as has Alice."

Before the week passed Alice's engagement to Harry Clive was announced. She was very gracious in her new found happiness.

"I am going to tell Harry of your good nature, Joan, and have him set you right with that Mr. Hale. I believe you like each other"— But Joan cut short this project.

"If he thinks me a servant girl after talking to me, let him."

"But the evidence is against you," Alice reminded her. "Be reasonable. King Cophetua and the beggar maid belong to the age of romance, not to the twentieth century."

"You will make no explanation," persisted Joan, unmoved. "As for your delightful Harry, you will find he did not even look at me."

This statement proved correct. Clive's unembarrassed greeting of his future sister-in-law proved him unhampered by a suspicion that he had ever eaten a dinner of her serving. Friday's concert found Joan sorely disgruntled. She was sure that the unity of the first violins was ragged, that the soprano sang carelessly, and was meditating a hasty retreat when some one spoke softly in her ear:

"Good afternoon, Maid Joan!" Laurence Hale appropriated the vacant chair at her side. "I've been looking for you all the afternoon."

"You have discovered my name?" she asked mischievously.

"No, but I've discovered something of greater importance—that your name does not matter at all."

The exquisite strains of a Tschaikowsky composition silenced them, and Joan found the concert suddenly full of strange delight. The spell was still over her when they came out into the street. Hale, having gained permission to see her to a car, was silent.

"Of course I recognized you the other night," he said at last, "and was too astonished to reason clearly at first. But one of two things is certain—you are either playing some prank or are in trouble. If the latter I want to help you. One moment," as Joan was about to speak. "You must understand my position. Possibly you are one of those who laugh at love at first sight. I believe in it, having experienced it. Later I hope to make you sympathize. At present I can think only of your position."

"You mean"—Joan's voice sounded unusually small—"you like me despite my being only a maid"—

"The most bewildering maid in the world"—

"Don't look at me like that. It is embarrassing in the street. Besides, this is my car." Then relenting as she waited an opportunity to enter: "It was a masquerade to help my sister. Supposing you ever come again, inquire for Joan Prince."

"I'll try that suggestion now," said Hale gratefully as he followed her into the car.

The Beaked Whale.

Some time ago a specimen of Layard's beaked whale was found stranded on the beach near Port Elizabeth, South Africa. This find was of great importance to zoology, because hitherto very little has been accurately known concerning this strange inhabitant of the ocean. The specimen found near Port Elizabeth and since mounted in the museum there is a male nineteen feet two inches long. From the lower jaw project upward two tusks with two sharp enameled teeth. The creature could open its beak only four or five inches at the outer end, and its gullet was so narrow that it is evident that the animal devoured only very small fish and seaweed. The beaked whale is said to furnish oil of an exceptionally fine quality.—Harper's.

Courting Death on Railroads.

It is a mistake to believe that tramps constitute the majority of those who suffer from railroad accidents. Out of 10,000 persons killed on the railroads of the United States last year more than half were trespassing on railroad property, and 80 per cent of these were reported as "struck by engine or car" while walking or standing on the tracks. About 500 were killed "in getting on or off cars and engines," 1,043 were injured while on trains and 116 from other causes. The majority of the killed were reported as self supporting. Intoxication, of course, contributed to a large extent to the number of deaths.—Leslie's.

A Very Grateful Man.

Frank Koetsch, a laborer, was put on trial at Gras, in Styria, Austria-Hungary, for his action in saving the life of a would be suicide. He had found a man dangling from a tree and had promptly cut him down and taken him to a hospital. The man recovered from the effects of the hanging, but complained of a scalp wound he had received when falling to the ground, and he brought a charge of personal injury by carelessness against the man who had saved his life. Koetsch was acquitted, but declared he would take care never to act the good Samaritan again.

If you can't do anything else you can keep out of the way.

An idle rumor never spends much time in the office of a busy man.

ALD. G. N. GORDON GIVES HIS OPINION ON HYDRO SCHEME

Gives His Support to the Proposition in its Present Form.

The Review intends to obtain the opinions of the different Aldermen as to the Hydro Electric scheme, as at present outlined by the Honorable Mr. Beck.

Alderman Gordon, on being seen this morning, said he would heartily support the Hydro Electric By-Law in its present form, and he felt that every householder, manufacturer and merchant in the city would make a serious mistake, if he did not support the Hydro Electric By-Law and arrange for the completion of the scheme at once.

Alderman Gordon said that he had been consulting the City Solicitor about it, and in drafting the By-Law, powers have been extended so that the City may acquire, purchase, construct or build power lines, erect poles and construct conduits under the streets. This was none for the purpose of permitting the City, if necessary, to build main lines throughout the City, and if it was necessary to expropriate or purchase lines in a small section of the City. This could be done without a new By-Law and under the general powers conferred upon the Council by this By-Law.

The present scheme is to build an entirely new line, at Mr. Beck's valuation of $120,000, which will include wiring to the houses, meters, transformers, and the whole equipment necessary to build special lines to transmit electric energy over the whole City, and this will be substantially as extensive as the Peterborough Light and Power Company's Plant and the Otonabee transmission lines.

It is intended, if the ByLaw is not changed in its present form, that the conduits will be laid down George street, from McDonnel street to the C.P.R. and along Charlotte street to the Grand Trunk station, and no doubt over other parts of the city, and as soon as it can be conveniently done, and these conduits should have chambers, so that space can be rented to the G.N.W. Telegraph, the C.P.R. Telegraph the Bell Telephone, and any other Companies having wires upon the streets, so that there will not be the hideous views which we have of George street now, by a forest of poles leaning in all directions.

The Power Commission can order all wires placed beneath the surface, and Mr. Gordon feels that the Council will make an application to compel the Companies to place their wires under ground in the business parts of the city, unless they agree to rent space from the city through its conduits, which it is proposed under the by-law to lay in the business parts of the city. This will work out well in the paving scheme which is to follow, as the poles will then be all removed and the conduits placed, so that there will be no occasion of tearing up the streets for either the stringing of wires or connection to the water mains, as all connection to the water mains on the streets where it is proposed to lay payments has, it is said, been completed this summer.

Mr. Gordon intimated that, while for the first few years there would be probably more power bought by the city than it used, yet this would well pay the city and the ratepayers because every dollar of profit made out of the sale of power, went back into the hands of the people, and in the space of thirty years, the city will own the complete plant, free of all charges and liabilities, and the only cost to the ratepayers for power and electric energy for light, will be the cost of the operation of the plant, which will be extremely small.

Mr. Gordon said he had given considerable time and thought to this by-law, and his view was, that the city was on the turning point of a very great expansion if the by-law should be carried and that there should be a business man's campaign to do what they could to place the hydro-electric program before the electors in its best light, because if that scheme failed to carry, it would in all probability have a serious effect on the city's development.

SOANES FAMILY

Mr Soanes Formerly Resided in Peterboro

For a living emplification of the fact that stage children can be as healthy and as wholesome as any other children, one has but to look at the Soanes family. They are about the prettiest, healthiest, happiest and most natural bunch of youngsters who ever spent their nights in the glare of the footlights.

A specially interesting fact about Mr. Arnold Soanes, the father of the wonderful family of musicians and leader of the troupe, is that he is an old Peterborough boy. It is thirty-five years since he left Peterborough to embark upon the musical career in which he has won such signal success. Mr. Soanes was the eldest of the family and even in his childhood exhibited rare musical talent.

To a Review representative who enjoyed a chat with him to-day, Mr. Soanes was very reminiscent. He remembered this city when it was but a quarter of its present size. His old home was in the vicinity of George and Lock streets, and he and his brother Harry, of Tweed, who came up to greet his brother, paid a visit to the old homestead yesterday.

The family, including the parents, number ten, and all are here. Mr. Soanes said he would be extremely glad to hear from any one with whom he was acquainted in the years ago.

"How did you happen to raise such a healthy looking bunch of youngsters on the road?" was asked the father. "Well," he replied, "for one thing thet are naturally healthy and we have always taken the best of care of them. I always take them to a good hotel where I know they will get good food and watch what they eat. And then they have all the opportunities in the world to get plenty of exercise and they take full advantage of it."

Walter, the youngest of the family, is seven years of age.

"This is Herr Director and the youngest director in the world," said the father proudly pointing to the lad as he appeared in his smart little uniform.

The Soanes family are filling an engagement at the Princess Theatre.

WOULD LIKE THE POT RETURNED

If the person or persons who stole the creamed chicken and mushrooms from a residence on Aylmer street yesterday would call at Coleman Brothers, they may receive timbale shells to serve them in. At the same time the well known firm of caterers would be glad to have the pot in which the food was at the time of the theft, returned.

RECITAL AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

One of the musical treats of the season was given in St. Paul's church last evening before a large audience. A splendidly arranged program was carried out by Mr. John Allan, organist, Miss Dorothy Allan, soloist, and Mr. Wm. Wilson, violinist. All the numbers were very heartily received.

Miss Allan displayed a clear unwavering voice at great advantage in her solo work.

Mr. Wilson also displayed noteworthy ability as a violinist. He is a pupil of the conservatory.

DEFENCE OF CHARLES GIBSON IN MURDER CASE IS OPENED

Prosecution Refuses to Call Frank Smith, the Convict, Who Said He Heard Two Men Discussing the Murder—Eli Dunkelman Testifies After Protest From Gibson's Laywer.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Many dramatic features were present in the closing hours of the crown's case against Charles Gibson, on trial before Sir William Mulock in the criminal assizes for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal on the night of Good Friday last. The crown closed its case just before adjournment yesterday afternoon and the defence evidence is now being heard.

When the crown's last witness had been called Aubrey A. Bond, counsel for the defence, arose to ask that one more be added to their number. He asked that the crown call Frank Smith, now serving five years in Kingston Penitentiary for housebreaking, who has made a strange and startling statement regarding the case, Crown Prosecutor Meredith refused to call the witness, and Sir William Mulock upheld him. Smith's statement made to the governor of Toronto jail some time ago was to the effect that he heard two men telling how they committed the murder.

When the crown again offered the testimony of Eli Dunkelman in the afternoon as to what had happened after Gibson left the Strachan avenue bridge with Rosenthal, Mr. Bond rose to object. He urged that the crown had set out a triple proposition—that he went to the yard where the body was found with Rosenthal; that human blood was found on Gibson's clothing, which he admitted, and explained by the fact that Gibson's brother had been hurt in a bicycle accident on the day of the accident, and had had three stitches put in his head at St. Michael's Hospital. The third point was that the rope around Rosenthal's neck was part of a clothes line from Gibson's home. He contended that they had not shown any evidence of any actual violence to Rosenthal by Gibson, and that until they did the evidence of any assault upon Dunkelman was inadmissable. During his remarks he declared that he would show by the evidence of a disinterested party that Dunkelman's evidence was perjured.

The judge remarked: "There are a number of circumstances shown which, if unexplained, would justify the jury in finding the prisoner guilty."

Dunkelman took the stand and repeated his evidence as given at the inquest, telling how Gibson had come back to the bridge for him and had taken him down to the yard, saying that Rosenthal was inside the Hydro building with the manager. He says that Gibson told him to look at the lightning, and that then he was struck down. He declared that he had not again seen Rosenthal, even when he recovered consciousness in the morning and described his laborious trip across the city to his home, where he collapsed.

Dr. Alex. Davis told of Dunkelman's condition at the hospital. He declared that his memory was still hazy, but returning, and might be relied upon as to the main facts. It may take a year before it is completely recovered.

The defence opened with the evidence of two men who had met Dunkelman on his way home. They had asked him what was the matter with him and what had happened. He had said to them: "Me fall; me fall." He seemed dazed. The case should be closed to-day.

BOY TOOK PILLS FROM HIS HOME

Gavve Them to Other Boy, Who Afterwards Died

Toronto, Nov. 21.—As a result of the investigations of Detective Harry Twigg among the pupils attending the Essex Street School, the boy who gave the fatal tablets to Archie Duncan last Monday has at last been found. He is Wilfrid McIntyre, aged 12, 372 Ossington avenue. The little fellow told the detective that he took a box of pills from his mother's room at home and gave the Duncan boy seven of them. The fact that they were coated with candy and brownish in color led the child to believe they were candy. The balance of the box was secured at the boy's home. The mother secured the tablets from a reputable physician in Toronto and had been taking them at regular intervals.

STARVE THE FLY THE LATEST CRY

Fly Killing Contests Relegated to the Back Ground.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—In presenting the report of the fly fighting committee of the American Civic Association, Chairman Edward Hatch, jr., expressed the hope that there may be no more fly-killing contests.

The sentiment took the assembled fly-fighters by surprise, which was dissipated, however, when Mr. Hatch said:

"I cannot insist too much or too often upon cleanliness as the beginning, middle and end of the fly-fighting campaign. 'Swat the fly' as a slogan must give way to 'starve the fly.' The latter is more euphonious and infinitely more practical."

In its concluding phases the committee's report made a feature of the fact that in cities in which substantial cash prizes were awarded in no case did the number of flies killed in the whole of a campaign exceed the quantity which could easily have been reared from an average size piles of stable refuse in the course of a few weeks. While the educational value of such fly-killing campaigns cannot be overestimated, the report said it would seem that greater results might be gained by conducting campaigns against dirty stables and backyards, garbage heaps and dumps and all places that produce flies and supply them with infection.

Wants To Come East.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—The resignation of [illegible] Sara, business manager of the city power department, was received yesterday morning by the Board of Control. He will return to his home in Toronto to be identified with the Hydro-Electric Commission in that city.

An offer of the Board of Control to meet the salary offered by the eastern concern, he intimated, would not keep him in Winnipeg, his main objection being to return to his home locality.

JAMAICA SUFFER FROM FLOOD AND HURRICANE

Forty-Two Lives Are Reported Lost at Montego Bay and Communication With Kingston is Cut Off—Wind Blew at a Hundred Miles an Hour.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 21.—The western end of the Island of Jamaica has been devastated by a hurricane, lasting five days. A great tidal wave has swept over both the north and south coasts, practically wiping out the towns of Savanna la Mar and Lucea, both places of considerable importance.

Forty-two people were killed by the hurricane in Montego Bay, according to a report brought by a fruit vessel which arrived at Port Antonio early yesterday.

All the coast roads have been wrecked along the southwestern coast and much damage has been done. Communication between Kingston and the centre of destruction is not likely to be resumed for a week.

The latest reports indicate that the tidal wave swept over Savanna la Mar and adjacent villages for a quarter of a mile inland. The effects of the hurricane extended along the coast eastward to Black River, about twenty-five miles from Savanna la Mar, where the residential quarter was wrecked.

Floods which accompanied the storm caused immense damage, a hundred houses being blown down. Telegraphic communication is still suspended.

The Governor of Jamaica has left on a special train, accompanied by a detachment of artillerymen, who have taken with them three hundred tents and foodstuffs, as in certain sections the people are homeless and destitute.

The gale began on Nov. 15 and continued with increasing fury for several days. Vessels arriving in port report that the wind was blowing over a hundred miles an hour.

Lucea is a small town of two thousand inhabitants on an inlet on the north coast of Jamaica, while Savanna la Mar is a seaport with the same number of inhabitants on the south coast, almost directly opposite on the other side of the island, a

NAVAL FORCES OF EMPIRE SHOULD BE STRENGTHENED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 21—"During the past summer four members of my Government conferred in London with His Majesty's Government on the question of naval defence. Important discussions took place and conditions have been disclosed which in the opinion of my advisers render it imperative that the effective naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened without delay. My advisers are convinced that it is the duty of Canada at this juncture to afford reasonable and necessary aid for that purpose. A Bill will be introduced accordingly."

This was the important and interesting paragraph in a speech of rather less than usual length delivered by the Duke of Connaught at the opening of Parliament this afternoon. Other legislation foreshadowed was Bills authorizing the co-operation of the Dominion with Provinces in agricultural instruction and improvement of highways; revision of Bank charters and increased representation for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in the Senate. Reference is made in the speech of the tour of the Royal party during the summer; to increases in trade, revenue and immigration; to trade arrangements with the West Indies and to reductions in cable rates already secured and to come. For assisting the Provinces in the work of agricultural instruction, a liberal financial provision is promised.

MONGOLIA FOR THE CHINESE

Negotiations Opened With the Russian Government

Pekin, Nov. 21.—The Chinese Government has opened negotiations with the Russian Government with respect to Russia's recent recognition of the autonomy of Mongolia, which has created an anti-Russian agitation throughout the province. The Minister of Foreign Affairs yesterday visited the legation and voiced China's claim to the control of Mongolia's foreign relations. He suggested that no foreign powers should send troops to Mongolia and that China's representative should have guarantees there as in Tibet.

Recent despatches indicated that many of the Mongolian princes were strongly opposed to the convention between Russia and Mongolia, by which Russia recognizes and guarantees the independence of Mongolia. They urged President Yuan Shi Kai to afford military protection to those Mongolians ready to join the Chinese Republic. Troops to the number of 45,000 attached to the northern army are already under orders to proceed to the Mongolion frontier if necessary.

PASSING OF ACTIVE LIFE

W. H. Beatty, Prominent Lawyer, Dead at Age of Seventy-Seven.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Another of Toronto's most prominent and respected citizens passed away yesterday in the person of William H. Beatty at his residence, 6 Queen's Park. In law, commerce and public affairs he was for many years a leading spirit.

He was born in Toronto in 1835, five years after his father, James Beatty, merchant, settled here. He was educated at Upper Canada College and was admitted as an attorney in 1863. In April, 1865, he married Charlotte Louise, daughter of the late J. G. Worts, who survives him with four children, Henry W., Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, Mrs. W. H. Cawthra, and C. W. Beatty.

In politics Mr. Beatty was a lifelong Conservative, and a personal friend of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau. He always declined to take any public office.

In 1896 he was recommended for appointment as queen's counsel by the Tupper Government.

His life was a very active one. He was connected with many of the great financial institutions of the city. He began practicing law in 1865, and for many years his firm was Beatty and Chadwick.

For some time, on account of failing health, he has been confined to his house. Prior to his health failing, he was president of the Bank of Toronto, president of the Canadian Permanent Mortgage Corporation, president of the Confederation Life Association, vice-president of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, and vice-president of Gooderham and Worts, Ltd.

He was an Anglican and a member of St. James Cathedral.

WILL AMEND LEMIEUX ACT

Crothers to Bring Amendments Before the House.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—It is understood that among the legislation to be introduced this session will be important amendments to the Lemieux Dispute Act. From time to time during the past year or so this act has been subjected to much criticism by labor organizations and others.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has made during the past summer a pretty close study of these criticisms and also of labor legislation in other countries, with the result that he will seek to have the present act amended in an effort to further satisfy, as far as it is possible to do so, the demands of employers as well as of employes.

HARROWING CONDITIONS PREVAIL

CANADIAN PRESS DESPATCH

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—The Ottoman Government has rejected the terms offered by the allies and Nazim Pasha has been instructed to resume operations.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—A newspaper man who visited the Turkish cholera camp at San Stefano, accompanied by a foreign attachee and a United States officer, paints a terrible picture of the harrowing conditions prevailing there. At one spot was found a group of sixty dead and dying, lying on a manure pile, where they had crawled for warmth,

London, Nov. 21.—The war has shifted for a time from the field of arms to that of diplomacy. It may be that the war is near to an end. Plenipotentiaries for the belligerent powers will meet to-day at the Village of Hademgeui, a few miles outside the capital, for a preliminary discussion of the terms of an armistice.

In the meantime the Turkish, Bulgarian and Servian commanders have ordered a cessation of hostilities, although cannonading, which Nazim Pasha reports as unimportant, occurred yesterday morning. The sweeping terms which the allies were said to have demanded Tuesday for a basis for the armistice, appear not to have been advanced, but the plenipotentiaries may not know the level platform until they meet for the discussion, and it is almost certain that it will be on the basis of the Balkan states holding all the conquered country until a permanent treaty of peace is signed. How many concessions they are prepared to make to the Turks depends largely upon two factors—the strength and supplied of the allied army threatening the gates of Constantinople and the extent to which the cholera spectre has embarrassed their plans.

It is certain that great transport difficulties hamper the Bulgarian army on account of the distance from its base and the rough roads. The cholera is counted on by the Turks to weaken the Bulgarian ambition for a triumphal march into the capital, and the celebration of mass in St. Sophia. But to make assurance doubly sure the Turks resorted to the amazing plan of transforming the mosque into a pesthouse and has crowded 2,000 cholera stricken patients within its walls.

Turkey Checks Triumph.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—Nazim Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army; Izzet Pasha, chief of general staff of the war office and late commander-in-chief in Yemen, and Chaden Bey, councillor of state, have been appointed the Ottoman plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of an armistice with the Bulgarian representatives.

The question of peace bulks large in the foreground. The fact that the official communications with regard to the Bulgarian reply, issued at both Constantinople and Sofia, make no mention of preliminary conditions, has given rise to comment, as it was generally expected that Bulgaria would insist upon fixing bases before consenting to enter upon negotiations. Indeed, the belief was very general that Bulgaria would demand the capitulation of Adrianople and other fortified places, and the Foreign Minister recently stated to the ambassadors that Turkey would refuse to entertain any such stipulation.

Apparently Bulgaria has found good reasons for refraining from such an attitude, especially as the entering upon pourparlers will not compel the suspension of hostilities until the armistice has been actually signed.

It is generally believed that the object of the authorities in quartering nearly 2,000 cholera patients in the Mosque at St. Sophia is to deter any enemies from setting foot within the building. The talk in the Sofia papers regarding the celebration of Te Deums in that historic pile undoubtedly produced an impression on the Turkish Government which resorted to this truly oriental expedient of thwarting such a design.

MOVING PICTURES NOT FOR SUNDAY

Lord's Day Alliance to Move Against Lawbreakers

Montreal, Nov. 21.—The Lord's Day Alliance of Montreal and the Province of Quebec, decided yesterday, that in view of the recent decision of the Supreme Court that the Quebec Lord's Day Act was ultra vires, they would proceed against the lawbreakers under the federal law, which is a much more restrictive measure. Those immediately concerned in this decision on the part of the guardians of Sabbath observance will be 49 moving-picture houses, which throw their doors open on the first day of the week as well as the other six.

At yesterday's meeting, which was the annual gathering for both bodies, the old slate of officers was returned without a change.

NO SENTIMENT FOR ANNEXATION

Says Hon. Geo. P. Graham to Canadian Club

Boston, Nov. 21.—"There is absolutely no sentiment on our side of the line favoring annexation," said Hon. George P. Graham, former Minister of Railways of the Dominion of Canada, to members of the Canadian Club of Boston at the club's dinner last night. Among other speakers were Capt. Cartwright, military aide to the Governor-General of Canada, and H. P. Bullock of St. John, N.B.

County Pupils Barred.

Brantford, Nov. 21—Owing to failure in securing an adjustment of the claim of $6,000 against the county for the attendance of county pupils at the Collegiate Institute the trustees have decided that after January 1 no county pupils will be admitted at the institute. The decision is the result of a long-standing dispute between the city and county authorities.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday quietly celebrated his 71st birthday. Felicitations and congratulations were received from England, France, United States, and Canada. The "old chief," as he is now almost universally called, did not permit the occasion to interfere with his work and was hard at work in his office the greater part of the day.

Handsome Donation to Church.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Several wealthy Toronto Baptists who take a great interest in downtown evangelistic work have just made a handsome donation, running up to several thousand dollars, to the Baptist Memorial Church, Tecumseh street.

The work is also under the auspices of Walmer Road Baptist Church and is to be developed on an extensive scale. It is reported that the board have received substantial offers for present site to utilize it for factory purposes. In case the present site is disposed of an institutional memorial church on a comprehensive scale is talked of. Rev. A. L. Brown, pastor of the church, stated last night that the new plans were not ready for announcement.

H. B. COWAN SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF LAND TAXATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 21— H. B. Cowan, editor of "Farm and Dairy" Peterborough, appeared before the Ontario Special Committee on Legislation at noon to-day, in support of a measure which would take taxation off improvements and put it on land. In this, he thought, was one solution to prevent the depopulation of rural stations, and would also result in a decrease of tenanted farms, and an increase of farms worked by owners. To taxation of improvements and the consequent rising in price of land, he attributed the depopulation of rural Ontario. The Committee also heard Lawson Purdy, Assessment Commissioner of New York, explain the working of a system whereby real estate values were assessed separately from improvements.

DEFENCE OF CHARLES GIBSON IN MURDER CASE IS OPENED

Prosecution Refuses to Call Frank Smith, the Convict, Who Said He Heard Two Men Discussing the Murder—Eli Dunkelman Testifies After Protest From Gibson's Laywer.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Many dramatic features were present in the closing hours of the crown's case against Charles Gibson, on trial before Sir William Mulock in the criminal assizes for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal on the night of Good Friday last. The crown closed its case just before adjournment yesterday afternoon and the defence evidence is now being heard.

When the crown's last witness had been called Aubrey A. Bond, counsel for the defence, arose to ask that one more be added to their number. He asked that the crown call Frank Smith, now serving five years in Kingston Penitentiary for housebreaking, who has made a strange and startling statement regarding the case. Crown Prosecutor Meredith refused to call the witness, and Sir William Mulock upheld him. Smith's statement made to the governor of Toronto jail some time ago was to the effect that he heard two men telling how they committed the murder.

When the crown again offered the testimony of Eli Dunkelman in the afternoon as to what had happened after Gibson left the Strachan avenue bridge with Rosenthal, Mr. Bond rose to object. He urged that the crown had set out a triple proposition—that he went to the yard where the body was found with Rosenthal; that human blood was found on Gibson's clothing, which he admitted, and explained by the fact that Gibson's brother had been hurt in a bicycle accident on the day of the accident, and had had three stitches put in his head at St. Michael's Hospital. The third point was that the rope around Rosenthal's neck was part of a clothes line from Gibson's home. He contended that they had not shown any evidence of any actual violence to Rosenthal by Gibson, and that until they did the evidence of any assault upon Dunkelman was inadmissable. During his remarks he declared that he would show by the evidence of a disinterested party that Dunkelman's evidence was perjured.

The judge remarked: "There are a number of circumstances shown which, if unexplained, would justify the jury in finding the prisoner guilty."

Dunkelman took the stand and repeated his evidence as given at the inquest, telling how Gibson had come back to the bridge for him and had taken him down to the yard, saying that Rosenthal was inside the Hydro building with the manager. He says that Gibson told him to look at the lightning, and that then he was struck down. He declared that he had not again seen Rosenthal, even when he recovered consciousness in the morning and described his laborious trip across the city to his home, where he collapsed.

Dr. Alex. Davis told of Dunkelman's condition at the hospital. He declared that his memory was still hazy, but returning, and might be relied upon as to the main facts. It may take a year before it is completely recovered.

The defence opened with the evidence of two men who had met Dunkelman on his way home. They had asked him what was the matter with him and what had happened. He had said to them: "Me fall; me fell." He seemed dazed. The case should be closed to-day.

BOY TOOK PILLS FROM HIS HOME

Gavve Them to Other Boy, Who Afterwards Died

Toronto, Nov. 21.—As a result of the investigations of Detective Harry Twigg among the pupils attending the Essex Street School, the boy who gave the fatal tablets to Archie Duncan last Monday has at last been found. He is Wilfrid McIntyre, aged 12, 372 Ossington avenue. The little fellow told the detective that he took a box of pills from his mother's room at home and gave the Duncan boy seven of them. The fact that they were coated with candy and brownish in color led the child to believe they were candy. The balance of the box was secured at the boy's home. The mother secured the tablets from a reputable physician in Toronto and had been taking them at regular intervals.

STARVE THE FLY THE LATEST CRY

Fly Killing Contests Relegated to the Back Ground.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—In presenting the report of the fly fighting committee of the American Civic Association, Chairman Edward Hatch, jr., expressed the hope that there may be no more fly-killing contests.

The sentiment took the assembled fly-swatters by surprise, which was dissipated, however, when Mr. Hatch said:

"We cannot insist too much or too often upon cleanliness as the beginning, middle, and end of the fly-fighting campaign. 'Swat the fly' as a slogan must give way to 'starve the fly.' The latter is more euphonious and infinitely more practical."

In its concluding phases the committee's report made a feature of the fact that in cities in which substantial cash prizes were awarded in no case did the number of flies killed in the whole of a campaign exceed the quantity which could easily have been reared from an average size piles of stable refuse in the course of a few weeks. While the educational value of such fly-killing campaigns cannot be overestimated, the report said it would seem that greater results might be obtained by conducting campaigns against dirty stables and backyards, garbage heaps and dumps and all places that produce flies and supply them with infection.

Wants To Come East.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—The resignation of R. A. Sara, business manager of the city power department, was received yesterday morning by the Board of Control. He will return to his home in Toronto to be identified with the Hydro-Electric Commission in that city.

An offer of the Board of Control to meet the salary offered by the eastern concern, he intimated, would not keep him in Winnipeg, his main object being to return to his home locality.

JAMAICA SUFFER FROM FLOOD AND HURRICANE

Forty-Two Lives Are Reported Lost at Montego Bay and Communication With Kingston is Cut Off—Wind Blew at a Hundred Miles an Hour.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 21.—The western end of the Island of Jamaica has been devastated by a hurricane, lasting five days. A great tidal wave has swept over both the north and south coasts, practically wiping out the towns of Savanna la Mar and Lucea, both places of considerable importance.

Forty-two people were killed by the hurricane in Montego Bay, according to a report brought by a fruit vessel which arrived at Port Antonio early yesterday.

All the coast roads have been wrecked along the southwestern coast and much damage has been done. Communication between Kingston and the centre of destruction is not likely to be resumed for a week.

The latest reports indicate that the tidal wave swept over Savanna la Mar and adjacent villages for a quarter of a mile inland. The effects of the hurricane extended along the coast eastward to Black River, about twenty-five miles from Savanna la Mar, where the residential quarter was wrecked.

Floods which accompanied the storm caused immense damage, a hundred houses being blown down. Telegraphic communication is still suspended.

The governor of Jamaica has left on a special train, accompanied by a detachment of artillerymen, who have taken with them three hundred tents and foodstuffs, as in certain sections the people are homeless and destitute.

The gale began on Nov. 15 and continued in increasing fury for several days. Vessels arriving in port reported that the wind was blowing over one hundred miles an hour.

Lucea is a small town of two thousand inhabitants on an inlet on the northwest coast of Jamaica, while Savanna la Mar is a seaport with the same number of inhabitants on the southwest coast, almost directly opposite on the other side of the island.

TURKISH INFANTRY PATROL MAINTAIN MARTIAL LAW IN CONSTANTINOPLE

NAVAL FORCES OF EMPIRE SHOULD BE STRENGTHENED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 21—"During the past summer four members of my Government conferred in London with His Majesty's Government on the question of naval defence. Important discussions took place and conditions have been disclosed which in the opinion of my advisers render it imperative that the effective naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened without delay. My advisers are convinced that it is the duty of Canada at this juncture to afford reasonable and necessary aid for that purpose. A Bill will be introduced accordingly."

This was the important and interesting paragraph in a speech of rather less than usual length delivered by the Duke of Connaught at the opening of Parliament this afternoon. Other legislation foreshadowed was Bills authorizing the co-operation of the Dominion with Provinces in agricultural instruction and improvement of highways; revision of Bank charters and increased representation for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in the Senate. Reference is made in the speech of the tour of the Royal party during the summer; to increases in trade, revenue and immigration; to trade arrangements with the West Indies and to reductions in cable rates already secured and to come. For assisting the Provinces in the work of agricultural instruction, a liberal financial provision is promised.

MONGOLIA FOR THE CHINESE

Negotiations Opened With the Russian Government

Pekin, Nov. 21.—The Chinese Government has opened negotiations with the Russian Government with respect to Russia's recent recognition of the autonomy of Mongolia, which has created an anti-Russian agitation throughout the province. The Minister of Foreign Affairs yesterday visited the legation and voiced China's claim to the control of Mongolia's foreign relations. He suggested that no foreign powers should send troops to Mongolia and that China's representative should have guarantees there as in Tibet.

Recent despatches indicated that many of the Mongolian princes were strongly opposed to the convention between Russia and Mongolia, by which Russia recognizes and guarantees the independence of Mongolia. They urged President Yuan Shi Kai to afford military protection to those Mongolians ready to join the Chinese Republic. Troops to the number of 45,000 attached to the northern army are already under orders to proceed to the Mongolion frontier if necessary.

London, Nov. 21.—Two suffragettes were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment for window-smashing by the judge of the London Court of Sessions yesterday.

Isabella Irving was sent up for six months and Ethel Slade for four months on the charge of damaging shop windows in Bond and Oxford streets on Nov. 6, when they participated in a raid with other women as a protest against the rejection by the House of Commons of an amendment providing for woman suffrage in the Home Rule bill for Ireland.

PASSING OF ACTIVE LIFE

W. H. Beatty, Prominent Lawyer, Dead at Age of Seventy-Seven.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Another of Toronto's most prominent and respected citizens passed away yesterday in the person of William H. Beatty at his residence, 6 Queen's Park. In law, commerce and public affairs he was for many years a leading spirit.

He was born in Toronto in 1835, five years after his father, James Beatty, merchant, settled here. He was educated at Upper Canada College and was admitted as an attorney in 1863. In April, 1865, he married Charlotte Louise, daughter of the late J. G. Worts, who survives him with four children, Henry W., Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, Mrs. W. H. Cawthra, and C. W. Beatty.

In politics Mr. Beatty was a lifelong Conservative, and a personal friend of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Chas. Tupper, and Hon. Mr. Chapleau. He always declined to take any public office.

In 1896 he was recommended for appointment as queen's counsel by the Tupper Government.

His life was a very active one. He was connected with many of the great financial institutions of the city. He began practicing law in 1865, and for many years his firm was Beatty and Chadwick.

For some time, on account of failing health, he has been confined to his house. Prior to his health failing, he was president of the Bank of Toronto, president of the Canadian Permanent Mortgage Corporation, president of the Confederation Life Association, vice-president of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, and vice-president of Gooderham and Worts, Ltd.

He was an Anglican and a member of St. James Cathedral.

WILL AMEND LEMIEUX ACT

Crothers to Bring Amendments Before the House.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—It is understood that among the legislation to be introduced this session will be important amendments to the Lemieux Dispute Act. From time to time during the past year or so this act has been subjected to much criticism by labor organizations and others.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has made during the past summer a pretty close study of these criticisms and also of labor legislation in other countries, with the result that he will seek to have the present act amended in an effort to further satisfy, as far as it is possible to do so, the demands of employers as well as of employes.

HARROWING CONDITIONS PREVAIL

Canadian Press Despatch

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—The Ottoman Government has rejected the terms offered by the allies and Nazim Pasha has been instructed to resume operations.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—A newspaper man who visited the Turkish cholera camp at San Stefano, accompanied by a foreign attachee and a United States officer, paints a terrible picture of the harrowing conditions prevailing there. At one spot was found a group of sixty dead and dying, lying on a manure pile, where they had crawled for warmth,

London, Nov. 21.—The war has shifted for a time from the field of arms to that of diplomacy. It may be that the war is near to an end. Plenipotentiaries for the belligerent powers will meet to-day at the Village of Hademgeui, a few miles outside the capital, for a preliminary discussion of the terms of an armistice.

In the meantime the Turkish, Bulgarian and Servian commanders have ordered a cessation of hostilities, although cannonading, which Nazim Pasha reports as unimportant, occurred yesterday morning. The sweeping terms which the allies were said to have demanded Tuesday for a basis for the armistice, appear not to have been advanced, but the plenipotentiaries may not know the level platform until they meet for the discussion, and it is almost certain that it will be on the basis of the Balkan states holding all the conquered country until a permanent treaty of peace is signed. How many concessions they are prepared to make to the Turks depends largely upon two factors—the strength and supplied of the allied army threatening the gates of Constantinople and the extent to which the cholera spectre has embarrassed their plans.

It is certain that great transport difficulties hamper the Bulgarian army on account of the distance from its base and the rough roads. The cholera is counted on by the Turks to weaken the Bulgarian ambition for a triumphal march into the capital, and the celebration of mass in St. Sophia. But to make assurance doubly sure the Turks resorted to the amazing plan of transforming the mosque into a pesthouse and has crowded 2,000 cholera stricken patients within its walls.

Turkey Checks Triumph.

Constantinople, Nov. 21.—Nazim Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army; Izzet Pasha, chief of general staff of the war office and late commander-in-chief in Yemen, and Chadan Bey, councillor of state, have been appointed the Ottoman plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of an armistice with the Bulgarian representatives.

The question of peace bulks large in the foreground. The fact that the official communications with regard to the Bulgarian reply, issued at both Constantinople and Sofia, make no mention of preliminary conditions, has given rise to comment, as it was generally expected that Bulgaria would insist upon fixing bases before consenting to enter upon negotiations. Indeed, the belief was very general that Bulgaria would demand the capitulation of Adrianople and other fortified places, and the Foreign Minister recently stated to the ambassadors that Turkey would refuse to entertain any such stipulation.

Apparently Bulgaria has found good reasons for refraining from such an attitude, especially as the entering upon pourpariers will not compel the suspension of hostilities until the armistice has been actually signed.

It is generally believed that the object of the authorities in quartering nearly 2,000 cholera patients in the Mosque at St. Sophia is to deter any enemies from setting foot within the building. The talk in the Sofia papers regarding the celebration of Te Deums in that historic pile undoubtedly produced an impression on the Turkish Government which resorted to this truly oriental expedient of thwarting such a design.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 By A. R. FINE CO.

The world seemed to be crashing round Dr. Temple's head. He could only gurgle, "Sally!"

Mrs. Temple drew herself up with weak defiance: "Well, I saw you playing cards and drinking."

In the presence of such innocent deviltry he could only smile: "Aren't we having an exciting vacation? But to think of you smoking!—and a cigar!"

She tossed her head in pride. "And it didn't make me sick—much." She clutched a chair. He tried to support her. He could not help pondering: "What would they say in Yp-hip-silanti?".

"Who cares?" she laughed. "I—I wish the old train wouldn't rock so."

"I—I've smoked too much, too," said Dr. Temple with perfect truth, but Mrs. Temple, remembering that long glass she had seen, narrowed her eyes at him: "Are you sure it was the smoke?"

"Sally!" he cried, in abject horror at her implied suspicion.

Then she turned a pale green. "Oh, I feel such a qualm."

"In your conscience, Sally?"

"No, not in my conscience. I think I'll go back to my berth and lie down."

"Let me help you, Mother."

And Darby and Joan hurried along the corridor, crowding it as they were crowding their vacation with belated experience.

CHAPTER XIX.

Foiled!

It was late in the forenoon before the train came to the end of its iron furrow across that fertile space between two of the world's greatest rivers, which the Indians called "Iowa," nobody knows exactly why. In contrast with the palisades of the Mississippi, the Missouri twists like a great brown dragon wallowing in congenial mud. The water itself, as Bob Burdette said, is so muddy that the wind blowing across it raises a cloud of dust.

A sonorous bridge led the way into Nebraska, and the train came to a halt at Omaha. Mallory and Marjorie got out to stretch their legs and their dog. If they had only known that the train was to stop there the quarter of an hour, and if they had only known some preacher there and had had him to the station, the ceremony could have been consummated then and there.

The horizon was fairly saw-toothed with church spires. There were preachers, preachers everywhere, and not a dominie to do their deed.

After they had strolled up and down the platform, and up and down, and up and down till they were fain of their cramped quarters again, Marjorie suddenly dug her nails into Mallory's arm.

"Honey! look—look!".

Honey looked, and there before their very eyes stood as clerical a looking person as ever announced a strawberry festival.

Mallory stared and stared, till Marjorie said:

"Don't you see? stupid! it's a preacher! a preacher!"

"It looks like one," was as far as Mallory would commit himself, and he was turning away. He had about come to the belief that anything that looked like a parson was something else. But Marjorie whirled him round again, with a shrill whisper to listen. And he overheard in tones addicted to the pulpit:

"Yes, deacon, I trust that the harvest will be plentiful at my new church. It grieves me to leave the dear brothers and sisters in the Lord in Omaha, but I felt called to wider pastures."

And a lady who was evidently Mrs. Deacon spoke up:

"We'll miss you terrible. We all say you are the best pastor our church ever had."

Mallory prepared to spring on his prey and drag him to his lair, but Marjorie held him back.

"He's taking our train, Lord bless his dear old soul."

And Mallory could have hugged him. But he kept close watch. To the rapture of the wedding-hungry twain, the preacher shook hands with such of his flock as had followed him to the station, picked up his valise and walked up to the porter, extending his ticket. But the porter said—and Mallory coud have throttled him for saying it:

"'Scuse me, posson, but that's yo' train ova yonda. You betta move right smaht, for it's gettin' ready to pull out."

With a little shriek of dismay, the parson clutched his valise and set off at a run. Mallory dashed after him and Marjorie after Mallory. They shouted as they ran, but the conductor of the east-bound train sang out "All aboard!" and swung on.

The parson made a sprint and caught the ultimate rail of the moving train. Mallory made a frantic leap at a flying coat-tail and missed. As he and Marjorie stood gazing reproachfully at the train which was giving a beautiful illustration of the laws of receding perspective, they heard wild howls of "Hi! hi!" and "Hay! hay!" and turned to see their own train in motion, and the porter dancing a Zulu step alongside.

CHAPTER XX.

Foiled Again.

Mallory tucked Marjorie under his arm and Marjorie tucked Snoozleums under hers, and they did a sort of three-legged race down the platform. The porter was pale blue with excitement, and it was with the last gasp of breath in all three bodies that they scrambled up the steps of the only open vestibule.

The porter was mad enough to give them a piece of his mind, and they were meek enough to take it without a word of explanation or resentment.

And the train sped on into the heart of Nebraska, along the unpoetic valley of the Platte. When lunch-time came, they ate it together, but in gloomy silence. They sat in Marjorie's berth throughout the appallingly monotonous afternoon in a stupor of disappointment and helpless dejection, speaking little and saying nothing then.

Whenever the train stopped, Mallory watched the on-getting passengers with his keenest eye. He had a theory that since most people who looked like preachers were decidedly lay, it might be well to take a gambler's chance and accost the least ministerial person next.

So, in his frantic anxiety, he selected a horsey-looking individual who got on at North Platte. He looked so much like a rawhided ranchman that Mallory stole up on him and asked him to excuse him, but did he happen to be a clergyman? The man replied by asking Mallory if he happened to be a flea-bitten maverick, and embellished his question with a copious flow of the words ministers use, but with a secular arrangement of them. In fact he split one word in two to insert a double-barrelled curse. All that Mallory could do was to admit that he was a flea-bitten what-he-said, and back away.

After that, if a vicar in full uniform had marched down the aisle heading a procession of choir-boys, Mallory would have suspected him. He vowed in his haste that Marjorie might die an old maid before he would approach anybody else on that subject.

Nebraska would have been a nice long state for a honeymoon, but its four hundred-odd miles were a dreary length for the couple so near and yet so far. The railroad clinging to the meandering Platte made the way far longer, and Mallory and Marjorie left like Pyramus and Thisbe wandering along an eternal wall, through which they could see, but not reach, one another.

They dined together as dolefully as if they had been married for forty years. Then the slow twilight soaked them in its melancholy. The porter lighted up the car, and the angels lighed up the stars, but nothing lighted up their hopes.

"We've got to quarral again, my beloved," Mallory groaned to Marjorie.

Somehow they were too dreary even to nag one another with an outburst for the benefit of the eager-eyed passengers.

A little excitement bestirred them as they realized that they were confronted with another night-robeless night and a morrow without change of gear.

"What a pity that we left our things in the taxicab," Marjorie sighed. And this time she said, "we left them," instead of "you left them." It was very gracious of her, but Mallory did not acknowledge the courtesy. Instead he gave a start and a gasp:

"Good Lord, Marjorie, we never paid the second taxicab!"

"Great heavens, how shall we ever pay him? He's been waiting there twenty-four hours. How much do you suppose we owe him?"

"About a year of my pay, I guess."

"You must send him a telegram of apology and ask him to read his meter. He was such a nice man—the kindest eyes—for a chauffeur."

"But how can I telegraph him? I don't know his name, or his number, or his company, or anything."

"It's too bad. He'll go through life hating us and thinking we cheated him."

"Well, he doesn't know our names either."

"IMPOSSIBLE TO HELP MY KIDNEYS"

Until I Used "Fruit-a-tives" Worlds Greatest Kidney Cure

Practically everybody in Toronto knows Professor J. F. Davis. For years, the elite of that city has taken lessons from Prof. Davis in the art of Dancing and Deportment.

His constant activity gradually weakened his Kidneys, which calamity threatened to make him an invalid.

But read Prof. Davis' letter—

563 CHURCH ST., TORONTO, ONT.
DECEMBER 29th. 1911

"I want to say that "Fruit-a-tives" is my only medicine, and has been for the past five years. Previous to that, I had been troubled with Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, and had taken many remedies without satisfactory results. Noticing the advertisements of "Fruit-a-tives" I adopted this treatment altogether, and as everyone knows, I am now—and have been since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—enjoying the best of health".

J. F. DAVIS.

If Rheumatism or Kidney Trouble is making you miserable, take "Fruit-a-tives" and get well.

IMITATION FUR.

Only an Expert Can Tell It From Real Pelt.

SEALETTE COAT WITH PERSIA FUR.

Until this season imitation fur coats have never deceived the initiated, but this year the manufacturers have put upon the market a material that resembles fur so nearly that it takes an expert to distinguish it from actual pelt.

Sealette is one of the cleverest of the new imitations, and it has the deep brown color with silvery glints when the pile of the plush is pushed the wrong way which is a characteristic of sealskin. When the sealette is smartly made up and trimmed handsomely it is a charming wrap, which may be purchased at a comparatively small cost.

STOUT LADIES WEAR BLACK.

This Advice is Given by Expert on Optical Illusion.

How black clothes deceive the eye, often to the advantage of the wearer, was explained by Professor Stirling, F. R. S., in a lecture upon "Optical Illusions."

"My advice to a lady or gentleman suffering from excessive rotundity," said Professor Stirling, "is to stick severly to black. Light clothing adds considerably to one's apparent bulk."

He demonstrated the point by exhibiting simultaneously white figures on a black ground and black figures on a white ground. Although all the figures were the same size, those in white upon black appeared to have much greater dimensions.

Working upon this illusion, Professor Stirling suggested that notices printed in a limited space in white upon black were more emphatic than the ordinary black upon white.

BURIAL GROUND FOR THE RED MEN

Mr. John Mar, who lives near Warkworth, in plowing, unearthed what appeared to be an old Indian burying ground. A number fo skulls and bones were turned up by the plow and from the shape of the skulls the opinion is that they are those of red men.

No matter how young you are, you are probably old enough to know better.

LABOR RADICALS WERE DEFEATED

Federation Will Not Adopt Industrial Unionism

Rochester, Nov. 21.—After a debate that lasted all day, members of the radical wing of the American Federation of Labor were defeated by a vote of nearly two to one in their attempt to have the federation adopt the principle of industrial unionism in place of its policy of trade autonomy. Two hundred and forty-nine delegates voted against the minority report of the committee on education, which favored the principle of industrial unionism and 142 voted in its favor.

The voting strength of the convention, based on membership it represented, went 10,983 against the minority report and 5,929 for it.

After the minority report had been defeated the majority report in favor of continuance of trade autonomy was adopted by acclamation.

The debate preceding the vote is said by veteran labor men to have been one of the most spirited that ever took place in a federation convention.

What Women Are Doing.

The Kansas campaign for equal suffrage will succeed if women of the rural districts have their way. The plan is for every farm woman to contribute chickens and eggs, which will be sold at public auction and the proceeds turned into the general campaign fund.

The first suffrage conference of the diverse nationalities of the Austrian empire was recently held in Vienna. There were present representatives of the German suffrage committees of Vienna, Brun and Troppan; also of the Polish societies of Cracow, Leopol, Yassy, Garlitz and New Sandec and of the Slavonic women from Laibach.

The women of Guthrie, Okla., have organized what is said to be the first woman's chamber of commerce in the United States.

Mrs. A. M. Ellis has just been elected mayor of Johannesburg, South Africa. She is said to have an unusual record as a successful business woman.

The election of Mme. Seno Kin to the presidency of an important bank in Tokyo marks the change which has come to the Japanese women in recent years.

Pretty Girls and Plain Men.

When a pretty woman marries a plain man it is not because she pities him. A woman loves a man because of his strength. His determination appeals to her and wins her in the end, though she may not have been attracted to him in the beginning. Firmness compels a woman's admiration and respect, and that is the first stepping stone to love.

Chickens to Win Votes.

Kansas farmers' wives and daughters who are working to have the full suffrage amendment carry at the fall election will contribute to a "chicken fund" to help the cause.

Each woman will take to the county seat a chicken, which she will sell, and the money thus raised will be devoted to campaign expenses.

Sharks Spoil Fishing.

The valuable pilchard fishery of the Cornish coast has been brought to a standstill by the unwelcome presence of a number of huge white sharks, and the officer representing the Cornish fisheries, and Commander Chambers, of the Coastguard Service, have arrived to assist in the work of wiping out these monsters. A fisherman gives a graphic account of an attempt to effect a capture. He says:

"When some twenty-two miles of the Wolf Lighthouse we managed to drive a harpoon into a shark which at once made off at great speed. We let out our fifty fathoms of 2½ inch manilla rope, and, hoping to hold the moster back, kept the engines going at full speed. Our plan was to drown the fish. But the plan was beyond our power to carry out. On and on went the shark, harpoon and gunshot wound notwithstanding, till at length the fish snapped the rope as if it were made of twine."

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

LUNG TROUBLE

Mrs. Biny Brown, of Tenecape, N.S., Was Cured by Catarrhozone of Lung Trouble and Catarrh, After Hundreds of Other Remedies Failed

If your lungs are weak; if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh, and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhozone It is expecially adapted for these diseases and cures every time

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but, after resorting without benefit to poultices, she tried Catarrhozone.

"I used Catarrhozone - Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognized that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhozone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold, or catarrh can exist if Catarrhozone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone. By means of the Inhaler, the local symptoms, such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrozone tablets, which are taken after each meal purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons, and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhozone.

MR. ROWELL AND THE BAR

One of the unrecorded incidents in connection with the recent election in East Middlesex bears a humorous phase, reports Toronto Saturday Night. The constituency itself is strongly local option, and naturally the numerous workers sent in by both parties to abolish the bar on the one hand and to abolish treating on the other, made their headquarters at the Tecumseh House in London which has a commodious bar, and from which the constituency is easily reached by train or troley car. When the campaign was at its height the Liberal leader, N. W. Rowell (whose convictions on temperance are sincere) arrived in London and registered at the Tecumseh. He had not been in the city long when a telegram arrived for him, and since he had left his room, he was "paged" as is the custom in all hotels of the larger character. A seraphic looking bell boy went through the corridors shouting "Mr. Row-ell; Mr. Row-ell," and a Tory worker happened to be at the desk and said: "Why not try the bar." The innocent youth took the hint and walked down the bar-room chanting the phrase "Mr. Row-ell; Mr. N. W. Rowell," to the intense amusement of the half hundred bibulous individuals there assembled. Finally one of them walked over to the lad and said, "Mr. Rowell has just had his drink and left; you'll find him in the bar across the street." Of course it was a base slander, but it passed for a good joke among the politicians on both sides who were fighting the devil with fire-water.

There is this in favor of the thoroughbred dog: Its owner is more likely to keep it shut up.

CATTLE MARKET.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the offerings this morning were 1900 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves. A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, and prices declined on account of the fact that the supply was far in excess of the requirements, and this, coupled with the warmer weather, tended to depress trade, as buyers generally were not disposed to take hold freely, even at the reduction; consequently trade thruout was slow, and quite a few were left over unsold. There were no really choice steers on the market, and the top price realized for the best grade was $5.50, while lower grades sold from that down to $3.50, and cows brought from $3 to $4.50, and bulls from $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 pounds.

A feature in the small meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for sheep, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds under a good demand, and sales of ewes were made at $4.25 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.

Lambs were firm at the advance noted on Monday, and trading was active, at $6.20 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. Hogs were unchanged, prices being firm under a good demand and small supplies. Selected lots sold at from $8.75 to $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. Calves were in good demand, at from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

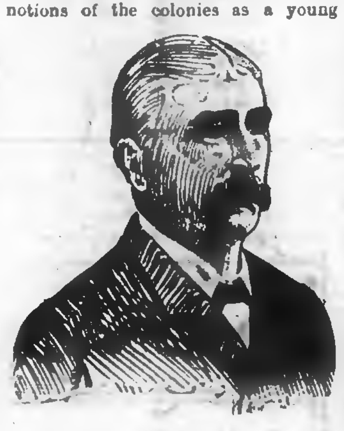
WILLIAMS IS RETIRING

SIR RALPH WILL SPEND REMAINING YEARS IN LEISURE.

Widely Known Proconsul of Empire Who Has Just Resigned the Governorship of Newfoundland, Has Held Many Exciting Posts Since He Left College—Has Lived Mostly In Various Parts of Africa.

Sir Ralph Williams, who has resigned as governor of Newfoundland, is a colonial administrator of rather wide experience. During his diplomatic career he has held down some exciting jobs. He has been Treasurer of Gibraltar, sitting on the gate to the East; he has been Secretary at Barbados, and seen a quarter of the population swept off the earth by a hurricane; he has ruled Boers and blacks in Africa. It was in Africa that he learned his profession; Africa, which gave lessons to men like Cromer, Milner and the late Cecil Rhodes. His notions of the colonies as a young chap he got through extensive travel than from monocled opinions in the Oxford Union.



SIR RALPH WILLIAMS.

Sir Ralph first saw the dark continent in 1882, while lion-hunting with his wife, the first white woman to view Victoria Falls. About this time the British Government called him in to advise Sir Charles Warren in a territorial dispute in a district called Bechuanaland. So satisfactory was his counsel that he was made Resident Agent in the South African Republic. With the exception of brief residences at near points, Sir Ralph has lived in Africa. In 1901 he was made Governor of Bechuanaland, with C.M.C. as a decoration of merit. He assisted in throwing oil on the water in South Africa after the war.

In 1909, Sir Ralph was appointed Governor of Newfoundland. He is 64 years of age and is retiring from the public service that he may spend in leisure the years that yet remain of a strenuous career.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me, I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL, of which I had both read and heard After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from Jury & Gregory, Druggists, at $1.50 per bottle.

An Anguished Waiter.

Backward and forward he paced, his eyes wild and rolling, his face haggard. As the minutes passed his agitation increased.

"Will she never come? Will she never come?" he wailed wildly. "Already it is fifteen minutes past the appointed time, and yet she is not here!"

He pressed his hands to his fevered brow and waited. He tried to sit, in vain, and still waited. He gazed sadly through the window and went on waiting.

At last! Ah! The sounds of little footsteps on the stairs! He turned to the door, eager, excited.

Yes, it was she!

"You have come, then?" he gasped, dizzy with delight, as he grabbed his hat.

Yes, the stenographer had come back, and it was now his turn to go out to lunch.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

THE HOCHELAGA VICTORY

The victory of Hon. Louis Coderre in Hochelaga, where he increased his majority by 1000 over that obtained in the election of September 1911 and where his opponent lost his deposit, cannot be construed entirely as a French endorsation of the Borden policy of an emergency contribution. Of the electors of the constituency, 60 per cent are French, and 40 per cent are English. The English supported the Borden candidate, almost without exception, one polling division in Westmount making the return Coderre 105, Doyon 0, but the French vote was much more evenly divided. But even so, there was sufficient evidence, that the Nationalist movement as conducted by Armand Lavergne, and the opposition which he manifested against naval aid to Britain were not at all popular. Lavergne and the opposition which he manifested against naval aid to Britain, were not at all popular. Lavergne said that he would rather have the Laurier naval policy than the Borden It was not so imperialistic. But the French were by no means inclined to disagree with what Hon. Louis Coderre explained, in general terms, what the imperialistic Borden policy was. The result can only be construed as a blow to Nationalism. The Bourassa-Lavergne sting has been drawn, and does not count. Moreover, the result in Hochelaga has been decisive enough to make the bersla very chary about indicating that they will oppose the Borden proposals. It is more than likely that they will crawl under the barn and let the fight drop.

THE CIVIC LEGISLATORS

The Kingston Standard has a kind word for the civic legislators of Kingston. The view taken by the Standard, is equally applicable to the councils of other cities and towns, Peterborough included.

"As election time draws near, the talk naturally turns on probable candidates for the Mayoralty and for Aldermen. We think there is a general feeling that this year above all others, Kingston needs the best men that can be brought into the field, and we sincerely trust that such men will be found. The trouble is that with the growth of the city, the civic business is becoming decidedly greater. We have had occasion to be present at several recent committee meetings and conferences and we have been decidedly surprised at the amount of time which the Aldermen have been obliged to give to the city. It is not infrequent, indeed, to find aldermen giving up two or three hours a day to these committee meetings— and this, despite the fact that they are very busy men and have their own private business affairs to look after. The fact is that many of the aldermen are to-day sacrificing time and money in the interest of the city, and for that reason it will not be well to lavish criticism upon them as sometimes is idly done — though to be sure if civic business is improperly transacted, criticism should not be withheld. On the other hand, it is only fair to remember that these men are doing splendid service for the city and at much personal loss and inconvenience.

While this very fact will make it all the harder to get new men out this year to all vacancies, or to get old men to return to the Council, we sincerely trust that the sense of civic responsibility will weigh with citizens and impel them to offer themselves as candidates. Candidly it is asking a good deal of a man to sacrifice himself in this way, but if the city's interests are to be safeguarded, the sacrifice must be made. We fancy, however, that from this time on, since the public are coming to realize the pressure of business put upon the aldermen, that there will be less disposition to criticize, either harshly or hastily men who give freely of their time to the city. They are deserving rather of praise than of censure."

HYDRO PRICES COMPARED

Hon. Adam Beck told Mayor Lees, of Hamilton, when the latter was in Toronto recently, that there was to be a general revision of Hydro-Electric rates downward, and that Hamilton would get a substantial reduction. The contract which the Hamilton ratepayers endorsed calls for $17.92 per horse power. Since then there have been three reductions, bringing the price down to $16.50. Dundas, which is now paying $16 expects to pay, under the new schedule, no more than $15. The Hamilton Hydro-Electric has operated at a profit since its installation.

As compared with the Hamilton price paid the Hydro-Electric Commission, what the Commission asks of Peterborough for power, in the event of the $120,000 by-law being passed, is by no means burdensome. The offer of the Commission, as submitted some time ago, and which still stands, is to deliver 2,500 horse power at $17.55; 2,750 horse power, with 10 per cent. overload, at $15.95, and 3,000 horse power, limited and 10 hour service, $14.65; 3,500 horse power connected load $12.55. Certainly if the quantity contracted for by Hamilton is worth $16.50, Peterborough is being very well treated by the Commission in its figures for a supply of power here. Peterborough could not, of course, look for as much assistance in reducing charges from other municipalities, because there are few others of any consequence to share the power output. But the prices quoted seem to indicate that this city would not be dealt with unfairly by the Commission at any time.

EDITORIAL NOTES

From the Winnipeg Post— Montenegro has now defied Austria. Isn't it a corker how haughty the colored race is becoming!

Toronto is getting more like New York every day. In both cities a Rosenthal murder trial is going on at present, and in both cities a man by the name of Gibson is being tried for murder.

Regarding the Hochelaga elections the Montreal Star says—The election of Hon. Mr. Coderre for the mixed constituency of Hochelaga by a vote of better than two to one, is a decisive rebuke to about as mischievous and irrational a campaign as has ever been seen in this country. The defeated candidate's statement that he was "opposed to any kind of contribution" was bad enough; but the irresponsibilities of Mr. Armand Lavergne introduced a grotesque element into the contest which only becomes entirely amusing when we find it utterly futile.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES

Read What Those Who Have Proved It Say!

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes— "I must thank you for the benefit I received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say that it completely cured me."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, of 183-185 St. Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec P.Q. writes—"I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles. I have also found it most effective in curing a sore thumb with which my little son was suffering. The thumb had begun to swell and fester and had lost the nail. I persevered in the application of Zam-Buk and the sore is now entirely healed. Zam-Buk is indispensable as a household remedy."

DR. KINDRED TO RUN FOR REEVE

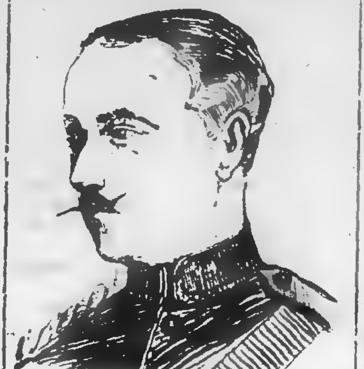
Dr. H. C. Kindred, of Havelock, has announced that he will be a candidate for the Reeveship of Havelock at the 1913 Municipal elections.

IS SIR JOHN'S NEPHEW

COL. PENNINGTON MACPHERSON AN ILLUSTRIOUS LAWYER.

Prospective Appointee to the Civil Service Commission Is the Biographer of His Illustrious Uncle and Is Also a Well-Known Soldier and a Writer on Canadian History—Marksman and Scholar.

Col. Pennington Macpherson, who is spoken of as a prospective appointee of the Dominion Government to the Civil Service Commission, is the nephew and biographer of Canada's greatest statesman, the late Sir John A. Macdonald. He is a Master of Arts of Queen's University, Kingston, and graduated with high honors, being first in ancient and modern history and second in both classics and mathematics. He also won the two special prizes offered for the best essay upon the Greek dialects and the best translation of Homer. He then studied law in the office of Sir John A. Macdonald, Kingston, and in the office of Crooks, Kingsmill and Cattanach, Toronto, and after being called to the bar practiced his profession in Cobourg and in Ottawa, where he was the head of the firm of Macpherson, Kennedy and Bucke. After a time he entered the Civil Service as assistant census commissioner, and subsequently occupied important positions in the House of Commons and in the Departments of Finance and Public Works.



COL. PENNINGTON MACPHERSON.

Col. Macpherson has always been an enthusiast in military matters and is said to be the only officer in Canada holding first-class certificates in the three branches of artillery, engineering and infantry. He has a high record as a rifle shot and has twice represented Canada on the Wimbledon team, the last time as second in command. When colonel of the Governor-General's Foot Guards he had the high honor of being complimented by the late Gen. Sir Frederick Middleton as having brought his regiment to a higher state of efficiency than any other corps in Canada. Upon retirement from the command he was honored by being appointed A.D.C. to the Governor-General, the late Lord Stanley, and for several years acted as brigade instructor of musketry and divisional D.A.G. at the camps of instruction. He is a Fenian Raid veteran and has also been awarded the long service decoration.

Mr. Macpherson has nearly ready for the printer a "History of Canada," on which he has spent much labor and research.

His Seven League Boots.

On one occasion, when playing in "Hop o' My Thumb," Little Tich, the famous English comedian, met with what he considers one of the funniest incidents of his career.

"I had to wear the seven-league boots, and still have vivid recollections of the horror those beastly things inspired me with. My apprehensions were quite justified, for at one performance I began to feel myself wobbling unsteadily and instinctively knew it was all up. In spite of my frantic endeavors to keep on my feet I toppled head first over into the orchestra. As the audience seemed to think it was part of the show, I maintained my composure, and, scrambling on the stage again, I worked my legs as if I were on a bicycle, remarking, 'Over the handle bars again. Back pedal! Back pedal! That's the worst of these high-geared machines.' The managerial suggestion that I should repeat the feat at other performances was not favorably received."

Australia After Immigrants.

According to official reports the Australian Commonwealth during the first seven months of this year received 95,592 immigrants, while no less than 45,623 left the colony thus showing a net gain in immigration of only 49,968 during the period stated. Of the total arivals 83,640 were British, the balance being composed of Germans, Italians, Russians, Greeks, Danes and a limited number of Asiatics and colored people.

The activity of some of the Australian states in sending capable officers to Great Britain and the extensive circulation of immigration literature are, in the main, responsible for the increased figures.

The Sea Otter.

The sea otter combines the habits of a seal with the intelligence and amusing character of the otter. When met in herds far out at sea, which is but seldom now, they are commonly seen swimming on their backs. They even eat their food lying in this position on the water and nurse their young ones on their chests between their paws, exactly as a south sea island mother swims with her baby in the water. When swimming in this attitude they even shade their eyes with their paws when the sun dazzles them.

HUNTING FOR GUY FAWKES

November 5, 1912, marked the 307th anniversary since the British Houses of Parliament were searched and the barrels of gunpowder, with which Guy Fawkes intended to blow up King James I. and his legislators, discovered shortly before the opening of the session. That discovery was not due to any special acumen on the part of the authorities, since it followed upon information sent them by letter; but there has certainly been no lack of vigilance since then, seeing that on no occasion for three centuries has Parliament been opened until its cellars had been searched.

The duty of examining the vaults and secret passages is assigned to the Lord Chamberlain of the court, but generally it is the Vice-Chamberlain who conducts the search. His assistants are the deputy sergeants-at-arms of the House of Commons, the clerk of the board of works, and an inspector of police. There is a lot of ceremony pertaining to the proceedings.

The four officers mentioned are preceded by four yeomen of the guard in uniform and fully armed. Through one corridor after another they tramp, peering into every dark corner until they finally reach the conclusion that no gunpowder has been stored in the cellars and that, therefore, it is quite safe for Parliament to meet.

Although the cellars are now thoroughly lighted by electricity the guardsmen carry lanterns in deference to the good old custom, and, for the same reason, the King is assured that there are no explosives in the cellars and that he will not be exposed to unusual risk if he chooses to meet his Lords and Commons. The King may not have the remotest intention of opening Parliament, but the message is sent just the same, and it is duly received and acknowledged.

FOURTH TIME FOR REDUCTION IN THE HYDRO RATES

Hamilton is Included in General Revision of Prices

Hamilton, Nov. 21— Hon. Adam Beck told Mayor Lees when the Mayor was in Toronto a little over a week ago that there was to be a general revision of hydro-electric rates downward, and that Hamilton would come in for a substantial reduction. Hamilton ratepayers ratified the first Hydro-electric contract about two years ago, which called for $17.92 per horse-power. There have been three reductions since then, bringing the power down to $16.50. It is expected that the next reduction will be 60 cents or $1 Dundas, paying $16 per horse-power expects to pay no more than $15. Mayor Lees and controller Bailey are working on a plan to reduce rates to the house-lighting customers in the city. Hamilton Hydro-electric Department has operated at a profit since its installation.

COMMISSIONERS CONGRATULATED

By Magistrate Dumble on the Work at Police Station

During an interval in police court proceedings to-day Magistrate Dumble congratulated Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., Chairman of the City Trust Commissioners, on the handsome appearance of the court room since it had been improved. He remarked upon the brightness and modern manner in which the room was equipped.

Mr. Moore thanked His Worship on behalf of the Commissioners and expressed the hope that he would find it congenial in every respect, with plenty of light and ventilation.

"If the Magistrate had not possessed an iron constitution he would have been dead long ere this," was Magistrate Dumble's jocular remark.

Ald. Gordon also referred to the comfortable quarters that had been provided for the police force.

"MR. ISAACS" A PAUPER

Hero of Marion Crawford's Novel Has Lost Most of His Money.

Readers of Marion Crawford's famous novel "Mr. Isaacs" and Kipling's "Kim" will welcome the interesting account of the remarkable life of Alexander Malcolm Jakobi, the real hero of both those notable works of fiction, given in The Book Monthly by Frederick W. Heath.

It would be difficult to find in all India, he writes, a more remarkable personality than Jakobi, or to discover in any part of the world a man who has led such an amazing life.

Born at Constantinople, he was at the early age of twelve sold as a slave at the market there, and became the property of a rich pasha. Fortunately the pasha treated him well, and instead of putting him to menial work he encouraged the young Jakobi to take an interest in Oriental literature, philosophy and occultism.

For some years Jakobi stayed in the house of the pasha, and it was during these years that his keenly receptive mind gathered so much of that curious Eastern wisdom that was afterwards to make him one of the leading figures in Anglo-Indian society at Simla.

On the death of the pasha Jakobi was thrown once more upon the world, and caring little what he did or where he went he decided to make the pilgrimage to Mecca.

After the pilgrimage he made his way to Bombay, and having starved there for a while he got a small appointment at the Nizam's court at Hyderabad.

At Hyderabad he learned a great deal about precious stones, and after making a few thousand rupees by the sale of an emerald he boldly set out for Delhi and established himself there as a jeweler.

At Delhi he prospered amazingly, and soon finding the city too small for him, he moved to Simla and entered the famous Mart. At Simla his real career began.

The charm of his magnetic personality, the strange mystery surrounding so much of his early life, his great wealth and the wonders of his famous house Belvedere, and the marvellous seances he held all combined to make Jakobi the most eagerly sought after man in Simla.

He became the friend and adviser of viceroys and governors, and he who had carved his way from obscurity and poverty to fame and wealth found himself the leading figure in Anglo-Indian society. But the years of happiness were few, for at the very height of his fame there came the tragedy of his life.

It was caused by the sale of the famous Imperial diamond to the late Nizam of Hyderabad. After having paid $750,000 for the stone on the promise from the Nizam to pay him $1,500,000 for it, the sale was stopped by the Government of India, and in addition to this heavy financial loss Jakobi had to face a legal case in the High Court of Calcutta.

The trial lasted 57 days, and the expenses were so enormous that after it was over, and Jakobi had secured a triumphant verdict, he found himself practically a pauper. He retired to Bombay, where he lives to-day in badly reduced circumstances.

This, in brief, gives the story of the rise and reverse of Jakobi, one of the fullest interest.

Reviving a Peerage.

The attraction the peerage has for Englishmen is the attraction that anything ancient, long-established and carrying with it great traditions possesses for the mind of the average dweller in the United Kingdom. If the peerage was brand new it would not be the magnet that it is to the socially and politically ambitious. The institution being very old, to establish one's claim to a peerage long in abeyance is to array one's self with the great of the earth. Francis Money Coutts, the representative of the great banking family, had wealth and distinction in abundance in his untitled capacity, but he has recently performed a feat of the first social order in British estimation by proving his claim to the long dormant barony of Latimer. He is now entitled, after certain formalities have been completed, to be called Lord Latimer, a title which has not been heard in Great Britain for more than two centuries. Originally the barony of Latimer was associated with the great medieval house of Neville, one of whose representatives was the "kingmaker." It is also added in one dispatch that the new Lord Latimer by the success of his suit is also entitled to call himself Lord Scales, Lord Bedelsmere and likewise Earl of Oxford.

Willie—Your son, has the true college spirit, you say? Gillis—Yes. He firmly believes that he is the greatest man in the greatest class that ever was graduated from the greatest institution in the country.

SOME INTERESTING HISTORY ABOUT MINING IN ONTARIO

Dr. Coleman Addressed Large Gathering of the Canadian Club.

In the banquet room of the Y. M. C. A. building last night, the Canadian Club, after disposing of a splendidly prepared supper, enjoyed the privilege of listening to an instructive address on Ontario's Mines and Miners," delivered by Dr. Coleman of the Department of Geology, University of Toronto. The Canadian Club members have heard first class addresses so far this year and the ability of the speakers has been a great factor towards drawing the large gatherings.

In commencing his address, Dr. Coleman said that Ontario is not, after all a very old mining country. In his boyhood days a gold mine was regarded as a most extraordinary thing. The minerals were increasing, however, and were coming along very fast. Mining began in Ontario, one hundred years ago in the year 1815. The first mine was discovered on the shores of Lake Superior, which developed into quite an industry before it finally failed.

Bruce Mines were discovered in 1812, but they too, finally became exhausted.

Then the Madoc Mines were brought to light, and Ontario went wild about them. Many people put all the money they had into those mines, and when they collapsed, hundreds of investors lost all the money they possessed.

The discovery of silver on what was known as Silver Island again aroused the people and it proved to be a most rich and profitable find. The silver Mine however, was finally exhausted and ate up vast sums of money, owing to the expense plan of working it.

A little later, about 1883, the Canadian Pacific Railway came upon copper ore containing nickel, while excavating a cut near Sudbury. This discovery established the valuable nickel industry which has yielded so richly. The nickel ores have proved to be a valuable asset to the country.

Dr. Coleman went on to quote statistics of the amount of minerals mined years ago as gleaned from old records belonging to the Bureau of Mines. The increase in output first doubled in ten years and then in five years.

ONTARIO'S GOLD

In 1911 there were eleven different kinds of minerals mined in Canada. In Ontario only $42,000 gold was mined during the year 1911. This fact, Dr. Coleman said, would doubtless surprise most of the gathering. It has been proven, he said in comment, that not one gold mine in Ontario has really paid its way. Porcupine however, is the only region, where it looks as if there were to be really profitable mines. The total amount of gold mined in Ontario, up to last year, was between two and three millions of dollars.

SILVER MINES PROFITABLE

Referring to silver, the speaker considered it to be next, in importance to gold. Cobalt is the home of the silver mines. The Cobalt silver region, he said, was decidedly unique, it was most extraordinary and interesting, and enormously profitable. Up to the present time about $87,000,000 worth of silver had been mined, and the past year had witnessed the greatest yield of silver in Cobalt's history.

Two other methods of great profit that always occurr together in Ontario, are nickel and copper. Sudbury is the place where nickel ores are most plentifully found. The Sudbury mining region is of more importance to the province than the Cobalt nickel territory.

Dr. Coleman felt that the Sudbury mining region was interesting because of its resemblance to what Hades is thought to be, owing to the dense sulphur fumes which fill the atmosphere.

The speaker referred to the various uses of nickel. Nickel, he thought, could be utilized by converting it into pure nickel coinage.

Speaking of iron, Dr. Coleman said that without it, all the other metals were of little use. Iron was the real metal and extremely necessary. Iron ores were usually associated with a good deal of quartz. Iron mines are also beginning to get quite valuable. Even the Americans are importing Canadian iron ore. The yield in Ontario last year was 175,000 tons. More than 100,000 tons was shipped last year to the United States. Iron was one of the metal however, in which Ontario was weakest.

Dr. Coleman asked what all this output of metal meant to Canada. He stated that the majority of people, who lived in the Ontario mining towns in the north, were practically foreigners. The town of Copper Cliff with its population of 2500, contained only 500 people who could speak English. In Sudbury eight different languages could be heard on the streets. There are around 60,000 foreigners in Northern Ontario. These facts the speaker thought, should cause us to think seriously about their effect on the Dominion.

President Morris thanked Dr. Coleman for his interesting and instructive talk, and conveyed to him the extreme gratitude of the Club for his enlightening remarks.

The attendance was on a par with any of the season, and nearly every place at the tables was filled.

The gathering dispersed about eight o'clock with the singing of the National Anthem.

EMPLOYMENT OF WAR DOGS; THEY EXCEL MEN AS SENTRIES

In Turco-Italian War Dogs Presented a Surprise — Britain is Not Equipped

That honored old phrase "the dogs of war" has now quite a new significance which has nothing to do with the lank hounds of Bellona, says the London Standard. The modern conception of a dog of war was explained by Major Richardson in a lecture at the Royal United Service Institution on "The Employment of War Dogs, with Special Reference to Tripoli and Other Recent Campaigns."

Major Richardson is famous as a trainer of dogs for such special services as police, sentry, and ambulance work and foreign armies have taken more notice of his work than has our own. To an interested audience, chiefly of military people, he outlined the advantages to an army of possessing four-footed scouts.

It is not a theoretical matter, as dogs are already extensively employed all over the Continent for military and police purposes, and on many of the frontiers for detecting smugglers. Moreover, they have in many cases proved their value in actual warfare, and in one instance in particular sentry dogs saved the Italian troops near Tripoli from being rushed by surprise in a stealthy night attack by the Turks last February.

DOGS GAVE ALARM.

This particular incident is worth giving in full. The sentry dogs were kept chained in kennels amid the wire entanglements ahead of the Italian trenches. Major Richardson said:—

"In the early part of the evening of February 11-12, the Turks under cover of darkness, advanced in two columns against the Italian position at Derna; one column of about 500 men to the right, the other consisting of about 1,000 Bedouins, with a stiffening of Turkish officers. The whole of the country is difficult in the extreme, without roads, and crossed by a series of tracks for the most part known to the natives only, running on the edges of precipices. This force took every advantage of the sinuosities of the ground, and practically crawled undisturbed to the Italian position. The alarm, however, was given by the dogs chained to the entanglements, and at 1.30 began an engagement at this point which lasted the whole night."

HEAR FARTHER THAN MAN.

With the descent of darkness, which renders the human being so helpless, said the lecturer, the hearing and scenting powers of the dog become most acute, and while soldiers, tired out with long marching or the ardors of a campaign, may have their senses dulled, the four-footed scout will hear or "wind" the stealthy approach of an enemy's patrols long before a sentry is aware that there is anyone in the neighborhood.

After hundreds of experiments he had proved that a dog can hear at 200 or 400 yards further than a man, and when the conditions are favorable for scenting detection will come at very great distances. The slightest suspicious noise, unheard by human ears, makes the dog watchful and restless, and his fears are immediately communicated to the sentry accompanying him.

CARRY MESSAGES.

The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides showing the dogs at work with the various Continental armies in peace time, and with the Italians during the war in Tripoli. In Belgium dogs are even used for dragging machine guns. In a number of armies they are used for carrying messages for short distances, and also for carrying ammunition.

But Major Richardson favors their use in two main ways only—as sentry dogs and as ambulance dogs to search out the wounded after a battle.

In ambulance dogs the French army is especially well provided, and they are trained up to a very high pitch. Major Richardson had two ambulance dogs with him yesterday—two beautiful and intelligent Airedales with the red cross of mercy standing out boldly on their flanks, and with cordials for the wounded strapped to their backs.

One can imagine the joy with which the appearance of such a saviour would be hailed by a wounded soldier lying in rocky ground where the biped brigade might never find him at all.

GERMANS HAVE 8,000

It will surprise most people to learn that in Germany there are 8,000 trained dogs used for police, ambulance and sentry purposes, and that in the case of war the mobilization of all these is carefully provided for. The lecturer's suggestion that the British army should begin to make preparation of a similar kind was received with loud applause.

It should be added that English trained ambulance dogs were used with great success in the Russo-Japanese war. Count Verbitsky, of Count Kellar's staff, wrote to Major Richardson: "In finding the missing and wounded with which the millet fields are strewn, nothing succeeded like our pack of seven dogs. The English ones are especially intelligent. In our last engagement 25 men were found in unsuspected places." Dogs have also been successfully used for active service in Cuba, South-west Africa, and the Abor campaign of last winter. In the Italian campaign just ended in Tripoli between 600 and 600 dogs were used for one purpose or another, [illegible]

NOVA SCOTIAN NOW ON TRIAL

New York, Nov. 21.—A jury for the long-delayed trial of former City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, a native of Truro, N.S., on charges of bribery in connection with the Carnegie Trust Co. financial scandals nearly two years ago, was completed at the opening sessions of the trial yesterday.

Justice John W. Goff started the trial with all the despatch which characterised his conduct of the trials of former Police Lieut. Charles Becker and the four gunmen in the Rosenthal murder, just completed. The justice refused to entertain motions for further postponement of this long-standing case and ordered the immediate examination of the panel of 200 talesmen summoned for the trial.

The charge against Hyde is that while city chamberlain he forced a banker to lend $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust Co., which was then close to disaster. It is alleged that Hyde promised that if the loan were made he would make the city deposits with the bank.

Quebec Loyal, Says Foster.

London, Nov. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable)—Hon. George E. Foster sailed for home on the St. Louis Tuesday, in order to be present during the discussion on the naval policy. He expressed great satisfaction at the return of Hon. Louis Coderre, saying: "His election gives a strong indication of the sentiments of the Province of Quebec in reference to the Government's new policy. The electors have evidently approved the idea that something should be done for the naval defence of the Empire. Although they are not in possession of the details they have voted overwhelmingly in favor of the principle."

Meredith and Women Suffrage.

George Meredith, whose letters have just been published was one of the pioneers of woman suffrage in England and unlike Browning he retained his belief in the movement to the end. Mr. Herbert Paul considers that the greatest service Meredith's books rendered, apart from their literary value, is their exaltation of women in the economy of the world. The effect of his belief in the possible enlargement of women's sphere, and the development of their powers, was all the greater because it was subtle, because it reached the public through a few minds to whom Meredith at once appealed, and because it inspired confidence in women without parading their claims. The comparative freedom and independence which women now enjoy is due more to Meredith than to Parliament or to Mill.

GUARDING STATESMEN.

England Is Spending More Money Now Than Formerly.

England has never been so vigilant in the protection of her public men as she has been for the last year or two. Guards are constantly thrown around all of those who are prominent in the Government — with or without their consent. The London Sketch of recent late comments on the necessity for providing armed guards for the leading figures of the country, and makes the assertion that the women of England are in some measures responsible for the anxiety felt for the safety of distinguished men. Referring to the guard that is constantly at the elbow of Lord Kitchener, The Sketch says:

"The precautions taken to safeguard Lord Kitchener while on his return to Egypt within the last few days have been described as unusual. Possibly if inquiry were made in the right quarter it would be found that not the precautions, but the discovery of their existence, constituted the 'unusual.' There is more shepherding than shadowing of our notabilities than is known to most of us.

"Every one is aware that members of the royal family, whether at home or abroad, are guarded night and day, but during the last year or so an unobtrusive protection has been extended both to most members of the Government and to imperial figures such as Lord Kitchener. It is doubtless quite true that Lord Kitchener kicks against his civil guard; they all do. They have to be guarded in spite of themselves.

"It is not for our warrior pro-consul to say that he will not be guarded; he is a great state institution so long as he continues in harness and must be protected like the Bank of England and the Crown Regalia. None of us forgets that the breed of fanatics is not extinct. There are three misguided sons of Egypt undergoing imprisonment at this moment for complicity in a plot against Lord Kitchener's life; and it was but three years ago that, at a reception at the Imperial Institute, the mad Indian, Dhingra, discharged his infamous mission at the cost of life precious to the Empire. If he frets under benevolent surveillance, Lord Kitchener is in good company.

"All the Cabinet in England is now guarded night and day as if each were a Tsar of Russia. Our bill for secret police work is heavier to-day than it has been since Fenianism was rampant. And the irony of it is that suffragettes make necessary much of the expenditure."

CRAVATH WINS

A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of manhood that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof-positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

Next the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful woman, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

Taking another tack, the Blaylows endeavor to have the real pistol stolen by a Swedish butler, whom they "plant" in Cravath's home, but the plot is discovered, barely in time.

A cleverer plot is next hatched. Cravath is requested to show the curious old pistol to an antiquarian friend who has been hurt in an automobile accident and cannot leave his house. When Cravath lays it on a table, there is a mysterious upset, the antiquarian is bowled over and the pistol is gone. Again Cravath and Scanlon suspect that a butler has been subsidized. They force him to admit it, and get the pistol from young Blaylow, who has taken it and hidden it in a recess behind a Venetian panel.

Hard luck next besets the friends. Cravath's mother goes on a visit to a country estate, and they start to call on her, taking the pistol with them. They get into an empty house, are taken for burglars, lose the pistol, and are only released when Cravath's mother comes along in an automobile. The pistol is then restored to them.

Learning that Miss Betterton is about to arrive from Europe, Cravath and Scanlon hire a launch called the Stork's Chicken, to go down the bay to meet the steamer on which she is a passenger. Cravath tells Scanlon that he has the pistol with him, and Blaylow's spies are of the same belief. So the Blaylows hire a tug, which sinks the launch. When the excitement is over, Cravath tells them the pistol is reposing in a safety deposit vault.

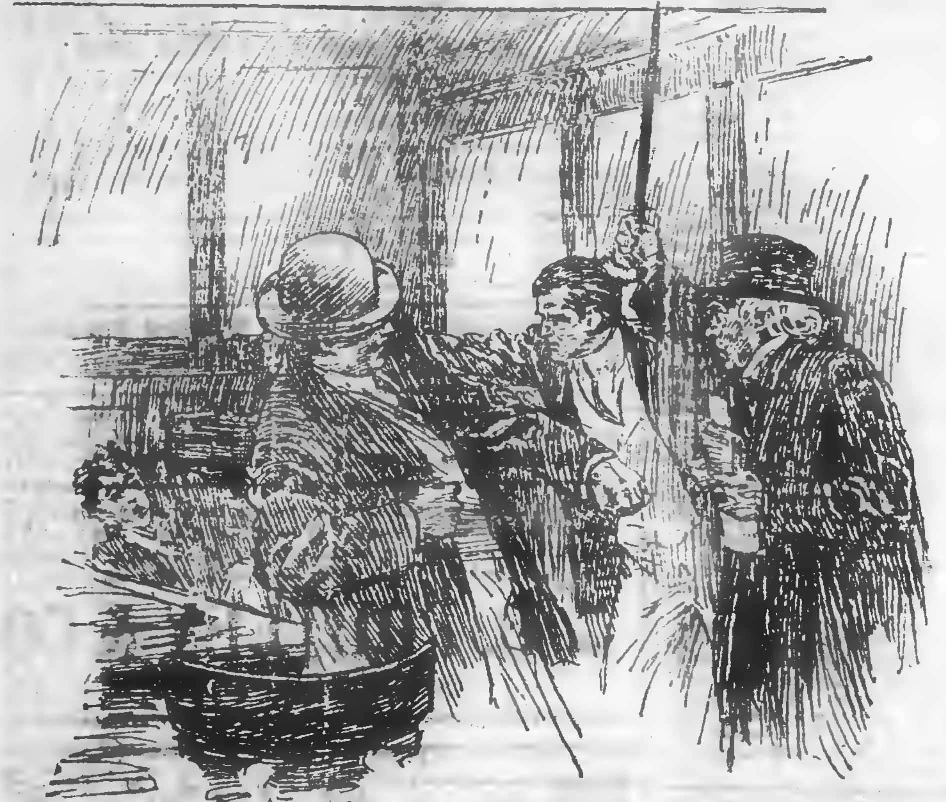
IX—The Adventure of the Merchants' Trust

CRAVATH stopped at my hotel about noon the next day; and he was immaculate, chipper and smiling. He shook my hand with fervor.

"Why the excess joy?" I inquired.

"At a most terrific hour of the night," said he, "I had a call on the telephone."

"It was Miss Betterton inquiring about the pistol," I suggested.



"With the quickness which showed quite a bit of skill, he made a straight drive at Cravath"

He smiled and nodded delightedly.

"La Sultana docked after midnight, and she called me as soon as she could. I was the first," stated he. "The first! And we talked for some time."

"You'll see her today?"

"Tonight. It's a long wait; but I'll have to get it over. Something like seven hours to go, old chap; but the fact is, it seems eternity."

"Calm yourself," said I, assuming that wisdom of manner which we all fancy so becomes us. "What are seven short hours to a man of weight and consequence? Employ yourself somehow; fritter away the moments in careless conversation; call up the past; speculate upon the future, fill the void in a profitable or an unprofitable manner—it's all one. To call upon a friend as you have done; and then, if the friend is really such, he'll call upon the barkeeper. Between one thing and another, there should be no difficulty in passing the time."

Cravath sipped at a rye highball.

"I spent an hour in the safe deposit vault of the Merchants' Trust Company," said he.

I also refreshed myself with a drink of quality similar to Cravath's.

"What for?"

"As the time draws near for the producing of that ancient shooter," he confided to me, "I seem to be growing fidgety. I got to thinking about it this morning, and for the first time I realized the full depth of the perils with which it has met in the last week. Old chap, I was appalled. I was so disturbed that nothing would do under a visit to the trust company. I felt that I had to see the pistol—to handle it to assure myself that it was safe."

"It was, of course?" said I.

"Oh, yes. But during my examination of it, I noticed something which must be remedied."

"Yes?" said I, inquiringly.

"It must be that our experience with the watchman at Croydon Park resulted in the pistol's getting a bump. The lock is damaged; and I'm on my way to a gunmaker to have him repair it."

I placed my glass firmly upon the table, and in a like manner I took him by the arm. Then, with the candor of unquestioned friendship, I asked:

"Are you going to be ass enough to leave that pistol at a gunmaker's shop?"

He smiled and shook his head.

"No," said he; "I am not. In fact, I am not going to take it to the shop at all. The gunmaker who tackles this job does so at the Merchants' Trust or not at all."

I felt much relieved.

"That," I told him, "is something like sense. Properly safeguarded, no harm can befall."

We talked for a little while, and then sought the gunmaker. In a dusty window there were a number of equally dusty guns, some revolvers and a display of shells. Across the panes, in dull yellowish letters, an indifferent workman had painted the legend:

GUNSMITH
REPAIRING A SPECIALTY

A small, round-stomached man, with large spectacles, worked at a bench at one side; a young man with a shock of stiff, unmanageable hair was employed at another.

Cravath explained our errand. The small-spectacled man shook his head.

"I am sorry," he said, "but just now I am very busy. I could not think of leaving the shop. There is much important work to be done—for my important people."

"It is not possible that any work you have is more urgent than that which I am offering you," said Cravath.

"And as for your suggestions that there are other customers of more importance than us, we scorn it," I told the man.

He readjusted his spectacles and examined us both minutely.

"A flintlock pistol," said he, in a musing sort of way. "A flintlock in need of urgent repair." Then turning to the youth at the other bench, he went on: "Could you leave that job for an hour?"

He of the shock hair at once took off his soiled apron.

"It is just the same to me," he answered, with a sigh. "Though, if there is a choice, I'd prefer a flintlock, because it's obsolete."

The gunmaker gestured impatiently.

"It's a wonder," said he, "you didn't have your father set you at making cages for canary birds or something like that."

Outside the shock of hair the most noticeable characteristics of the gunmaker's apprentice were a pair of watery eyes and a pronounced snuffle.

"There are people in the world," stated he to me, as we walked toward the trust company's building, "who seem born to get the worst of it."

"Do you figure yourself in that lot?" I inquired.

He snuffled and wiped his watery eyes.

"It's a hardship for a person having the thoughts about things which I have, to be obliged to earn his living at a trade which is directly opposed to them."

"He has thoughts," I said to Cravath. "He has thoughts opposed to the repairing of guns."

"Or the making of them," said the gunmaker's apprentice, hastily. "I am opposed to the whole trade. Firearms are used in needless slaughter of innocent things—in warfare, in homicide. All these are wrong. Guns should be abolished."

Cravath laughed.

"Suppose they were," said he. "Would that stop the life-taking? It seems to me that our forbears, before the invention of firearms, performed pretty successfully as killers."

The apprentice snuffled, shook his head and seemed at loss. However, he clung to his opinions.

"It is wrong to make guns," he declared. "I have firm convictions upon that point. Guns take life which cannot be given back. And that I have been put to a trade so opposed to my principles is a hardship." His watery eyes overflowed in self-sorrow, and he blotted up the moisture with the back of one hand. "Ah, well, it might not be this way always!"

Cravath led the way to a room at one side of the trust company's quarters. Here an attentive clerk stood behind a large book. At one side was a ponderous door, adorned with a brace of clocks and other mechanical appliances; at another were a number of small shielded tables, where patrons could examine their valuables at their leisure. The vault door was swung open for Cravath. From his box he took the old pistol; then with this and a bag of tools before him, the gunmaker's apprentice sat down at one of the small tables.

There were three other people in the room. One was a fussy old man, possessing an audible scantiness of breath; with a long-bladed pair of shears he clipped coupons from a stack of bonds and made almost as much bother over the job as was used in the building the city the bonds were issued upon. At a window near to us was a sallow, nervous-looking man, with an intent expression and a set of those facial adornments once known as "mutton chops." He was much occupied with what looked like a chest of family plate. The other was a smartly dressed young man with a clerkly air, who shuffled some documents with nimble fingers and figured briskly upon sheets of paper.

The apprentice, in spite of his convictions, performed effectively with a screwdriver and other tools; and, while Cravath watched him, I talked to the attentive clerk.

"At this job I suppose you meet with many oddities?" I suggested.

"Some of them are funny—to others," he answered. "But they never are to me. I'm responsible for the way they break, you see, and I'm seldom in the humor to laugh. Let a customer make a mistake in his addition, and I'm doomed to clinch with him. There's something about a safety deposit vault which seems to induce a feeling of insecurity. At home, or at his office, if a man's figures don't fit, he tries again. If he doesn't put his hand upon a thing the first try, he gives another look. But here it is different. They all seem to think that the renting of a box safeguards them from errors in arithmetic and defective eyesight."

I sympathized with him.

"The man with the bonds," said he, nodding toward the funny old person, "has come to regard me as his personal enemy. If his shears are dull, he vaguely suspects me; if the bonds themselves were suddenly to prove of no value, I'm certain he'd place the whole matter at my door."

"These people are overcivilized," said I. "They are also too much protected; hence the kink in their dispositions. There is a lot in the ancient order of things which meets with my approval. Then a man could only hold what he could personally defend, and was kept so busy that he had no time to nourish a grouch against those who never cast even a side glance at his belongings."

"About the worse we have here," said the clerk, confidingly, "is the man with the whiskers. He keeps his plate locked up here, and once a week he comes to look it over and make sure no one has annexed any part of it. He has a list, and he compares each piece with its requirements over and over again. If the stuff is dimmer than he thinks it ought to be, he looks at me accusingly. He has never said so, but I feel sure that he thinks I ought to jump in with a handful of some kind of polish and set the whole chest gleaming."

"The young chap with the industrious pencil never makes any trouble," said I, confidentially.

The clerk nodded.

"He's all right," he informed me. "Maybe it's because he doesn't own anything that's kept here."

"Just works for some one, then?"

"Blaylow & Co.," said the clerk.

I stood perfectly still; my pulses called heavily, telling me of the suddenly added work of my heart.

Cravath must have been listening to my conversation with the clerk, for I now heard him say:

"He comes here very often, I suppose?"

"Not so very," replied the guardian of the vault. "He's not been here in weeks before today. But no sooner had the doors opened this morning than he arrived, and he's been working over his figures ever since."

Here the speaker was interrupted in his remarks by the mutton-chopped one with the chest of plate; and when he had turned away to answer, Cravath looked at me and I looked at Cravath.

"He is employed by Blaylow," said I, softly.

"And he was here as soon as the doors opened this morning," said Cravath.

"He's stuck around all day," added I. Then, still lower: "What for?"

"Do you remember," asked my friend, "if I mentioned the name of this trust company yesterday when I told you that the pistol was safe in [illegible] vault?"

I pondered for a moment, then I said:

"The Blaylows heard you say it, and even if you didn't mention the name, it made little difference. It was an easy matter for people of their financial position to find the place."

All the time we were speaking the smartly dressed man continued his nimble figuring and deft handling of his papers; but now he paused, laid down his pencil and yawned. Then he leaned negligently against the table upon one elbow, and his eyes went slowly around the room. To all appearances, Cravath and I must have seemed deeply engaged in conversation; our looks toward the Blaylow employe were furtive—our manners were nicely calculated.

Calmly the clerkly young man inspected the scant-breathed ancient so laboriously cutting his coupons, with lazy appreciation he took in the proceedings about the chest of plate. Then, with the utmost naturalness, his eyes went to the gunmaker's apprentice and the Betterton flintlock, and there remained.

"Well done," said Cravath, under his breath. "The fellow is almost an artist."

"The Blaylows must think so, or they wouldn't have sent him upon so delicate an errand," I answered. "But, even with a skill almost consummate, what can he do under such circumstances as these?"

Cravath shook his head.

"One can never tell as to the possibilities of such ventures," said he. "The experiences you and I have had recently show, I think, that the door usually opens to one clever enough to manipulate the lock. A successful attempt at this time does seem impossible. However, Blaylow is fertile, and we'll do well to be careful."

As he watched, the young man yawned once more. Then, carelessly, he resumed his watching the apprentice, who still worked patiently at the lock of the old pistol. For a time there was a halt in everything. Then the old man with the bonds suddenly pushed his chair back from the table, its legs making a loud noise as they scraped the floor. The shears fell with a clatter at his feet. At the same moment the Blaylow employe took his elbow from the table and nonchalantly moved toward that at which the apprentice toiled.

He reached it at the same moment as did Cravath, and the latter stood with folded arms and a smile upon his face. Looking at him, much as though he noticed him for the first time, the clerkly man said:

"Queer kind of an old gun, ain't it?"

"Yes," answered Cravath.

"Belong to you?"

"No."

"Just got it in charge, eh?"

"Something like that."

The Blaylow employe gazed at the weapon for a moment, and then continued:

"I never saw anything just like it before. It must have been something of a trouble to shoot a man in the old times, I should think. You'd have to kind of work up to it."

The scant-breathed old man now had his bonds in his hands, and, with the aid of a heavy-knobbed stick, began making his way toward the door of the vault. To gain this, he was forced to pass our table, but, in passing, his eyes rested upon the unusual goings on, and he, too, stopped.

With the eyes of experience, the apprentice examined a small bolt, the pistol lying upon the table before him.

"If the small arms of those days were like that," remarked the smartly dressed young man, "what must the rifles have been? They must have weighed a ton each. And at that," humorously, "I don't think this thing weighs much less."

Carelessly, he leaned forward, and was in the act of lifting the flintlock, when the powerful grip of Cravath fell upon his wrist. Startled, he straightened up, and [illegible] the other looking coldly into his eyes.

"Well?" asked the clerkly young man.

"It would be as well," suggested Cravath, "if you kept your hands off."

The other jerked his arm free. About his wrist was a white ring, and he rubbed this gently as he said:

"Your manner is rather offensive."

Cravath smiled.

"The fact is," stated he, "I am taking very little pains with my manner at this time."

The other flushed hotly. With hands clinched, he took a step nearer Cravath.

"There is only one thing that your manner and action can mean. You take me for a thief."

Then, with a quickness which showed quite a bit of skill, he made a straight drive at Cravath. The latter stepped aside, upsetting the apprentice. The scant-breathed old party rushed in with waving stick, as though to prevent a combat; and, with his ears full of the word "thief," he of the mutton chops hastily stuffed his belongings into the chest and dragged it with frantic haste into the vault.

The keeper of the vault, upon the first sign of trouble, had pressed a button. At once several watchmen presented themselves. Cravath and the Blaylow employe were engaged in the center of the floor, and the watchmen separated them with some celerity. And, when some degree of calmness had settled upon things, we found that circumstance had played a return date. As had happened at Professor Michlenberg's, the Betterton pistol had disappeared.

Cravath, I think, was more excited at that moment of discovery than I had ever seen him before. His eyes fairly flamed, and he stood guarding the only door like a tiger.

"No one gets out until I am satisfied that they are entitled to do so," said he. "And to be entitled to do so in this case, means that they have to satisfy me that they are not attached to anything of mine."

In dismay, the clerks having charge of the vault summoned the officers of the company, who, it happened, were in the building. They were diligent, suspicious persons indeed, and at once set about putting the matter right. When the facts were made known to them they were inclined to make light of it.

"It's absurd," said one, "to think that the pistol has been stolen. Under the circumstances, it is more than probable that—"

But Cravath halted him.

"I fail to see anything absurd in it," said he. "Indeed, it is most serious for me at least. And that the pistol has been stolen is the most probable thing connected with the affair." And, still on guard at the door, he continued: "This is not the time to talk of absurdities. I have been robbed, and there is nothing more probable in the entire affair than that some one now present did the robbing."

"This is the first time we have ever had to deal with a situation like this," said the trust officer. "Whom do you suspect, sir?" His eye went, naturally, to him with whom Cravath had been struggling. "Surely not this young man?"

"Yes," said Cravath, promptly.

"But, sir, this is out of all reason. He is a trusted employe of Blaylow & Co."

"That alone," said Cravath, grimly, "would earn him first place in the line of suspects."

"Perhaps," suggested the other official, "we can settle this quietly. It may be that we can avoid calling the police—"

"It's all one to me," interrupted Cravath. "I don't care who's called."

"But we do," stated the official. "We do, most emphatically. We are not at all at fault. In no way, sir. But such things are always remembered against an institution. We have no desire to offend any one; but, as the matter stands, it seems to us that each of those here should submit to a search."

The clerkly young man grinned. He had recovered from his anger of a few moments before, and his general expression was now so affable and contented that I felt a prickling of uneasiness run down my spine.

"As for me," said the young man, "I am perfectly willing to submit to anything you suggest if it will settle the matter."

The officials were delighted.

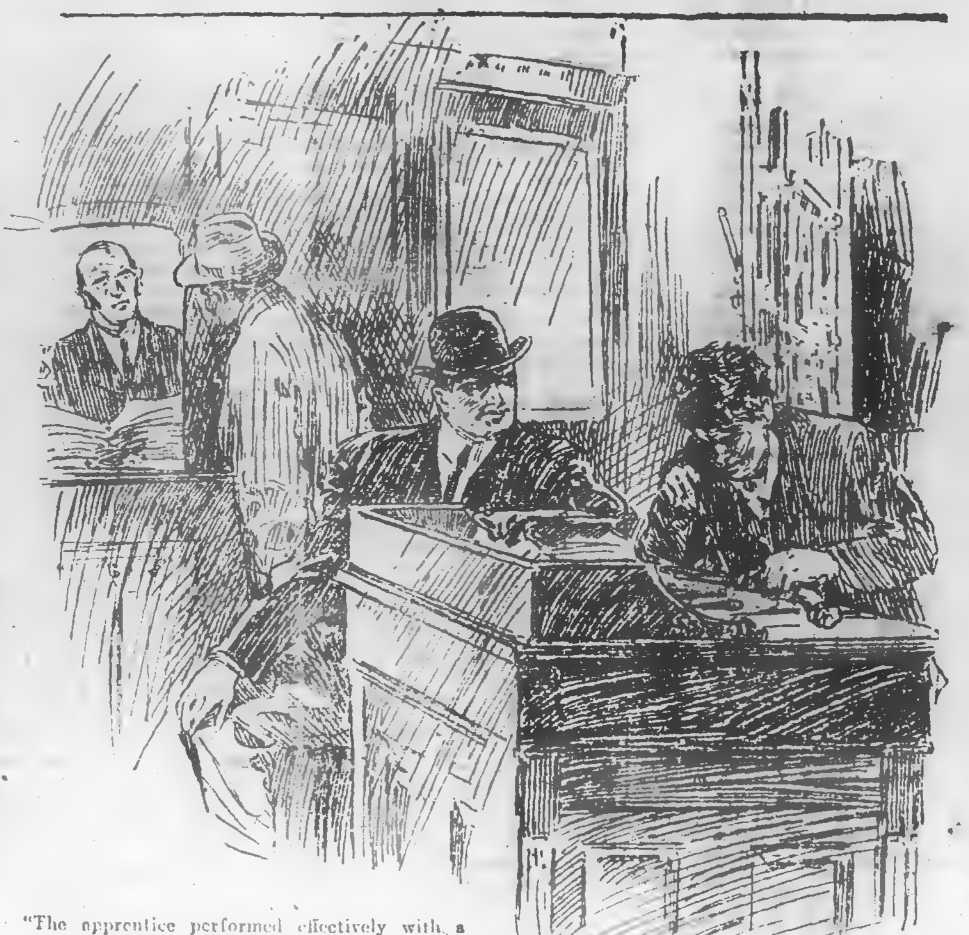
"And you, sir?" said one of them to the man with the mutton chops.

"It is outrageous," proclaimed this gentleman, somberly. "A perfectly reputable patron must maintain his integrity by a sacrifice of his personal dignity. But, sir, as that seems the only way out of the affair, without a distressing public scene, I also agree."

The officials were more gratified than ever.

"Our Mr. Davis," said one, indicating the keeper of the vault, "and also our watchmen will also undergo the search."

With some malice creeping into his grin, the employe of Blaylow & Co. nodded toward Cravath and myself.



"The apprentice performed effectively with a screwdriver, while Cravath watched him"

"What about those two?" demanded he. "How are we to know that this whole thing isn't a game of their own? Who knows but what they've concealed the pistol themselves, for some reason unknown to us, and are making the present uproar just for a blind?"

"That," said the trust officer, reflectively, "is, of course, within the bounds of possibility." Then to Cravath: "What do you say, sir?"

"Search us, of course," said he, rather stiffly.

If the trust company's officials had been practiced headquarters' men they could not have gone about their work more deftly and thoroughly; but when every one in the room had been shaken down, still there was no flintlock pistol. And as Cravath and I stood staring at each other, a thought leaped into my mind, which at once took form in words.

"The old man with the bonds! Where is he?"

Like a flash, what had happened just previous to the outbreak came to me. The clerkly young man had contented himself with a comparatively long distance view of the pistol until the said old man with the bonds had noisily pushed back his chair and dropped his shears.

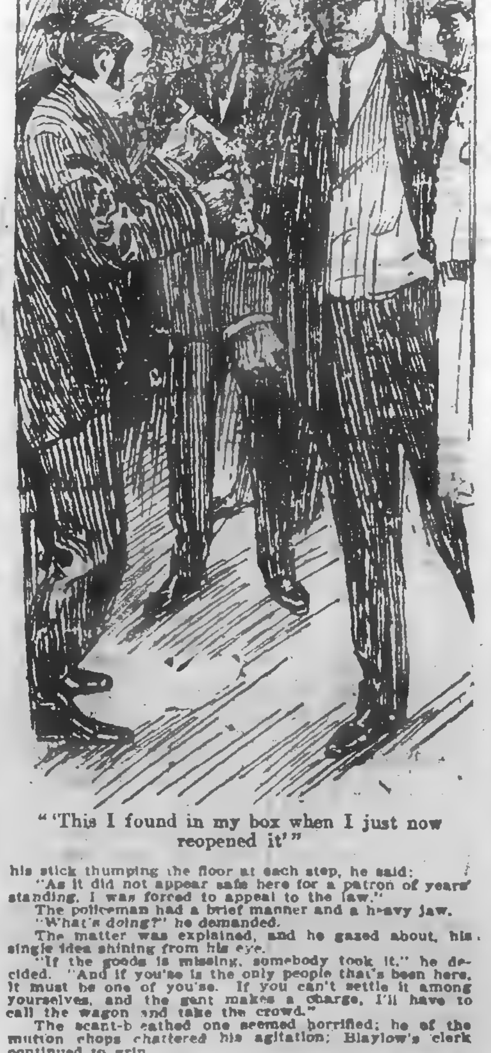
That must have been a signal. For instantly the young man had approached the table where the apprentice worked, and a moment later the fracas had begun. In the midst of this the old man had intervened with his cane.

"What better opportunity could be desired?" I asked, after excitedly going over the above. "He annexed the pistol and bolted."

"Impossible!" cried the trust officer, with great indignation. "That is Henry Carter, of wide repute as a financier."

"His repute as a crook will be equally wide when we are through with him," I threatened rather impatiently. And as I was saying it Cravath plucked me by the sleeve. Turning, I saw Henry Carter in the doorway, a policeman behind him.

Advancing, somewhat scantier of breath than before, his stick thumping the floor at each step, he said:



"'This I found in my box when I just now reopened it'"

"As it did not appear safe here for a patron of years' standing, I was forced to appeal to the law."

The policeman had a brief manner and a heavy jaw.

"What's doing?" he demanded.

The matter was explained, and he gazed about, his single idea shining from his eye.

"If the goods is missing, somebody took it," he decided. "And if you'se is the only people that's been here, it must be one of you'se. If you can't settle it among yourselves, and the gent makes a charge, I'll have to call the wagon and take the crowd."

The scant-breathed one seemed horrified; he of the mutton chops chattered his agitation; Blaylow's clerk continued to grin.

"Is it not enough for me to be disturbed as I am in this matter?" demanded the first of these. "Is it not sufficient that I should be concerned in a broil in which the term 'thief' has been bandied from one to another? And now," rather tragically, "I must be arrested; I must be taken through the public streets in a patrol; I must have my name in the public prints?"

"It is shameful," stated the mutton-chopped owner of the plate. "I've never heard of a greater affront upon law-abiding persons."

"As for me," said Blaylow's clerk, nonchalantly, "I don't mind the thing so much, now that I've got used to it. Indeed, I haven't been giving a prospective journey in the patrol wagon much thought. Some other aspects of the case have much more appeal for me."

The old gentleman breathed heavily and wrathfully. He demanded:

"What could so intimately concern any one, young man, as a disgraceful arrest?"

"Nothing, perhaps," said the young man; "that is, if one is thinking about one's self. But, as it happens, I am not thinking of myself. I am thinking of you and this other gentleman," nodding toward him of the chest of plate.

His tone and manner and the malice in the look directed toward Cravath and myself drew instant attention from me. Also, it appeared, they conveyed a decided shock to the owner of the plate.

"I don't just understand," spoke this latter, all a-tremble. "Will you explain?"

"Why," said Blaylow's clerk, slowly, "I noticed you a few moments ago with a quantity of fine silver. I noticed you"—to the old man—"with a bundle of bonds." Here he paused, as though to let these facts, presented in a mysterious light, impress themselves upon his hearers. Then he continued: "Now, the disappearance of this old pistol does seem rather queer. But is a thing of that sort really important enough to cause all this bother? I ask you again," looking at them all, impressively, "is it?"

"It would not seem so," said the old gentleman. "To me, at least, it really would not seem so."

"If the pistol is not worth all the commotion made about its disappearance," said the young man, much pleased, "I ask you and I ask you to consider the question carefully: why was the commotion made?"

As silence fell, and as eyes were directed on us askance, Cravath nudged me with his elbow and nodded appreciatively.

"I can see why Blaylow & Co. value this young man," said he, softly.

"And what," spoke the mutton-chopped man, timorously, "is your idea as to why the commotion was made?"

"As my opinion is asked for," answered the young man, even more pleased than before, "I will give it. But before doing so I want it understood that what I say is but an opinion. If the pistol claimed to be lost was not worth all the noise made concerning it, then that same noise was made to cover something else." Here there was another pause, and as looks of horror began to dawn upon the faces of both the scant-breathed man and the owner of the chest of plate, Blaylow's clerk continued: "As I said before, I noticed one of you gentlemen with a chest of plate, and the other with a bundle of bonds." Here his hands went out in a gesture expressive of lack of positive knowledge, and his eyebrows lifted. "I do not associate these two things, of course," he said, "but who knows?"

"God bless my soul!" cried the man with the mutton chops, and with that he began clawing at the closed door of the vault. "Let me in. I must re-examine the contents of my box. Let me in, sir," to the clerk in charge. "Let me in at once."

The door was opened for him, and he plunged in. At the same time the old man took his bonds hurriedly from his pocket and began counting them in evident fear of the worst.

The policeman examined both Cravath and myself; and, apparently, the result was unfavorable.

"So you think the whole thing was some sort of frame-up, eh?" said he to Blaylow's clerk. "Well, I've heard of such things; but, believe me," balancing his club nicely, "this one, if it is one, won't get by."

He with the bonds now turned.

"I think," said he, fervently, "that I am safe. If anything was proposed it failed, with regard to myself at least."

With much indignation, I was about to reply to this. But the clerk of the vault appeared in the doorway of that most useful storage place and beckoned frantically to the trust officer. The latter hurriedly went to him. There was a moment of whispering, followed by another of wild-eyed amazement upon the part of the official. Excitedly, they counseled each other; but whatever it was that they proposed doing was stopped by the appearance of the man with the mutton chops.

This gentleman was very pale, and as he held up one hand for attention, I saw that it was trembling.

"Some of your stuff gone, eh?" said the policeman, confidentially. "Well, don't be alarmed," taking a firm grip upon the club, "we've got the people that done it."

"Wait," said the mutton-chopped gentleman. "Just a moment, officer. Do not make it necessary for me to apologize further than it is now my duty to do. Gentlemen"—to Cravath and me—"I am a nervous man. Exceedingly so, in fact. When the word thief was cried out and the fighting began, I gathered up my belongings. I was excited, gentlemen, and in my excitement I gathered up your property." He extended out the pistol, which he had been holding behind him. "This," said he, "I found in my box when I just now reopened it."

Cravath, delighted, took the old weapon and buttoned it up in a pocket. There was a babble of excited exclamations of relief; of appreciation; the officials [illegible] the owner of the plate shook the proprietor of the bonds by the hand; the policeman took his departure. A moment later we were by ourselves in the corridor by the side of Blaylow's clerk.

"You knew all the time," accused Cravath, "what had become of the pistol."

The young man smiled.

"Not all the time," said he. "But I saw what happened as soon as I got a chance to think."

"I particularly liked your way of bringing the gun to light," said Cravath. "You got your revenge on us at the same time. Will you shake hands?"

The young man willingly did so; also he shook hands with me. And then, as we stood upon the steps, about to depart in different directions, I said to him:

"Do you value your job at Blaylow's?"

"Yes," said he, surprised.

"Then I'll do you a good turn," said I, "for I feel that we owe you one. Tell the story of the pistol if you must; but never let it get to Blaylow's ears that you were the cause of its being found today. This may seem queer to you; but, [illegible] it's a straight tip. Mum's the word."

GOTCH NOT STRONG ON TRAINING

The mat game will know its greatest exponent, Frank Gotch, no more, according to Ed. Smith, the well known Chicago sporting authority, who is a close friend of the wrestler. Smith said:

"The absolute horrors of training outweigh in the Gotch mind the love—or need, as case may be—of money. In other words, the champion will attempt to worry along now on what he has accumulated—and live in peace and quiet. Also he will live without the torture of having to think that within a certain time he will have to start the hideous grind of 'going on the road' in order to fit himself for a hard match.

"Gotch has just closed up his fall work on the farm and is casting about for something else to occupy his time. But a suggestion about wrestling again brought out the Gotch smile, and his eyes narrowed down to little slits as he thought about it.

"The people say I get my money easy because it was just natural for me to wrestle; well, I have all the natural qualifications. I wish these people knew the truth. It's the hardest money man ever got."

ALERT CLUB TO PICK TEAMS TO PLAY IN TORONTO AND AT HOME

Hamilton, Nov. 21—The Alert officials announce that they will obey the ruling of the O.R.F.U. and play the Toronto team on Saturday next President Denison was notified to that effect. This does not mean that the Alerts will cancel the game with the Tigers here on the same day for the city championship. Two teams will be placed on the field on Saturday. A meeting of all the players, senior, intermediate, and juniors, has been called for, when two teams will be picked.

Dr. Carr, president of the Alert club, announces that at the close of the season he would be through with sport for good as far as an official capacity goes, and hereafter will be a mere spectator. He is disgusted with what he considers the unfair treatment handed to the Alerts, and expressed the opinion that the O.R.F.U. was apparently being run for the benefit of the Toronto club.

Toronto, Nov. 21— Another meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive has been called for Friday night at the King Edward Hotel at nine o'clock, and it would not be surprising if the Alerts were thrown out of the O.R.F.U. The meeting is the result of several telegrams, which were sent to the Alert management. The first telegram sent out by President Dennison, was as follows—"It is reported here that the Alerts do not intend playing their regular team Saturday against the Torontos here. To protect the Union and public, we must have an assurance at once that you will play the team which has represented you in our senior series this season. Answer to-day."

The Alerts failed to answer the foregoing message up to 12 o'clock last night, and the second wire was sent out by President Dennison, which read as follows—"As no answer was received to my telegram a meeting of the O.R.F.U. Executive has been called for Friday evening Nov. 22, at 9 o'clock, to take action. Send representative."

ON THE TURF

Race drivers may come and go, but none of them will ever have the same stand in the eyes of the harness horse enthusiasts as "Pop" Geer who is rightly called the grand old man of the trotting turf. Reinsmen like Doble, Eplan, Murphy, Goldsmith Hickok, Eain, McHenry, etc., of the old school were popular in their day, and Tommy Murphy and Walter Cox, the leaders among the younger generation, are really great race drivers; but Edward I. Geers is undoubtedly the dady of them all in the public's estimation.

No matter where the track is located, whenever Geers wins a heat he is given an ovation by the grand stand occupants, and he is equally popular with all the horsemen, owners, and drivers alike. His noted stretch drives are greatly responsible for his popularity with the public and his fairness of mind commands the respect of the others. Geers never adopts unfair methods. He always drives his own horse, and never tries to drive two or three in the same race, and when he cannot win himself he never interferes with another driver's chances by "carrying out" "cutting off," and other such tactics.

SPORTING GOSSIP

At the head of the 1912 record-breakers is George Goulding, the great walker of Toronto. He hung up twelve new world's marks in the United States this year. Billy Kramer, the cross-country champion of the Long Island Athletic Club, comes next with six new American figures to his credit.

The athlete who made the most spectacular and phenomenal records was James Thorpe of Carlisle Indian School. He hung up new marks for the all-round championship of America and the Pentathlon and Decathlon, the two all-round contests of the Olympic Games.

Embargo on Flax Only.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—In view of the reports from Fort William and Winnipeg that the C.P.R. had placed an embargo on the loading of grain, the Board of Grain Commissioners of Canada, Dr. R. McGill and W. D. Staples, telegraphed yesterday to George Bury, superintendent of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, asking for information.

Mr. Bury sent a reply to the commissioners, in part, as follows:

"In reply to your wire of the 20th I have to say that the C.P.R. has not placed any embargo on loading wheat, oats or barley, but agents have been advised not to load flax to Fort William until Nov. 25 because there are now more cars under load with flax than elevators at lake front can take care of. Our agents were advised that if any shippers wished to forward flax to Duluth foreign cars would be provided for that purpose. The amount of grain being loaded on our tracks now is one-third more daily than last year."

Niobe Ready For Sea.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Whatever Premier Borden's naval announcement is going to be, it does not seem as if it is going to make much difference just yet in so far as the present naval organization is concerned.

It is understood that the Niobe, which has for the past six months been lying in dry dock at Halifax undergoing extensive repairs, is once more ready for sea and will leave in a week or two for England, where she will secure a partial new crew and also reinforcements for the Rainbow, which is in Pacific waters.

The term of service of a number of the marines and officers of both ships has expired, and many of them are not anxious to continue in the service. This necessitated the drafting of new sailors, and the matter was attended to by Deputy Minister of Naval Affairs Desbarats while in England last summer.

Grand Jury Probes G.T.R. Deal.

New York, Nov. 21.—In accordance with instructions from Attorney-General Wickersham, the federal grand jury yesterday began investigation under the Sherman anti-trust law of the alleged agreement between the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. and the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, which is charged to be in restraint of interstate commerce.

The following official statement has been issued by the New Haven Railroad offices at Boston: "Mr. Mellen has signed what is, in effect, a proposition to Mr. Chamberlin for a 25-year agreement, but it has not been accepted by Mr. Chamberlin, and Mr. Mellen is without knowledge what action Mr. Chamberlin will take."

An Enterprising Barrister.

An English barrister was once engaged in a nautical case, in which it appeared that a vessel had been exposed to a very severe gale of wind and had been thrown upon her beam ends. The barrister, ignorant of nautical matters, asked a seaman who was in the witness' box how it was they did not lower the topmast, upon which the witness said, with a sneer, "If you knew as much of the sea as I do you would know that this is not a very easy matter." This incident led the counsel to turn his attention to the subject, and he invented an apparatus for lowering topmasts, for which he obtained a patent and realized thereby upward of $100,000 by his invention.

Fortunes In Songs.

Other musicians besides merely comic song writers have gained golden rewards by their works. Sullivan received $50,000 in royalties from "The Lost Chord." "In Old Madrid" brought its composer—until then unknown to fame—$75,000; and for "My Pretty Jane," Bishop received $10,000 a line. It is not always the composer, however, who reaps the fruits of success. "Alice, Where Art Thou?" was offered to several publishers for $2, and declined, and "Kathleen Mavourneen" was sold by its composer for that amount.

BALLROOM AT BALMORAL

Has Lost the "Horrible Tartan of Victorian Times."

The ballroom at Balmoral, where the usual tenants' dance took place recently, is a very different place from what it was in the reign of the late Queen Victoria, when, not to put too fine a point on it, it presented a most dingy appearance.

The walls in those days were hung with what The Gentlewoman calls "a horrible tartan" designed by the late Prince Consort. Queen Victoria would never allow it to be removed, though often urged to do so by the late King Edward. So soon as the late King came to the throne he had the whole of these hangings removed and the place thoroughly redecorated.

It was his desire to give an annual ball here to the dwellers in the surrounding residences, but, for one reason or another, this was never carried into effect, and the tenants' ball is the only one that now takes place when the court is in residence at Balmoral, though those living at the house are allowed to have a dance here either at Christmas or the New Year.

The Prince of Wales, Prince Albert and Princess Mary are each skilled at dancing either reel or strathspey, and were delighted to have an opportunity of showing their prowess in this direction to the King and Queen the other day.

The ball and the smoking room at Balmoral are deeply interesting, if only for the number of heads of stags that adorn the walls, each shot by a distinguished sportsman. There are to be seen here, for example, a fine "Royal" brought down by the late Czar of Russia, and another by the present Czar, while two or three heads are here that fell before the rifle of the Kaiser.

The head of the first stag shot by the present King is in close proximity to that shot by the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale. Those at the castle are now looking forward to a very interesting addition to these trophies in the shape of the first stag shot by Prince Henry, the third son of their Majesties. This will in due course be placed alongside those which represent the maiden efforts of the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert.

Curiously enough in the whole of this collection, which extends to some hundreds of heads, there is not one that has fallen before the gun of a lady shot. Indeed Queen Victoria had very strong views about ladies figuring in the shooting field, and these are maintained by the present Queen.

Poachers' Tricks.

In these days of shooting estates in the north of England which are let for thousands of pounds to aristocratic sportsmen and sportswomen for the season, and which are carefully preserved from the depredations of poachers by vigilant gamekeepers, it might naturally be supposed that the question, "Is poaching profitable?" would be answered in the negative. According to the confessions of an experienced gamekeeper, however, the modern poacher is a very clever and up-to-date individual, and, in spite of all precautions, many of the grouse sent to London markets are caught by other means than those which the law allows.

Many poachers have been known to shoot grouse for a week before the moors are open by getting behind hills, so that the noise of their guns is lessened. Principally, however, they make their captures with dogs and snares. The dogs which accompany the poachers are specially trained and very sagacious. They stand motionless or move forward almost crawling, or lie down on the grass at the right word from their masters. To train these dogs to this pitch of perfection takes years of persevering work.

Limbless Legislator.

When a division is called in the British Parliament the members troop into either the aye lobby or the no lobby, pass the division clerks—who tick off on their obeisances to the tellers, whose duty it is to count the numbers. But it has occasionally happened that members have been allowed, owing to physical infirmity, to vote without leaving the bench on which they sit.

The most remarkable instance of the exercise of that privilege was provided in the case of McMurrough Kavanagh, an Irish Conservative home ruler, who was elected to Parliament in the '70's. He had neither arms nor legs and had to be carried in and out of the House, and it was arranged that in every division the tellers should approach him and ask in what lobby he wished to vote. Incidentally it should be said that he had trained himself to write by fixing the pen in his mouth, and that he was a ready and fluent speaker. His son, Walter Kavanagh, sat in the last Parliament as a supporter of Mr. Redmond and the Irish Nationalist party.

A man who is always complimenting a woman is an awful liar, and she knows it. Still, she believes him.

Nearly Joined Army.

Mr. Henry Stead, son of the late Mr. W. T. Stead, speaking at the Browning Institute, Walworth, Eng., recently, mentioned that his late father nearly joined the Salvation Army. "My father," he said, "admitted that he had often been tempted to leave his work and join the Salvation Army, and he had no hesitation in saying that he had not met half a dozen men whom he could class with General Booth. He described the work of the Army as a miracle. At the close of 'Darkest England' the General acknowledged the great assistance of one 'who, though not in the Army, was a great sympathizer with it'."

An Odd Sermon.

It seems doubtful if there is anything more crooked than the following title of a pamphlet published in 1703: "The Deformity of Sin Cured; a Sermon Preached at St. Michael's, Crooked Lane, Before the Prince of Orange, by the Rev. J. Crookshanks." The pamphlet was sold by Matthew Denton at the Crooked Billet, near Cripplegate. The words of the text are, "Every crooked path shall be made straight," and the prince before whom it was read was deformed.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN CHARGE OF ILLEGAL SELLING

Alfred Switzer, a Bartender, is Charged With Serving a Minor With Liquor — Counsel Says Evidence is Contradictory and Unsatisfactory

In police court this morning Alfred Switzer was charged with serving liquor to Andrew Sullivan, a minor. The case was a companion one to that recently laid against George McKenzie, the other bartender at the Montgomery Hotel, who was acquitted.

Switzer, through his counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, entered a plea of "not guilty."

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., appeared for the prosecution.

After hearing the evidence the Magistrate reserved judgment till Wednesday, Nov. 27.

Judgment in the case of Andrew Sullivan, who pleaded guilty to loitering in a bar, will be given the same day.

In the charge against Switzer, Sullivan, and O'Hara, and Sullivan's mother gave evidence.

For the defence, Mr. Montgomery proprietor of the hotel, and Switzer, were called.

Mr. Gordon asked a dismissal, on the grounds that the evidence for the prosecution was contradictory and unsatisfactory.

OBITUARY

The Late Dr. Porter

Edward George Porter, M.A., Ph.D., passed away yesterday morning at Lancaster Pa., in his thirtieth year.

The late Dr. Porter was born in Peterborough County, and spent most of his youth here. He matriculated from the local Collegiate Institute. After graduating in Arts from Toronto University, he took a post-graduate course for three years at Yale and three years at Harvard, where he received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the summer of 1911. He then accepted the position of assistant Professor of English, at Amherst College, Mass., and on January 1st, 1912, received the appointment of Professor of English Literature in the Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., where he continued until the time of his death. In the summer of 1912 he was married to Miss Susan Campbell, of Gilmour street, and with his bride went on a visit to his sister, who is the wife of the American Consul at Guatemala. The southern climate seemed to effect his health, and he contracted the illness which brought about his death yesterday.

He was a brother of Mr. W. J. Porter, Warden of the County, and a nephew of Mr. R. E. Wood, K.C.

The remains will probably arrive in the city to-day. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

To his young widow the sympathy of many friends will be extended. Only last week, Mrs. Thomas Campbell, her mother, passed away.

ADAM AND EVE ARE OMITTED

Revised Addition of Baptist Bible Has Radical Changes

New York, Nov. 21.—First copies of the revised edition of the Bible published by the American Baptist Publication Society, have reached the society's headquarters at No. 23 East Twenty-sixth street. The new edition is a radical departure in its construction from the language used in the King James version.

In the new Bible the names "Adam and Eve" do not appear. Their place is taken by the words "man" and "woman," which is a direct translation of the old Hebrew names. The word "Hell" is eliminated, "underworld" being inserted in its places.

WHALE GONE TOO.

Other great changes are made. The story of Jonah and the whale is changed so that the words "great fish"—as being a near interpretation of the ancient Hebrew—take the place of "whale." "Jehovah thy God" takes the place of "Lord thy God." "Carved" replaces "graven," and the word "immersed" in parentheses follows the word baptize in every instance.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

In the new edition the Lord's Prayer becomes:

"Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in Heaven so on Earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debt, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. Amen."

CORRECTNESS NOT STYLE.

Owing to its recent arrival none of the Baptist ministers seen would commit themselves to an expression of opinion. One of them when asked whether he thought the charm of the old English phraseology would not be spoiled by the alterations, replied that the aim of the society had been to produce an absolutely correct Bible, irrespective of any charm of language.

CONDUCT OF GREEN WAS DISREPUTABLE AND MEAN

Magistrate Edmison Imposes Fine of $10 and Costs on Defendant in Assault Case.

Police Magistrate Edmison rendered judgment this morning in the case of Cameron vs. Green. The case was dealt with in the County Police Court on Friday last. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the complainant.

In giving judgement, the Magistrate reviewed the evidence, as was submitted in the Court, and his decision was in part as follows:—

In the first place we have the defendant's admission that some years ago he was in the habit of paying occasional visits upon a young lady who for some time past has been residing with her aunt. He admits he thought a good deal of this young lady, but for some reason during the last few years his visits have been less frequent. In the meantime she became acquainted with Mr. Cameron, who evidently thought so much of her that they became engaged to be married, and after that Mr. Cameron's visits became quite frequent and they both state that they are to be married within a few weeks.

Cameron's frequent visits became known to the defendant, who still had a lurking desire to secure the affections of the young woman, and prompted by a jealous spirit, made up his mind to keep watch over the home where the young lady resided, for the purpose of learning how often Cameron visited the young lady, and what time of the evening he came to the house, and at what time he left it. In answer to a question asked him, he said he lay out in the field watching the house for five or six nights, and on two of such nights he crept up to a window, and watched the movements of Mr. Cameron inside where he was talking with the young woman, with whom he thought Cameron was acting rather too familiarly. He got up from where he was lying outside of the window, went to the kitchen door, walked in, and passed through the kitchen into the dining room, where Cameron and the young lady were sitting, and addressing the girl first, asked her if she were not ashamed of herself sitting there with this fellow Cameron. Then speaking to Cameron, said to him, "Cameron, I would like to lick, or feel like licking you." And Cameron and the girl both swear positively that on making such statement he made a stroke with his fist at Cameron, who guarded it off, and in return struck Green a sharp blow with his fist and knocked him down on the floor. He got up and again tried to strike Cameron, who again struck, and knocked him down. He again got up, and they swear he made the third attempt to strike Cameron. The young lady became greatly frightened, and screamed for her aunt, who had retired, but got up and came to the dining room, and managed to get Green to go out, and she locked him out, which ended the fight.

When Green entered the house that night his cap was drawn down so as to partly cover his face, and he had a handkerchief tied loosely around his neck, and had a heavy pair of socks drawn up over his boots, which he admitted was intended to prevent his footsteps being heard while he was outside of the window watching Cameron's movements inside. He had not been invited to the house that night by anyone, and was there simply as a trespasser, and for a time refused to leave when requested to do so. His conduct lying out on the grass concealing himself from view, watching for Cameron for five or six night's, crawling up and looking through the windows of the house, and then entering in through the kitchen door, and creating a disturbance in the dining room, was wholly unlawful, and most reprehensible, and his object evidently was to have a row with Cameron. And he had one, but it so happens that Cameron was rather too much for him, and he got the worst of it. He says his nose was broken and bled freely, and his eyes were also blackened. All this he brought on himself by his own disreputable, mean conduct, and I now find him guilty of an assault upon Cameron, and convict him of the same, and impose a fine against him of ten dollars and costs, amounting to six dollars and fifty-eight cents, to be paid forthwith, and in default the defendant will be committed to the common gaol of this county for ten days, unless said fine and costs be sooner paid.

GEO. EDMISON,
Police Magistrate.
Dated, 21st Nov., 1912.

YOUNG LAD ENTERED ROOM TO FIND HIS MOTHER DEAD

She Had Used Razor on Her Throat to End Her Life.

Regarding the suicide at the Armstrong House, the Havelock Standard has the following:

The unfortunate woman, who had only been employed at the hotel for a few days, had not been in good health since her arrival, and complained frequently of her nerves. On Friday evening a physician was called to attend her and administered treatment for her nervous system. On Saturday morning she was not much better, and asked her son, a boy about 15 years of age, who slept in the same room with her, to get her a cup of tea. He did so and she drank the beverage. Later she asked him to send a telegram to her sister in Buffalo, informing her that she was ill. James, the son, did so, and when he returned to the hotel, was unable to gain admittance to the bedroom. He summoned help, and finally crawled through the transoms, only to find his mother lying on the bed, with her throat gashed frightfully and the bedclothing soaked in blood. Hastily unlocking the door, he ran for a doctor, but the poor woman was past help and was dead before the physician arrived.

Coroner Kindred was summoned and decided that no inquest was necessary.

That Mrs. Bews' mind was unbalanced as a result of her nervous trouble was evidenced by the following note she left on a piece of wrapping paper, which was thickly stained by bloody finger prints, and which apparently had been written or partly written, after the fatal deed:

"I can see madness in my eyes. Oh, Mrs. Bews, you have caused this. I felt my brain turn over yesterday. The distress in my mind is awful. Give Jim my money and anything. I am no more use. Poor Jim. Reta take him please. May God help me. My nerves are shattered. No good trying to battle in the world. God help me. My poor boy. 4 packing cases at Neal's."

The day before the fatal action she had asked other employes at the hotel if her eyes looked queer, and said she thought she was going mad. She also had an idea that she was paralyzed on one side, and awakened her son one night to tell him so.

The body was taken in charge by undertaker Cortis, until the arrival of her sister, Mrs. Bain, of Buffalo, who came in on the midnight on Sunday morning. On Sunday the remains were taken to Manvers, where the interment took place. The deceased was formerly employed at the Royal Hotel in Marmora. She left a substantial sum to her credit in the bank here, and comes of a respectable family in England. Besides the boy, she leaves another son who resides in the West.

THE CONVENTION

Meeting of Committee to be Held To-night

Preparations are well under way for the carrying on of the Students' Convention that will be here next week. The local committee, of which Rev. Jas. Rollins is chairman, will meet this evening at 5 p.m. in Murray Street Church Board Room to receive reports of the billeting of the visitors. Arrangements will also be made for the supply of the local pulpits on Dec. 1st. The Western delegation will arrive about 4.30 on Friday afternoon by special train. The city will probably soon realize there are students in the city. However it is not expected they will be at all dangerous, though their college yells in the armories on Saturday may be suggestive of an Indian war dance. The students will be here on a war of a much different type—the evangelizing of the world. Mr. H. L. Troyer, Secretary of the Canadian Colleges' Mission is in the city, assisting in local arrangements and will return next Thursday to have matters in shape by Friday afternoon. There is every promise of this being a great gathering of students.

MANUFACTURERS MAKE ATTACK

On Present Taxation System in Ontario.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—It was the manufacturers' turn yesterday to take some [illegible]-like "cracks" at the present system of taxation in Ontario. A deputation from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association appeared before the special committee appointed to revise the Assessment Act, and gave their reasons for holding that the policy now in force in some cases was not adequate. Their principal objection was to the business tax, which they considered bore too heavily on the manufacturer. They also suggested a heavier tax on unimproved land as a remedy for the practice of holding such land for speculative purposes, while adjoining property was increasing its value. Besides the manufacturers, two American experts and a couple of single-taxers imparted information as to how to solve the intricate problem.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, chairman of the committee, at the conclusion of the session, adjourned until Dec. 19. Mr. Hanna commented that in his opinion the two important features of the Ellis-Rowell bills pointed at local option for municipalities. This was a matter of very much difference of opinion. He had grave doubts that the local option idea would work out satisfactorily. Mr. Ellis said that he introduced his bill merely from the educational standpoint—to get valuable information so as to correct the present state of affairs.

H. H. Stevens, M.P. for Vancouver, was asked to impart some information about the success of the single tax in the Terminal City. Mr. Stevens said that there had been great building activity as the result of exemption of improvements. The land was not assessed for more than 50 per cent. of its value. He considered that taxation was a matter that should be dealt with locally, as one system might suit one particular municipality and not another. "Despite the criticism of F. C. Wade, K.C., of Vancouver," he said, "the single tax system was working out satisfactorily."

FIVE DAYS AT MERCY OF SEA

Crew of Nine Rescued by Canadian Cutter.

Vancouver, Nov. 22.—Five days and nights without sleep, three days without water to drink, wet to the skin during the whole of that period on a helpless, waterlogged, dismasted schooner, and then when the men were crowded into the only remaining small boat, with huge seas carrying them into the rugged shores of Vancouver Island, the welcome smoke of a Canadian fisheries cutter appeared. This was the experience of the crew of nine of the American schooner, E. K. Wood. The schooner lies an abandoned wreck on Vancouver Island. She had a cargo of lumber out of Bellingham, Wash., bound for San Pedro, Cal.

C.P.R. MEN TO GET THE BOARD

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes have renewed their application to the Minister of Labor for a board of conciliation and investigation, but limited in its scope to enquire into certain differences existing for some time between them and the C.P.R. Co. and for such limited purpose a board has been established, and on the recommendation of the applicants the Minister has appointed J. A. McDonald of Halifax a member of the board.

The company will now be asked to recommend a member, and if it refuses or fails to do so, the Minister will appoint one on its behalf.

The investigation will forthwith proceed. There are grounds for hope that a fair and equitable conclusion may be reached by the board which will prove acceptable to both parties to the dispute.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Hon. Dr. Reaume, Provincial Minister of Public Works, who was in Ottawa yesterday, stated that changes would probably be made in the laws and regulations governing highways which would facilitate the elimination from the province of all toll roads.

NEW SENATORS FROM THE WEST

Some Names Are Mentioned as Senate Probabilities.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The announcement in the speech from the throne that additional Senators for the prairie provinces are to be created, causes speculation as to the appointees.

It is understood here the two for Manitoba will be Daniel Sprague of Winnipeg, and probably Dr. Schaffner; for Saskatchewan, J. W. Laird of Regina, R. S. Lake, ex-M.P., and Donald MacLean of Saskatoon are mentioned; while C. A. Magrath of the Waterways Commission, and John Herron, ex-M.P., are spoken of for the new Alberta seats.

E. J. Scully of Windsor, may succeed Senator Sullivan of Kingston.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 22.—The Commission of Alienists investigating the mental condition of John Schrank, who shot Col. Roosevelt, to-day reported unanimously that he was insane and is insane at present. On account of the connection existing between his delusions and the act with which he stands charged, they are of the opinion that he is unable to confer intelligently with his counsel on the conduct of his defense.

STORMY SESSION OF THE A.F. OF L.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 22.—Protracted and excited debate occurred at yesterday morning's session of the American Federation of Labor over a portion of the report of the committee on the president's report.

The direct point of argument was the attitude of President Gompers during the recent campaign, in which the committee concurred. The so-called conservative and radical wings of the federation represented by delegates took sides on the question.

Max S. Hayes particularly assailed the committee's report. He declared he would not stand by the report, which, he said, favored the Democratic party.

STANLEY BARRACKS MEN GIVE STARTLING EVIDENCE

Three Soldiers Say Gibson Was Not With Dunkleman

Toronto, Nov. 22.—The evidence of three soldiers at yesterday's hearing of the trial of Charles Gibson, for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, on the night of Good Friday last, was the most startling feature of the defence to date.

Each of these three men swore to having seen Dunkleman in company with others, of whom Gibson was not one, at the bridge near the Hydro-electric station, both on the night of the murder and the night previous, on both of which occasions Dunkleman says he was there. Corpl. Whittaker met three men upon the sidewalk beneath a light at the bridge. One of the three jolted the corporal into the road. He turned to remonstrate and at this point heard the middle man of the trio, whom he identified as Dunkleman, say to the man upon his left, "It is worth $49." Dunkleman spoke in broken English, and therefore, although he had faced about, the corporal, who dislikes any dealing with foreigners, went on, omitting his intended remonstrance. So hard was the knock that he got when jolted into the road, that he believed he had not been struck by the man's arm, but that the man had had some hard instrument concealed beneath his coat. Neither of the other two men was Gibson.

Sapper Cunningham, now at the Kingston Barracks, but at the time of the murder at Stanley Barracks, said that he had passed Dunkleman and four other men upon the bridge at about the time the three were seen there by Corpl. Whittaker. He recognized Dunkleman as one of them, but Gibson was not among them.

Corpl. Whittaker had seen the same three men upon the bridge on Thursday night, and Sapper Cunningham had also seen Dunkleman on the bridge on Thursday night, in conversation with others. On that occasion, as on the others, neither had recognized Gibson as among those present.

Gibson, in the morning, took the stand in his own defence, and declared Dunkleman lied when he said that he, Gibson, was the man who inflicted the injuries upon him. He accounted for the blood on his clothing as that of his young brother, who had met with an accident on the day of the tragedy. He declared that on the night of the murder he had gone to the yards with Rosenthal and two other men, but had left when they had told him he would not be needed. He went straight home from the scene, he declared.

To-day the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, the mother and father of the accused lad, will be heard, and this will probably close the defence. The case will likely go to the jury by night, and should a decision be arrived at before final adjournment the jury will be liberated from custody, in which they have lived since Monday morning.

One Year and Fifteen Lashes for Wife-Beater.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 22.—Magistrate Elliott yesterday sentenced Michael Levitch to one year in Central Prison, with fifteen lashes, for wife beating. The cruelties, which extended over a period of one year, included pulling his wife out of bed and trampling on her three days after the birth of an infant.

Poor Law Children For Canada.

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Giving evidence before the Dominion Royal Commission, which concluded its sitting yesterday, Earl Grey urged that the poor law children of England should be sent to Canada or other dominions. Insofar as Canada is concerned, he was satisfied they would be well cared for, and well placed. He opposed the suggestion that the cost of emigration should be borne by the Imperial Government, and thought the Dominion Government would be making a wise investment itself.

Earl Grey also made a strong appeal for the establishment of a central market in London, at which the produce of overseas dominions could be displayed and sold. Apart from the fiscal question, there was no doubt the people of England would prefer to buy goods from overseas kinsmen.

BLUE RIBBONS FOR CANADIANS

More Honors at the New York Horse Show.

New York, Nov. 22.—Canadians figured at the horse show yesterday when Hon. Adam Beck's two hunters, Sir Edward, ridden by Thomas Smith, and Sir Thomas, ridden by A. Clave, won the blue ribbon for the best performance of a pair of hunters ridden abreast over the jumps. Miss Dunn's Cousin Jack, ridden by W. Williams, and Comet, ridden by A. Naylor, came second, with the pair owned by Lieut. H. Mathon of the Royal Holland Dragoons, Powerful, ridden by Lieut. Mathon, and Held, ridden by Lieut. Figaliga, in third place. Captain Kilgour and Captain Rodden were among the other Canadians whose mounts figured in this event.

Hon. Adam Beck again figured when, riding Sir Edward, he took second place in the contest for qualified hunters ridden by amateurs. Major Kilgour of the Queen's Own Rifles, on Jap, came a cropper over the head of his mount, and it took a score of grooms to catch the flying horse. Major Kilgour's Touraine, however, ridden by H. Blake, was placed third. Algoma, exhibited by the Blenheim Farm, and ridden by W. R. Abell, won the blue ribbon in this event.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 22.—A priest and twenty firemen were overcome by smoke from a fire which yesterday destroyed the interior of St. Jean Baptiste Church. The financial loss is estimated at $100,000.

MODIFICATION OF THE PEACE TERMS

Bulgarians and Turks Will Meet at Tchatalja in an Endeavor to Stop the War—Servia May Cause Trouble.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 22.—A Belgrade despatch to the Matin, says the state of mind of the Servians, is one of disquietude. The popular feeling is that Servia wants ports on the Adriatic, and will go to war with Austria to get them if necessary.

Sofia, Nov. 22.—Indications, this morning, are that Bulgaria will adopt a conciliatory attitude and modify the conditions originally offered the Turkish Government. A special Cabinet meeting was held this morning to consider the rejection by Turkey of the terms of the proposed armistice. At its conclusion, well informed sources of information, declared an immediate resumption of hostilities was improbable.

London, Nov. 22.—First classes of reserves in six Austro-Hungarian Army Corps have been called to colors, according to a News Agency despatch from Vienna.

Sofia, Nov. 22.—Dr. S. Dineff, President of the Bulgarian Parliament General Savoff, Bulgarian Commander in Chief and General Fitcheff, Chief of Staff of the Bulgarian army, have been appointed Bulgarian plenipotentiaries for the negotiation of an armistice between the Turkish and Bulgarian armies. They will proceed immediately to Tchatalja lines to meet the Turkish plenipotentiaries there.

Constantinople, Nov. 22.—The terms offered by the Balkan allies for the arrangement of an armistice are "unacceptable" to the Ottoman Government.

Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, has been instructed to continue military operations until more acceptable conditions are offered by the allies, but at the same time he is entrusted with the further negotiations.

The official announcement of the Porte's decision with regard to the armistice is as follows:

"The Bulgarian Premier has addressed to the Ottoman Government a document containing conditions for an armistice which were communicated yesterday to the Council of Ministers and were considered to be unacceptable.

"Consequently and likewise in view of the fact that the commander-in-chief has been entrusted in principle with the task of negotiating conditions with the plenipotentiaries of the belligerent states—if these plenipotentiaries are invested with the necessary powers—and has also been directed to communicate the result of such negotiations to us, the commander-in-chief has been instructed to continue military operations with the help of the Almighty, until reasonable and moderate conditions are proposed to us."

It is said that the Bulgarian conditions included a demand for the surrender of Adrianople and Scutari, the withdrawal of the Turkish fleet from the Black Sea and the cessation of the despatch of troops to Tchatalja and the building of fortifications.

Gen. Shukri Pasha, military commandant of Adrianople, has received the title of "Ghazi," which means "victorious recognition" of his splendid defence.

An official despatch from the captain of the cruiser Hamidieh, which was attacked by Bulgarian torpedo boats in the Black Sea yesterday morning, says that he sank two of them and damaged the third, which was able to draw away. The despatch adds:

"When at a distance of 2,000 yards the third torpedo boat discharged two torpedoes, inflicting slight damage on us. We eventually obliged her to withdraw out of range of our guns."

Failure Alarms Europe.

London, Nov. 22.—The formal suspension of the eastern war proved only for a day. Turkey rejected the Balkan terms for an armistice, apparently before the plenipotentiaries had time to come together at Hademkeui.

A Balkan diplomat in London pointed out last night that these terms were submitted merely as an answer to Turkey's pressing and repeated demands for an armistice, and said.

It is practically certain that their rejection will result in a more active and determined resumption of hostilities. Probably the allied troops will now refuse to treat with Turkey until they are in a position to dictate perhaps sterner terms in the capital of the Sultan.

Even yet it would seem that the Turkish officials have not abandoned hope that the powers will come to their rescue and attempt to dictate a compromise, but Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, announced last night that the powers had not gone so far as to arrange a general conference after the conclusion of the war. Their only agreement as far as surface indications go, is to keep their hands off.

Yet the probability of the resumption of hostilities has started rumors afresh from Vienna of Austrian and Russian mobilizations on their borders, and a naval demonstration by the Triple Alliance on the Albanian coast, if Servia pushes her onward march to the coveted seaport.

Masses Urged to Strike.

Paris, Nov. 22.—There never was a more opportune moment for the proletariat to strike against war, according to the decision of the French Socialist party, which met yesterday to consider what attitude it should assume at the International Socialist Congress to be held at Basel, Switzerland, on Sunday in opposition to war.

Countries, it was asserted, should not be permitted to be bound by secret treaties, and if, in spite of the efforts of the Socialists, a conflagration became imminent through the machinations of diplomats, "the people would be justified in having recourse to revolutionary methods, a general strike and insurrection to stop war and tear from their places those responsible for it."

NON-JURY SITTINGS

The non-jury sittings of the High Court, which were to have commenced on December 9, have been adjourned to December 16, on account of the County Court Sittings and Sessions of the Peace being held in the week of December 9.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE AT OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

Royal Party Heartily Cheered on Their Way to the Ceremonies.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—The langurous charm of an Indian summer afternoon graced the ceremonies on Parliament hill which attended the formal opening of the second session of the twelfth Parliament.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia drove in state from Rideau Hall, escorted by a detachment of the Governor-General's Foot Guards. The royal party was heartily cheered along the line of march, and at the entrance to the Parliament buildings, where several thousand people had assembled.

The floor of the Senate was given up almost entirely to smartly-gowned ladies prominent in the social world of Canada, and the galleries presented an appearance scarcely less brilliant. His Royal Highness wore a uniform of a field marshal, and the Prime Minister, who stood near the throne, wore the Windsor uniform.

After hearing the Governor-General's speech, the Commons returned to their own chamber and five new members were presented and took their seats.

Loud and prolonged applause from the Government benches welcomed Alex. Morrison, the victor of Macdonald, who succeeds Mr. Staples, now on the Grain Commission. He was presented by Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. Mr. Roche.

The Opposition members had a counter-demonstration when Pierre Cardin, the Liberal who succeeds himself in Richelieu, was presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The ex-Premier, it was observed, addressed the Speaker in French.

The House then adjourned until Monday afternoon, when the debate upon the address will begin.

The speech from the the throne delivered by the Duke of Connaught alluded to the naval bill as follows:

"During the past summer four members of my Government, conferred in London with His Majesty's Government on the question of naval defence. Important discussions took place, and conditions have been disclosed which, in the opinion of my advisers, render it imperative that the effective naval forces of the Empire should be strengthened without delay. My advisers are convinced that it is the duty of Canada at this juncture to afford reasonable and necessary aid for that purpose. A bill will be introduced accordingly."

Alluding to his western trip, the duke said:

"It has been a source of the deepest satisfaction to me to see the almost universal prosperity which reigns throughout the Dominion and to witness the energy and enterprise which are shown in developing the rich resources of the land.

"It is most gratifying to observe that the trade of the Dominion is increasing rapidly and steadily, the aggregate trade for the last fiscal year being the largest on record. During the present year the same steady increase has been noted, and it is anticipated that the total volume of our trade for the present fiscal year will greatly surpass that of any previous year in our history.

"The revenues of the Dominion continue to expand, and in every branch of business and industry there is a remarkable activity which gives assurance of continued progress and prosperity.

"A copious and welcome stream of immigration has poured into our country during the past summer. The volume of immigration during the present year is greater than during any corresponding period of our history, and in larger measure than usual it has been drawn from the British Isles.

"The labors of the husbandman have been blessed with an ample return, and, although in some districts the weather has been unpropitious for the harvest, it is expected that the total value of our field crops will be greater than in any previous year.

"Papers will be laid before you which embody trade arrangements that have been consummated between the Dominion and certain of His Majesty's possessions in the West Indies. It is hoped that these arrangements will prove of great advantage not only to those possessions, but to Canada as well. A bill will be introduced for the purpose of carrying this agreement into effect."

After a reference to the coming naval bill, he continued:

"It is abundantly evident that the highways of Canada constitute an important part of an efficient scheme of transportation. The necessity for improving our existing facilities in this regard is manifest, and a bill will be introduced for the purpose of enabling the Dominion to co-operate with the provinces in the accomplishment of this most desirable purpose.

"It is satisfactory to know that the proposal of my Government to co-operate with the Governments of the various provinces in promoting the agricultural industry has met with hearty approval. The appropriations which were made last session in connection therewith have proved to be of marked benefit to the country.

"After a careful study of the whole question, my advisers are convinced that co-operation with the provinces on well-defined terms and conditions will achieve the best results along the lines of agricultural instruction. Any such policy, to be effective, must be continuous. Accordingly a bill will be introduced by which a substantial amount of money will be set apart from the consolidated revenue fund for the purpose of assisting the provinces for a term of years in this highly important national work.

"My Government has succeeded in securing certain reductions in cable rates, and will continue its efforts to obtain further reductions.

"Under existing legislation the charters of the banks will expire on the first day of July next. A bill revising and extending these charters will be submitted for your consideration and approval.

"Several other bills will be submitted, including measures providing for increased representation of the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to the Senate.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons.

"The accounts for the last fiscal year will be laid before you. It will be satisfactory to you to learn that the revenue has been ample to cover both ordinary and capital expenditure.

"The estimates for the next fiscal year will be submitted at an early date. They have been prepared with due regard on the one hand for economy, and on the other hand for the necessary development of the resources of the Dominion.

"Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons.

"I invite your earnest consideration of the subjects to which I have alluded, and I invoke the blessings of Divine Providence upon your deliberations."

And then they forgot him temporarily for the more immediate need of clothes. All the passengers knew that they had left behind what baggage they had not sent ahead, and much sympathy had been expressed. But most people would rather give you their sympathy than lend you their clothes. Mallory did not mind the men, but Marjorie dreaded the women. She was afraid of all of them but Mrs. Temple.

She threw herself on the little lady's mercy and was asked to help herself. She borrowed a nightgown of extraordinary simplicity, a shirt waist of an ancient mode, and a number of other things.

If there had been anyone there to see she would have made a most anachronistic bride.

Mallory canvassed the men and obtained a shockingly purple shirt from Wedgewood, who meant to put him at his ease, but somehow failed when he said in answer to Mallory's thanks:

"God bless my soul, old top, don't you think of thanking me. I ought to thank you. You see, the idiot who makes my shirts, made that by mistake, and I'd be no end grateful if you'd jolly well take the loathsome thing off my hands. I mean to say, I shoudn't dream of being seen in it myself. You quite understand, don't you?"

Ashton contributed a maroon atrocity in hosiery, with equal tact:

"If they fit you, keep 'em. I got stung on that batch of socks. That pair was originally lavender, but they washed like that. Keep 'em. I wouldn't be found dead in 'em."

The mysterious Fosdick, who lived a lonely life in the Observation car and slept in the other sleeper, lent Mallory a pair of pyjamas evidently intended for a bridegroom of romantic disposition. Mallory blushed as he accepted them and when he found himself in them, he whisked out the light, he was so ashamed of himself.

Once more the whole car gaped at the unheard of behavior of its newly wedded pair. The poor porter had been hungry for a bridal couple, but as he went about gathering up the cast-off footwear of his large family and found Mallory's shoes at number three and Marjorie's tiny boots at number five, he shook his head and groaned.

"Times has suttainly changed for the wuss. If this is a bridal couple, gimme divorcees."

CHAPTER XXI.

Matrimony to and Fro.

And the next morning they were in Wyoming—well toward the center of that State. They had left behind the tame levels and the truly rural towns and they were among foothills and mountains, passing cities of wildly picturesque repute, like Cheyenne, and Laramie, Bowie, and Medicine Bow, and Bitter Creek, whose very names imply literature and war whoops, cowboy yelps, barking revolvers, another redskin biting the dust, cattle stampedes, town-paintings, humorous lynchings and bronchos in epileptic frenzy.

But the talk of this train was concerned with none of these wonders, which the novelists and the magazinist have perhaps a trifle overpublished. The talk of this train was concerned with the eighth wonder of the world, a semi-detached bridal couple.

Mrs. Whitcomb was eager enough to voice the sentiment of the whole populace, when she looked up from her novel in the observation room and, nudging Mrs. Temple, drawled: "By the way, my dear, has that bridal couple made up its second night's quarrel yet?"

"The Mallorys?" Mrs. Temple flushed as she answered, mercifully. "Oh, yes, they were very friendly again this morning."

Mrs. Whitcomb's countenance was cynical: "My dear, I've been married twice and I ought to know something about honeymoons, but this honeyless honeymoon—" she cast up her eyes and her hands in despair.

The women were so concerned about Mr. and "Mrs." Mallory, that they hardly noticed the uncomfortable plight of the Wellingtons, or the curious behavior of the lady from the stateroom who seemed to be afraid of something and never spoke to anybody. The strange behavior of Anne Gattle and Ira Lathrop even escaped much comment, though they were forever being stumbled on when anybody went out to the observation platform. When they were dislodged from there, they sat playing checkers and talking very little, but making eyes at one another and sighing like furnaces.

They had evidently concocted some secret of their own, for Ira, looking at his watch, murmured sentimentally to Anne: "Only a few hours more, Annie."

And Anne turned geranium-color and dropped a handful of checkers. "I don't know how I can face it."

Ira growled like a lovesick lion: "Aw, what do you care?"

"But I was never married before, Ira," Anne protested, "and on a train, too."

"Why, all the bridal couples take to the railroads."

"I should think it would be the last place they'd go," said Anne—a sensible woman, Anne! "Look at the Mallories—how miserable they are."

"I thought they were happy," said Ira, whose great virtue it was to pay little heed to what was none of his business.

"Oh, Ira," cried Anne, "I hope we shan't begin to quarrel as soon as we are married."

"As if anybody could quarrel with you, Anne," he said.

"Do you think I'll be so monotonous as that?" she retorted.

Her spunk delighted him beyond words. He whispered: "Anne, you're so gol-darned sweet if I don't get a chance to kiss you, I'll bust."

"Why, Ira—we're on the train."

"Da—darn the train! Who ever heard of a fellow proposing and getting engaged to a girl and not even kissing her."

"But our engagement is so short."

"Well, I'm not going to marry you until I get a kiss."

Perhaps innocent old Anne really believed this blood-curdling threat. It brought her instantly to terms, though she blushed: "But everybody's always looking."

"Come out on the observation platform."

"Oh, Ira, again?"

"I dare you."

"I take you—but" seeing that Mrs. Whitcomb was trying to overhear, she whispered: "Let's pretend it's the scenery."

So Ira rose, pushed the checkers aside, and said in an unusually positive tone: "Ah, Miss Gattle, won't you have a look at the landscape?"

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Lathrop," said Anne, "I just love scenery."

They wandered forth like the Sleeping Beauty and her princely awakener, and never dreamed what gigglings and nudgings and wise head-noddings went on back of them. Mrs. Wellington laughed loudest of all at the lovers whose heads had grown gray while their hearts were still so green.

It was shortly after this that the Wellingtons themselves came into prominence in the train life.

As the train approached Green River, and its copper-basined stream, the engineer began to set the air-brakes for the stop. Jimmie Wellington, boozily half-awake in the smoking-room, wanted to know what the name of the station was. Everybody is always eager to oblige a drunken man, so Ashton and Fosdick tried to get a window open to look out.

The first one they labored at, they could not budge after a biceps-breaking tug. The second flew up with such ease that they went over backward. Ashton put his head out and announced that the approaching depot was labelled "Green River." Wellington burbled: "What a beautiful name for a shtation."

Ashton announced that there was something beautifuller still on the platform—"Oh, a peach!—a nectarine! and she's getting on this train."

Even Doctor Temple declared that she was a dear litte thing, wasn't she?

Wellington pushed him aside, saying: "Stand back Doc, and let me see; I have a keen sense of beau'ful."

"Be careful," cried the doctor, "he'll fall out of the window."

"Not out of that window," Ashton sagely observed, seeing the bulk of Wellington. As the train started off again, Little Jimmie distributed alcoholic smiles to the Green Riverers on the platform and called out:

"Good'bye, ever'body. You're all absolootly—ow—ow!" He clapped his hand to his eye and crawled back into the car, groaning with pain.

"What's the matter?" said Wedgewood. "Got something in your eye?"

"No, you blamed fool. I'm trying to look through my thumb."

"Poor fellow!" sympathized Doctor Temple, "it's a cinder!"

"A cinder! It's at leasht a ton of coal."

"I say, old boy, let me have a peek," said Wedgewood, screwing in his monocle and peering into the depths of Wellington's eye, "I can't see a bally thing."

"Of course not, with that blinder on," growled the miserable wretch, weeping in spite of himself and rubbing his smarting orb.

"Don't rub that eye," Ashton counselled, "rub the other eye."

"It's my eye; I'll rub it if I want to. Get me a doctor, somebody. I'm dying."

Miss Addams Tells Why She Joined the Progressive Party.

MISS JANE ADDAMS.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House—the one is inseparably associated with the other—is, as every one knows, taking an active part in the Roosevelt presidential campaign.

To the question of "Why are you a Progressive?" Miss Addams replied:

"I went into the party, as I said at the time, because it was standing for many of the things I had been working for for years. The social reforms I had been working for and the legislation for women for which I had been working are put at last into practical politics. The platform is a good one, and all these matters are matters for legislation.

"It is surprising," continued Miss Addams, "how the campaign has served educational purposes so far. People are learning things about social reforms of which many were ignorant. It amounts to a tremendous campaign of education. It has started many persons thinking about economic, social and sociological questions who have never given the matter much time or consideration."

Miss Addams had the following to say about the increased interest of women in politics: "It was inevitable, and it is quite natural that it should be. And it is only natural that women should be divided into different camps in politics just as men are. They divide when it comes to religious beliefs.

Who Will Be Mistress of the White House?

Who will be the first lady of the land? Well, just at present there is a little doubt on this absorbing subject, but it is interesting to know that the wives of all the presidential Richmonds in the field are well equipped for the position of uncrowned queen of the White House.

There are five feminine candidates for this enviable social position. They are Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Eugene Victor Debs and Mrs. Chafin.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, the present lady of the White House, went to the mansion well equipped for her new sphere and, of course, if she remains another four years at the social helm things will go on in the same gracious, tactful manner. As Helen Herron of Cincinnati, she had been entertained at Washington by Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, who was related to Judge Herron, Mrs. Taft's father. She saw much of official society when her husband was solicitor general, secretary of war and governor general of the Philippines. Mrs. Taft is not tall and has brown hair and eyes. She dresses well and is a good politician.

The present Mrs. Roosevelt was Miss Edith Carow. Rather above medium height, she has a graceful carriage and intelligent features. Born in New York city, Edith Carow's home was not far from the Roosevelts'. On Dec. 10, 1886, Theodore Roosevelt and his boyhood friend were married in historic St. George's church in London. After several months' travel on the continent they returned to America, going to live at Oyster Bay, N. Y., their present home.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a daughter of the south and has all the charm of the womanhood of Dixie. Mrs. Wilson was Helen Louise Axson of Georgia and as a girl showed a decided talent for painting, and she would probably have had a career as an artist had she not given up most of her work in this line upon her marriage in 1885 to Professor Wilson. Mrs. Wilson is her husband's companion, her children's chum and a charming hostess. She is a home woman through and through, yet believes in woman's duty to the community.

Mrs. Eugene V. Debs has been the wife of a presidential candidate so long that it is no longer a new sensation. Before her marriage to the labor candidate she was Miss Katherine Metzel. She is a pleasant faced woman of delightful personality and absorbed in the fight of her husband's party.

Mrs. Chafin, the wife of the Prohibition nominee, was Miss Carrie A. Hunker of Wisconsin and was active for years in the Prohibition cause until her health no longer permitted.

WAS ONCE GAY AND BEAUTIFUL

To-day Cartago, Costa Rica, Is Known as Central America's Pompeii.

The following description of the earthquake which on May 4, 1910, brought desolation and ruin and death to the once beautiful city of Cartago, Costa Rica, written by Frank G. Carpenter, gives a vivid idea of how the town earned its ghastly title, "The Pompeii of Central America."

There had been a slight tremor about noon of that day, but it was not until the darkness was falling that the earth gave its great heave. It was, in fact, just about 10 minutes to 7 p.m., when most of the people were in their homes, either eating their dinner or sitting and chatting, that a mighty shock came which converted the surface of this city into a wavering sea, and which within a few seconds reduced the whole town to rubbish. Nearly every house was thrown to the ground. The churches were ruined and the tower of El Carmen was hurled many rods and dropped right across the railroad tracks. Ninety-six squares of buildings were reduced to debris. The market was laid low and a great female seminary became dust and stone. The American Hotel, which then had over 200 guests, was destroyed. The Church of Los Angeles, about the richest in Central America, had its towers cracked and its walls fell in. The Carnegie building, which its architect declared was earthquake-proof, was leveled to the ground, and the catacombs of the cemetery were torn open and thousands of breaking coffins, out of which spilled bones and dead bodies, were thrown to the ground, while in other parts of the cemetery family vaults filled with dead crumbled to the earth.

The loss of life was terrible. Almost one-tenth of the city perished in the ruins. The people rushed from the buildings at the first great tremor of the earth, but the shock came so quickly that many were crushed before they could get out. The streets rose and fell so that people running along them were sometimes thrown against the buildings while falling and thus crushed.

To-day Cartago, so short a time ago prosperous, pleasure-loving and full of happy tourists, is a ruined city of gloom and sadness, having perhaps one-sixth the population it had two years ago. Walking through the streets one sees the despair of the inhabitants in the buildings which have been erected to take the places of the substantial houses of the past. There are shacks everywhere made up of pieces of galvanized iron roofing, boards from dry goods boxes and the scraps of old lumber which fell with the quake. The town now reminds one of Nairobi in Africa, which is contemptuously called the tin town. Everywhere one goes he sees the foundation of buildings with a pile of debris inside of them.

Fireless Cookers.

Among the countless inventions on which the modern world is accustomed to pride itself, the fireless cooker has had a modest but hitherto unquestioned place. If, however, there are new things under the sun, the fireless cooker is not one of them, for the device turns out to be at least as old as the Christian era and probably much older.

Friedlander, in his "Roman Life and Manners," says that every Jewish household had a basket filled with hay, in which food prepared on Friday was kept warm until the Sabbath—Saturday.

It is an interesting question whether the modern fireless cooker is an independent modern development of the same principle or the direct descendant of the Jewish hay baskets of the first century.

A Remarkable Convention.

One of the most remarkable conventions that the world has ever seen took place in Paris recently. Several thousand deaf mutes, representing almost every country on earth, were gathered together to consider ways and means for the advancement of the interests of those similarly afflicted throughout the world. Speeches were delivered in the sign languages of all the countries represented, and discussions were carried on which led to the inauguration of a movement for the creation of a universal sign language. "Such strange scenes as a Hindu, a Turk, an Englishman and a Russian, each in distinctive dress, carrying on an excited and earnest discussion without a single sound were not at all uncommon."—Christian Herald.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

Knew Human Nature.

A physician of France was in the habit of employing a very ingenious artifice. When he came to a town where he was not known he pretended to have lost his dog and ordered the public crier to offer, with beat of drum, a reward of 25 louis to whoever should bring it to him. The crier took care to mention all the titles and academic honors of the doctor, as well as his place of residence. He soon became the talk of the town. "Do you know," says one, "that a famous physician has come here, a very clever fellow? He must be very rich, for he offers 25 louis for finding his dog." The dog was not found, but patients were.

The Cicada Fable.

Several species of insects have apparatus for producing sounds similar to that of the grasshopper or modifications of it. Of a different type is that with which the cicadas are endowed. Only the males of this family are singers, for which the Greek poets called them happy because their females were dumb. With the ancients a cicada sitting on a harp was the symbol of music. A pretty fable tells of the contest between two cithara players, in which the curious event happened that when one of the contestants broke a string a singing cicada sprang on his harp and helped him out so that he gained the prize.

Costly Peanut Paste.

To the diner out with a taste for costly delicacies may be commended the peanut paste of China. The paste is compounded of ginger jelly and a minute formation at the base of the peanut. Many thousands of nuts are required to supply a small cup of jelly, which costs something like $10 an ounce.—London Chronicle.

USE OF MILKWEED AS FOOD MATERIAL

One of the economic triumphs of the age is the utilization of waste material, and the use of weeds as food staples is a phase of this triumph.

The most interesting of these new "weed foods" is milkweed, the common, wild variety that grows in every rocky pastures, in meadows and by road sides in abundance. Its large, thick, smooth leaves are familiar to all, and its deep, dull pink tuft of flowers and, later, its seed pods, filled with delicate floss and flat brown seeds. When it is broken off a thick, white, milky juice exudes. This is rich in nutrition. This common and luxuriant weed is now being cultivated in gardens as a valuable food staple and makes one of the most delicious of vegetables. It tastes almost exactly like asparagus and is cooked in much the same way as spinach. It has been found to be rich in natural salts and nutrition and is easily cultivated.

THE SMOKING OF HASHISH

Terrible Eastern Vice Has Penetrated "Gay Paris."

Hashish smoking is a practice that few Parisians have hitherto had the occasion of indulging in at home. For the future they need not go to the seaports or to the East. A hashish establishment, we are told, has been secretly opened somewhere near the boulevards. It is kept by a Parisienne, Mdlle. Something, who already has a number of customers. The new forbidden pleasure room are somewhere in a narrow street in the centre.

The house, of course, has six storeys and twenty flats, and it would be difficult without a guide to pick out which of the twenty apartments is dedicated to the hashish cult. A password is needed to penetrate into the mysterious enclosure, says the correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, and one who has been there says that Mdlle. Something herself opens the door to the visitors.

She is already advanced in years, has venerable-looking grey hairs, and takes the greatest trouble to initiate beginners into the joys of hashish. We were three, and mademoiselle received us with a gracious smile. Two of us were quite new to the experience. The conversation turned on a variety of topics, in which I was not in the least interested, for I wanted to see what hashish-smoking was like.

More than 100 little statuettes in porcelain were perched on the mantelpieces and shelves, and the furniture was of the most miscellaneous description. We saw a Louis XV. gueridon, an Oriental lounge, and a variety of antiquated weapons that had come from Adrianople and were hung on the walls.

Mademoiselle at last decided to make some hashish cigarettes for us. "You cannot imagine," she said, "the difficulty I have in getting a supply of hashish when my stock has gone down. I have to smuggle it into Paris through a diplomatic valise." Who the diplomatic accomplice is she refused to say.

She took out of an old bon-bon case a number of tablets that might have been chocolate, only the substance was green. She held them over a small lamp, and the paste became soft, and she rolled it into little sticks about the size of a Swedish match. The sticks were inserted in the midst of some fine tobacco and the cigarette was rolled up in the ordinary way.

I smoked it, hesitating at first, but, as nothing happened, I gained confidence. But soon I found myself inordinately inclined to mirth. Every subject excited my hilarity. The Eastern question made me inordinately gay. Mademoiselle herself became absurdly ridiculous. She grew visibly in size, the room expanded to give her space to grow, and I suddenly perceived that I had lost all my physical gravity. I felt as if I could fly or sail through the air. I was funny, and, as my friends had the same sensation, we laughed until we could laugh no more.

Then I suddenly had an appetite that was outrageous. I could have eaten any amount of artichokes. The ugly little statuettes on the mantelpiece writhed with laughter at the idea. My two friends joined me in asking mademoiselle to make the statuettes cease writhing and twisting themselves, or to throw them out of the window. We finally smoked other cigarettes without any hashish. Our senses gradually returned to their normal state. I was in a hurry to get out. As I left mademoiselle said to me, "Come again." "No, thanks," I said. "Never. One experience of hashish is enough for me." Besides, I had to go and eat artichokes. After that I decided that I had had enough of hashish and the prospect of lunacy.

Hashish smoking, however, is a dangerous and demoralizing habit, and the new cult will in all probability receive the immediate attention of the authorities. The word, by the way, is derived from the Arabian "hashsheshin," or hashish eaters, who were a gang of secret murderers, and we are indebted to it for the word assassin.

HONEST SUPPORT.

The Councilman Solicits Some Campaign Contribution.

"Now, let us understand one another thoroughly. You want me to vote for your proposition when it comes before the council."

"That's it exactly."

"And you have encountered considerable objection to it?"

"Yes; and how much will it cost me to get that measure through?"

"You mean by that that you want to buy my vote?"

"Well, not exactly. We'll say your influence."

"My vote and my influence are not for sale. I want you to understand that I'm a friend of the people."

"All right. Then I suppose it's no further use for me to talk to you."

"Oh, yes it is! I've been thinking that I might be persuaded to vote for your measure."

"I'm glad of that. I'd rather have your honest support than have to hire you to work for me."

"That's just it. I want to support you honestly. Now, I'm running for re-election."

"So I hear."

"And it costs money to run for office."

"Very true."

"If I give you my honest support will you contribute $1,000 to my campaign fund?"

"Isn't that rather steep?"

"Steep, for my honest support? I should say not. That's one of the smallest donations I ever asked for."—New York Sun.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflammation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from Jury & Gregory, Druggists, at $1.50 per bottle.

Rossmore Stories.

Here are some stories from Lord Rossmore's new book:

"Percy La Touche is the leading sportsman of Ireland. He has a keen sense of humor, and when the late King once playfully hit him over the shoulders with his walking-stick he turned to his majesty and said, in rather rueful manner: 'Sir, I don't know whether you've knighted me or broken my collar-bone.'"

"The late King was a great stickler about the proper 'get up' for the races. At Epsom by some oversight I was not wearing the silk hat demanded by etiquette. The prince looked at me critically from top to toe, and said, half in jest and half in reproof: 'Well, Rossmore, have you come r-r-ratting?'"

Bacon vs. Beef.

Bacon seems to be even better liked in England than beef. The imports of bacon last year were 4,868,738 hundredweight against 3,863,389 in 1910, whereas the imports of frozen beef were smaller in 1911 (3,420,071) than in 1910 (3,766,876).

NORTHERN ONTARIO MINERALS

Eight years ago the discovery of the Cobalt silver deposits awakened Ontario to a lively interest in its mineralized areas in the North. Though in the subsequent exploitation of the silver district, dishonest stock jobbing was disgracefully common, and unscrupulous promoters fleeced a credulous public out of millions of dollars, the silver camp itself has had a steadily increasing monetary importance. The output put this year will exceed the previous record by about a million dollars, making the aggregate gross production approximately $[illegible],000,000, of which $[illegible],000,000 will have been distributed in dividends. The discovery of valuable veins in the Keewatin formation is fair ground for the belief that the deposits will continue to great depth, giving the mines a much longer life than was originally expected. Discoveries from time to time of silver-bearing veins make assertions that Cobalt has passed the zenith of production appear rather venturesome.

The Porcupine gold camp, 150 miles or so north-west of Cobalt, began its production of gold in quantity only this year, but it now has sufficient ore developed in sight to guarantee it a long and remunerative life. By the end of 1913 the various mines of worth will have been placed upon a producing basis, and then the value of the camp as a whole can be more accurately gauged. That the dividend returns will amount to many millions a year, unless mining is stopped through some strange occurrence, is now assured.

But these two camps by no means represent all the mineral resources of Northern Ontario. They but typify what may be found farther within the unprospected wilds. As Hon. W. H. Hearst, Northern Ontario's representative in the Whitney Government, told the Canadian Club: "New Cobalts, new Porcupines, new Sudburys will be established as railways are constructed and wagon roads are opened." The mineralized area stretches across Ontario from the Quebec boundary to Manitoba. The "Soo" and Thunder Bay districts already have had a long mining experience. With the development of Northern Ontario that has now begun in earnest, discoveries of mineral wealth will become so common as to cause no widespread excitement. Ontario now produces about [illegible] per cent. of Canada's mineral output, but that can be safely looked upon as only a starting point for greater things.

TWO MUNICIPAL REQUESTS

A delegation from the Ontario Municipal Association, interviewed Hon. W. J. Hanna and Hon. Mr. Matheson for the purpose of presenting the two following resolutions:

1. That the Government take over all municipal debentures.
2. That cities of 50,000 population and over be given the right to choose between Government by Boards of Control and by Commission.

The first proposal is one that, as Hon. Mr. Matheson said, would involve the municipalities in trouble, as well as the Government. The present practice of municipalities to invest long term sinking funds in their own local improvement debentures was a practice that, in his view, could not be too severely criticised. General opinion will concede that municipal borrowing ought not to be given any greater latitude now than it has. Already some municipalities like Toronto have borrowed up to their legal limit, and are out of funds, financing having to be done by short-term notes or current loans. Many municipalities are spending with a prodigal hand, in some cases, and for the Government to take the debentures, practically to resell them as government-guaranteed, would not only encourage reckless borrowing, but saddle the province with much local debt responsibility. The municipalities which want to borrow money in England must be prepared to pay liberally for their accommodation. This form of borrowing has assumed such proportions that there is no other outlook.

As for the second question, Hon. Mr. Hanna said there could be no objection to sending an investigator to the United States to probe into civic government by Commission. This subject has been agitated in and out of season in the West but the Commission Government [illegible] has not seemed to take so kindly to the Ontario climate. Germany, with its business mayors, has shown how efficiently the business of "town-managing" can be carried on by one man. The instances in the United States, of the growth of Commission Government, seem to afford reason for believing that where there is liable to be much corruption or inefficiency by elected representatives of the people, the Commission form offers a remedy. There is one thing in its favor, and that is that Commission Government gives more continuity of business control than the annual changing of councils and possibly mayors. Mayors as a rule have two terms by consent, but the unfamiliarity of new members of the council with the history of previous legislation, and the various civic services, is vexing and retarding to business. However, if cities in Ontario over 50,000 wanted to have Commissioners instead of controllers, there ought to be no particular objection from the Government.

The upper part of the face is what you notice first when you meet a person.

A scowl there, is often so disfiguring that it doesn't matter how attractive the person otherwise appears —the scowl spoils it all.

DEMOCRATS AND THE TARIFF

A dispatch to the New York World (Democrat) a newspaper that ought to be well informed about the intentions of the Democrats at Washington, says that the tariff slashes, at the extra session of Congress next April, will be wide and deep. If enacted into law, the Democratic program will save to the consumers about $700,000,000 annually, with a net loss of revenue to the national finances of about $6,000,000. There will be a free list bill including implements, fence wire bagging, and ties for bailing cotton, lumber, laths and shingles, sewing machines, meats, leather shoes, and salt.

The wool bill will reduce the average duty upon wool manufactures, from 90 per cent., to about 43 per cent., or a saving of about $50,000,000 to consumers. Cotton will be reduced from 48 per cent. to 27 per cent. Chemicals will be put on a tariff for revenue basis. The reductions in the metal schedule will be from 34 to 22 per cent., and there may be a reduction of the sugar duties. The ambitious program will be received, if there is evidence of its correctness, with a degree of alarm and consternation by the various interests affected that may easily precipitate a small sized panic. Some economists have been prophesying that within a couple of years the United States will, along with the other nations of the world, be in the throes of a great depression. If there is one way of producing industrial depression on this continent, that way is to monkey inordinately with the American tariff. The money interest in the United States, the ring of industrial power, is so well concentrated, so largely an inter-related affair, that any drastic action might well be the excuse for precipitation of a small sized panic. That of 1907 is said to have been caused by the high financial interests of New York, because Roosevelt was getting so busy with the big stick. The 1903 panic, which kept the country for some years in a depressed state, was caused through the fear of slashing Democratic revision of the tariff. It would be a matter of sound sense for Canadians having money in American stocks to scan carefully the political outlook, since the present range of prices is fairly high and it would not be at all difficult, if the big holders of stock were to take the notion, to send prices shooting down. A panic is the upsetting of public confidence, and that condition would not be hard to produce now if the proper methods were used for it. President Elect Wilson has promised that the revision will be sane and natural but unquestionably those affected are not going to let the squeezing of their privileges go on without some effort to frighten the public and produce antagonism to further cuts. The next four years in the United States will see some excited stock market movements.

FLY ACROSS THE BROAD ATLANTIC

Grahame White Would Make Trip in Thirty Hours

Claude Graham-White has given out particulars as to his plan to fly across the Atlantic.

"It has been my pet scheme for a long time past," he said, "but now I have completed plans for the machine, and have commenced to build it. It will be of one thousand horse-power, with four engines and six propellors. Each engine will be of 250 horse-power, and they will be so arranged as to be independent of each other; that is to say, if two engines break down the other two will be quite sufficient to drive the machine. We expect to do the journey from land to land in something between twenty and thirty hours. The machine being built so as to remain in the air thirty hours, all depends on the weather and the course we take. At present we are undecided whether to go by way of the Azores or across to Newfoundland, but I expect the latter route will be chosen. The trip is arranged to take place in the summer, although it is just on the cards that we may not make it until the autumn. The weather then will probably be more favorable; but, whenever we start, I am reasonably sure of success."

FOOD FAMINE DRAWING NEAR

European Experts Declare World Is Overgrowing Its Supply.

Europe's best experts declare that prices will continue to rise. The dearness will affect practically everything. Food, housing and clothing will be double the present prices to the coming generation, and manufactured goods will jump in price also. A similar rise has not taken place since the sixteenth century, when the silver of the Americas sent down the purchasing power of money. Prices then went up with a jump.

During the next 300 years they rose relatively slowly, but now they are rising rapidly again—so rapidly that a crisis is likely soon to occur in the wage-earning system of the world.

For the majority, the experts say, this will be only a passing inconvenience. Most men, especially workingmen, will be able to increase their wages to meet the call. It is the fixed salary man, the government official, the pensioner, who will feel the pinch.

The prevailing dearness is merely evidence of the fact that there is not enough raw material in the world to go around. This has been the case for two decades. The demand for manufactures and for foods has grown enormously. That is shown by the world's trade figures. Japan, China, Persia, Siberia and all Africa have been brought into the sphere of American-European trade. Europe and America are supplying them.

In addition there has been the home increase of population, and this population, as a result of industrialization, every year requires more exotic foods and more manufactured goods and comforts. The producing world has to turn out two or three times as much as it turned out twenty years ago. And now it is coming to an end of its raw material.

It is true that there is still unlimited coal, iron ore, copper and timber, and that there is unlimited land for the growing of grain and cotton. But the mines and lands which can be profitably worked at present prices are not unlimited.

As demand grows and prices rise the less profitable mines and the lower grade ores have to be worked, the less suitable lands have to be made to grow grain and cotton and the more remote forests have to be exploited.

But this having recourse to inconvenient sources means an enormous increase in the cost of production, and the grain grown at increased cost and the ore mined at increased expense mean still dearer bread and dearer metal wares.

These factors are permanent, the dearness must therefore increase. For a time the opening up of Canada may retard the rise in grain prices, but everything else will grow dearer.

The appreciation will cease only when equilibrium is reached between price and paying power; that is, when the consumers can no longer afford to buy the extravagantly priced goods, and there results therefore a decline in the demand. Either way, therefore, the rise in prices means real privation to come.

XMAS DINNER FOR THE FIREMEN

Will Use $20 From the Firemen's Benfit Fund

The annual Christmas dinner at the Fire Hall will be held this year as usual, and Chief Howard is already making preliminary arrangements. At a brief sitting of the Firemen's Benefit Fund Committee, yesterday, the brigade through Chief Howard, asked for $20 out of the fund, to be used for defraying expenses in connection with the annual dinner. Accompanying the request was a letter signed by all the members of the brigade.

An elaborate spread will be provided and the firemen and their wives will partake in the festivities with a few invited guests.

Some people, when they hear of anything going on, immediately begin to see how much fault they can find with it.

OPPOSITION TO CHANGE OF HOUR

For Opening of the Market to Dealers

It looks as if there will be considerable opposition to the proposition of Ald. Brown to change the hour of opening of the general market from 10 to 11 a.m. A number of the market's best friends are opposed to it, and it is likely that a meeting of merchants will be called to discuss it. It is claimed that with the restrictions removed, marketing would be done earlier in the day, and farmers would have more time to do their shopping.

The Review considers the market question an important one, and invites a free discussion of the matter. Correspondents are asked to make their letters as brief as possible in giving their argument for or against the changing of the hour or the removal of the restriction in regard to dealers or middlemen.

SEWER FOR NEW BUILDING

Nicholl's Hospital Will Pay the Entire Cost

Mr. Richard Hall waited on the City Council last evening, and requested the construction of a sewer up Argyle street and along Sunnyside avenue, to provide sewage disposal for the new addition to the Nicholls Hospital.

The new addition to the Hospital is well advanced, and Mr. Hall told Council that the hospital management particularly desired to have the sewer built this year to provide disposition of the sewage from it.

In a letter to the Council, the Nicholls Hospital Board expressed their willingness to bear half the cost of the work, but owing to the institution being a public charity, they felt that the city should build it at their own expense.

Sunnyside avenue is hospital property, the city never have done any work upon it.

Ald. Buller asked Mr. Hall if the Board were willing to turn the street over to the city providing the sewer was built by the Council, to which Mr. Hall replied in the negative.

Ald. Duffus told him if the city constructed the sewer, it would then be a corporation street.

Mayor Bradburn informed Mr. Hall that the city would immediately rush the sewer construction providing the hospital board agreed to bear the whole cost.

"If the City Council agreed to do it free for one institution, they would be establishing a precedent," said Ald. Buller.

To bring the matter to a definite point, Mr. Hall said he was sure the hospital board would pay the entire cost if the city would go ahead at once with the work.

Ald. Johnston accordingly moved,—That the City Engineer be instructed to have the work on the sewer performed, the cost to be borne by the Nicholls Hospital Board.—Carried.

Ald. Gillespie's motion that a hydrant be placed on Sunnyside avenue near the Nicholls Hospital was also carried.

Ald. Duffus applied for and was granted permission to instal a Bowser gasoline tank at his garage similar to the one in use at C. R. Banks, for the use of automobilists.

The work on the two new schools in the East and West Wards is progressing as fast as possible. Owing to the fact that a larger staff of workmen are engaged on the West Ward building, it is slightly further advanced than the other. The contracts call for the schools to be completed by July 1st, 1913, and the contractors are confident that they will be through by that date.

THE HYDRO ELECTRIC LETTER FROM "VINDEX"

To the Editor of the Review

Dear Sir,—A number of prominent citizens are understood to be working in favor of private ownership as against public ownership or public control concerning the electrical situation of this city. These gentlemen are entitled to their opinions, and as the campaign will soon be upon us it will be well to discuss the matter. I admit that the Examiner has put up some arguments against the Hydro-Electric, but if the offer made by Hydro Electric is better and cheaper for our citizens, as will be shown, what have we to do with whether the Ontario Government can carry it out or not. That is their business. Our business is to accept a good proposition, to have nothing to do with anything else. The capitalist gets enough out of this town without being let stand in the way of the general welfare of the people, who are paying through the nose for everything, including power. With permission I will write again.

Yours,

VINDEX.

IMMIGRANTS MUST HAVE $50

When Landing in Canada During Winter Months

After December 1, the immigration department's regulation requiring that every immigrant shall be insured against being a care on the state during the winter months by having in his possession upon landing on Canadian soil the sum of $50 in cash, will come into effect in connection with all classes of immigrants. The department's provision against vagrancy, as a matter of fact, came into effect on November 1, in the case of all but British immigrants with sure prospects of positions. In connection with the latter, the time was extended for one month by special request from the authorities on the other side. After December 1, the regulation will be enforced upon all classes and the $50 cash insisted upon.

In the summer months, owing to the great demand for men and the consequent certainty of work for the newcomers, no "property qualification" whatever was insisted upon.

Some people look worse when they try to be pleasant than they do when they just wear their natural faces.

NARROW ESCAPE IN COAL CAR

Mr. F. C. Buott, manager of the Lackawana Coal Company, came very near being smothered to death this morning and is probably thanking his "lucky stars" that he is alive and walking around.

Mr. Buott was standing on top of a car of coal, endeavoring to make the coal run through the trap door at the bottom of the car, when suddenly the coal moved with a rush, taking him also. He was carried down so far that he was kneeling on the ground through the trap door, the coal almost covering him. Another man, who had been on top of the car, was buried up to his thighs, but soon freed himself and ran for help. After ten minutes' work enough coal was moved to permit Mr. Buott to have the use of his legs. He was soon free again, and although somewhat dazed, was none the worse for the accident.

INDIAN LISTERS

"It is surprising how many people think it is an easy thing to put a man on the Indian list," said License Inspector Stewart this morning. "People come here and arrange to have a man put on the list and when they meet me a few hours after, ask if it has been done. They don't seem to realize that all the hotels and liquor stores have to be notified. People come here and place a man on the Indian list, and in a short time after, come back to say that he has done so well that they will have him taken off. Some have even gone to the extreme of putting them on one day and wanting them taken off the following day.

He is a man who would never neglect a duty if he saw it; but he's almost totally blind.

About the only happiness that some people get out of this world is stolen.

YOUNG WIVE'S MISTAKES

They Have - Weakness For Ordering Husband About.

How a young woman plots and plans before she becomes a bride! She resolves to do this and that, and a great many other things besides, but never for a moment does she think of the man she is going to marry. She makes up her mind that she will be supreme in the new home; her husband—but he will have nothing to do with the home! She tells all her girl friends, and invites all of them to visit her once she is settled down. Oh, her husband won't object; rather, will he be delighted.

Now, this sort of thing may cause bother; for, granted the young husband and wife settle down, what happens? The husband cannot have his wife alone after his business day; every evening one or two of her old chums are about the house, and, what is more, they treat the husband as if he was a cipher. The worm turns at last, of course, and then there is a fine to-do! The young wife is amazed. Is not the home her own? Cannot she invite whom she pleases to visit her? And so on. But eventually she realizes how foolish she has been, and then the husband gets his chance.

Young wives are very liable to draw up regulations which their husbands are expected to obey. Thus, a man may not smoke in this room, nor in that; his coat may not be brought into any room—it must always be taken off in the hall and hung up. There are scores of rules, in truth, for the husband; but does the wife draw up rules for herself? No; and, if her husband drew up rules, and insisted on her obeying them—why, the young wife would soon be on the way towards her mother's home!

The fact is that a young wife believes her husband to be one thing, and one thing only—namely, a money-making machine; beyond that he hardly counts. And it is strange that as the wife views the husband, so do all her relatives and connections generally! Of course, a man—a husband—is a money-making machine; but he is something more, and must be taken into consideration.

Certainly, let a wife rule the home, but let her always ask her husband's opinion on this or that; a man is greatly pleased if his wife gives him the impression that his views on the running of the home are vastly important. Thus can a wife pander to the vanity of man; and, believe me, a man is as vain as a peacock!

Another error the young wife is liable to make is this—she has a quarrel—slight, maybe—with her husband. She feels she must confide in someone, so she foolishly turns to a neighbor who has always seemed friendly and sympathetic. A terrible mistake—one liable to get her into a peck of trouble, for its gets all round the district that she and her husband cannot hit it off, and the man in time hears of it; then the fat is in the fire with a vengeance. Why, if a wife quarrels with her husband, she should not mention it, even to her own mother, far less outsiders.

Money is another thing. Couples fall out over that, but usually the man comes out best there, as he earns the cash, and, therefore, can hand it over or retain it. Yes; a husband can always punish his wife by withholding the weekly or monthly "pin-money," or greatly reducing the amount. That soon brings a wife to her senses.

MAY REMOVE THE EMBARGO

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An influential deputation waited upon Premier Asquith in the Commons last evening on the question of the embargo on cattle at British ports. The Premier promised that in conjunction with the President of the Board of Agriculture he would consider all points raised with a view to removal of restrictions at the earliest possible moment.

A member of the deputation informed the C.A.P. that they expect the embargo will be removed within the next month.

To Pension ex-Presidents.

New York, Nov. 22.—Future ex-Presidents of the United States are to be pensioned in the sum of $25,000 each annually by action of the Carnegie Corporation of New York yesterday. The grant is provided for with the idea of enabling former Executives of the nation to devote their unique knowledge gained in public affairs to the public good, free from pecuniary care. A similar amount is to be paid widows of ex-Presidents so long as they remain unmarried.

Sam Schepps Freed.

New York, Nov. 22.—Sam Schepps, one of the four informers whose testimony resulted in the conviction of Becker and the four gunmen, was discharged from custody yesterday. The others will also go free to-day.

$15,000 Fire Damage.

Montreal, Nov. 22.—Reports from Prescott to the C.P.R. offices here of Wednesday night's fire in the freight sheds, place the damage at $15,000.

C.P.R. Extending Lines.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 21.—The new year will see a very decided increase in the mileage of the C.P.R. in the Maritime Provinces. On that date they will take over the management of the Central Railway from Norton to Minto, with its extension to Fredericton, and will thus have a line across the centre of the province, touching the coal fields of Queen's and Sunbury Counties.

On the same date they are expected to assume control of the Dominion Atlantic Railway in Nova Scotia, with its connecting steamship service on the Bay of Fundy between St. John and Digby.

CEMENT PAVEMENT WAS INSPECTED

Ex-Mayor Beal, J.D. Flavelle, G. H. Wilson, J. R. O'Neil, John McCrae and D. Cinnamon, are in the city to-day as a Citizens' Committee from Lindsay.

The Committee with Mayor Bradburn inspected the cement pavement on Chambers street.

Lindsay has done some asphalt block paving, but before proceeding with further operations, it is the desire to gather all the information possible. This explains the visit of the committee to-day.

We submit that all men are not alike. Yesterday we heard of a man who always hangs up the towel he uses.

A lot of people go wrong without being tempted.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

CANADIAN LEAGUE FOR TORONTO AND MONTREAL

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—2The annual meeting of the Canadian Baseball League will take place at Toronto next month, when Toronto and Montreal will likely be admitted. One of the big towns is almost sure to take over a franchise. The Ottawas favor the amalgamation of the presidency and secretaryship, and the appointment of a paid president, to look after all the work in connection with the management of the league. The baseball season in Ottawa will again open about May 15 or 16. Frank Frank Shaughnessy will go up to represent Ottawa at the annual meeting of the Canadian League.

The Ottawa club will again play its games at Lansdowne Park next summer. A deputation went before the Board of Control yesterday and applied for a rental of the grounds at the same rate as in the season closed viz., ten per cent. of the gross receipts up to $1,200. "In my opinion the baseball club provided Ottawa with a great deal of good advertising," said Dr. Parent. "We should encourage it in every possible way."

"It was a splendid thing for Ottawa," said Controller McClenaghan. "We're all becoming red-hot fans."

A CURSE TO HIS RACE

(Editorial in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

When Jack Johnson won the heavyweight championship of the world, and especially when he retained it in his fight with Jeffries, there were those who said he had done his race a great service. They argued that he had put fresh pride and confidence into millions of men who needed such a spur to ambition. The theory was that Johnson's prowess would encourage colored Americans to strive more vigorously for equal rights and equal attainments in better fields of occupation and achievement.

Now Jack Johnson has done more to discourage and dishearten the best and wisest men of his race than he could offset by winning ten championships. They are ashamed and disgusted and in such a frame of mind that thousands of them would welcome an opportunity to give him a coat of tar and feathers and ride him on a rail over the nearest international boundary. Johnson has done more than other man of his color to put arguments in the mouths of enemies of his race who would deny the negro any form of equal rights, if it were in their power to do so.

All of which goes to show that brains and character, not brute force, may be depended upon to advance the interests and widen the future of a race lately freed from slavery.

GROUPING OF O.H.A. DISTRICTS

Executive Will Start Earlier than Usual

Toronto, Nov. 22—The O. H. A. executive will meet December 6th, to arrange the grouping of the respective districts. This is earlier than formerly, but the association has grown so large that the executive deem it advisable to get away to an early start.

They say portly people are nearly always good-humored. So they are, if you don't do anything to ruffle their dignity.

JAP THE ONLY ONE TO DEFEAT HOPPE

Willie Hoppe retains the world's championship 18.2 balkline billiard trophy by defeating Ora Morningstar, of Pittsburg, and ending the tournament which had been in progress for two weeks. Hoppe's victory came with a score of 500 to 276 and his average was 22. He won six games in the tourney and lost but one, Yamada, the Japanese, being the only one to defeat him.

BOMB WELLS THE BEST WHITE HOPE

Londoners Like His Speed—He is Also Hitting Harder

London, Eng., Nov. 22.—You may find fight cities in the East and West in the United States who firmly believe that Al. Palzer will be crowned king of heavyweights one of these days. But there isn't a single critic in England, including all the men and boys who know anything about the boxing game, who can see anybody wearing the crown but Bombadier Wells, the best heavyweight Europe has developed since the days of Charley Mitchell.

Bombadier is immensely popular here, notwithstanding his knockout at the hands of Palzer. His English admirers believe that was a fluke pure and simple. They think that Wells is one of the fastest and cleverest heavyweights the game has ever known. They think that when Bombadier returns to the United States he will make Palzer, Kennedy, McCarty and all other aspiring heavyweights take the count.

There is no discounting Wells' ability. He is a marvel of speed. His weakness has been his failure to put his body into his punches, but he has been practicing that art since his return to London, and at the present time he is hitting harder than ever.

JIMMY FRICK TOOK POISON

Was Formerly Member of the Toronto Leafs

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22—While his wife was down-town buying tickets to Oklahoma, where he was to go in search of health, James Frick, utility infielder of the Oakland baseball team of the Pacific Coast League last night drank poison, causing his death.

Jimmy Frick was with the Toronto team for some years, playing at both short and third base. He was a popular player with the fans, and they all used to pull for him to improve in his hitting. Jimmy, while of a cheerful disposition, had more than his share of troubles while with the Toronto Club, but these burdens he carried in such a manner that very few fans were ever aware that he was sometimes in there playing on his nerve.

Too Much For Her.

"Papa," queried little Lola, who was examining a piece of silver ore, "how do they get the silver out of this rock?"

"They smelt it, dear," was the reply.

"Well, I don't understand it at all," said Lola a moment later. "I smelt it, too, but none of the silver came out."

TO OUTWIT JEALOUS SPIRIT

Malayans Speak "Make Believe" Language When Gathering Camphor.

Strangest of all strange tongues under the sun is the "camphor language" of Johore on the Malay peninsula, which has been studied and reported by an Englishman in the service of the British Government at Johore.

This language is used by the natives and others engaged in gathering the product of the Malayan camphor tree and is employed only at such times. It is the belief of the natives that if they used either of the languages of the region, the Malay or the aboriginal Jakun, no camphor would be obtained. A most curious reason underlies this belief. No amount of missionary work could uproot the firm conviction of the Malayans and other Johore natives that each species of tree has a spirit or divinity that presides over its affairs. The spirit of the camphor tree is known by the name of Bisan—literally "a woman," and is more in evidence than all of the other spirits put together. Her resting place is near the trees; and when at night a peculiar noise is heard in the woods the Bisan is believed to be singing and camphor will surely be found in the neighborhood.

But the spirit of the camphor trees seems to be jealous of the precious gum and must be propitiated and if she knows that hunters are in quest of it she will endeavor to turn their steps aside. The natives think that she is acquainted with both the Malay and Jakun languages, and that if the camphor hunters spoke either of those she would know that they had come for camphor and would defeat their purpose. So it is necessary to speak in a tongue that she does not understand. For this purpose the "camphor language" has been invented. It consists of a mixture of Jakun and Malay words, but these are curiously altered or reversed; and the natives believe that the divinity of the camphor tree is completely confused when she hears this jargon.

The Jakuns who hunt the camphor are one of the wildest of peoples, but are inoffensive. They live together with monkeys, dogs, cats, innumerable fowls, and perhaps a tame hornbill in perfect harmony under movable leaf shelters built on poles in the woods.

A PRINCELY PRESENT.

Priceless Map of France in Gold and Precious Stones.

There is exhibited in the Louvre in Paris one of the most extraordinary international gifts of which any record exists. It is a map of precious stones presented by Russia to France. This wonderful map is 40 inches square, and is composed entirely of gold and precious stones framed in slate-colored jasper. The gold is all Siberian, and every gem that stars the map came from the Imperial Russian mines in the Urals.

In this jeweled map of France the sea is represented by a pale and precious marble, and portions of foreign countries necessarily included, such as England, Germany, Italy and Spain, are in dark gray onyx. The whole of France is shown entirely in polished jasper, and each province, or department, has been cut from stone of a different color, although the whole blends without the slightest affront to the artistic eye.

Almost every mine in European and Asiatic Russia was ransacked for the necessary material, some of the gems being found only in mines appropriated by the emperor and never figuring in commerce at all. The jasper employed is some of the most beautifully veined that ever has been found, while the polishing is a marvel to behold. So exquisitely do the lines of each section meet that they are invisible to the naked eye.

No fewer than 106 of the more important towns of France are given, their names being wrought in letters of gold, while the towns themselves are represented by lovely jewels. Thus Paris is represented by a ruby of enormous size and value. Havre boasts a superb emerald under its golden name; Rouen is a sapphire; Lille is a chrysolite; Lyons is a tourmalin; Nantes is a beryl; Bordeaux is an aquamarine; Marseilles is an emerald; Nice is a garnet; Cherbourg is an alexandrite from the Urals (green by day and reddish-blue by artificial light). Twenty-one other towns are represented by amethysts, 35 by tourmalins and 38 by quartz crystals. And the rivers are represented by sinuous bars of precious platinum sunk in the jasper. The courses of the rivers had first to be cut in the stone and the platinum laid in afterward and then polished. The entire cost of the map was defrayed by the Czar himself, and Parisian jewelers of the first rank estimated that not less than $500,000 was expended in the production of this costly international compliment.

When the Birds Get Up.

Ornithologists in England have been investigating the rising habits of small birds, with special reference to the hours when they begin to sing. It appears that the green finch is the earliest riser, as it pipes as early as 1.30 in the morning. The black cap begins at about 2.30.

It is nearly 4 o'clock before the first real songster comes in the person of the blackbird. He is heard half an hour before the thrush. The chirp of the robin begins about the same length of time before that of the wren.

The tomtit and house sparrow occupy the last place on the list. The investigations of the ornithologists would appear to have damaged the lark's reputation for early rising. That much celebrated bird is something of a sluggard.

Meals at School.

The number of meals given to school children in England last year was 13,372,000. The cost was $750,000, of which only $6,500 was received from parents as voluntary contributions.

A Light on Egypt.

Many remarkable discoveries, taking the mind back to nearly 6,000 B. C., and lifting the veil of centuries from Egypt's romantic story, have been made recently by the British Archaeological School in Egypt. Among these are coffins of basketwork, reeds or withes, sandal trays, a pot of unburnt incense for a fire offering of 4,000 B. C., and numerous pieces of timber, showing by their formation the principles of building construction that were in vogue nearly 6,000 B. C. Most of the relics come from Tarkhan, an extensive cemetery about 35 miles south of Cairo, which dates from the earliest historic age down to the pyramid period.

There are bedsteads with hoof-like feet, which although nearly 6,000 years old look capable of sustaining a fair weight to-day, and long rolls of soft linen cloth, also 6,000 years old, but as tough and pliable as any modern texture straight from the loom.

One of the withy hampers now in the Cairo museum, although of the same age, had the small leaf buds of the withes still showing when it was found. Some of the bedsteads even retain the rush webbing and plaited palm fiber.

The graves of the early Egyptians were always well provided with such necessaries as were thought essential for the spirit of the departed when it again materialized. Consequently the relics from Tarkhan include head rests (some of them carved out of trees trained specially into peculiar shapes), sandals, large jars of food and various vessels of gypsum and semi-transparent alabaster.

One way to compliment a pretty girl is to call her sensible.

The late Mrs. Hetherington was born in Appleton, Ont. In 1891 the family made their residence in Peterborough, where her late husband predeceased her in 1901. In 1902 the family moved to Toronto, where they have resided since. The late Mrs. Hetherington spent the last year with her sister, Mrs. A. H. Dewitt, in Hawarden, Sask., returning to Toronto recently.

DEATH'S CALL VERY SUDDEN

The Late Miss Giles Succumbed to Heart Trouble

Erminia Adair Giles, daughter of the late Joseph Giles, passed away last night at the family residence, 209 1-2 Hunter street, in her 28th year. Death was due to heart trouble. Since Saturday, Miss Giles had been in her usual good health. Last night she retired early, about twenty minutes to ten o'clock, she took a drink of milk, remarking that she felt better. At ten o'clock she called her sister to the room complaining of a pain. The sister noticed her breathing heavily, and without warning and before others could be called, she passed away.

The late Miss Giles was born in North Monaghan and lived there all her life up till a few days ago when the family moved to the city. She was well known in town as well as in the country and her sudden death will be felt with great regret by a large circle of friends. Only three weeks ago she returned from a trip to the West. About a year ago her father passed away, suddenly while talking to friends.

She is survived by her mother, three brothers, George J., of Edmonton, Alta., Clifton E., of North Monaghan; Manson, at home, and one one sister, Mrs. James Akey, of the city.

Funeral arrangement have not been completed.

DEATH OF MR. F. B. HASKILL

Frederick B. Haskill, formerly of Peterborough and a well known passenger conductor on the Grand Trunk, died at his home at 112 Baldwin Ave., in Toronto, last night. Death came after a lingering illness extending back to October last.

The late Mr. Haskill who was popularly known in railroad circles as "Daddy," moved with his family to Toronto a little over one year ago. In Peterborough he resided at 276 King St. When a young man he entered the employ of the Grand Trunk and by his energy and faithful attendance to duty, worked himself up to the position of conductor. Altogether he was with the company for thirty-five years. For the past year he had been in failing health, suffering from an affliction resembling paralysis. He was born in the town of Port Hope fifty-six years ago, where two brothers, E. Haskill and W. Haskill now reside. Mr. Allen A. Haskill, the local barber is another brother.

Mrs. Adamson, of Port Hope; Mrs. Chestnet, of Newmarket, and Maude of Toronto, are sisters of the deceased.

A widow, two sons and one daughter namely, Frederick, of Norwood; Cyril, and Pearl, of Toronto, are left to mourn his death.

Since then she has lived in Peterborough and has always been an active worker in many societies. Envoy Hancock, of London, Ont., will conduct special services in the Salvation Army Temple, Saturday night and Sunday. Saturday night he will give a lecture entitled "From Boyhood to the Cross." His Sunday afternoon lecture is on "Romance of Soul-Saving."

The promotion of Lieutenant C. P. Fee, of the 24th Field Battery, to the rank of Captain, is announced in the latest issue of the Canada Gazette, received to-day.

WEDDING BELLS

CARDELL—STUART.

A quiet wedding took place at Toronto, when Miss Lillian Joyce Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob. James Stuart, 27 Maynard avenue, became the wife of Mr. Gilbert Francis Cardell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cardell, of Calgary. An orchestra was in attendance, and the house was exquisitely decorated with masses of palm ferns, smilax and gold and white chrysanthemums, the bridal party standing in the bay window of the drawing-room, which was banked with white flowers, while the dining room was massed with chrysanthemums and tall standard vases of pink roses, the bride's table being being centred with a basket of white roses, surrounded by smaller baskets of pink roses, the cake decorated with lilies of the valley. The charming little bride looked her prettiest in a smart tailor-made of darkest blue whipcord with black braiding and buttons, and with this was worn an imported blouse of blue satin with white lace and ruffles and touches of cerise, mink furs and a most becoming mink hat with magnificent cerise willow plumes at the side. She also wore a corsage bouquet of violets and lilies of the valley, and a gold bracelet which had been worn by her mother on her wedding day. Miss Helen McKibbin was maid of honor, and Mr. Douglas Wilson best man, each receiving a silver monogramed card case as a souvenir of the event. Miss McKibbin was in a wedgwood blue tailor-made, black silk beaver hat with paradise plume and bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. The bride's mother wore a very smart gown of moonlight satin veiled with black net embroidered in crystal bugles, amethyst and pearl ornaments, and a bouquet of beauty roses, while Violet Stuart was in white ninon with cerise, a black beaver hat with marabout and bouquet of violets and lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Cardell left for a trip to New York, Montreal and Quebec before going to their new home in Calgary.

The bride's many presents included a large cheque from the groom and a beautiful Persian lamb coat from her father.

MISS HALLOCK AT THE GRAND

Mary Hallock, the well known pianiste, gave a splendid concert at the Grand last night, terminating the series of three concerts.

Her playing was the quintessance of refinement and brought out the meaning of the music wonderfully. Several of the numbers are so difficult to play that much difficulty is experienced in imparting the feeling. Miss Hallock, however, executed them with ease. Her touch was exquisitely light and accurate.

Most of the numbers were well known compositions by Bach, Liszt, Chopin and Debussy. At times the music would be rather over the heads of the audience, so difficult was it to understand, while pieces of popular music seemed to sound different, under the wonderful playing.

The program was—
Etude C. sharp minor— Chopin.
Sonata G. minor— Schumann.
So rasch wie moeglich.
Andantino.
Scherzo.
Rondo.
The Skylark— Tschaikowski
Fugue (3 part) A minor— Bach.
Nocturne G. major— Chopin.

Preludes Nos. 4, 22, 2— Chopin.
Waltz A flat major— Chopin.

And the moon descends on the temple that was— Debussy.
Minstrels— Debussy.
Rakocsy March— Liszt.

Rhapsodie, No. 8— Liszt.

Miss Hallock used a Mason & Risch piano.

WRIT ISSUED TO PREVENT WINDING UP OF ESTATE

MR. H. L. TROYER.

Secretary Canadian Colleges' Mission, who is arranging for the Students' Convention, here next week.

Legal Tangle in Connection With Estate of Wm. McCaffrey and His Wife.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Legal complications which will be most difficult to untangle have cropped up in connection with the estate of the late Wm. McCaffrey and his wife, who with their children and Mrs. McCaffrey's mother, were drowned while fishing from a canoe near Omemee on Sept. 28. The question which must be settled before anything can be done in the way of winding up the estate is whether Mr. or Mrs. McCaffrey died first. If Mr. McCaffrey died first, his estate, amounting in all to about $50,000, would go to his wife and her heirs, but if Mrs. McCaffrey died first, the heirs of Mr. McCaffrey will inherit the estate.

In order to settle the question, an action was launched at Osgoode Hall yesterday by the heirs of Mrs. McCaffrey, who issued a writ nisi, to prevent the winding up of the estate until the question of priority of death of the husband or wife is settled.

The heirs of Mr. McCaffrey base their claim to the estate upon an axiom of law made to cover cases where no evidence exists as to the predecease of either party, that "the stronger liveth the longer." Upon this they claim that Mrs. McCaffrey succumbed before her husband, and therefore that the husband's heirs must succeed.

On the other hand, the heirs of the wife base their claim to the inheritance upon the fact that when the body of Mr. McCaffrey was found, there was caught upon the hook of a trolling line, the other end of which was made fast to the wrist of the body was fifteen pound fish. From this they argue that Mr. McCaffrey was drawn overboard first, and as his body was entangled in the line, his chance for remaining upon the surface and thus avoiding suffocation was less than that of the wife, who might, though perhaps only momentarily, have delayed her own death by either clinging to the canoe or by her struggles in the water.

FARMER MEETS HEAVY LOSS

Barns and Season's Crops Destroyed by Fire.

Brockville, Nov. 23.—A costly fire took place yesterday at the farm of John Bourne, near Addison. Threshing operations were in progress at the time and a spark from the engine in use at the work is thought to have been the cause. The burned buildings were all large ones, and included a grain barn, a cow brye, and a hay barn. They were all destroyed with the season's crops. The loss will be upwards of $4,000.

FARMERS RETIRE WITH FORTUNES

Made Their Money in Wheat—Will Come East.

Portage La Prairie, Man., Nov. 23.—Over thirty pioneer farmers of this district are retiring this fall with competencies ranging from $75,000 to $250,000. Every dollar has been made out of their farms. Several of these men are still in the prime of manhood. It is expected that the majority of them will remove to Toronto and mingle with the residents of the "City of the Good."

May Lose Right Eye.

Galt, Nov. 23.—Eugene Crowe may lose the sight of one eye by the slipping of a pair of tongs at the Page-Hersey pipe mill, which went through the lid and cut his right eye open.

FATAL CRASH ON RAILWAY

Motorman Was Killed and Conductor Lost Both Legs

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Ont., Nov. 23.—Motorman John McConnell, of St. Thomas, was instantly killed, and Conductor Chas. Ryckman, of London, was fatally injured in a head-on collision of traction cars of the London & Lake Erie Transportation Company, south of here this morning. McConnell was driving the north-bound baggage car, and Ryckman was temporarily in charge of the throttle of the south-bound passenger, when the crash occurred. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. Both of Ryckman's legs were severed.

GIBSON CASE GOES TO JURY

Toronto, Nov. 23.—With the calling of Mrs. Julia Gibson, stepmother of Charles Gibson, who is facing a murder charge in the criminal assizes, and Gibson's little brother Willie, the defence closed its case yesterday. The remainder of the session was taken up with rebuttal evidence and the case will go to the jury to-day.

CONGRESS MAY GIVE PENSION

Washington, Nov. 23.—As a result of the announcement by the Carnegie Corporation that a pension of $25,000 would be offered each ex-President of the United States a strong movement is expected in the coming session to induce Congress to provide a pension.

Senator Culberson of Texas, long Democratic leader of the Senate, declared it would be "undemocratic" to have former Presidents pensioned from a private fund.

Several other members of the House and Senate yesterday expressed their opposition to a private pension, and suggested means by which Congress could provide for the retirement of men who had held the chief office in the nation.

OPPOSITION TO CARTAGE RATES

Eastern Merchants to Take Strong Stand.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The Boards of Trade of the cities of eastern Canada have decided to take a strong stand against the attempt of the Canadian railways to raise carters' rates to shippers, beginning with the first of the year. This was definitely decided upon at a meeting held in the board room of the Toronto Board of Trade yesterday afternoon, at which John F. Ellis of the Toronto Board of Trade presided, and which was attended by representatives of the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, Brantford, London, Guelph, St. Catharines and a number of the other cities affected, including representatives from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Starting with the beginning of the year the railways propose to raise the cartage rates as follows: In Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton—from two to three cents per hundred pounds and from fifteen to twenty cents for small parcels. In all other points from two to two and a half cents per hundred pounds, the charge on small parcels remaining unchanged at fifteen cents each. The reason given by the railways for this is because their new contract with the cartage companies, which start with the beginning of the year, will call for a higher rate, and to make up for this it will be necessary for them to raise the rates to the shipper. This is intended to take effect in all points east of Port Arthur.

After much discussion it was finally decided to hold a conference with the representatives of the railways some time next week, the conference to take place either here or in Montreal or Ottawa.

Cargo Broke Loose.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—That a cargo of heavy oil barrels, iron pipes and kegs of beer shifted and smashed through the ship's sides was the evidence given yesterday by Mate Lionel Leduc in the inquiry being held by Wreck Commissioner Lindsay into the foundering of the Cecilie L., the little Lake St. Louis steamer which went down in a big storm on Nov. 1, when twelve people were drowned.

DEFINITE ANSWER TO BE GIVEN BY TURKS TO-DAY

The Cholera Situation Relieved According to Turks—Germany Calls on Reservists.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 23—The Belgrade Correspondent of the Matin says he has been officially informed that Bulgarian and Turkish peace plenipotentiaries met yesterday afternoon to discuss terms of an armistice, and that the Turks will give definite answer this afternoon.

THE CHOLERA SITUATION.

Constantinople, Nov. 23 — The Turkish government reports a great decrease in the number of deaths from Cholera during the past few days but this is not widely credited among the foreign residents of the capital. Some attempt is being made to house soldiers suffering from the disease. Wooden huts are being erected at San Stefano cholera camp on the open plain, which, a few days ago, was strewn with groups of dead and dying. Most of the bodies of victims have been carted away. The new camp however is swarming with dead and dying and suspects.

GERMANY ACTIVE

Prague, Bohemia, Nov. 23 — Reservists of five German army corps numbering 13,000,000 have been ordered to rejoin their regiments according to the Ceski Slovo.

London, Nov. 23.—The efforts towards peace in the Balkans made no visible progress yesterday. Exchange of artillery fire and infantry reconnaisances proceeded along the Tchatalja lines and Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, in a despatch to Constantinople, claims that an infantry battle occurred in front of the centre of his position and that the Bulgarians left several thousand dead before the Turkish outer works. Not much credence is placed in this report, however.

Elsewhere in the war zone the military situation remains unchanged. The Servian forces advancing towards the Adriatic are meeting with hardships in the barren, mountainous country, which is buried deep in snow and the allies are still harassing what remains of the Turkish army that was driven from Monastir. The Bulgarians have occupied the important town of Dedeaghatch, the terminus of the Salonika railway on the Aegean Sea.

The Turkish cruiser Hamidied came into port at Constantinople yesterday, wounded from a Bulgarian torpedo. The Turks' claim that the ship sank two Bulgarian torpedo boats which she engaged, has not been confirmed.

Peace negotiations are believed by the diplomats to have been suspended only by reason of Turkey's refusal to accept the first offer of the allies, and to them Turkey's postiion appears to be one of waiting expectantly for another bid. The best opinion in London is that a compromise will be effected between the belligerents and that the powers are using their good offices behind the scenes with this end in view.

Reports from Sofiia say that Turkey's rejection of the proffered terms for an armistice occasioned no surprise there: Three Bulgarians, representing the three northern kingdoms, have started for the front with the expectation of meeting the Turkish peace plenipotentiaries. The Greek military attache with the Bulgarian army will join the Bulgarian plenipotentiaries. A cessation of hostilities is not necessarily expected to follow the departure of the representatives of the allies on the mission of peace.

Whatever basis for an armistice may be reached it is believed that it will leave in abeyance for the negotiation of a peace treaty the amount of territory Turkey eventually will be permitted to retain. The compact, it is believed, will include Bulgaria's renunciation or intention to enter Constantinople.

Reports emanating from Vienna announce that the Albanians will proclaim their independence to-day at Durazzo, from which place the Servians are yet five or six days' march, and that there will be a joint Austrian and Italian naval demonstration off that port.

The visit of the Austrian crown prince to Emperor William, which is officially stated to be for the purpose of keeping a long-standing shooting engagement, and a Berlin despatch stating that the Austrian Field Marshal Von Schemma, spent the day there in consultation with Gen. Count von Moltke, chief of staff of the German army, keeping alive speculation concerning the plans of the Triple Alliance.

PLANNED TO KILL BURNS

McNamara and McManigal Arrested in Time.

Indianapolis, Nov. 23.—Explosions on non-union ironworks in Milwaukee, Omaha, and Springfield, Mass., were explained by Ortie E. McManigal at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday as having been done by him shortly before he and Jas. B. McNamara, arriving in Detroit to "clean up" that city, were arrested with a suitcase filled with dynamite.

For weeks before his arrest, he testified, he had observed he was being followed, having seen strange heads dodging around the corners of elevator shafts in the ironworks headquarters in Indianapolis.

"I told James B. before we started for Detroit that Wm. J. Burns had detectives after us, that detectives were even coming up near the vault where we stored the dynamite and that one of them followed me on the street when I was going with a suitcase of dynamite to blow up the South Chicago shop," said McManigal. McNamara said if we saw any more of them we would go to Chicago and rent a room next to Burns' office, put an electric wire through the wall and arrange to set off from our room a bomb in Burns' room when he was sitting there. That would make an end to our troubles with him, he said. I told him I didn't think we would do anything of the kind or ever get near Burns."

That was about April 5, 1911, McManigal said. He and McNamara were arrested seven days later.

Can't Get Bail.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 23.—Edward Smythe and James E. Ray, iron-workers union officials at Peoria, Ill., who were arrested three days ago, after their bondsmen had surrendered them, had failed to secure new bonds of $5,000 each yesterday, and were confined in jail between sessions of court.

BURGLARS IN WESTERN ONTARIO

Use Explosives But Make Poor Hauls.

London, Ont., Nov. 23.—What is believed to be a band of American robbers is operating nightly in this part of Ontario. On Tuesday a Strathroy store was robbed of cash and on Wednesday night an attempt was made to blow open the door of Moreland's private banking office. The explosion was a terrific one, but the burglars made good their escape. Thursday night Mount Brydges was selected by the band for operations, several places being entered, but only a few coppers being secured.

OVER-INSURANCE CAUSES FIRES

Montreal Fire Chief Places Blame on Speculation.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Chief Tremblay of the Montreal fire department, issued a report yesterday on the fire loss in Canada, as compared with the United States.

He blames speculation in insurance, leading to arson, as the chief cause for fire losses in Montreal and other Canadian cities. In Montreal, he says, in 60 per cent. of the fires there has been over-insurance; in 40 per cent. of the cases the fires are of suspicious origin.

He declares that carelessness in causing an outbreak of fire should be made a crime, according to the statutes of Canada.

VETERAN WRITER DROPS DEAD

Boston, Nov. 23.—Samuel A. Bent, lawyer, author and editor, dropped dead in the lobby of a local hotel yesterday. He was 71 years old. Mr. Bent was American editor of The Swiss Times of Geneva, and The Paris Messenger, from 1872 to 1874. He was graduated from Yale in 1861 and four years later received a degree from the Harvard Law School.

Lady Golf Champion Dead.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Bernard C. Horne, known to golfing enthusiasts as Bessie Anthony, for years woman western golf champion, died early yesterday at her home near Keswick, Va. In many of her championship matches Bessie Anthony had "Chick" Evans for her caddy. Mrs. Horne was 32 years of age and is survived by three children.

Guelph Railway Pays.

Guelph, Nov. 23.—The Guelph Junction Railway Board has handed over to the city this year $34,860 as a share of the earnings of the Guelph Junction Municipal Board of the C.P.R. This is a record amount.

FRENCH LANGUAGE IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Napoleon Champagne Discusses the System

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—"I believe the Whitney Government intends to have the French language taught in most of our Ontario high schools, but I would like to see it taught on a much broader scale than contained in their present policy," says Ottawa's French-Canadian (Conservative) member of the Legislature — Napoleon Champagne.

"If," said Mr. Champagne, "Mr. Rowell will give French-Canadians better terms as regards bi-lingual schools, then I will vote for Mr. Rowell on that question, though on all others I will support my leader. I will support no Government which enacts tyrannous and unjust regulations. I understand, however, that regulation 17, to which objection is taken, is only an experiment for this year, and may be altered if not found successful."

Mr. Champagne contends there are not five per cent. of the French population of Ontario over 25 years of age who cannot talk English and says "We do not require the permission of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to speak the French in our homes. All I ask is that the French language be given fair play in Ontario, and when I think that the Whitney Government is prepared to do this, then I will approve of the policy."

Trustee Genest and others of the Separate School Board are arranging for a public meeting on Sunday.

HIS MISTAKE COST HIM LIFE

Sprinkled Poison on His Meat Instead of Salt.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Taking up what looked like salt and sprinkling it over the meat he was eating at supper while at work at the docks Thursday night, Harry Symonds was seized with pains in his stomach and died yesterday morning.

London Manufacturer Dead.

London, Nov. 23.—Chas. Leonard, member of the firm of E. Leonard & Sons, manufacturers of engines and boilers, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. He was in his 60th year, and was a son of the late Senator Leonard.

PRESIDENT OF THE SPANISH CHAMBER SELECTED TO FORM A NEW CABINET

CONDE DE ROMANONES.

Count Alvaro de Romanones, the President of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies, has been selected by King Alfonso to form a new Spanish Cabinet in consequence of the assassination of Premier Canalejas.

It was announced that Count de Romanones had decided to retain all the Ministers belonging to the Cabinet of the late Premier Canalejas.

County Constable's Mistake.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—"For driving car No. 1,390 at a speed greater than 20 miles per hour on Yonge street in the county of York on Sunday, Nov. 17," is the gist of a summons sent from Toronto yesterday, and served on C. W. Ross, a prominent real estate man of this city.

He is called to appear before Magistrate Clay at Toronto to-day. It develops, however, that the alleged speed law-breaker was never in or near Toronto in his life, and that on the date named his car was in an Ottawa shop for re-painting.

HON. G. W. ROSS SUCCEEDS SIR RICHARD IN THE SENATE

HON. G. W. ROSS

Liberals choose Ex-Premier of Ontario House to lead the Opposition in the Senate.

Is Elected to the Surprise of Both Liberals and Conservatives.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—A curious move which has occasioned no end of comment and discussion was made on the Parliamentary checker-board yesterday afternoon when the Liberal Senators, after an hour's caucus, chose Hon. Geo. W. Ross, as leader of the opposition in the Dominion Senate.

Senator Raoul Dandurand was passed over upon the ground that it was not advisable to have the party leader in both houses a French-Canadian. Senator Kerr of Toronto and Senator Power of Halifax were understood to be prospective candidates, but it was generally understood up to noon that the new leader would be Hon. Hewitt Bostock of Kamloops, B.C. So far as can be learned the name of the ex-Premier of Ontario had not been mentioned and there was no little surprise when Senator Jaffray announced to the press that Senator Ross had been chosen as the leader of the majority in the Senate. Mr. Ross subsequently confirmed the announcement, but had nothing definite to give out respecting his policy for the session.

The fact that the Liberals still control the Upper Chamber and were able at the last session to reject Government measures passed by the House of Commons, lends some transient interest and perhaps importance to the leadership of the Opposition on the floor of the Senate.

A report was current yesterday that some Conservative members of Western Ontario feared the effect of a thirty-five million dollars' contribution upon their constituencies. But this was coupled with the assurance that these members would stand by the Government. There is in some quarters the feeling that the Government's program should be fully explained to the party caucus and should be approved by the members before it is presented to Parliament.

Others, however, contend that the Government should announce its policy at the earliest possible moment to Parliament.

PROTEST MADE AT MASS MEETING

An Echo of the Bye-election in Macdonald.

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—A mass meeting to protest against the arrests and jailing of four men during the recent bye-election in Macdonald was held here last night.

The four young men arrested and held in jail, occupied seats on the platform. All four, Capt. W. B. Sifton, of Minitonas; D. H. Walkinshaw, of Winnipeg; J. J. Sullivan, of Melville, and R. J. A. Prince, of St. Boniface, gave speeches, in the course of which they edified the big gathering with stirring and sometimes humorous recitals of their experiences in the different jails in which they were held. The following resolution was introduced by Thomas Johnson, M.P.P., West Winnipeg, and seconded by E. D. Martin:

"That the Canadian citizens here assembled regard with abhorrence and alarm the conduct of the Manitoba authorities charged with the administration of justice, in arresting, by executive order, British citizens, holding them in prison by refusal of bail, and finally abandoning the case without preferment of charges to which they might make answer according to the law.

"That this action, for which the Prime Minister and Government of this province are responsible, was subversive of freedom, was an exercise of absolutism repugnant to the letter and the spirit of British law, and constituted such an offence against the lawful rights of the individual as to impose upon the people as their first duty the obligation of vindicating the law and re-establishing in this province the liberty of the subject."

WOODROW GETS ANGRY

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 23.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson had a lively dispute with an American photographer which almost led to the exchange of blows.

The photographer took a snapshot of Mr. Wilson in spite of his prohibition. Mr. Wilson thereupon angrily exclaimed:

"You are no gentleman. If you want a good thrashing keep that up. I can take care of myself in these things. I came here especially to avoid photographers."

Mr. Wilson passed the greater part of yesterday in making cycling excursions in the vicinity of his residence.

Chinese Eager To Fight.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—A special despatch to The Chicago Daily News yesterday from Canton, China, says:

The governor-general has designated Lieut.-Governor Chank Wing Ming, commander of the Cantonese force going to Mongolia, to hold the territory for the republic. Red Cross societies are preparing to follow the army.

"Let us fight and end once for all these foreign invasions," is the war cry that has been raised in Canton. An anti-Russian society opens headquarters here to-day.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT [illegible] BY H. K. FLY CO.

"Here's Doctor Temple," said Ashton, "right on the job." Wellington turned to the old clergyman with pathetic trust, and the deceiver writhed in his disguise. The best he could think of was: "Will somebody lend me a lead pencil?"

"What for?" said Wellington, uneasily.

"I am going to roll your upper lid up on it," said the Doctor.

"Oh, no, you're not," said the patient. "You can roll your own lids!"

Then the conductor, still another conductor, wandered on the scene and asked as if it were not a world-important matter: "What's the matter—pick up a cinder?"

"Yes. Perhaps you can gat it out," the alleged doctor appealed.

The conductor nodded: "The best way is this—take hold of the winkers."

"The what?" mumbled Wellington.

"Grab the winkers of your upper eyelid in your right hand—"

"I've got 'em."

"Now grab the winkers of your lower eyelid in your left hand. Now raise the right hand, push the under lid under the overlid and haul the overlid over the underlid; when you have the overlid well over the under—"

Wellington waved him away: "Say, what do you think I'm trying to do? stuff a mattress? Get out of my way. I want my wife—lead me to my wife."

"An excellent idea," said Dr. Temple, who had been praying for a reconciliation.

He guided Wellington with difficulty to the observation room and, finding Mrs. Wellington at the desk as usual, he began: "Oh, Mrs. Wellington, may I introduce you to your husband"

Mrs. Wellington rose haughtily, caught a sight of her suffering consort and ran to him with a cry of "Jimmie!"

"Lucretia!"

"What's happened—are you killed?"

"I'm far from well. But don't worry. My life insurance is paid up."

"Oh, my poor little darling," Mrs. Jimmie fluttered, "What on earth ails you?" She turned to the doctor. "Is he going to die?"

"I think not," said the doctor. "It's only a bad case of cinder-in-the-eyetis."

Thus reassured, Mrs. Wellington went into the patient's eye with her handkerchief. "Is that the eye?" she asked.

"No!" he howled, "the other one."

She went into that and came out with the cinder.

"There! It's just a tiny speck."

Wellington regarded the mote with amazement. "Is that all? It felt as if I had Pike's Peak in my eye." Then he waxed tender. "Oh, Lucretia, how can I ever—"

But she drew away with a disdainful: "Give me back my hand, please."

"Now, Lucretia," he protested, "don't you think you're carrying this pretty far?"

"Only as far as Reno," she answered grimly, which stung him to retort: "You'd better take the beam out of your own eye, now that you've taken the cinder out of mine;" but she, noting that they were the center of interest, observed: "All the passengers are enjoying this, my dear. You'd better go back to the cafe."

Wellington regarded her with a revulsion to wrath. He thundered at her: "I will go back, but allow me to inform you, my dear madam, that I'll not drink another drop—just to surprise you."

Mrs. Wellington shrugged her shoulders at this ancient threat and Jimmie stumbled back to his lair, whither the men followed him. Feeling sympathy in the atmosphere, Little Jimmie felt impelled to pour out his grief:

"Jellmen, I'm a brok'n-heartless man. Mrs. Well'n'ton is a queen among women, but she has temper of tarant—"

Wedgewood broke in: "I say, old boy, you've carried this ballast for three days now, wherever did you get it?"

Wellington drew himself up proudly for a moment before he slumped back into himself. "Well, you see, when I announced to a few friends that I was about to leave Mrs. Wel'n'ton forever and that I was going out to—to—you know."

Reno. We know. Well?"

"Well, a crowd of my friends got up a farewell sort of divorce breakfast—and some of 'em felt so very sad about my divorce that they drank a little too much, and the rest of my friends felt so very glad about my divorce, that they drank a little too much. And, of course, I had to join both parties."

"And that breakfast," said Ashton, "lasted till the train started, eh?"

Wellington glowered back triumphantly. "Lasted till the train started? Jellmen, that breakfast is going yet!"

CHAPTER XXII.

In the Smoking Room.

Wellington's divorce breakfast reminded Ashton of a story. Ashton was one of the great That-Reminds-Me family. Perhaps it was to the credit of the Englishman that he missed the point of this story, even though Jimmie Wellington saw it through his fog, and Dr. Temple turned red and buried his eyes in the eminently respectable pages of the Scientific American.

Ashton and Wellington and Fosdick exchanged winks over the Britisher's stare of incomprehension, and Ashton explained it to him again in words of one syllable, with signboards at all the different spots.

Finally a gleam of understanding broke over Wedgewood's face and he tried to justify his delay.

"Oh, yes, of cawse I see it now. Yes, I rather fancy I get you. It's awfully good, isn't it? I think I should have got it before but I'm not really myself; for two mawnings I haven't had my tub."

Wellington shook with laughter: "If you're like this now, what will you be when you get to Sin san frasco—I mean Frinsansisco—well, you know what I mean."

Ashton reached round for the electric button as if he were conferring a favor: "The drinks are on you, Wedgewood. I'll ring." And he rang.

"Awf'lly kind of you," said Wedgewood, "but how do you make that out?"

"The man that misses the point, pays for the drinks." And he rang again. Wellington protested.

"But I've jolly well paid for all the drinks for two days."

Wellington roared: "That's another point you've missed." And Ashton rang again, but the pale yellow individual who had always answered the bell with alacrity did not appear. "Where's that infernal buffet waiter?" grumbled.

Wedgewood began to titter. "We were out of Scotch, so I sent him for some more."

"When?"

"Two stations back. I fancy we must have left him behind."

"Well, why in thunder didn't you say so?" Ashton roared.

"It quite escaped my mind," Wedgewood grinned. "Rather good joke on you fellows, what?"

"Well, I don't see the point," Ashton growled, but the triumphant Englishman howled: "That's where you pay!"

Wedgewood had his laugh to himself, for the others wanted to murder him. Ashton advised a lynching, but the conductor arrived on the scene in time to prevent violence.

Fosdick informed him of the irretrievable loss of the useful buffet waiter. The conductor promised to get another at Ogden.

Ashton wailed: "Have we got to sit here and die of thirst till then?"

The conductor refused to "back up for a coon," but offered to send in a sleeping-car porter as a temporary substitute.

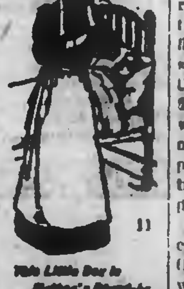
Melbourne's Free Lunch Revolt.

Melbourne, where the "free lunch" has flourished for many years, is the scene of a revolt against that popular institution. The rebels are not the free lunchers, but the hotel keepers, whom custom compels to provide the gratuitous midday feasts for everybody who buys a six cent glass of beer. Melbourne restaurants recently raised the price of meals, and the consequence is a ruinous rush to the free lunch counter lunches in the hotels.



THE HOME PHYSICIAN

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.

This Little Boy is Mother's Stand-by.

Perhaps if the children, and the "grown-ups" too, always ate exactly the right quantities of exactly the right things, at just the proper times, and in every other way obeyed the rules of health, there would be no sickness in the family, and no need of medicine.

But they never have and probably never will, so in every family there are bound to be more or less frequent attacks of sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, and kidney and liver troubles, and occasionally some one is "sick in bed".

It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that positively safe and reliable remedy for these ills —

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.

Thus Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

Olive-Growing In Australia.

Probably in no country in the world could the olive be more widely grown than in Australia; yet, with the exception of some slight development in South Australia, it has till recently been practically a neglected industry there. But the steady increase in the importation of olive oil into Australia in recent years had turned the attention of Australian agriculturists to the attention of Australian agriculturists to the cultivation of the olive, particularly as a sheltering barrier of state protection (50 cents a gallon) gives the grower an increased chance of profit, and it now looks as though the olive were destined to assume important dimensions as an Australian rural industry. The climate and soil of the greater part of New South Wales are said to be splendidly suited to the production of this sub-tropical fruit.

LETTERS FROM MOTHERS

Some praise them for constipation, others for teething troubles, and still others for vomiting, indigestion and the many other ills of babyhood and childhood. We have received thousands of letters —all giving praise. Mrs. W. G. Crowe, Midland, Ont., says: "I think very highly of Baby's Own Tablets. TO IMPROVE THE CLIMATE.

Russia's Daring Scheme to Divert the Flow of Siberian Rivers.

A daring scheme is proposed in Russia for altering the flow of waters on so vast a scale that even meteorological and climatic conditions may be improved. Agricultural interests in the eastern and southern provinces suffer severely from the frequent droughts, which are ascribed partly to extensive deforestation and partly to the progressive drying up of western Asia.

The idea has been conceived of diverting the flow of certain Siberian rivers from the north to the south so that their waters would eventually find their way into those great inland seas, the Ural and the Caspian. As the surface of these would be thereby doubled or even quadrupled, there would be a great increase in the atmospheric moisture and consequent precipitation of the surrounding country, as well as larger available supplies for irrigation where desirable.

This diversion of flow is to be accomplished by building dams across the Obi and Tobol rivers at points where their banks are exceptionally high. When the water would reach the top of the banks it would stand at a far higher level than the Caspian, and considerably above the Ural. It would then only be necessary to cut a short canal through the divide which separates the northern flowing from the southern flowing rivers of western Asia to direct the fructifying waters of these mighty streams toward the two great lakes instead of allowing them to be lost in the Arctic ocean.

New Hail Destroyer.

France is now testing a new type of hail destroyer. The device is essentially a very large lightning rod of pure copper, grounded by means of a copper conductor. According to the theory of the inventors, these instruments, by their effect upon currents of atmospheric electricity, are capable of preventing the formation and the fall of hailstones.

For the Children

The Merry Roller Skater Glides Swiftly to School.

Roller skates are much in demand at this season by the young folks, especially where the streets are paved with asphalt or other smooth material. The smiling youngster here pictured is a New York boy and was snapped one morning on his way to school. Soon Jack Frost will be getting busy and then ice skates will supersede the rather noisy roller. Then is when the children who live in the country get their innings. Ice surfaces fit to skate on are rare in the big cities and can only be found in the parks. There the ponds are so crowded that the smooth ice is soon cut up into a mush of snow. How different on the ponds and rivers of the country, where for weeks at a time the ice is like glass, and the red cheeked boys and girls glide over its surface like birds on the wing.

The Queer Armadillo.

One of the most peculiar of animals is the little armadillo, with its curious shell covered back.

Some years ago it was very unusual to see them in Texas, but now they are very common there. It is supposed that they drifted in from the western plains.

Those who are familiar with the habits of the armadillo say that it is harmless and inoffensive; indeed, it is believed that they are useful to the farmer in destroying insects. They are called ant eaters, but they feed also on bugs, worms and nuts.

When pursued by a dog, the armadillo runs rapidly for awhile, but it finds a hole as soon as possible. Then it attempts to frighten off the enemy by rattling its armor. The rattle is louder and harsher than that of a rattlesnake.

If the armadillo is captured young it usually is very gentle. The shell is like that of a tortoise, but resembles rows of plaited ruffles. The bony case is beautifully polished and is made into baskets by the Mexicans. In the tropics the giant armadillo grows to the length of three feet, but the species that ranges as far north as Texas is no longer than a weasel or a house cat.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., JAN. 25th, 1911

"For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease and the doctors told me they could do me no good. They said my case was incurable and I would suffer all my life. I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but there was none that suited my case. Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using them nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured. I have no trouble now with my Kidneys and I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible. I am seventy-six years old and am in first class health."

THE NEW PARIS.

It Irritates Sculptor Rodin, Who Roasts the Architects.

The Paris of other days is gone. Our contemporaries are enemies of the old stones. Frightful and colossal buildings are everywhere replacing the lovely houses of the older time. There are only two or three Parisians who remember and regret. Rodin, the sculptor, in his Hotel Biron grumbles without ceasing at modern architects. He puts them in the same class with surgeons and gardeners. He formulates upon these three kinds of people this judgment:

"Put a gardener before a beautiful, natural tree and he fells it to the ground; a surgeon before a beautiful young woman and he will cut into her and kill her; an architect before a marvelous old building and he will raze it to the earth."

Anatole France also deplores the disappearance of Paris of the past centuries. "All the modern houses," he says, "however costly they may be, appear poor because they are too high. A great height given to the houses is a sign that they are economizing ground space. This idea of economy darkens the beauty of construction. Beautiful architecture has always been more extended than elevated. The lower houses of old Paris had an air of freedom; those of today express a kind of rapacity."—Cri de Paris.

All some city people know is whether their part of town is reached by a green or yellow car.

REGARDING CHARGES ON PRODUCE MARKET

Many citizens believe that the chief factor in making the market a great civic institution is the freest possible opportunity for trade between buyer and seller with no restrictions, save those necessary to proper discipline and maintenance. The more obstacles placed in the way of the seller, the more difficult it is for him to do a profitable business and the ultimate result must be the hardening of prices—all of which, of course, tends to keep up the cost of housekeeping.

The 10 o'clock by-law was designed to aid the consumer by barring shopkeepers off the market until the housekeeper got around leisurely and had first choice. Experience has shown that the majority do not avail themselves of this regulation. In other words, they do not consider it of material advantage to do their buying before the shopkeepers have a free hand. Indeed, on a big market day, the supply is good until noon or later.

There are many people, who, owing to lack of time or for other reasons, usually depend on their grocers for market supplies. Under present conditions, it is 11.30 o'clock or later before produce from the market is available at the shops, and in many cases it cannot be delivered in time to be of use for noon. In these homes, therefore, market-stuff is not available on the day of its sale by the producer. Considering the matter from this angle, it would seem that the by-law begins at the wrong end to help the consumer.

W. C. Cameron, Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, received the following letter to-day from Wm. Hill, clerk of the Hamilton market, one of the largest produce markets in Canada:

"In reply to your letter of inquiry Re. Markets;

"I might say that we have no time restrictions whatever on our market. About 30 years ago we had a by-law restricting buyers until 10 a.m., but this proved to be a complete failure and a great detriment to the market and was abolished.

"Since I have been market clerk about 11 years, I have made it my aim to make the market as free as possible. We want the farmers and their produce and if you do not let the buyers buy their produce they will take it elsewhere, where they can sell it without restriction.

"My aim is to get the buyers there to buy and let them buy when and how they like, and if you do that you will soon get the sellers.

"But if you restrict the buying how can you expect the sellers to come with their produce.

"With all my experience with markets all over, I cannot make it too strong in telling you to abolish all restrictions and make your market as free as possible for all.

"If there is any other information you would like, I would be only too glad to furnish it."

DISEASE IS DUE TO BAD BLOOD

To Cure Common Ailments the Blood Must be Made Rich and Red.

Nearly all the diseases that afflict humanity are caused by bad blood—weak, watery blood poisoned by impurities, bad blood is the cause of headaches and backaches, lumbago and rheumatism; debility and indigestion, neuralgia and other nerve troubles, and disfiguring skin diseases like eczema and salt rheum show how impure the blood actually is. No use trying a different remedy for each disease, because they all spring from the one cause — bad blood. To cure any of these troubles you must get right down to the root of the trouble in the blood, and that is just what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. They make new, rich blood and thus cure these diseases when common medicine fails. Mrs. John Jackson, Woodstock, Ont., suffered from both nervous troubles and a run down condition and experienced a complete cure through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I was a sufferer for a number of years from neuralgia, and a general debility of the nerves and system. I had tried several doctors and many medicines but to no avail until I began Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At the time I began the Pills I had grown so bad that I could hardly be on my feet and was forced to wear elastic bandages about the ankles. The pain I suffered at times from the neuralgia was terrible. I had almost given up hope when I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks, I felt an improvement, and I gladly continued the use of the Pills until I was once more quite well and able to attend to all my household duties."

If you are ailing begin to cure yourself to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario. 1d 1w.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALVES FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous disease can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs, and destroys them then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

In addition to the regular dollar bottle, which has cured so many cases, we have arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories for a special large trial bottle at 25c. on a special offer now.

This trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

AN UNEASY VOLCANO

Toward the end of July the crater of Etna showed signs of renewed activity. On July 30, says Nature, a column of vapor, with ashes and lapilli, rose from the new mouth formed on the northeast side of the central crater on May 28, 1911. This was followed by another outburst on Aug. 3 at 6 p. m. and by a still more pronounced eruption on the following day. At 10:46 a. m. on Aug. 4 a great column of vapor rose from the same vent to a height of ten kilometers and then drifted off to the southeast, covering the southeast flank of the volcano with ashes as far as Oanizzara. Shortly before this, from July 28 to 31, increased activity also prevailed in Stromboli, where there were strong shocks, loud rumbling noises and considerable eruptions of vapor and incandescent material.

Towels For Wiping Machinery.

The use of waste for wiping machinery has become such a serious source of expense that efforts are being made in more than one establishment to cut down this item, with the result that in one large machine establishment of this country Turkish towels are now made use of as a substitute, and the change has shown a very considerable economy. Fresh towels are supplied at regular intervals, and the soiled ones are collected and cared for until a sufficient number has accumulated to make it worth while to put them through a washing process, by which the oil is recovered and made use of a second time. This recovered oil is available for lubricating railroad switches and similar work.—Kansas City Star.

A PECULIAR WIND

All tourists through the Alpine regions have heard of the foehn wind, the many manifestations of which are most mysterious. The snow and ice of the mountains disappear in a few hours under its action, and many persons experience a sickness of a peculiar character while the foehn wind is on. In some parts of the Alps the wood of the houses is dried out so thoroughly that it is like tinder, and at times, when this is at all prolonged, it is necessary to prohibit the use of fires within the houses. While this precaution is not usually necessary, it is quite common to see a fire patrol making a tour of the town as an extra precaution.

Experimented With Poisons.

When Antony and Cleopatra were contemplating suicide they made a collection of a great variety of poisons and tried each of them on two or more slaves in order to ascertain whether death was accompanied with much apparent suffering. One historian declares that over 200 persons lost their lives in order that the information might be obtained. The result was that Antony killed himself with a dagger and Cleopatra either with one of her selected poisons or by a serpent's bite.

Restoring Rubber.

People using articles made of rubber that frequently lose their elasticity through oxidation may restore the material to its original condition by a simple process. Soak the part in a mixture of one part of ammonia to two parts water. This is particularly well adapted to the restoring or rubber bands, rings and small tubing which are ready to become dry and brittle.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL, of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from Jury & Gregory, Druggists, at $1.50 per bottle.

CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

FIVE long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble—two boxes of GIN PILLS—and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quesnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly:

Montreal,
May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured.

I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

EUGENE QUESNEL.

GIN PILLS are gaining a world-wide reputation, by the way they conquer the most obstinate cases of Rheumatism and all kinds of Kidney Trouble.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S MEMOIRS

Sir Richard Cartwright's volume of Reminiscences has been issued, and quite a commotion it has created. The doughty old warrior's long and intimate connection with Canadian politics during forty of its most interesting and exciting years gave him such an acquaintance and a fund of stories of the prominent people who were making history, that his intimate memoirs were looked forward to with much interest. They are not disappointing, though there is evidence enough in the book that Sir Richard was not able, even though some of the men and the incidents he referred to were long buried in the past, to forget or forgive many things. His asperities were not softened in any material degree by the passage of time.

Two of the men whom he had much to say about were Sir John Macdonald and Edward Blake. Sir John was, he said, a sort of "chartered libertine." He had many weaknesses, but the greatest of them all was his unscrupulous disregard for political honesty. Sir Richard said that, as time passed he had come to look upon the conditions with less critical an eye. He thought that there might have been more than at the time appeared in Sir John's statement to a farmer, who reproached him for some political conduct. "Give me better men to deal with and I, myself, will be a better man." From many standpoints Sir John's conduct was to be reproached. The Pacific scandal the Reil rebellion and the National Policy of 1878 were all taken up by Sir Richard in his singularly lucid style. It cannot be overlooked, however, that the many fights he had with Sir John, notably when the lie was passed at a Napanee political meeting, and a challenge to fight it out on American territory was issued left a bitterness of memory that no time could efface. The picture of Sir John does not put that great leader and Empire-builder in a proper light, for while Sir John undoubtedly had his weaknesses, he was, nevertheless, the uniting force that made Confederation possible. Edward Blake was a man whom Sir Richard had little use for. His famous Durham letter, and many other incidents not to the liking of the commercial unionist of 1891 are discussed at length, and here again the strong bias shown by Sir Richard in the political fights of those days tinctures his view of the men themselves with more than ordinary asperity. The book is a most interesting relation of inner political life, however, and will be followed probably next year by another volume dealing with later events.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT

It is reported that the Dominion government will, at the coming session of parliament, reintroduce the Highways Improvement Act, one of the measures blocked last session by the Liberal majority in the Senate, says the Ottawa Journal.

That this bill, which grants one million dollars to the nine provinces for the betterment of roads, is one of great importance, is patent to all who understand the important part played by good roads in the internal development of a country. Sir Percy Girouard, who has faced the problem of extending the means of communication in many countries in the far East, and has travelled widely, says that the Canadian roadways are the worst in the world. He points out that more money is spent on the roads of England than on the British navy.

In introducing the Highways Improvement Act, the government was fulfilling a pledge endorsed by the people of Canada at the polls. What worthy object, then, is served by the action of the Liberal majority in the Senate by blocking the measure? Those who know that the Liberal Senators move at the dictation of the Liberal minority in the House of Commons, led by Sir Laurier, will see only political bias in such action, which is, beyond question, contrary to the wishes of a large majority of Canadians of either political party.

Improvements of roads calls for the expenditure of large sums of money. There is a lot to be said, therefore, for the proposal made that such expenditure be carried out along the lines of a definite plan. The Christian Science Monitor points out that, while in both Canada and the United States action is being taken for road improvement by provinces and states, and the counties and municipalities are engaged in the same work, in neither country is there a settled policy as to what each shall do. Thus over-lapping and waste of time money and effort are sometimes experienced. The Toronto World suggests that Ontario, which has appropriated one million dollars for good roads, should undertake to build large radiating systems of trunk roads, leaving the building of feeders to the counties and municipalities. It is obvious, from the history of municipal management in Ontario, that some form of provincial responsibility should be adopted to cover the expenditure of money on good roads as a guarantee to the people that the money will not be wasted and shall be expended where it will do most good. What is true of Ontario in this regard is also true of the other provinces.

It has also been proposed, in view of the Senate's action in blocking the good roads measure of the Dominion government, that resolution urging the passing of the measure be adopted by boards of trade all over the country. Were some such plan followed, the Senate's position would be untenable from the standpoint of public spirit and of justice.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT

At the meeting of the Toronto board of control the other day the question of abolishing all the aldermanic committees was under consideration. Controller Church favored the plan of having all details of civic business dealt with by the controllers, the council deciding all matters of policy. The Toronto board however, was not prepared to go that far, but it decided to recommend to the city council that the aldermanic committees be reduced to three. There seems to be an insistent demand in many Canadian cities for a change in the system of municipal government. The people are not getting the results they desire, and the cry is for better and stronger men. One way to encourage such to offer their services is to see that the demands on their time are not too heavy and that the conditions which have created the ward-heeler and boss are removed. These are changes that should not be difficult to bring about. Pay the members of the commission well and in this way the citizens will be inclined to use more caution in selecting their candidates. With a capable board of control to manage the affairs of the city, in line with a policy approved by a council of representative business men, the ratepayers would have little to fear. The signs of the times indicate that this change will be consummated very soon.

C.P.R.'S FINE DISPLAY AT N. Y. EXPOSITION

Montreal, Nov. 22. — Yesterday afternoon Mr. Thomas W. Bell, the assistant general advertising agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway returned from New York, where he has been for several days completing the exhibit of the company at the annual American Land and Irrigation Exhibition which is being held in the 71st Regiment Armoury. In conversation with one of our representatives Mr. Bell said this morning that the C.P.R. exhibit was easily considered the finest that had ever been placed in any exposition held in New York. The Natural Resources Department of the C. P. R. and a very massive and complete exhibit of the natural resources of Canada. A display cabinet worked by motor shows a hundred and fifty-six photographs 24x30 taking the delightful scenery from Liverpool to Hong Kong, China, travelling more than half way round the world and without once leaving the Canadian Pacific Railway's property. Also two very fine models, one of the Field reduction loops and the other of the Banff Hotel and environments, which are about five feet square, and the largest picture ever made in the world is to be seen at the C.P.R. stand. It comprises of a representation of sixty-seven of the company's seventy-four steamers and is six feet by twelve feet in size. It is lighted in the rear by electricity showing the fleets of the C.P.R. at night. The decoration scheme of the booth is very attractive the flags of the nations being used wherever the C.P.R. has a port of call. Two exceptionally fine paintings—one of a moose and the other of the world famous Canadian Rockies along the lines of the C.P.R.—the work of Carl Rungius, recognized as the leading animal painter in the United States. Lastly, but by no means least, is the natural gas exhibit from the Province of Alberta. The gas is contained in a huge tank and two jets are used to show the power of the illumination.

REPRESENTATIVE CITIZENS

OF ALL CLASSES

ENDORSE LOCAL OPTION

To the citizens of Peterborough.

The proposed adoption of a Local Option By-Law in our city is of sufficient importance and public interest to justify the enquiry, "Who are responsible" for the submission to the people of such an important measure.

The question is being introduced upon the initiative of citizens representing all classes of the community. A partial list of these citizens is published herewith. This is only a tentative list. Many more will join the committee as fast as opportunity permits. Attention is called to the fact that the citizens who have joined the committee so far, represent the manufacturing, mercantile, industrial, legal, medical, religious, educational and every other important interest of the city.

Every ratepayer who is favorable to a vote being held on Local Option next January, and who is willing to act on this Citizens' Committee, is invited to call at the Citizens' Local Option Committee Rooms, 173 Simcoe street, upstairs, where the list may be signed.

We believe that the Citizens' Local Option Committee is truly representative of the over 2,000 ratepayers of Peterborough, who voted in favor of Local Option three years ago, polling a majority of over 600 in favor of the measure on that occasion, as well as of the propective vastly greater vote it is anticipated will be cast this year.

The issue places our city in the limelight of public attention throughout the province and constitutes her the champion and leader of our cities in the greatest economic, social and moral question of the day, and we call upon all citizens to aid in placing our city in the honored position this opportunity affords.

Our aim is a protected home, a cleaner city and a more general diffusion of prosperity.

Vice-President— Mrs. A. H. Stratton.

Secretary-Treasurer— Mrs. A. G. Fawcett.

Organising Committee— Mrs. Meldrum, Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Read, Mrs. Ruddy, Miss Poole, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Sowdon, Mrs. Mills.

Ice factories are booming in southern Japan. One at Kokura, turns out daily 265 tons of ice.

CASE FOR THE CHILDREN'S AID

Unsatisfactory Conditions Reported From Home in South End

A degrading and unsanitary condition of affairs was brought to light in a south end house by Sanitary Inspector Spence, the facts of which have been communicated to Secretary E. L. Goodwill, of the Children's Aid Society.

The inspector found absolutely no regard for sanitation existing in the house, and dirt and filth littered the rooms. The house was also overcrowded. There were several small children, one an infant of only a few weeks, which appeared to be neglected.

From a morality standpoint the conditions were also bad, as it was discovered that two married couples were using one room for sleeping quarters.

It is expected that the Children's Aid Society will adopt remedial steps without delay.

MARLBOROUGH CLUB DANCE

The Marlborough Club's fourth annual dance, as held last night in the Conservatory of Music Hall, proved to be more brilliant and successful than any in the history of the club. It was estimated that over one hundred and twenty couples attended, including many invited guests from out of town, and ex-members of the club, who have left the city.

The great attraction of the evening was the music of the celebrated orchestra known as the London Harpers. These highly paid artists rendered the most entrancing music and their performance left nothing to be desired in the way of improvement. The orchestra consisted of four pieces, including a skilled harpist. The latter instrument provided alone the music for a couple of waltzes, the most popular one being the Harp Waltz. The musicians received a large share of applause.

Some of the patrons and patronesses were present, including Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pennefather, Mayor and Mrs. W. H. Bradburn, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton.

Several unique novelty dances were introduced, the most popular being the moon dance, when the room was darkened, the only light that was suffused emenating from a miniature representation of a moon from the two ends of the hall. Some really clever and varied electrical effects were also introduced.

After the supper, which was most capably provided by Messrs. Coleman Bros., a flashlight photo of the scene was secured by Mr. W. H. Orme, of the Marlboro Club.

The brilliant function was over about three-thirty.

Mention is due the elaborate manner in which the hall was adorned by flags, pennants, palms and club colors.

The patrons and patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mr and Mrs. W. H. Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pennefather, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton.

Committee—R. G. Langford, J. H. Huggins, J. M. Oldham, A. E. McCampbell, E. W. Pratt, R. H. Hegan, C. Henry, H. P. Neil, Hon Secy.; W. C. Thornton, H. C. Kirn, S. Armstrong.

COMING OF THE IRISH TO CANADA

Mr. V. J. McElderry Gave Address at Lyceum

Mr. V. J. McElderry delivered an exceedingly interesting talk on "Irish Immigration" at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, as last night's fortnightly talk on Irish subjects.

Mr. McElderry spoke of the great influx of Irish immigrants to Canada in the years 1846 '47 and '48. The English landlords and officials who sent them to Canada crowded them like cattle in the holds of worthless ships with insufficient food. Many of them died of fever before they reached Canada and were buried at Gross Isle on the St. Lawrence. Numbers settled in Quebec while many more chose parts of Ontario a large number settling near Peterborough. Mr. McElderry told of how the Irish had succeeded so that many of them are now some of Canada's foremost citizens.

The next lecture will be given on Friday, December 6th. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, will lecture on "Thomas Moore, the Irish Patriot."

PHYSICIANS

Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my 'Life Guard,' and urge all to try its merit."

CURED 3 YEARS

BEWARE OF BLOOD-POISON

Zam Buk Is A Sure Cure

Mr. Jas. Davey of 783 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, says—"A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger, through the timely use of Zam-Buk.

"I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of my right hand in opening a lobster can. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound. However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed; as my whole hand and arm to the elbow became suddenly inflamed, and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound on the knuckle had been poisoned by dust and dirt getting into it. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by next day there was a great improvement.

"In a week's time, through perseverance with this wonderful preparation, a complete cure was brought about."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, piles, ringworm, boils, varicose ulcers, running sores, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. It draws all poisonous foulness from a wound or sore and then heals. Use it, too, for cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries. Zam-Buk Soap should be used in conjunction to the balm for washing wounds and sore places. Excellent too, for baby's bath.

All druggists and stores sell Zam Buk at 50c. box and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c. tablet. Post free upon receipt of price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Called His Bluff.

"What!" cried the brutal husband. "You gave that old overcoat of mine to a tramp. You should have asked me first. I had placed a hundred dollars in bills in one of the pockets of that coat, simply to have the money in a safe place until you should want to purchase some clothes."

"William Henry Suddsworthy," replied the fond wife, fixing him with a judicial eye, "you worked that game on me two years ago. I went through the pockets of that coat and found a darned glove, six cloves, five carburetor [illegible], four matches and a supping for my card. I'm going shopping to-morrow."

Clams That Drown Men.

Some clams that drown Men. Observation.

An observant man in all his intercourse with society and the world constantly and unperceived marks on every person and thing the figure expressive of its value and therefore on meeting that person or thing knows instantly what kind and degree of attention to give it. Roasting Chestnuts.

These may be roasted on a shovel held over hot coals or upon the top of the stove. Two are named and laid side by side. If they remain roasting quietly a long and lasting affection is predicted between the parties; if one or both hop away it signifies a disagreement; those that persist in moving about are fickle, while those that fly off the shovel or stove are destined to remain single another year.

Enigma.

I have but one eye, and that without sight,
Yet it helps me, whatever I do;
I am sharp without wits, without sense I'm bright,
The fortune of some and of some the delight.
And I doubt not I'm useful to you.

SPORTING NEWS

RIDPATH FAILED TO LAND CYCLONE TAYLOR

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Fred Taylor, the most-talked of hockey player in the country, was again the storm centre in Ottawa to-day. Bruce Ridpath, the Toronto manager, arrived here on the morning express, and immediately made an offer to the "Cyclone," which was said to have been larger than that which he had accepted from Patricks. Ridpath saw Taylor several times during the day, and finally made the offer so big that he felt sure of preventing the Listowel man from going west, but Taylor stuck to his contract with the Patricks and turned a deaf ear to all the pleadings of the Toronto man. To-night Taylor left for the coast, accompanied by Carl Kendall, of the New Edinburghs. At the train they arranged to join "Goldie" Prodgers, Eddie Oatman and Jack McDonald the Quebec contract jumpers. Taylor says the Patricks have made a clean sweep of the N.H.A. stars, and believes that Ernie Johnson will also go west to play for Vancouver. Taylor and Kendall were given a big send-off.

Uncle Sam's Fighting Men.

There are 20,473,684 men of fighting age in the United States of whom 2,156,361 are in the state of New York, according to the census bureau. The figures as to the militia strength of the country have been compiled by the government from the enumeration of 1910. Immigration is increasing the fighting strength of the American republic out of proportion to the general growth of population. Thus the number of males of enlisting age, eighteen to forty-four inclusive, has increased 4,280,982, or 26.5 per cent, in the last ten years, as against a general growth of 21 per cent in the whole population in the same period.—New York World

THE MARTYRS TO DIABETES

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the business men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and heedlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead, they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they were piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES (in the United States EXPURGO ANTI-DIABETES), which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of various cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg Man. The remedy is for sale by McDermid & Jury Peterborough Price $2.00 per bottle.

AN ALABASTER SPHINX.

Ninety Ton Statue Unearthed on the Plains of Memphis.

Another sphinx, weighing ninety tons and carved from a single rock of alabaster, has been unearthed at a point between the world famed colossi on the waterlogged plains of Memphis, in Egypt. For hundreds of years it has laid in a recumbent position, buried beneath the sands on the road to Sakkareh. Today it is half exposed to view, and next year it is to be raised to a vertical position above the water line.

This newly found sphinx was betrayed in its hiding place by its tail, which Mr. Mackay, one of the students of the British school in Egypt, discovered about a year ago. This year when the water on the plain subsided the complete figure was excavated and was found to measure some fourteen feet high and twenty-six feet in length. Alabaster being a rock foreign to the neighborhood, says the London Standard, the new sphinx ranks as the largest that has ever been transported. The figure bears no inscription, but is considered by Professor Flinders Petrie, the director of the British school in Egypt, to have been carved about 1300 B. C.

Many other remarkable discoveries, taking the mind back as far as 6500 B. C. and lifting the veil of centuries from Egypt's romantic story, have also been made by the same school and with the exception of a red granite group of Rameses II. and the god Ptah, which will be sent directly to the Carlsberg museum at Copenhagen, and a few other details are now on exhibition at University college, Gower street. They include many objects quite new to Egyptologists.

Among these are coffins made of basketwork, reeds or withes, sandal trays, an ax handle in which the grip is composed of delicately knotted string, a pot of unburned incense for a fire offering of 4000 B. C. and numerous pieces of timber showing by their formation the principles of building construction that were in vogue nearly 6,000 years B.C.

DEAD LETTERS.

I feel another man. Improved in temper
As the direct result of duty done
(A most unusual thing—O si sic semper!).
I'll back my morals now with any one.

I feel my cabin'd spirit burst its fetters.
I feel it soar aloft like billy-O.
Because I've polished off a load of letters—
Answered a dozen at a single go.

Unanswered letters are a constant menace.
I find they worry me an awful lot.
They simply spoil by back hand drive at tennis
And utterly upset my mashie shot.

Lucky it is my conscience never wallows
In idle ease, but keeps severely spry,
Urging on me the manly course as follows,
Which other people might do well to try:

When letters have been left six months or longer
Crammed in the rack I answer them, cry quits
With conscience, make my moral fiber stronger—
By simply tearing up the things to bits.
—Punch.

Dangerous Talk in George's Presence.

"Mother, I wish you wouldn't mention dishwashing when George is calling on me."

"Why not, indeed?"

"I don't like it. It sounds common."

"Common, eh? We have to eat, don't we?"

"Of course!"

"And George knows we eat and use dishes?"

"That's very true."

"And George also knows that dishes have to be washed, therefore somebody has to wash them?"

"But mother"—

"What now?"

"If you keep on talking about it George may discover that you make father wipe them, and he may think the same thing is coming to him if he should propose to me."—Detroit Free Press.

A New Kind of Bait.

Hector Von Bayer, architect of the bureau of fisheries, was telling fish stories in Washington.

"I was once fishing for bass in Lake Sunapee," he said. "Old Jake was my guide. Jake chose the fishing grounds, and he also selected the flies.

"The fish rose well till after luncheon. Then they vanished. After an hour of vain casting I said to Jake:

"'I guess they're taking a siesta now, eh?'

"'I guess mebbe they are,' the old man answered from his armchair in the stern, 'but any other fly with a bit of yaller in it would do jest as well.'"—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Too Fast.

"I don't believe in forcing schools for children," said Governor Woodrow Wilson at a dinner at Trenton. "A child that knows at four as much as ordinarily it would know at eight is, to my mind, about as tasteful an object as Calhoun Clay's watch.

"'That's a fine watch you've got there, Calhoun,' said a friend. 'Is it a good goer?'

"'A good goer?' said Calhoun Clay. 'Well, you bet your life it's a good goer. Why, it can do an hour in half the time!'"—Milwaukee News.

"Marvelous Recovery"

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. Inferior Range
COAL
COAL
COAL

Which Costs most?

THE cheap inferior range—expensive in coal and repairs, and often a poor baker OR—

The range which costs more to buy, but saves money by reducing the coal bill and costing next to nothing for upkeep?

To the far-seeing housewife there is only one answer.

Look in on a neighbor who has a PEERLESS. Ask her how much coal she uses? What it costs her for repairs? How it does her cooking and baking? Then figure out for yourself just where your own range stands?

The PEERLESS is a well-designed, strongly constructed range. Figure its cost over a couple of years, and it is by far the cheapest range you can buy.

When Saddles Were First Used.

It is supposed that the saddle was invented about the middle of the fourth century, but the fact, in the opinion of some, has not been positively proved. Zonaras, the historian, tells us that Constantine the younger was killed in the year 340, when he fell from his saddle. The word translated into saddle also means, however, the back of the horse or the place where the rider sat. It is true, nevertheless, that Sidonius Apollinaris used the word that unmistakably refers to the saddletree.

Thief Proof Umbrella.

An umbrella made thief-proof by being locked in such a manner that it cannot be opened has been invented by a London cloak-room attendant. The locking device consists of a metal collar, one end of which may be slipped down over the rib-tips, and is securely locked to them by revolving the three metal rings. These rings bear the letters and numerals of the secret combinations.

The "Giant" Bell.

Russia is famed for the manufacture of great bells. The "Giant," cast in Moscow in the sixteenth century, weighed nearly 288,000 pounds and required twenty-four men to ring it. In 1732 it fell, but its fragments were recast along with other metal into a bell which weighed 443,000 pounds, the metal of which alone is valued at $300,000.

How Would They Like It?

"Madam, you wear too much false hair. It injures the nerve centers and fatigues the blood cells of the brain."

"Young woman, what do you mean by such impertinence?"

"Holty, tolty, now! I'm the welfare inspector for the idle rich."—Pittsburgh Post.

His Way.

"Dogmatic, isn't he?"

"Very. He makes a guess, concludes it is his unalterable opinion, states it as an established fact and then wants to fight anybody who does not agree with him."—Judge.

SAYS EUROPEAN NATIONS ARE UNITED FOR PEACE

British Premier and Nationalist Leader Appear on the Same Platform at Nottingham—No Disturbance by Suffragettes—Diplomatic Situation Unchanged

Nottingham, Eng., Nov. 23.—The unusual spectacle of Liberal and Nationalist leaders on the same platform at a political meeting was witnessed last night when Premier Asquith and John Redmond addressed a great audience here on home rule, and the Premier also dealt with the war in the Balkans and other subjects of interest.

Fears that there might be a suffragette outbreak during the meeting, resulted in the most complete preparations ever undertaken here to preserve the peace. Almost the entire police force was on duty in the hall and its neighborhood, and a large body of officers of the law was held in reserve in the basement of the building, where the meeting was held.

Mr. Asquith's reference to the war in Southeastern Europe was very diplomatic and threw no new light on the situation. Recalling his speech at the Guild Hall in London, Nov. 9, in which he made the statement that he believed it to be the unanimous opinion of Europe "that the victors should not be robbed of the fruits which cost them so dearly," Mr. Asquith said:

"I then endeavored to define in precise and clear terms the attitude of this country, and of the great powers with reference to the war which, unhappily, still is raging in Eastern Europe. That attitude, as I am aware, has not been changed or modified. We are anxious to stop further effusion of blood between the combatants, and even more anxious to limit or circumscribe the field of possible conflicts. The powers are working together to that end. We are satisfied that there is no deviation in wish or purpose in that co-operative policy of all the powers. There may be certain questions which in the best interest of peace and ultimate stability it may be possible to be reserved to deal with when the time comes for a general and definite settlement.

Pledging the Liberal party to continue its efforts for home rule, Mr. Asquith declared that he would not be discouraged by any passing incidents which would be forgotten to-morrow, but determined to proceed with the fight to the end.

John Redmond, in his address, said home rule was on the eve of final victory. He also declared that the Nationalists, in addition to the home rule measure, would support other features of the Liberal Government's program.

John King Failed to Rally From Sudden Attack

Following an attack of heart trouble, yesterday afternoon, John King 500 Parnell Street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he passed away about seven o'clock last evening.

His wife died three months ago, and now, five young children are without father or mother.

He was a member of Sacred Heart T. A. S. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's cemetery.

Tea is the national drink of Russia, extending all over the empire, and into Siberia.

Music and Drama

Eva Tanquay's place in "The Sun Dodgers" is to be taken by Bessie Wynn, also a light of vaudeville.

Victor Herbert's new operatta, in which Christie Macdonald is to be starred, will be produced in February.

After the present season in "The Real Thing," Henrietta Crosman will be seen in a repertoire of classic plays.

"In 'The Drums of Oude'" which David Belasco is personally producing in vaudeville, the characters are English and Hindu, and for the former only English players have been engaged, while native Hindus fill the other roles.

Among the plays accepted from abroad by Charles Frohman for eventual production in this country is the newest Hubert Henry Davies comedy, entitled "Doormats." Mr. Davis is the author of "Cousin Kate" and "The Mollusc." Doormats are simply those people in life who take a joy in letting other people walk over them, and even wipe their feet on them.

For the amount of money invested by A. H. Woods in the production of "Gypsy Love," a first-class business man in any big city could supply himself with a full year's stock of merchandise. Fully $75,000 is represented in the investment of the Lehar production. Lehar, who won the good will of the public by giving them "The Merry Widow," and the "Count of Luxembourg," says that "Gypsy Love" is the best thing he ever wrote.

"Four thousand feet of film has been condemned by the Ontario board of censors since the first of the month," stated George E. Armstrong, chairman, to a Toronto reporter, "and many objectionable scenes have been eliminated. This latter amounts to considerable, too. Some weeks we condemn thousands of feet, and then again hundreds of feet of eliminations are made every week."

While the representative was investigating the work of the board yesterday afternoon a film was displayed where the bandit, Lorenzo, is thrown off a high cliff, drops to a projecting rock below, rebounds into the water, and is picked up dead. This portion of the film was removed.

"All such scenes, and those of suicide, those depicting scenes of immorality, suggestive, and prize fights, are eliminated," stated Mr. Armstrong in referring to the "cut-out." "In fact, it is the aim of the board of censors to elevate the moving picture business. We don't pretend to make Sunday school reels of them, however."

"Ninety per cent. of the films which come before the board here, with the exception of European, have been passed upon by the New York board of censorship. Notwithstanding this fact, the board has condemned thousands of feet of film containing objectionable scenes."

Otis Harlan, who is making people laugh by his delineation of the detective in "Little Boy Blue," is one of the richest actors in the profession. When Harlan began his professional career—it was with the late Charles H. Hoyt—he signed a contract for three years at a figure that was ridiculously small. It was not long, however, until the comedian was getting "real" money for acting. Then he began investing in theatrical properties. One of his earliest ventures was in a stock company in Richmond, Va., with Jake Wells, the Southern theatrical magnate. He then became interested with Wells in several theatres in the South, eventually forming a circuit which extended until it included theatres in every large town south of the Mason and Dixon line. He has also been interested in many travelling organizations, among them being "Babes in Toyland," "Nancy Brown," "Wonderland," and several others of lesser importance.

ADDRESS BY ALLAN STUDHOLME

A meeting was held last evening in Labor Hall to discuss the advisability of making the address to be given next Thursday evening by Allan Studholme, M.L.A., free and open to the general public. Some of the members of the Trades and Labor Council considered the question of Hydro-Electric so important at the present time, that they would like to have the regular monthly smoker postponed, and the night given to a public discussion of the subject. It was not thought practicable, however, as Labor Hall would not be large enough to hold a public meeting in, and the engaging of a hall was more than the committee could undertake in the limited time. It is expected that Labor Hall will be well filled to hear Mr. Studholme, and the program now being arranged.

Keep the Date Open

Don't fail to hear Allan Studholme, M.P.P., the only Labor member in the Ontario Legislature, on Nov. 28th, in the Labor Hall, 435 George street, when he speaks on the all-important question in regard to Peterborough at the present time, "The Power Question." MONTREAL BANKER DIES OF AN ATTACK OF APOPLEXY

Sir Edward Clouston Was Connected With Twenty Financial and Commercial Concerns.

Montreal, Nov. 25.—The death of Sir Edward Seaborne Clouston, Bart., one of the best-known bankers and financeris of Canada, occurred here on Saturday.

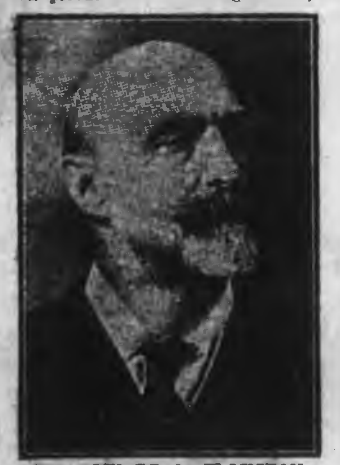
Sir Edward fainted in the morning while engaged in a conversation with a friend in the Royal Securities Building. Recovering a few moments later he objected to being removed to the hospital, contending that he was all right. On the advice of his friends, however, he allowed himself to be conveyed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where an examination was made.

The hospital authorities at first issued a bulletin announcing that the baronet's condition was not very serious and that the fainting fit had been brought about by acute indigestion.

About 2.30 p.m. Sir Edward's condition began to grow rapidly worse and he passed away at 2.45 p.m., death being due to apoplexy.

Sir Edward Clouston was connected in one capacity or another with twenty large financial and commercial concerns and is reputed to have been worth well over a million.

In private life he was generous, a supporter and worker for practically every charitable organisation in the city.



SIR EDWARD S. CLOUSTON.

He was a great sportsman and in his younger days distinguished himself as an athlete, playing lacrosse, football and racquet equally well. He captained a Canadian team which played Harvard University football team in 1875.

Sir Edward Seaborne Clouston, baronet, vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, and a former president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, he having resigned that office a week ago, and was born at Moose Factory, Hudson Bay, May 9, 1849. His father, James Stewart Clouston, was a native of the Orkney Islands and was the chief factor in the Hudson Bay Co. As a lad young Clouston attended the public schools and the Montreal high school, and in 1865, at the age of 16, he entered the employ of the Bank of Montreal as clerk. In 1877, he was advanced to the position of assistant inspector. In 1881, he was made manager of the Montreal branch, and in 1887, was appointed assistant general manager, and in 1890, became general manager, being further honored in 1905 by election to the vice-presidency, which positions he filled at his death.

By Hudson Bay Route.

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 25.—That within three years more than fifty million bushels of western wheat will be finding its way annually to the markets of the world by way of the Hudson Bay Railway and Port Nelson, if present expectations are fulfilled, is the statement made by R. H. McNeil, secretary of the company.

"It is because the people of the west demand it," said Mr. McNeil, "and it is a moral certainty that the line will be operated by the Government and that it will be one of the most profitable railroads in the Dominion."

The length of the line from Lepas to Port Nelson, on the Hudson Bay, is 500 miles, and to-day 75 miles of road are graded and ready for track, while there is on hand a sufficient quantity of steel for the first 150 miles.

Proposed Extra Cess.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—To meet the financial ravages of death which have been rapidly depleting their reserve, the Ancient Order of United Workmen have found it necessary to levy a special assessment upon all members this month. The necessity for this temporary relief comes as a result of the quashing by the courts of the advance in the regular assessment passed by the last grand lodge officers, and attacked at law by Guelph members of the order. The special assessment doubles the present regular assessment and is to be paid with it.

TO FIGHT FOR FRENCH

French-Canadians Passed a Resolution Against Bilingual Rule.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—About 1,000 young French-Canadians, the majority from this city, but a number from outside places, met in the Monument National Saturday, listened to addresses, and passed resolutions expressive of their protest against the new regulations of the Ontario Government in regard to bilingual schools.

Trustee Genest asserted that in framing them the Ontario Government must have had the advice of his Satanic majesty and the question was getting too hot for Premier Whitney to handle.

The following resolution was passed:

Like our fathers who have proved their attachment to the British crown in twice saving Canada, we are loyal subjects and submit to laws which are just and do not violate the principle of liberty, conscience or those of the rights of man or the spirit of the constitution.

"We entirely approve the attitude of the Ontario Educational Association, of the school trusteeships, of the newspapers and of all French-Canadians in protesting against unjust laws and in maintaining the respect due to their sacred rights.

"We protest against the new regulations of the Ontario Minister of Education, which restricts French in the school and tend to completely anglicise our children; we protest in a like manner against the inspection of our Catholic schools by Protestant inspectors.

"Considering that we have the right to speak and to teach French in this province, by the natural right of any man to speak his own language, by the constant use of French in this province since its first discovery, by the resolutions, statutes, provincial regulations previous to circular 17, officially recognizing French in Ontario for no less than fifty years past and approving of French textbooks to that end, by the spirit and letter of the British North American Act, which recognized French as an official language in Canada.

"We ask, therefore, that the last enacted educational regulation be modified in a manner to give full satisfaction to the French-speaking people of Ontario."

BOY WAS SHOT WHILE HUNTING

Not Knowing Gun Was Loaded Youth Played With Trigger.

Leamington, Ont., Nov. 25.—Lyman Miller, about 16 years old, of Leamington, was shot through the side on Saturday afternoon by a companion, while hunting rabbits.

Miller, his grandfather and a boy friend were walking through a piece of wooded land on the fifth concession of Mersea, when the accident happened. Miller was carrying a ferret in a box over his shoulder. His friend was following close behind with a shot gun, and not knowing the gun was loaded, was playing with the trigger. The gun went off and bored an inch hole through the ferret box and Miller's side, without injuring the ferret.

ROYAL GEORGE ABLE TO MAKE PORT UNDER HER OWN STEAM

Big Liner May Yet be Repaired and Made Seaworthy.

Quebec, Nov. 25.—The C.N.R. liner Royal George, which went ashore on the Isle of Orleans, was floated off at four o'clock, or an hour before high water, on Saturday afternoon.

The Royal George, at 6 p.m., left for Quebec under her own steam, making eight knots an hour. She entered port at seven o'clock, the Lord Strathcona and Lady Grey accompanying her. She had to remain out in the stream until the steamer Megantic left the breakwater, so as to enable the damaged steamer to enter the Louise Basin.

As to the damage the Royal George sustained, Joseph Begin, the veteran diver, says vessels much more damaged have been floated above and below Quebec, brought back and either permanently or temporarily repaired and sent across the Atlantic.

Twenty-Four Miners Dead.

Calais, France, Nov. 25.—Twenty-four men lost their lives yesterday when firedamp exploded in a coal mine. The explosion occurred between shifts. Only 38 men were in the mine at the time. Of these fourteen were warned by the sudden extinction of their lamps and managed to escape. A rescue party found twenty-one bodies. The other three are apparently in a remote part of the mine.

Calais is a city of 20,000 souls in the mining department of Card, about 25 miles from Mines.

EASTERN SITUATION STILL STRAINED AND UNSETTLED

English Correspondent Describes Terrible Lawlessness—Citizens of Saloniki Declare They Were Robbed and Maltreated by Bulgarian and Greek Soldiers

Canadian Press Despatch.

Berlin, Germany, Nov. 25— Relations between Austro-Hungary and Servia are now so strained that political circles in Vienna have abandoned hope of preservation of peace, according to Neue Gesellschaftliche Correspondenz, which says it has the information from a diplomatic source. Despite official Austrian denials of reported mobilization of the Austro-Hungarian army Correspondenz declares that five army corps have actually been already mobilized and reserves continue to be called up in large numbers.

WORKING FOR ARMISTICE

London, Nov. 25— Plenipotentiaries of Turkey and of the allied Balkan nations held their first meeting this afternoon, to discuss the preliminaries for negotiations for an armistice.

TURKISH CAPTURE

London, Nov. 25— A despatch from Turkish headquarters at Hademkeui confirms the report that Ottoman troops captured eight hundred Bulgarian and Servian prisoners, during the last engagement with the Bulgarian right wing on Tchatalja lines. The Turks also took six field guns and one machine gun. Another despatch says Austria-Hungary is mobilizing striking force at Port Ragusa.

London, Nov. 25.—A story of lawlessness and looting by Bulgarians and Greeks at Saloniki, where the inhabitants have been in a state of terror lest the allies in occupation fall to fighting each other, has been sent by the correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company under date of Nov. 16. The correspondent is an Englishman of many years' residence in Saloniki and thoroughly acquainted with the city and surrounding country. He writes:

"The Bulgarians on the march to Saloniki had already more than a taste of blood and rapine, having ravaged without mercy the Turkish villages on their route, and as soon as they entered Saloniki they instituted a systematic pillage of the quarters occupied by them, regardless of the remonstrances of the Greek officials.

"A continuous fusilade was kept up on Nov. 10 and 11, both by the soldiers of the Bulgarian and Greek armies and the Christian populace. The firing resulted in numerous casualties. A stoker of the steamer Medea was killed while in the pinnace alongside the ship. A hail of bullets, according to the reports of the ship's officers, fell on the decks of the foreign warships several nights.

"The soldiers, guided by roughs entered whatever houses appeared to offer prospects of good booty and cleared out everything worth taking. The terror-stricken owners offered no resistance. It would have been useless, in view of the bayonets held to their breasts and the revolvers thrust against their temples.

"Hundreds of cases of this kind have been reported by the victims, who poured their complaints into the ears of the foreign consuls. The indignant protests of the consuls to the Greek authorities have had little effect. The arrival of a body of Greek gendarmerie Nov. 12, however, improved the situation.

"In the meantime a violent anti-Jewish outbreak occurred, apparently because the Jews abstained from decorating their property with Greek flags, and did not join in shouting a welcome to the soldiers. The Greek press spread a story that Jewish liquor sellers had poisoned twelve Evzones, supplying them with corrosive sublimate instead of cognac. A number of Jews were arrested, but were released the next day. The mischief had already been done, and many Jews suffered at the hands of the soldiers. Their assailants were not punished.

"The differences between the Bulgarians and Greeks regarding the ultimate destiny of Saloniki have reached an acute stage and there is no fraternizing. King Ferdinand is expected to reach here soon for the purpose of reminding King George by his presence that the Greek sovereign is not the only potentate in Saloniki.

"The Bulgarians are firmly resolved that their occupation of Saloniki shall be permanent. There are many incidents to prove that the relations between the Bulgarians and Greeks at this moment are really those of inveterate enemies, who are prevented from flying at each others' throats only by a frail and temporary truce.

"The people of Saloniki, who lately feared that Hassan Tahsin Pasha intended to make their city a second Saragossa, and who have already suffered much at the hands of the allies, are now haunted by the terror that the allies may at any moment come to blows. The departure of almost all the foreign warships is surely illtimed."

No serious fighting is reported on the Tchatalja lines, where both sides appear to be awaiting the issue of the armistice negotiations. Meanwhile all the necessary dispositions are being made for a resumption of the war should the negotiations fail.

Bulgaria is shipping her forces from Saloniki in Greek transports, presumably for transfer to Gallipoli Peninsula, where Turkey is also strengthening her forces by Anatolian troops. Here an attempt will be made by the allies, assisted by the Greek fleet, to take the Dardanelles.

The rest of the allied forces, liberated in Macedonia, will be sent by rail as speedily as possible to reinforce the Bulgarians attacking the Tchatalja lines. Their places will be taken by the Bulgarian 1912 recruits, who, after three weeks' training, are being drafted into Macedonia for garrison duty.

The only news of military importance is the occupation of Ochrida, a large town near Monastir, by the Servians. The position at Adrianople and Scutari is apparently unchanged.

Official statements issued at Vienna continue to deny the reported war preparations. Letters from Vienna have reached London, however, confirming the reports that the strength of six different army corps is being increased, and that a large number of reservists have been called out.

Greeks Deny Outrages.

Athens, Nov. 25.—Formal denial is made here of the reports that the Greek soldiers at Saloniki have committed excesses against the Jewish inhabitants. Even before the capitulation of Saloniki, it is pointed out, efforts were noticeable in both Turkey and Europe, to show that there was dissension between the better class of Greeks and the Jews in the Macedonian city.

STREET CARS MEET HEAD-ON

Accident Happened During Heavy Fall of Snow

Eighteen Passengers Were Injured, Mostly by Glass

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Nov. 25.—Eighteen people were injured but none seriously, in a head-on collision between two heavy express cars on the suburban branch of the Street Railway at Ahuntsick this morning. There was a heavy snowstorm at the time and it is believed the snow prevented one motorman from stopping his car at the switch. The city bound car was crowded with people coming to work. Most of the injured were hurt by flying glass.

FIFTY PEOPLE KILLED; OPERATOR LOST HIS NERVE

Panic in Picture Show Follow Cry of Fire by Man at Machine.

MANY CHILDREN

Were Trampled to Death When Audience Rushed to Exit

Bilbao, Spain, Nov. 25.—A terrible panic was caused yesterday afternoon by the cry of fire at a moving picture show here. About fifty children and others were killed. Only one woman up to a late hour last night had been found among the dead. The number of injured is not known, as most of them were taken to their homes by friends.

The scene of the accident is a large circus, which had been converted into a continuous cinematograph show. As the price of admission was only two cents the building was crowded to its utmost capacity, for the most part with women and children.

The operator of the machine lost his nerve when a film ignited, and screamed "fire." He was able to extinguish the flames himself without difficulty, but the effect of his cry upon the audience was instantaneous. Almost everyone within the building sprang up. The police and attendants were powerless to control the panic-stricken people and were swept away by the surging mass which sought to fight a way to the exit. Scores were knocked down and trampled upon and many were crushed to death in the passages from the galleries and to the streets.

The news of the disaster brought large crowds, who gathered in a frenzied manner outside the building, and the authorities had great difficulty in carrying on the work of rescue and extricating the dead and injured from the piles of wrecked seats.

The manager and other employes have been arrested and are held pending an inquiry.

Bye-Election Goes Liberal.

London, Nov. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Bolton bye-election, caused by the death of George Harwood, previous member, resulted: S. Taylor (Lib.), 10,011; A. Brooks, (Con.), 8,835, the Liberal majority being reduced 500.

Liberals attribute their success to industrial Lancashire's aversion to the Unionist tariff policy, declaring also that hostility to the Insurance Act is dying.

The late member, though a Liberal, was wholly against his party on the disestablishment question.

The Labor vote went Liberal.

STATED CASE FOR GIBSON

Court of Appeal to Decide on Dunkleman's Evidence

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A stated case to go to the Court of Appeal as to the admission of Eli Dunkleman's evidence in the trial of Charles Gibson, found guilty of murder of Joseph Rosenthal by the assizes jury, was granted by Sir William Mulock this morning. Until the case is argued before the Court of Appeal, no further action against Gibson will be taken by the Crown.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—Without a tremor or even a flush upon his cheek, Chas Gbison who, since last Monday morning, has been on trial charged with the murder of Joseph Rosenthal on Good Friday last, listened to the jury foreman announce the verdict of "guilty" at 2.05 p.m. in the criminal assize court on Saturday.

Aubrey Bond, defence counsel, immediately rose and asked Chief Justice Sir William Mulock for a reserved case on the question of the admissability of the evidence of Eli Dunkleman, with regard to the assault upon him on that fateful night. His lordship will dispose of Mr. Bond's action to-day.

Just after Gibson had eaten dinner, he was offered the services of a spiritual adviser. In a clear voice Gibson thanked the offerer. "I'm not guilty," he declared, "or I couldn't feel the way I do now. I didn't do it." Gibson at this time said he expected a disagreement amongst the jury.

In one of the ablest and most powerful addresses delivered in the history of the Toronto Bar Defence Counsel Bond put before the jury arguments as to Gibson's innocence.

"Do you think this weak boy of 20 years would smash up a man the way Rosenthal was found? Was it the job of a man intent on robbery, or was it the job of two or more men?"

Mr. Bond impressed upon the jurors the inadvisability of convicting on circumstantial evidence. "No one," said he, "saw Gibson lay hands on Rosenthal. The crown says the fact of Gibson giving his wrong name, and having bloodstains on his clothes is evidence of guilt. But has some one an axe to grind? Is there treachery here?"

Crown Prosecutor Meredith in reply, scouted the statement that Gibson could not have done the deed. "Anyone could have done it had they had a hammer in their hands.

"Why in the name of Almighty God should Dunkleman seek to send Gibson to the gallows by swearing to what he did, if it were not true?

"The prisoner might have had someone there to assist him in his deed, but if he did, he is just as guilty as the man who struck the fatal blow."

Chief Justice Sir William Meredith occupied nearly an hour in his charge to the jury. Going over the evidence piece by piece, he told them that if they had settled in their minds as to whether they would believe Dunkleman, the biggest part of their task was finished.

With regard to the evidence of the three soldiers, which was a strong factor in the defence, the chief justice asked the jury if it was feasible that they could with such a short glimpse of the men upon the bridge that night, describe them with any degree of accuracy.

"One of them tells us he had been to a building bee, where there had been a keg of beer, and was hurrying back to the barracks to get more beer before the canteen closed. Was he in a condition to accurately set the time, or describe men whom he met upon this occasion?"

At twelve fifteen the jury retired, and the court adjourned till two o'clock, when the jury returned their verdict.

NEW SCARE BOOK TO BE PUBLISHED

German Book is Re-Christened "British Empire's Fateful Hour."

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Gen. Homer Lea's book, "The Day of the Saxon," which he completed a few months prior to his death, is about to be published by the semi-official Berlin printing house of Mittler & Son.

In order to popularize the work for German readers, it has been re-christened "The British Empire's Fateful Hour," with the sub-title of "The Warning of an Anglo-Saxon General."

Mittler & Sons, who are bringing out the new book, are practically the Government publishing house, and it is almost certain that they received high official sanction for printing the German translation of "The Day of the Saxon."

Its leit motif, that the British Empire is destined to crumble and that Germany will be its heir, is a popular theory with German political writers.

As he started to go, Fosdick, who had been incessantly consulting his watch, checked him to ask: "Oh, conductor, when do we get to the state-line of dear old Utah?"

"Dear old Utah!" the conductor grinned. "We'd 'a' been there already if we hadn't 'a' fell behind a little."

"Just my luck to be late," Fosdick moaned.

"What you so anxious to be in Utah for, Fosdick?" Ashton asked, suspiciously. "You go on to 'Frisco, don't you?"

Fosdick was evidently confused at the direct question. He tried to dodge it: "Yes, but—funny how things have changed. When we started, nobody was speaking to anybody except his wife, now—"

"Now," said Ashton, drily, "everybody's speaking to everybody except his wife."

"You're wrong there," Little Jimmie interrupted. "I wasn't speaking to my wife in the first place. We got on as strangersh and we're strangersh yet. Mrs. Well'n'ton is a—"

"A queen among women, we know! Dry up," said Ashton, and then they heard the querulous voice of the porter of their sleeping car: "I tell you, I don't know nothin' about the buffet business."

The conductor pushed him in with a gruff command. "Crawl in that cage and get busy."

Still the porter protested: "Mista Pullman engaged me for a sleepin car, not a drinkin' car. I'm a berth maker, not a mixer." He cast a resentful glance through the window that served also as a bar, and his whole tone changed: "Say, is you goin' to allow me loose amongst all you do, I can't guarantee my conduck."

"If you even sniff one of those bottles," the conductor warned him, "I'll crack it over your head."

"That won't worry me none—as long as my mouf's open." He smacked his chops over the prospect of intimacy with that liquid treasury. "Lordy! Well, I'll try to control my emotions—but remember, I don't guarantee nothin'."

The conductor started to go, but paused for final instructions: "And remember—after we get to Utah we can't serve any hard liquor at all."

"What's that? Don't they 'low nothin' in that old Utah but ice-cream soda?"

"That's about all. If you touch a drop, I'll leave you in Utah for life."

"Oh, Lordy, I'll be good!"

The conductor left the excited black and went his way. Ashton was the first to speak: "Say, Porter, can you mix drinks?"

The porter ruminated, then confessed: "Well, not on the outside, no, sir. If you-all is thirsty you better order the simplest things you can think of. If you went to command anything fancy, Lord knows what you'd get. Supposin' you was to say, 'Gimme a Tom Collins.' I'd be just as liable as not to pass you a Jack Johnson."

"Well, can you open beer?"

"Oh, I'm a natural born beer-opener."

"Rush it out then. My throat is as full of alkali dust as these windows."

The porter soon appeared with a tray full of cotton-topped glasses. The day was hot and the alkali dust very oppressive, and the beer was cold. Dr. Temple looked on it when it was amber, and suffered himself to be bullied into taking a glass.

He felt that he was the greatest sinner on earth, but worst of all was the fact that when he had fallen, the forbidden brew was not sweet. He was inexperienced enough to sip it and it was like foaming quinine on his palate. But he kept at it from sheer shame, and his luxurious transgression was its own punishment.

The doleful Mallory was on his way to join the "club." Crossing the vestibule he had met the conductor, and had regarded to quiz him along the old lines:

"Excuse me, haven't you taken any clergymen on board this train yet?"

"Devil a one."

"Don't you ever carry any preachers on this road?"

"Usually we get one or two. Last trip we carried a whole Methodist convention."

"A whole convention last trip! Just my luck!"

The unenlightened conductor turned to call back: "Say, up in the forward car we got a couple of undertakers. They be of any use to you?"

"Not yet."

Then Mallory dawdled on into the smoking room, where he found his own porter, who explained that he had been "promoted to the bottlery."

"Do we come to a station stop soon?" Mallory asked.

"Well, not for a considerable interval. Do you want to get out and walk up and down?"

"I don't," said Mallory, taking from under his coat Snoozleums, whom he had smuggled past the new conductor. "Meanwhile, Porter, could you give him something to eat to distract him?"

The porter grinned, and picking up a bill of fare held it out. "I got a menual. It ain't written in dog, but you can explain it to him. What would yo' canine desiah, sah?"

Snoozleums put out a paw and Mallory read what it indicated: "He says he'd like a filet Chateaubriand, but if you have any old bones, he'll take those." The porter gathered Snoozleums in and disappeared with him into the buffet, Mallory calling after him: "Don't let the conductor see him."

Dr. Temple advanced on the disconsolate youth with an effort at cheer: "How is our bridegroom this beautiful afternoon?"

Mallory glanced at his costume: "I feel like a rainbow gone wrong. Just my luck to have to borrow from everybody. Look at me! This collar of Mr. Wellington's makes me feel like a peanut in a rubber tire." He turned to Fosdick.

"I say, Mr. Fosdick, what size collar do you wear?"

"Fourteen and a half," said Fosdick.

"Fourteen and a half!—why don't you get a neck? You haven't got a plain white shirt, have you? Our English friend lent me this, but it's purple, and Mr. Ashton's socks are maroon, and this peacock blue tie is very unhappy."

"I think I can fit you out," said Fosdick.

"And if you had an extra pair of socks," Mallory pleaded—"just one pair of unemotional socks."

"I'll show you my repertoire."

"All right, I'll see you later." Then he went up to Wellington, with much hesitance of manner. "By the way, Mr. Wellington, do you suppose Mrs. Wellington could lend Miss—Mrs.—could lend Marjorie some—some—"

Wellington waved him aside with magnificent scorn: "I am no longer in Mrs. Wellington's confidence."

"Oh, excuse me," said Mallory. He had noted that the Wellingtons occupied separate compartments, but for all he knew their reason was as romantic as his own.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Through a Tunnel.

Mrs. Jimmie Wellington, who had traveled much abroad and learned in England the habit of smoking in the corridors of expensive hotels, had acquired also the habit, as travelers do, of calling England freer than America. She determined to do her share toward the education of her native country, and chose, for her topic, tobacco as a feminine accomplishment.

She had grown indifferent to stares and audible comment and she could fight a protesting head waiter to a standstill. If monuments and tablets are ever erected to the first woman who smoked publicly in this place or that, Mrs. Jimmie Wellington will be variously remembered and occupy a large place in historical record.

The narrow confines of the women's room on the sleeping car soon palled on her, and she objected to smoking there except when she felt the added luxury of keeping some other woman outside—fuming, but not smoking. And now Mrs. Jimmie had staked out a claim on the observation platform. She sat there, puffing like a major general, and in one portion of Nebraska two farmers fell off their agricultural vehicles at the sight of her cigar-smoke trailing after the train. In Wyoming three cowboys followed her for a mile, yipping and bowling their compliments.

Feeling the smoke mood coming on, Mrs. Wellington invited Mrs. Temple to smoke with her, but Mrs. Temple felt a reminiscent qualm at the very thought, so Mrs. Jimmie sauntered out alone, to the great surprise of Ira Lathrop, whose motto was, "Two heads are better than one," and who was apparently willing to wait till Anna Gattle's head grew on his shoulder.

"I trust I don't intrude," Mrs. Wellington said.

"Oh, no. Oh, yes." Anne gasped in fiery confusion as she fled into the car, followed by the purple-faced Ira, who slammed the door with a growl: "That Wellington woman would break up anything."

The prim little missionary toppled into the nearest chair: "Oh, Ira, what will she think?"

"She can't think!" Ira grumbled. "In a little while she'll know."

"Don't you think we'd better tell everybody before they begin to talk?"

Ira glowed with pride at the thought and murmured with all the ardor of a senile Romeo: "I suppose so, ducky darling. I'll break it—I mean I'll tell it to the men, and you tell the women."

Milady's Mirror

Dry Cleaning the Hair.

Dry cleaning the hair has become so much a part of the toilet that many of its ardent devotees wonder how they ever managed to worry along before the days of the dry shampoo.

This vastly popular substitute for soap and water is the special delight of the woman whose hair is inclined to be damp or to become oily a few days after the wet shampoo. A great many women find weekly shampooing is injurious to their scalp in that it causes the hair to fall out in great quantities. As a rule, no amount of washing will injure either the scalp or the hair any more than it injures the face, providing, of course, that the purest of soap is combined with strictly soft water, the scalp and hair are rinsed thoroughly until not a vestige of the soap remains, and a softening lotion or tonic is applied to the scalp immediately afterward. This tonic has the same effect upon the scalp as an application of a skin food has on the face after a soap and water bath, and is equally as important if the hair is to be kept in good condition.

It is not enough to apply the tonic, but it must be well massaged into the scalp with the tips of the fingers in order that every pore may be nourished and refreshed. Afterward, a good brushing to bring out the sheen of the hair and to distribute its natural oils is essential.

To cleanse the hair thoroughly it should be brushed successively from partings made in all directions on the scalp. Between each stroke, dust and foreign particles, such as flakes of dandruff, should be removed from the brush so as not to communicate them to the next part. If the brush becomes dark and oily, wash it out before proceeding further. It may be necessary to use a clean brush a half dozen times during the stroking, so that if you have more than one brush you can leave one to dry while the other is in use. Draw a comb through the brush each time it is run through the hair, afterward wiping the comb clean with a towel.

The Beauty of Clean Teeth.

Not only is it necessary to strive constantly to preserve the natural beauty of the teeth, but it is equally important to increase their whiteness and general appearance by e[illegible]medy or aid science and stud[illegible] dentistry are able to discover.

For keeping the teeth in good condition chewing dry toast, hard bread or crackers is recommended. Coarse foods tend to give a stability to the "grinders" which keeps them from early decay. For the purpose of dislodging particles of food, removing deposits and other substances a good toothbrush is indispensable. The brush with medium soft bristles is best, for the reason that unyielding bristles injure and inflame the gums, causing them to shrink and recede.

In stroking do not make the mistake of drawing the brush across the teeth without alternating this action with a careful up and down stroke. Drawing the brush up and down removes particles of food that lodge tightly in crevices between the teeth.

Cover the gums as well as the teeth during this cleaning process. Gentle stroking is best for the gums. If they bleed rinse them thoroughly with a healing mouth wash, so they will gradually become invigorated and hardened, thus aiding in the fight against decaying teeth.

One of the most universally popular ingredients in dentrifices is powdered chalk. It is inexpensive, harmless and effective, its chief value being the neutralizing of acids in the mouth.

Among the simple remedies always at hand none can be recommended more highly than common salt. A strong solution of salt water is a beneficial mouth wash, and dry salt placed on the toothbrush cleanses the teeth.

Borax is useful in that it tends to remove unpleasant odors from the breath. Dissolve two to four ounces of borax in a pint of hot water and add a half teaspoonful of tincture of myrrh or spirits of camphor.

To Remove Moth Patches.

To remove moth patches from the skin apply a solution of common baking soda to the patches with a soft cloth or camel's hair brush, says a writer. Repeat the process several times a day for three days. Allow the soda to dry on, then cleanse the skin of the face with a bran bath. Repeat the treatment if necessary.

Sunshine is the best possible disinfectant. The rays of the sun penetrate and disintegrate organic substances. Let it flood all the rooms of the house whenever it is possible. Lay the bedding in its direct rays for an hour every bright morning, and there will be a delightfully fresh, sweet smell to the linen. Open all closets frequently and let the sun warmed air circulate through them. Dark corners that have a stuffy odor are dangerous to the health of the household.

Skin Food.

To keep the skin from becoming loose and baggy, resulting in wrinkles and "crow's feet," boil three ounces of pearl barley in a pint of water until the gluten is extracted. Strain and add tincture of benzoin, twenty-five drops being the correct amount.

The bones of the average man weigh 14 pounds.

MAYBE PLANTS CAN WINK

A Learned Botanic Expert Says They All Have Eyes.

After long experimenting and study Professor Gottlieb Haberlandt of the Botanic institute of Gratz, in Styria, declares that plants, the word taken in its widest sense and including trees, can see.

The professor says that he has succeeded through photography and the use of the microscope in reproducing the images reflected on the visual organs of plants. The images included objects at different distances and even persons and houses. Plants may, he says, be classed with the inferior animals in this respect. His observations have been confirmed by Dr. Nuttall and Dr. Harold Wagner.

We are still so ignorant of animal, plant and insect life (because we do not understand their language) that we fancy the plant, like the insect, is not conscious of what it sees, but that is probably a discovery for the future. At present we are forced to accept the theory that they are not conscious.

But that they do see Professor Haberlandt says he has satisfactorily proved. He has found the same minute eye such as belongs to bees and other insects in sycamore leaves, in the sugar maple and in the Peruvian acanthus. The eyes of plants appear different from the eyes of insects in that they have no coloring matter, though this is not yet determined.

The professor is continuing his experiments, and he expects to make further interesting and surprising announcements. He says that the fact that plants and trees have eyes is undoubtedly a proof that all natural life is linked in one long chain.—Chicago Tribune.

Carry Their Own Teacups.

Tea is to be found in every tent and dwelling in Siam. There is always a kettle on the fire filled with tea and prepared for drinking. A peculiar mode of hospitality is shown by these people in reference to their tea. It is always at the disposal of every stranger and traveler. He need not ask for it. Neither is it expected that he should, but he must have his own cup. This is imperative, and accordingly every one carries a cup with him at all times. Some of these utensils are marvels of workmanship and are highly valued. They are generally made of some fine-grained wood and ofttimes are lined with silver and gold.

Riches.

I cannot call riches better than the baggage of virtue. The Roman word is better, "impedimenta," for as the baggage is to the army so is riches to virtue. It cannot be spared or left behind, but it hindreth the march. Yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory. Of great riches there is no great use except it be in the distribution. The rest is but conceit. So saith Solomon: "Where much is there are many to consume it. And what hath the owner but the sight of it with his eyes?"—Bacon.

Insufficient Supply.

The laundress was describing in characteristically tearful tones her sorrow over a frequently recurring domestic upheaval.

"I was that heartbroken," she said, "that I did your week's wash in my tears."

For once the usually sympathetic man's font of sympathy ran dry. He looked at his streaked shirt fronts and collars and said he coldly:

"Mrs. Mullen, I am afraid you took it pretty coolly this time."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured
"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. [illegible] Pills have made me young [illegible] all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."
Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

Women of Muscle.

In the time of Louis XV. there was an actress engaged at the Theatre Francais—Mlle. Gauthier who could break a coin between the fingers of one hand and roll a silver plate into the form of a cup of conical shape. No one could bear the pressure of her hand, and only Maurice de Saxe, one of the strongest men of his time, was able to open her closed hand.

In the same century there lived in England a woman, Miss Bettie Thompson, who could break chains with her hand

Miss Kerra, a young mulatto woman, who appeared in most of the capitals in Europe, was, we believe, the first to perform the feat, while hanging with the bend of her knees in a trapeze, of holding a man at his belt with her teeth and turning him rapidly round with her hands.

A brakeman was speaking of the disagreeable weather. "It's as bad," he said, "as the third band in a circus parade."

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.
Dear Sir,
I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.
Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.
I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I [illegible] what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?
The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.
However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.
I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

POLICE HAVE NO POWER

To Prohibit Bill Posting on Poles on George Street

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir.—Is there a city ordinance or by-law against posting cards and bills on the unsightly telegraph or telephone poles on the streets? The poles on the busy part of George Street are daily used as "Bill boards."

If there is a law against this eye sore, the police should be prodded into action; if there is not the City Council should at once take steps to stop the nuisance by passing a by-law prohibiting it.

Yours for a beautiful city,
"Civic Improvement."

There is no by-law governing the act complained of, but the companies owning the poles could prosecute.

About one year ago Police Chief Thompson urged the Council to discuss this question but no action was taken.

GOOD MEETINGS AT KNOX CHURCH

Toronto Speakers and Male Choir Had Charge

Interesting meetings were held in Knox Church yesterday, when J. C. McCrea and E. A. Breckenridge, of Toronto, took the services.

Mr McCrea for the morning subject took "Jesus, the Light of the World."

Both speakers addressed a meeting for men in the afternoon. Mr. Breckenridge's subject was "World Conquerors."

At the evening service, which was preceded by a song service by the male choir, the subject was "The Four Brotherhood Men."

The choir, composed of about forty male voices, lead the singing.

CARS OFF TRACK

Mishap to G. T. R. Manifest Near Hastings

Three rear cars and the caboose of the G. T. R. Manifest, in charge of Conductor Garry, of Lindsay, left the rails, two miles east of Hastings about two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The four cars derailed were, two flats, one box and the caboose. The flat cars, loaded with steel, were too heavy for the rails, and acted as a whip lash when the train went the curve at a good speed.

The track was cleared yesterday afternoon.

A MAN OF MANY LETTERS

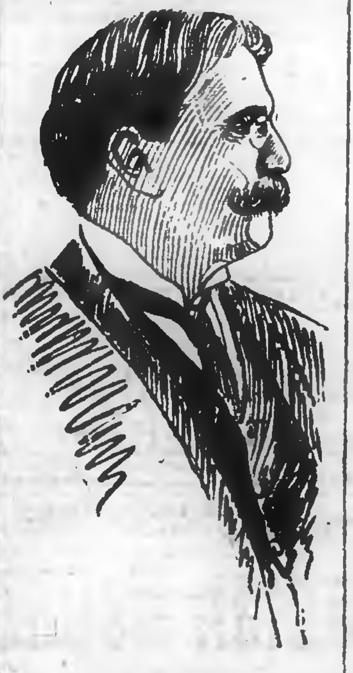
PRINCIPAL PETERSON IS A KEENLY ACTIVE PEDAGOGUE.

The Principal of McGill Has Made Many Changes In His University In the Past Seventeen Years and Has Watched It Grow From Small College to a Great Seat of Modern Learning.

The learned Principal of McGill University reduced to a mere definition is William Peterson, M.A., LL.D., C.M.G. These abbreviations are but a more or less colloquial formula for a scholar who got his B.A. from Edinburgh University, the town he was born in; M.A. from Gottingen—classical and English literature; M.A. from Corpus Christi College, Oxford; LL.D. from more universities than he has fingers and thumbs, including Yale, Harvard, Princton and Toronto; assistant professor of Humanities in Edinburgh University; principal of University College, Dundee, from 1892 to 1895, when he came to McGill; C.M.G. in 1901; a vice-president of the Archaeological Society of America and president of the Montreal Society of Archaeological Research; president Playgrounds Association of Montreal 1902; editor of classical works originally spoken or written by Cicero, Quintilian and Tacitus.

"Let the dead past bury its dead."

The very genial and humanistic Principal of McGill does not, like some other distinguished personages, wear a battery of medals to identify him with the past. He is no museum specimen to be reed by labels. In fact he is a very much alive as well as learned man. Here and there an irreverent collegian calls him "Pete." But that's only colloquial respect. In this country the college president who doesn't get a nickname may be regarded as a dead one.



PRINCIPAL PETERSON.

And Principal Peterson is no cloisterite. He probably knows little about the rocks. When he came to McGill in 1895, the choice of Lord Strathcona, the big university was a very demure and almost monastic pile of mediaeval architecture snuggled under the bulge of the mountain at Sherbrooke street west.

The old college is now but a sort of architectural nexus in a bewildering city of stone structures extending round a classic campus heavy with fine maples and elms. The change from rocks and religion and pure thought to the city of the tunnel through the mountain was all prefigured in that array of buildings. Of course, everybody in Montreal and millions elsewhere in Canada know that the mere extension of thought never made this miraculous change in McGill. Like most other obvious expansions of modern times the transformation of McGill is a matter of money—millions of it! And most of the money came from one man; also a Scotchman and as Scotch as William Jones Peterson; an old white-haired man—whose monument is modern McGill and one of whose best friends is the president. Not long ago another million and a quarter was spent by this same patron of learning on the acquisition of more territory for the further expansion of McGill. A great university is bound to affect, perhaps profoundly—depending on the man—the life and the character of the man at its head. This Scotch president from Dundee is not the same man he was when he came to succeed Sir William Dawson at McGill. Like many another Scotchman in Canada he has learned that the new world outside of the United States has a new way of thinking for the man who keeps up with the times. And although it used to be the fashion for university men to live in the past, it is the necessity now for the acute academic intellect to live very much in the present and the future. In Canada, thanks to the publicity achieved by the late Goldwin Smith, the college professor has had a much better incentive to study public problems and to get his name into the newspapers than he ever would have got in England.—Augustus Bridle in Canadian Courier.

The Last of the Kaisers.

"All the world will be republican within fifty years. Germany will be the last of the empires. It is inevitable." These words are attributed to Emperor William of Germany in a recent conversation with Karl von Kroon, the historian. The emperor predicts that his son will be the last of the German emperors.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF SACRED HEART CHURCH

Yesterday was the third anniversary of the Church of the Sacred Heart the services in connection with the day being especially appropriate and largely attended.

The Church of Sacred Heart is forging ahead in a manner most encouraging to the rector and the parishioners. The membership has increased perceptibly since last year, and all the organization affiliated with the church are in a flourishing and progressive condition, and are performing excellent work.

The pulpit was taken by Rev. Father Scully, of the Redemptionsit clergy, Toronto, both morning and evening.

"Every member of the Roman Catholic Church should attend mass as frequently as circumstances permit," was one of the main remarks of Father Scully at the morning service He sought to illustrate the great harm that is engendered by neglecting to participate in mass. The falling away did not commence all at once, but came gradually until the individual had drifted entirely away from the church.

The reverend speaker also glorigfied the relation of the mass to the great sacrifice of Christ upon the Cross. The spirit of the Sacrifice dominated the entire ceremony. The power of the priests to forgive sin through the divine power invested in them by Christ, was also impressed in a powerful and telling manner upon the congregation

At early mass yesterday morning Dr. O'Brien was celebrant, assisted by Father Scully and Father McCauley.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor also referred to the encouraging increase in the parish and the rapid growth and prosperous condition of the various church organizations.

REV. DR. O'BRIEN.

CONFERENCE FOR BOYS AT GALT WAS BIG SUCCESS

Several of the Peterborough delegates to the Boys' Conference at Galt, returned at noon and the remainder will likely return to-night.

The Conference was a big success, the attendance being close to the seven hundred mark. Mr. Nash, Boys' Work Secretary at the Y.M.C.A., gave as his opinion that it was the biggest conference for boys ever held in Ontario. The despatch from Galt says:

Galt, Nov. 24.— The annual Boys' Work Conference, promoted by the Provincial Y.M.C.A., and the Provincial Sunday School Association, closed here to-day. It is doubtful if any gathering has done more for the awakening of the better manhood of those who attend than the mass held this afternoon in Scott's Opera House. The place was crowded, there being nearly 1,500 present, and many were forced to stand. Rev. W. A. Cameron, pastor of Bloor street Baptist Church, Toronto, stirred up the deeper sense of moral responsibility and when he asked those who would take a forward step for cleaner living to stand scarcely one in the vast audience remained seated.

The farewell meeting was held tonight in Ainslie Street Methodist Church, which was crowded to the doors. Short addresses were given by some of the older boys and Prof. Fiske, of Oberlin, Ohio, spoke on "The Investment of Influence."

At the Saturday morning session C. J. Atkinson, of Toronto, offered some criticism of the Y.M.C.A. He declared the association was not working on the platform of giving every boy a chance. The subject of his address was "The Unfortunate Boy." In speaking of "The Call of the Boy," Prof. G. Walter Fiske, of Oberlin College, Ohio, stated that the vice of boy was due to his wish to be a man.

The address of the evening was by Prof. Fiske, on "How to Discover a Boy's Needs and How to Help Him."

CANON DAVIDSON PREACHED BEFORE TORONTO CONGREGATION

Toronto, Nov. 25—Special sermons, yesterday, marked the second to last Sunday of the building campaign the successful culmination of which has been the aim of every parishioner of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Bloor West and Delaware Avenue. The object in view is $65-000 church building, which is to be built on Westmoreland Avenue, and which will be the fifth of the new Anglican churches to be erected in the north end of the city.

Canon Davidson, of Peterborough, delivered two inspiring addresses yesterday, urging the congregation on to further effort and encouraging them in the work they had undertaken telling them that what other churches had done they could do. Banks and business corporations had sufficient confidence in themselves to spend large sums on new buildings, and why should not the Church of God? The canon urged the parishioners of St. Mary the Virgin, to build well, for the house of the Lord was no ordinary building. If the workers had the will they would find a way to accomplish their end.

POLICE OFFICERS MAKE SUNDAY MORNING RAID

Early Sunday morning Police Constables Brown and Bullied interrupted a game of cards being played to money stakes at a Simcoe street barn in which three young men named Innes, Jeffreys and Bothwell were the participators. The police after securing the names and gathering up the stakes, allowed the three men to go. Informations will be laid against each however and on Thursday next they will be charged with playing cards for money, contrary to the Lord's Day Act.

The police planned their invasion perfectly. For some time complaints had been received by Chief of Police Thompson about the practice, and an officer had had the spot under surveillance. About three o'clock Sunday morning P. C. Brown and Bullied walked in on the players noiselessly and without a second's warning. An attempt to conceal their game was without avail and the officers collected three stakes of money of minor amounts, in all about $5.00.

DROWNED WHILE HE WAS DELIROUS

Farmer Fell Into an Open Cistern in the Dark.

Amherstburg, Nov. 26.—While delirous from illness, Charles Blute, a farmer, who lived at the home of his son, Edward Blute, in the township of Malden, fell into an open cistern in the dark of the night and was drowned in two feet of water early Saturday morning.

The son heard the agonizing cry of his father, and, finding his room vacant, searched the premises outside. Half an hour later he found the cistern top off, and by a lantern light discovered the body floating in the water.

DRAWING ROOM AT THE CAPITAL

More Than One Thousand People Made Their Bow to Their Royal Highnesses.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The second Canadian edition of a royal drawing-room held the stage at Ottawa on Saturday night, when over one thousand people made their bow to Their Royal Highnesses and admired the pretty princess seated beside the throne occupied by her parents. All the arrangements were as smooth as those of last year, and there was not nearly so much evidence of stage fright noticed in those presented. People are now getting used to the terrible ordeal of bowing to royalty, and only one woman of the many hundred seemed to completely lose her nerve and stand paralyzed before the throne for an appreciable time. The dresses were much more beautiful than at the previous drawing-room, and the flowers were magnificent, orchids being there in profusion in bouquets of a size undreamed of a few years ago.

There are now institutions in England for training women to become canine nurses and after becoming familiar with the different ailments of the little pets, nurses can command a good salary.

Canadian Northern Would Make Two Proposals.

London, Ont., Nov. 25.—Col. Davidson and Engineer McRae of the Canadian Northern Railway were in the city Saturday and arranged with Mayor Graham to hold a conference with the London & Port Stanley Railway Board this week. They intimated that they would make two proposals, one to buy the L. & P. S. Ry., and the other to lease it, though nothing is known as yet as to the terms or conditions. The offers may be submitted to the ratepayers as an alternative to Hon. Adam Beck's scheme of electrification.

Sir Donald Mann, vice-president of the C.N.R., when asked regarding the negotiations with the London & Port Stanley Railway, said: "I know little or nothing about the scheme, and I only heard this evening regarding the proposals."

IMPRISONMENT FOR HOCKIN

Woman Was Denounced in Court Room as Anarchist.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 25.—Imprisonment of Herbert S. Hockin, one of the chief defendants, in default of an increased bond which was required by the court "because he had deceived everyone," the denouncing by a woman writer in the court-room as an "anarchist," and a denial of knowledge by attorneys for the defence of some of the acts of the defendants, were among sensational incidents at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial Saturday.

Hockin was declared to have been in the employ of detectives soon after The Los Angeles Times' explosion. He was also accused of having told a witness of overhearing J. J. McNamara talk to President Lynch of the International Typographical Union "about an explosion on the Pacific coast."

Miss Mary Field of New York was branded by the district attorney as an "anarchist who ought to be excluded from the courtroom" for certain articles she published concerning the trial in The Union Magazine.

FRASER'S TROUBLES ARE NOW OVER

Midland Octogenarian is no More —His Wife to Fight.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—With the death on Friday afternoon of Michael Fraser, the Midland octogenarian, whose wealth a few years ago was figured at $80,000, the notorious series of court attempts to upset his marriage to Miss Hannah Robertson, his junior by several score years, does not end. Rather, it seems that the young wife will have to still further advance her right of marriage in order to establish her claim upon his estate.

The effort put forth by Fraser's relatives to unmarry the aged man and his young wife has passed several stages of court appeal. The only course now open to the plaintiffs is to carry the case to the Supreme Court and request a new trial. One of the Toronto counsel interested in the case stated Saturday that he believed Mrs. Fraser's troubles are not nearly over yet, and that even in the event of there being no new trial, she will have difficulty in proving Fraser's will when it is filed for probate.

A HAPPY HAND FOR HUSBANDS

In Australian Wilds Scolding Can Be Stopped.

When she begins, crescendo, to tell you what she thinks of you, out of the limitless wealth of her acquaintance with your character during the term of your married life, you know what is coming. You either light a cigar, like a sensible husband and do a marathon; or you sit there, mumchance, until you simply can't stand it any longer, and explode into something which, as she expressly informs you, is more than sufficient ground for divorce, with an alimony that'll put a crimp into any more gallivanting to lunch with handsome blond customers.

Is there no hope? Men, there is. Where all others failed, explorers of the wild of far Australia have brought back joyful news.

A little co-operation, a mere tribal, and you can make a woman hold her tongue until the warmest depth of the warmest place you so loyally keep from wishing her in is frozen over and fit for skating.

Where all men has to do is to say to his wife, in the Warrrramunga—doesn't it sound fine?—language:

"Shut up!"

That's all. He doesn't have to bat her over her oratorical head with a club; he needn't appeal to the sympathetic mother-in-law of reality, who cuted husbands more often than the humorists let us surmise. He simply says, "Shut up!" and she shuts.

Oh, woman in your hours of ease the hardest in the world to please, can you conceive of any land of people under whose sky the priceless privilege of your sex has been abandoned at the behest of that pitiless tyrant man? Yet it is true. Men's eyes have seen this marvelous thing; men's ears have strained in vain to hearken to the protest of the afflicted and the oppressed.

There are two of them, Englishmen, named Baldwin Spencer and F. J. Gillen, and they made a journey across Australia in the doubtful expectation of coming across some discovery or other which would let them lay claim to the immortal fame that goes to persons who beat Marco Polo and Munchausen, and can prove it.

When Messrs. Spencer and Gillen encountered the Warramungas, in Australia's innermost wilds, and found half the women acting as if they were stricken dumb, they suspected they were in the presence of some marvel. They hastened to get the Warramunga population with the goods, by photographing the women, not only in the act of silence, but also in the instant when they were released from their horrible ban. The joyous emancipation came when her husband placed his right hand before her mouth, and, with a peculiar gesture, moved it to show that she was once more free to speak.

Those ignorant savages, in their simple, innocent way, had eliminated the source of a marital misery—is the testimony of the age and the sages & unts—with neatness and despatch. Yet they were merciful withal. Not lightly did they put on the ban. While it was employed for the more exasperating occasions of domestic life in dire extremity, as when Oscar J. Warramunga refused to stand for his Annabelle's kicks on the subject of rabbit for three meals a day, the formal occasion for its enforcement was when death came into the tribe. If four men, one in every class into which the tribe was divided happened to die within a short time, the man put the silence ban on every woman in their district. And not until the formal release was gestured did a single woman in the lot dare utter a syllable.

Thus, in Warramunga, the eternal problem has been solved. Thus, too, is man provided food for thought during that vacuous period of the curtain lecture, when be wishes his wife were somewhere, but remains too thoughtful of her comfort to be specific as the locality he may have in mind. Well after this discovery has been bruited about generally, the women who, while she jaws, is tortured with the doubt that he is wishing she is elsewhere, and feels sure in her own soul that she knows exactly where, can take heart in the thought that it may not be as bad as she surmises. He may only be wishing her in Warramunga.

By the way, the two travelers noticed that, while the women of Warramunga didn't dare open their mouths so long as the ban lasted, they did the finest lot of talking ever seen with their fingers.

A whole lot of 'friendly interest' ought to be spelled curiosity.

THE CRUISE OF THE DAWN

It Resulted Differently From What Might Have Been Expected.

By HAROLD WINSTON

I am the son of a fisherman and was brought up on salt water. I loved it, but was ambitious to break away from so simple a life and make something of myself, if not better, at least more prominent. I was twenty-one when, with $100 in my pocket that I had saved, I went to New York for the purpose of finding a position.

Positions are not to be had in a moment in the metropolis, and the best I could do was to enter my name at the bottom of a list awaiting vacancies. My money was being used up, though I husbanded my resources, and I became discouraged. Every morning I bought a newspaper and looked over the advertisements to see if a young man of my description was wanted. I finally saw one that met my case, but not for business. It was an advertisement for a skipper for a yacht.

I had seen enough of the crowds of a big city. The continual whirl sickened me. The display of wealth side by side with abject misery made me long again for the water, upon which there are no streets, no alleys, no dirt. True, the vehicles on the ocean differ in degree as those on the land. I had been used to nothing better than a fishing boat and was fascinated at the idea of sailing a yacht.

I answered the advertisement, but with no more hope of getting the position than I had of securing any of the clerkships for which I had applied. But I had an advantage in knowing how to sail a boat, while I was entirely ignorant of business. A few days after I mailed my letter I received an invitation to call at a dwelling in the upper part of the city.

I was received, by a woman about thirty-five years old. She repelled me from the moment I met her, looking at me critically, as if sizing me up for something besides my marine qualifications. She asked me to state them, however, and I did so. When I told her I had been born and brought up near Bath, Me., I noticed that she pricked up her ears, and when I added that I knew the coast thereabout from Portland to Mount Desert I saw that I had affected her favorably.

She told me that her uncle, with whom she lived and of whom she had the care, was a very old man and an invalid. He had been failing lately, and his physician had advised his getting out into the open. A yacht had been purchased with a view to taking him on a cruise along the New England coast. It was rather late in the season for yachting and she asked me how long it would be safe and comfortable to remain on the water. I replied that if the vessel was not too small and was capable of being heated it might remain in commission till the first of November. After an interview lasting nearly an hour, during which she surprised me by the large salary she would pay—$250 a month—she dismissed me, saying that when she had decided among those who had applied she would let me know.

One morning when I had about given the matter up I received a note from the lady advising my of my appointment and directing me to get together a crew. I got busy at once, visited the yacht, saw that she needed six men and engaged them. Miss Hurlbert—the lady who engaged me—procured the servants.

We sailed on the day when tourists were returning from their outings—the first of September—and I was directed to coast eastward. The only persons aboard were Miss Hurlbert, Mr. Townsend, the invalid, and the crew and servants. After rounding Nantucket I was directed to steer for Portland, where, on arrival, we put into the harbor and I was directed to go ashore for mail. I brought one letter addressed to Miss Hurlbert, which she tore open at once, and its contents affected her perceptibly. She asked me to go down into the cabin with her where there was no one but ourselves—Mr. Townsend kept his stateroom—and when we were alone she said:

"Captain, are you a fighter?"

Surprised, I replied by inquiring why she asked such a question. Whereupon she told me that her uncle was engaged in a lawsuit in which a fortune was involved. All his property, except his real estate, had been turned into jewels, which were aboard the yacht. The move had been advised by his attorneys on the ground that possession is nine points in the law. She had received a warning from one in her interest that the plaintiff in the suit, a great rascal and a very determined man, had got wind of Mr. Townsend's—or rather Miss Hurlbert's—method of procedure and had fitted out a yacht to follow and take the property by force. Could she depend upon me in the matter?

The affair was not to my liking, and I gave her no immediate reply. She followed up the question by offering me $5,000 for myself and a thousand dollars for each one of the crew in case her expedition were successful, to be paid whether there was fighting to be done or if the scheme could be handled peacefully. I consulted the crew and they agreed that if I thought the matter involved no rascality they would go in under my command. The deal was made with this proviso.

The contract was no sooner made than Miss Hurlbert gave me a roll of bills and directed me to go ashore and buy arms and ammunition. I bought a cutlass, a repeating rifle and a revolver for each of the crew, including myself, and was fortunate enough to pick up a couple of little two pounder barkers, with ammunition for all. Miss Hurlbert was well pleased when she saw the barkers.

When all was completed Miss Hurlbert directed me to weigh anchor and lose ourselves among the many islands that line the coast of Maine. Since there are several hundred of these in Casco bay alone, embracing but a small fraction of the coast, it seemed to me a very good hiding place.

I now saw the principal reason why I had been engaged. It had been Miss Hurlbert's intention from the first to disappear with the valuables among these islands so effectually that, through her attorney, she might make such terms as she desired with the plaintiff in the suit. She had not counted on being followed, but when she found that she would be, being a woman of great determination, she had the nerve to prepare for defense. She flattered me and every member of the crew, treating us all as her equals and constantly sending to the forecastle delicacies from the cabin mess. As for me, she insisted that I should eat at her table, since she would otherwise be obliged to eat alone.

We spent the first two weeks sailing no farther east than Bath that Miss Hurlbert might occasionally run into Portland for letters, but at the end of that time she told me she had been advised that the plaintiff had left Boston, bound east, and she directed me to move on. I asked her if our pursuers had made preparations to fight, and she said she didn't know; she hoped that we should avoid them till the 5th of November had passed. But why she placed stress upon this date she did not tell me.

We heard of a yacht called the Spray, which we suspected to be the one looking for us. Ours was the Dawn. Nearly all yachts but the two had gone out of commission, for by this time it was the 28th of October. On that date we were concealed in a cove in Penobscot bay under trees hanging from a cliff. Had we remained there we would have avoided a meeting with our antagonists. They had tracked us and had sailed past our hiding place when we were pulling out. As soon as we did so she turned about and came for us before the wind.

This was in the morning, and two hours after noon she had outsailed us and was within half a mile of us in open water. Miss Hurlbert came up to me and with as devilish a look as I ever saw on any woman's face asked me if I was ready to keep my contract with her. I wished I was out of it, for I had never felt much faith in the justice of her cause, and I feared to be mixed and mix my crew in a violation of the laws. However, I told her that I would stand by her.

"Well, then," she said, "go about and while doing so give her a broadside from the barkers."

I raised a glass to examine our enemy and was astonished to see on the after deck a woman, who appeared to be giving orders like the captain of a battleship. The peculiarity of the situation amazed me. Here were I and my crew serving under a woman while another was in command of our enemy, and we at least about to engage in an illegal altercation. Nevertheless I obeyed orders, sent a couple of men below to work the guns, and while turning the yacht's nose before the Spray the port gun was fired, and as we swung round the starboard gun followed suit. Neither shot took effect.

Our enemy paid no attention to our messengers, standing right for us.

"To your rifles, men!" shouted Miss Hurlbert.

The men obeyed, though reluctantly, while I stood by, wondering what would happen next. Six rifles were resting on the gunwale of the Dawn, while the Spray was advancing head on. A man stood on the latter yacht's bow holding a paper in one hand, a megaphone in the other. Raising the megaphone, he bellowed:

"You, on that yacht! You're wanted. I'm the sheriff of —— county, Maine."

And holding up the paper he read through the megaphone a warrant for the arrest of Matilda Hurlbert.

That ended the matter for me. I did not propose to resist an arrest, though not knowing whether the warrant and the sheriff were genuine.

"Fire!" cried Miss Hurlbert to the men.

They looked at me for instructions, and I told them to lower their rifles. The look our employer gave me was something frightful.

"There seem to be but a few persons aboard of her," I said, "and we are seven men, well armed. Let us have a parley."

Well, the upshot of the matter was that Miss Hurlbert was no relation to Mr. Townsend, but a nurse who had got control of him and was trying to get him away where she could marry him. His only child, a daughter, was aware of her object and had been endeavoring to thwart her. Miss Hurlbert had been deceiving me as to her playing a legal game. She was simply trying to get her charge into a position where she could tie him up in wedlock. She dare not go ashore for the purpose, for the police in every port had been given orders by Miss Townsend to arrest her if she appeared. She dare not bring a minister aboard, for this would give her design away to me and her crew.

I proved that I and her crew were not aware of her real scheme, and we escaped prosecution. Miss Hurlbert was sent to prison for abduction. Miss Townsend was so happy at her success that she paid us what her enemy had promised us.

SUMMER LOVES.

(Being an autumnal dilemma.)

"Now, who is this young maiden sweet I see advancing up the street with swinging stride and smiling face, the picture of such easy grace?
'Tis Gladys fair,
Maid debonair,
Whom I
Made love to all of last July!

"And who is that beside her, one with locks all golden as the sun, with cherry lips and roguish glance and airy movement of the dance?
'Tis Phyllis dear,
A child of cheer,
With whom
I spooned away last August's gloom!

"And with them walks another dame, a widow with a heart of flame, her dainty weeds as freshly gay as any wild rose on the way!
'Tis dear Babette,
Whose eyes, still wet,
I strove
In June to dry with words of love!

"The three together! Vision rare, yet vision fraught with woe and care! Should they compare their notes, alas, what dreadful things would come to pass!
To save my neck
I'd better trek
And seek
Some easy way to make a sneak!"

ENVOY.

And that is why he turned and fled
And up a darkened alley sped,
The while the dames who saw him flee
Grinned at each other merrily.
—Carlyle Smith in Harper's Weekly.

Her Curiosity.

"Am I the first girl you ever loved?" asked the damsel. This question may lead you to believe that she was a fool, but the sequel might alter your opinion.

"No, darling," confessed our hero bravely. "You are not. But what if I have loved another? Can't you see that it has but prepared me to appreciate the greater and nobler love I have for you?"

"Yes, sweetheart. But in that case how do I know that the love you have for me may not be preparing you to appreciate a greater and nobler one for the next girl? What am I—a halfway house, a junction or a terminal?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Housefurnishing Note.

"My husband," writes Mrs. Pozolle to the Chaperon, "was quite bald when I married him, although otherwise perfectly good. I first washed his head with a cleansing solution and a stiff brush; then I sandpapered it, starting with the rough paper and using each grade down to the finest. After that I rubbed it at intervals with my bare hand for several days, and now it is lovely. It has all the dull rich finish so much admired, and the natural grain shows beautifully."—Kansas City Star.

Her Choice.

Father—Mildred, if you disobey again I will surely spank you.

On father's return home that evening Mildred once more acknowledged that she had again disobeyed.

Father (firmly)—You are going to be spanked. You may choose your own time. When shall it be?

Mildred (five years old, thoughtfully)—Yesterday.—Woman's Home Companion.

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

NEW GUINEA A QUEER PLACE

Besides Cannibals They Have Butterflies as Big as Robins.

A jet black butterfly, valued at $5,000, as big almost as a robin, with wings measuring eleven and a half inches from tip to tip, has been brought to London from New Guinea by A. L. Mock, an explorer in the service of Walter Rothschild, millionaire owner of the famous private museum in Tring park.

Several new varieties of butterflies, by far the largest in the world, were discovered in New Guinea by Mock. "I had to take up from the coast," he says, "cases of pearl shell, tomahawks and beads of all kinds before I could get the assistance of the natives in capturing the butterflies. The natives shoot them with four pronged arrows, which they use for killing birds.

"The female giant butterflies are black or brown or white, but the males are splendidly marked in green or gold. I brought back also with me a butterfly which has a hairy body on account of the intense coldness of the Snow mountains.

"A couple of my native boy hunters were killed and eaten by New Guinea cannibals, who kindly sent me back the bones."

The hairy butterfly described by Mock, now in the Rothschild collection, is almost furry, so thick is its covering, and it has a wonderful appearance. The explorer, who has been twenty-three years in New Guinea, brings back with him also specimens of the famous birds of paradise.—British Press Dispatch.

GARLIC FOR TUBERCULOSIS.

Dr. Minchin of Dublin Declares It Is a Specific.

Ireland, which has the honor of originating the outdoor cure for consumption and all tubercular affections, now comes forward with a direct specific for the disease, a thing which physicians have despaired of finding.

Dr. Minchin of Dublin has discovered that garlic is of great value in treating the dreaded white plague.

He declares that garlic is not only of value after other treatments have failed, but that it is highly efficacious in all cases where the feet, hands and joints have been affected and that amputation has in a number of such cases been avoided by the simple use of garlic. It is also recommended that the patient eat garlic raw at least once a day.

As is perhaps natural, the medical profession has questioned Dr. Minchin's discovery, but further investigations seem to fully confirm his findings.

The scientific name for the active principle of garlic is allyl sulphide, which is a powerful germicide. For this reason people who are in the custom of eating garlic are far less subject to any form of tuberculosis than those who refrain from the odorous vegetable.

The "garlic treatment" is not designed to supplant the outdoor treatment, for the two complement each other. Garlic is the specific for the disease and living out of doors is the treatment.—New York American.

At the Primaries.

It had been a hard day at the polls. The addition of nearly a thousand women's votes to the poll made the counting a prolonged proposition.

"Well, James," said Mrs. Wallicky, as her husband returned from his arduous labors as a teller, "how did the vote go?"

"Nine hundred and two votes for Bildad, 753 for Slathers, eight recipes for tomato ketchup, four wash lists and a milliner's bill," said Wallicky. "It was a mighty interesting vote."—Judge.

SOME SHEEP DOG MARVELS

PRICELESS CANINES COMPETE IN OLD LAND TRIALS.

The Sagacity of the Shepherd's Friend Is Celebrated In Story, But the Feats Performed at Sedbergh Give Him the Palm Among Four-Footed Animals—No Guide But Shouts and Whistles.

It may be considered an open question as to which breed of dog is the most intelligent, but those who understand the daily work of the sheep-dog, and the feats he is capable of performing, guided by a mere whistle or word from his master, are unanimous in the opinion that his sagacity is unequalled. That there is much justification for this assertion those who were present at the recent West Riding sheep dog trials at Sedbergh, or saw the trials some time ago at Tring Park, will probably agree; for on these occasions canine intelligence was seen at its highest level, and the sheep dogs did things which would put many circus dogs to shame.

The trials at Sedbergh were an exceedingly severe test, the dogs having to drive three sheep over a zigzag course marked by red and white posts, through sets of false fences and narrow openings, and at the finish work the sheep through a cunning arrangement of hurdles in the form of a Maltese cross, before bringing them home. Not only were the sheep and dogs strangers to one another, but the course was quite unknown to either, and the dog had nothing to guide him but the whistles and shouts of his master, who was not allowed to move from a certain spot near the judges until close upon the finish of the trial.

In the tests at Sedbergh three sheep were enclosed in a triangular space, formed by three gates or hurdles, hinged at the bottom and fitted with levers, so that at a single pull on the rope from the judges tent, says The Times, the catches of all were lifted and they fell outwardly and simultaneously flat upon the grass. Thus without anyone going near them, the sheep were suddenly set free.

As soon as the hurdles fell the owner of the dog, with a word or motion of his hand or arm, sent his dog to start the sheep from where they stood. They were then taken some 200 yards down the right side of the field and through an 18 foot wide gap in a line of hurdles. Swinging to the left, they were brought round on the near side of a red flag at the bottom of the field, and, still to the left, outside a white flag and up another 200-yard-long straight run home, through another 18-foot opening, marked merely by red double flags on one hand and white double flags on the other.

From here the sheep were driven for fifty yards or so straight towards the judges and spectators to where, close to the place from which the dog had started, stood the Maltese cross, through which the animals were worked first, as it were, from north to south, and then brought round and again put through from east to west.

Once they were over that formidable obstacle, nothing remained but the penning; but the entrance to the pen was only 26 inches wide. The whole course, from the falling of the hurdles at the start to the penning of the sheep at the end, had to be done in eight minutes. That it was a hard and trying course is shown by the fact that only two dogs out of forty-one entries got their sheep home within the time.

And all this time, it must be remembered, the owner of the dog was not allowed to guide it in any way except by word and whistle, his instructions sounding something like this: "Whew! whew! whew!" (meaning, "Steady now! Walk them along easily!"), "Whoo-oo-oo-oo!" low and soothingly ("Gently, gently, or you'll scare them!"), "Whit! whit!" ("Now you can hurry them a bit!"), "Whit-oo!" sharp and suddenly ("Quick! they're breaking!"), "Whee-ee-oo!" as almost in a scream ("After them like mad!"), and so forth; and as the man motioned with his stick, swung his arm, or raised his hand, the dog a mere speck, perhaps at the farther end of the field, turned left or right, went gently on, swung out in a wide circuit, or dropped motionless to the ground.

At Tring Park the trial was for twelve minutes. It was the dog's duty to drive sheep through two sets of false fences, cross the valley, through narrow openings in two more false fences, put the sheep each way through a Maltese cross, and finally pen them. Twelve minutes were allowed for this heavy task, and if a dog did not get his sheep through the first false fence in five minutes he was called off. The shepherd and his dog stood above the course on a hill, and from a signal from the judge three wild sheep from the Welsh mountains were released 600 yards away. The dog saw them and pricked up his ears, but kept as still as a rock until his master made a low, soft whistle. To the onlooker this meant nothing in particular, but it told the dog that he was to run in a wide semicircle to a spot behind the sheep. A second whistle of a different kind made him crouch low in the grass, while a third whistle made him go straight for the sheep and drive them through the opening in one of the false fences. And so the sheep were hurried on to the pen by a series of cries and whistles, each followed by a different action on the part of the dog, in strict obedience to its master. Sometimes the dog was nearly half a mile away, but he always responded to the whistle with electrical quickness.

"It all depends on the dog," said one shepherd from the hills of Westmoreland, when asked how he managed to train the animal to such a pitch. "Some will never learn, but a good one can be taught in about six months. No; I won't take $250 for my dog."

MARY SIMMONS

By T. L. BURBANK

I was the only unmarried man in the settlement and I was powerful lonesome. When evenin' come on each family got under their own roof and sot around the open adobe fireplaces and was comfortable. I didn't have no fireside and if I'd got one I'd had to set by it alone, not havin' any wife or children. Consequences was I was thinkin' o' diggin' out when sumpin happened to keep me.

I was ridin' along a road when I seen a gal on horseback ahead o' me. I caught up with her and said, "Howde," and "It's a fine day," and neighborly things like that. She was good lookin' and cottoned to me to onct, askin' me where I come from, where I was goin' and all that. I tole her I'd come from the settlement and I was goen arter some hosses that wus needed there and I'd bought 'spectin' to make a reasonable profit on 'em.

Waal, we talked a lot, and I got kind a confidential. I told her that I was alone in the world and livin' among married people. She allowed it was kind a lonesome livin' alone. I axed her if that was her fix and she allowed it was. We got thicker and thicker, and at last I up and fired a question at her if she would hitch onter me and set up a home with me.

She said it was kind o' suddent, but wa'n't a bad idee, and she'd think it over. She was livin' with an aunt on a sheep ranch and was goin' there then. If I'd wait a spell she might decide to double up, and if she did I'd hear from her. When we come to the cross roads we separated and I went on and bought my hosses.

Comin' back with a dozen hosses, I brought some men with me, well armed, for hoss thieves was mighty thick thereabouts, and I didn't know what might happen. Sure enough, when we got to the crossroads, lookin' down the road we crossed, we saw a lot o' men gallopin' toward us. But we was too quick for 'em and reached a wood before they could git near us, and in there we had the advantage over 'em, for we could see 'em and they couldn't see us. So we got our hosses away.

The day arter I got back Mary Simmons, the gal I overhauled on the road, come into the settlement and when she found me said she'd been thinkin' o' my proposition and was favorably inclined to it, but it seemed onnatural to make up with a man on such a small acquaintance, and she jist thort that if she could get some sort of a job in the settlement for awhile so's we could do some courtin' it would be all right. I tole her the only thing I knowed there was plenty of washin', and she said she was a good washer and ironer. So I got board for her at Mrs. Finnegan's, she payin' her own board and keepin' independent.

There had been so much hoss stealin' goin' on that we concluded to keep all the hosses in the settlement in one barn when not usin' 'em, and we wouldn't keep 'em in any one barn two nights runnin'. We thort that in that way we'd keep the thieves from findin' jist where the hosses was and they wouldn't know where to go to get 'em. But one night they run in on us and made straight for the barn where the hosses was. There happened to be only six hosses in the settlement that night, but the thieves got 'em all.

There wasn't no more hosses tooken for ten days, and then we lost another lot, the thieves goin', as before, to the barn they was in. We knowed that they knowed where the hosses was, 'cause none o' the men near any of the other hosses seen or heered anything of 'em. How they'd come to find out where we kep' the stock nobody could imagine. There wasn't nobody in the settlement but owned some stock theirselves, and they wasn't likely to give information to rustlers about 'em.

I, bein' some'at in the hoss fradin' line and havin' lost some hosses, allowed I'd go and get some more. I seen Mary the night afore I went and got her to promise that when I got back she'd marry me. So I went away feelin' better'n I'd felt for a long while.

Waal, I bought my hosses and started back alone with 'em, 'cause I couldn't get no one to come with me. I allowed I'd sleep in the stable with 'em till the stealin' was over and get a bead on one on 'em. When I got near the crossroads I sor a woman there, and when I come near her who should it be but my promised bride. I didn't have time to ask her what she was doin' there when some men rode up from different places, and Mary said to me, motionin' to one on 'em:

"Allow me to introduce my husband."

"And allow me," said the feller, "to relieve you of your hosses."

They tuk the whole lot of 'em, and Mary rode away with 'em too. I didn't keer so much for the stock, but to be treated that away by the woman I expected to marry was like pizen.

Of course it was Mary, in league with the thieves, who got word to 'em just where the animals was kept every night. As I rode on to the settlement bimeby I begun to get mad. When I got there I got up a posse to hunt them rustlers offen the face of the earth. And I kep' my word. We killed all of 'em but Mary, but I made her a widder with my own hand.

A man's ideal of a wife is a combination saint, valet, siren and cook.

This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of these organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years. for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

A Pig In a Poke.

A pig poker is a dealer in pigs—not the large and portly fellow whom you meet now and again at the country market with a cargo of a hundred or more pigs of all ages, shapes and sizes for sale, but a little man who for the most part carries his wares upon his back or occasionally perhaps in a wheelbarrow. A "poke," of course, is a pocket or sack, and a pig poker, therefore, is one who deals in pigs carried round from place to place in a poke. The old proverb anent the foolishness of "buying a pig in a poke" has its origin, of course, in this time honored method of pig purveying.—London Globe.

A man never has to be driven to drink but once; after that he stands there without hitching.

MARKET IMPROVEMENT

The Review is pleased to see that the proposal, by one of the civic fathers, to further restrict buyers in the central market is meeting with opposition from business men and others, and that it is not likely to be carried. The Review believes the removal of all restrictions in regard to the sale and purchase of farm produce and garden truck would be in the best interest of all concerned. However, as the matter has been referred to the Committee of the Council, it will be well considered no doubt and the members will get the information from other good market centres. The letter from Wm. Hill manager of the Hamilton market, which appeared in Saturday's Review, should be read and considered by all who have the interests of the market at heart.

BOARD OF TRADE

It is to be hoped that to-night's meeting of the Board of Trade will be well attended by the business men as well as others, who have financial interests in Peterborough and that a strong deputation will be appointed to go to Ottawa, in regard to hastening the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. Messrs. Burnham, Sexsmith and other members of Parliament from districts interested, will no doubt be pleased to have their efforts with the powers that be, supplemented by leading men from the various ridings.

RESTRICTING MARRIAGE

The Hamilton Herald, London Free Press, Kingston Whig and other Ontario newspapers have been discussing the present method of issuing marriage licenses. The London Free Press holds that the power of issuing of licenses ought to be vested in a judge, with the discretion of granting certificates only on approval. The Herald and Whig both think that the confining of the right to issue licenses to municipal officials would be an improvement on the present system, though the Herald is inclined to believe that municipal authority would not be more strict than are the present issuers.

There are several very broad points that must not be lost sight of in the consideration of any proposal to restrict marriage. There ought, let us say, to be as much facility for marriage as is compatible with general safety and the rights of individuals. The present marriage laws are very generous in that respect. The age qualification is the only restriction when two young people become infatuated with each other and are of legal age, shall the state step in to say that they cannot assume their right relation to each other? Shall the state practically deny them the respectability for which their human feelings naturally crave? Would it be better that illicit relations should follow, or that they should proceed and found a regularly constituted home and family? There may be some people cold-blooded enough, like some of the medical men who want to elevate the race by killing off all whom they think to be unfit, to say that when a man and girl are in love, they must not be married if either has some physical defect, for the protection of posterity. If that man marries or the girl marries, it would then have to be to someone whom they did not care for at all. That position would be intolerable. The idea of restricting marriage ought to be handled very carefully, since it is a regulation of the most sacred of personal liberties—that of the right of men and women to mate as their instincts may dictate. It is very well for older people to argue like the French, that marriage ought to be a matter of business and convenience, and that there are many cases in which it would be better for both parties if it had been prohibited, but the most significent decline in the French birth rate is a plain warning of what loveless marriages may mean to the race. Only those people who esteem themselves a little better than their fellows, mentally or physically, purpose radical limitations upon personal liberty, such as the sterilization of defectives. The present system of issuing licenses has the defects of a free and easy dispensation it must be admitted, but it is questionable if more harm is done by it than would be done by strict limitation upon health or moral grounds.

THE NATIONALISTS DOWN AND OUT

On the order paper of the House of Commons, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux has a question asking about the truth of Armand Lavergne's statement that he was offered a place in the Borden Cabinet, and had much to do with the choice of Hon. Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Nantel. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux also wants to know if Mr. Lavergne's statement that Hon. Mr. Monk had a promise from Mr. Borden that the navy question, emergency and permanent, would be referred to the people was so. It is intimated by the Toronto News, which, in such a matter ought to have very fair knowledge of the real facts of the case, that Lavergne was drawing on his imagination for his facts. It is quite probable that it is so, though when the questions come to be answered there will be opportunity for Mr. Borden to make himself absolutely clear. In the formation of the cabinet, there was undoubtedly some measure of consideration for the Nationalists, on the ground that they had been materially helpful in taking Quebec out of the hands of Laurier, but no more than could be reasonably justified by common sense. Since the Nationalists desired to pose as allies of the Conservatives for the time being, or rather, to side with the Conservatives in opposition to Laurier, was no political object to warrant the Conservatives in going out of their way to dish the Nationalists. When, however, the Nationalists used their peculiar position to try to influence the action of Mr. Borden and his advisers in any particular, they were promptly quelched, and the result is now seen in the complete alienation of Bourassa and Lavergne from the Borden support. They both declare they would rather support Laurier than Borden, and their political death is about due.

It could scarcely have been otherwise. The Borden Government is strongly Imperial. It voices the aims and aspirations of the British section of Canada, as the paramount directing influence in Canadian affairs. Even Sir Wilfrid Laurier has seen that, as Sir Richard said, in his "Reminiscences," that by pursuing the appeal to the French element, the Liberal party lost more in Ontario that it gained in Quebec. Sir Wilfrid is now on record as advising that the French-Canadians speak their mother tongue in the home, in their private relations, but to use English on the streets. He has seen that the appeal to race is a double edged sword. Not only are the French a solidly loyal element but Ontario will not tolerate excessive French leanings. The day of Nationalism is about gone, in so far as it embodies the aims and ideals of Henri Bourassa. Only that brilliant French-Canadian could have made it possible, but not having a true and sound imperial basis, it could not survive long in Canada. There will be no regrets at the disappearance of Bourassa and Lavergne as political forces. They were disruptive, not constructive, if they eventually land anywhere, it will be back with the Liberal party, which with its views as to decentralization of power, its stiff regard for autonomy, its local navy policy, is much less Imperial in time than the new Canada is willing to accept.

The Divining Rod.

The phenomena supposed to be exhibited by the divining rod has now been seriously tested in German Southwest Africa, where, it is said, something like 800 experiments were made with it in search of water, about 80 per cent of these being successful. It has also been used with success in Hanover to indicate the presence or otherwise of veins of salts of potash in the soil.

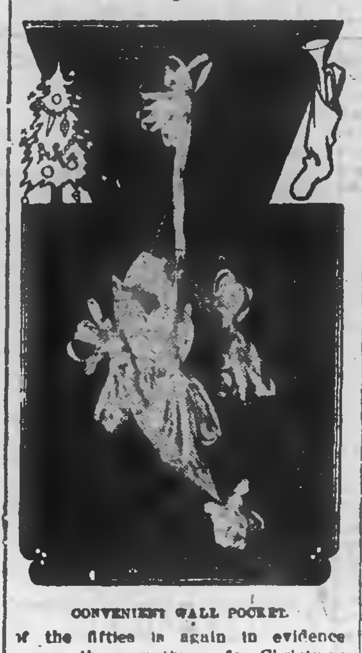
An Old Fashioned Gift Again in Vogue

With the revival of old fashions in the world of dress come the household decorations of several decades ago. The wall pocket that used to adorn the dressing table of the belles of the fifties is again in evidence among the new things for Christmas presents.



CONVENIENT WALL POCKET.

Particularly attractive is the wall pocket designed for hair combings that is shown in the cut, and for an inexpensive little gift it is admirable.

ON THE OLD UTE PASS

Trail, Near Pike's Peak, Marked by Marble Tablets.

The old Ute pass Indian trail, which was found by the first white visitors to the Pike's peak region, is now marked by marble tablets, placed there the other day jointly by the hands of white men and Indians. It is this latter fact, the participation in the ceremony by a band of several score of Ute Indians from the Ignacio reservation, which especially gratifies us.

Now that the period of Indian peril is past we cannot afford not to do justice to the people who had this continent before we came—who made trails through forests and mountain ranges, who left us their stately grave tumult as part of our characteristic scenery and gave names to countries and towns, rivers and mountains innumerable.

They had an honorable history, this race of red men, and, though they were not able to compete successfully with us, they displayed some of the noblest and most splendid qualities of courage and endurance in that unequal struggle. We must give them our respect, and the setting up of these tablets in the old Ute pass is exactly what could be predicted of a race gifted, like ours, with imaginative sympathy for the past.—Chicago Post.

The Lance In Warfare.

The lance has been ridiculed by many military experts on the ground that it is out of date and cumbersome, but the weapon still has its advocates who point out its value in shock tactics and in cavalry charges. In Germany, for instance, the lance in the hands of the Prussian Uhlan remains a formidable weapon. Recently attention has been called to the fact that the lance point often makes too deep a wound for the shaft to be withdrawn quickly, and that, therefore, the lancer runs the risk of having it wrenched from his grasp in the charge. In view of this the cavalry in Germany have been experimenting with a new kind of lance carrying a ball below the base of the lance head. It is said that the new arm is just as effective in disabling an enemy and is free from many disadvantages.—Harper's.

New Copper Alloy.

A new copper alloy which has the hardness of steel and has great tensile strength has been invented by a French metallurgist. Eleven pounds of chromium are melted for one hour with eleven pounds of aluminium, and then 242 pounds of copper are added. The entire charge is kept at fusing temperature for half an hour. Then fifty-five pounds of nickel are added, and the mixture is heated another hour, after which forty-four pounds of zinc are added. The proportions of copper and chromium can be varied, according to the use to which the alloy is to be put, but the order in which the metals are brought to melting temperature, as also the addition of aluminium, must not be changed.

Picking Baby Sponges.

The Union of Sponge Fisheries is trying to reform the wasteful practices of the fishermen of Cuba. According to the Cuba News (Havana), the business done in the first half of the current year was only $50,000, a third of what it should have been. The fishermen attribute this falling off to the big storm of 1910, but the union is taking steps to prove to them that they alone are to blame and that the only way to revive the business is to let the baby sponges alone and wait until they have grown to respectable size.

HEINE NOT YET FORGIVEN

The Poet's Statue at Halle Hidden In a Restaurant Garden.

Heinrich Heine has been dead for nearly sixty years, and at last some admirers of his brilliant genius have obtained from the Prussian government permission to set up a statue to his memory.

The work has been duly carried out, but visitors to the town of Halle on the Saale, not far from Leipzig, will look in vain for the poet's monument in the public streets.

Even now Heine is remembered by official Prussia as the troublesome Radical, whose gift of satire made his presence on German soil highly undesirable, rather than as the Jewish poet whose lyrics rank next to those of Goethe himself for sheer artistic beauty.

Accordingly, authorization for the erection of the statue was granted only on condition that it should not be given undue publicity, and it has been set up and inaugurated with solemn enthusiasm in a restaurant garden.

The author of the "Letters on the Aristocracy Addressed to Count M. von Moltke" has not been forgiven even yet, in spite of the fact that his political writings have long since been eclipsed by the splendor of his poetry. —Westminster Gazette.

Shaky Cathedrals.

Winchester cathedral is not the only structure of its kind to have become endangered in the course of centuries. Italian experts have recently declared that the cathedrals of Como and Milan are in danger of collapse, and that immediate restoration works are necessary if they are to be saved. The main structure of the Milan cathedral dates back to the sixteenth century, but the facade was added by Napoleon, and the hurried manner in which he had the work accomplished has caused it to be unsafe today, many of the marbles being soft and badly set. The upper part is now to be demolished in consequence. It is also the facade of the Como cathedral which is in danger. This has been bulging outward for nearly a century, and a large portion is now out of the perpendicular.—London Chronicle.

SENIOR HOCKEY FOR LOCAL CLUB

Peterboro Will Also be Represented in O. H. A. by Intermediate and Junior Team---Indoor - Training to Commence This Week

Peterborough will be represented in all three series of the O.H.A. and the players will receive indoor training in the gymnasium of the T.A.S.

At a meeting of the Executive, Saturday night, Secretary Glover announced that he had entered the Club in the Junior, Intermediate and Senior series of the Association. He also reported that the Y.M.C.A. asked $100 for the use of that institution by the hockey players.

The Executive did not feel disposed to contract this expense in the face of a three series proposition which means a larger outlay than in the case of one or two teams.

Fred Whatley, Jos. Picard and C. F. Curtis were appointed a committee to interview officers of the T. A. S. with a view to using their gymnasium and baths. As this interview was satisfactory, the players will commence training this week. These privileges are accorded without charge.

$25 FINE FOR WILFUL INJURY BY PLAYERS IN THE N.H.A.

Toronto, Nov. 25—Very little revision was made in the rules of play at the meeting of the National Hockey Association at the King Edward on Saturday. Penalties for fouls were outlined as follows—

WHAT CONSTITUTES A FOUL

A minor foul consists of holding or tripping and loafing off-side when the goal is not in danger.

For minor fouls the player shall be warned once and for every succeeding offence shall be fined $2. The third offence for loafing off-side shall constitute a major foul.

A major foul consists of throwing the stick to prevent a score, tripping an opponent when the latter is attempting to score, cross-checking, charging from behind, kicking and collaring.

For the first offence a fine of $5.00 shall be inflicted. Second offence $10 and banishment for 20 minutes. Third offence, banishment for balance of the game.

DISABLING OR INJURING.

In addition to the foregoing, a match foul is also provided for. A match foul shall be when a player disables or injures an opponent. For the first offence, the penalty shall be $25 and banishment from the ice until the injured player is ready to come back. The second and third offences shall be dealt with as in the case of major fouls.

The referee is given the right to overrule an umpire's decision in the case of a disputed foul.

No megaphone coaching will be allowed on the sidelines.

In order that the spectators shall know just what kind of a foul has been committed, the following signals will be given by the referee—For a minor foul, raising of left hand major foul, right hand; match foul, raising both hands.

SOME CURIOSITIES IN BOOTS AND SHOES

Jewelled Slippers Are Now a Fad Among the Very Rich.

Just now, said a fashionable bootmaker to the writer recently, there is a craze for the curious in shoes and slippers. The ordinary article is now no longer popular with fashionable women, and I have the greatest difficulty in originating something new for my numerous patrons. I have made half-a-dozen pairs of dancing slippers with cut-glass heels, and the effect is extremely pretty. This novel idea originated with a certain young society leader who desired to go to a ball as Cinderella. Her costume was pure white, and she had tulle wings on her shoulders, and the train being divided, one frequently obtained a glimpse of the sparkling heels as she walked or danced. These heels caused a mild sensation, and several of my patrons at once demanded "cut-glass heels" on their slippers. The cost is not excessive, but I cannot believe that they are comfortable to dance in.

Heels studded with gems are by no means uncommon, and not so long ago I received an order for a pair of dancing shoes which were so encrusted with diamonds as to be worth a small fortune. The jewels have to be very carefully set, of course, otherwise they drop out, and are seldom found again.

Some time ago the very simple shoe with a single strap—the same that we associate with children who wear white socks—became fashionable, and in several instances the buttons were formed of single diamonds of many carats in weight. White slippers embroidered in pearls are well-liked, and many a pair I have made which cost two or three hundred pounds. I have one customer whose shoes and slippers cannot be worth less than $15,000.

For many of my customers I make high-heeled shoes which are veritable jewel caskets. The heels are hollow and made with a sliding "lid," which can be opened or closed at the will of the wearer. I made such a pair for a well-known society woman, who wished to smuggle her gems into a foreign country.

These heels are so beautifully made that they defy detection, and there is no chance of their contents being lost, as they are built almost like a safe, and can only be opened by the person who knows the "combination."

We make shoes of every known material. Leather is by no means always employed, and if I told you that I have made slippers of human skin you would probably not believe me. But this is a fact, I can assure you. Hand-painted slippers are very ordinary, though when the work is that of a real artist they sometimes come very expensive. Some women wear very high boots, coming well above the knee. In many instances "high shoes" are fitted with receptacles, in which the fair wearers keep their money, powder puffs, jewelry, and many other little articles dear to the heart of women. As a matter of fact, the purse at the side of these high shoes is much more ordinary than the stocking purse. It is easier to get at and safer. Many a woman, too, carries a miniature but none the less deadly stiletto in her high shoe, though I have never yet heard of any customer of mine who has had cause to use it.

Rough Shaving.

Some time after Auguste Van Biene, the celebrated cellist, settled in London he made the acquaintance of that irrepressible comedian, J. L. Toole. The latter had conceived an extraordinary craze for distributing safety razors broadcast among his friends and promptly begged Van Biene's acceptance of one.

The distinguished actor-musician acknowledged the gift with thanks, but when he next met Toole the lacerated condition of his chin afforded ample proof that the razor was hardly as safe as might have been expected. Toole asked to see the razor and at once burst into a roar of laughter.

"Dear me!" he gasped. "And you actually tried to shave yourself with that? Why, I've forgotten to send you the blades!"

Remarkable Underground Canal.

There is a remarkable underground canal between Worsley and St. Helens in the north of England. It is 16 miles long from end to end. In Lancashire the coal mines are very extensive; in fact, there are so many that half the country is undermined. Many years ago the Duke of Bridgewater's managers thought they could save money by transporting the coal underground instead of on the surface. The canal was constructed and the mines connected and drained at the same time. Ordinary canal boats are used, but the power is furnished by men. On the roof of the tunnel arch are crosspieces and the men do the work of propulsion by lying on their backs on the coal and pushing with their feet against the crossbars on the roof.

Asafetida.

The plant from which asafetida is produced is a native of Persia, Afghanistan and northern India. In all these countries the inhabitants use it as a seasoning for their meats and vegetables, much as red pepper is employed by the natives of Mexico and South American states. The odor is not deemed by them in the least offensive.

Suez Traffic.

Of the 233,978 persons passing through the Suez Canal last year those classified as military totaled 76,854, while the civilians numbered 128,171 and the pilgrims, emigrants and convicts 28,953.

HER HALLOWEEN

By F. A. MITCHEL

Ethel Auchincloss was seventeen years old, an age when girls are fond of fancying what the man whom they shall marry will be like. On Halloween shortly before dark she emerged from her father's farmhouse with a view to going to the river near by to put in operation a little plan of her own to find out something about her future husband. She had some wooden dishes, some tapers and a box of matches.

Ethel knew all the young men in her neighborhood, and it seemed probable that if she married she would be chosen by one of them, for no one else ever came to that region. She did not expect to look into a mirror and see reflected there over her shoulder the face of a stranger. She only hoped to know which of three young men of her acquaintance would ask her to marry him. She had no reason to suppose that any of them would ask her, but in case any one did she wished to know which it was to be.

A new moon stood in the west which she took pains to see—it being the first time—over her right shoulder. In her time these little superstitions counted for more than they do in this realistic age, and she felt quite sure that if she saw the moon over her left shoulder she wouldn't have any luck during the month. Having seen it aright, she passed on over a field, then through a wood and stood on the margin of the river.

Now, it happened that Philip Brooks, a student in a college situated across the state line and distant an hour's journey on a train, had been caught a few weeks before hazing freshmen and was rusticating at a little town on the river a few miles above where Farmer Auchincloss lived. The sophomore had been studying on this very afternoon and shortly before Ethel had emerged from her home had pulled down the stream in his wherry for exercise and recreation in the gloaming.

The first thing Paul knew he saw a lighted taper passing him. Surprised, he ceased rowing and eyed it, wondering what it meant. He turned his face upstream and saw another lighted taper a dozen yards ahead and another still farther up the river. Then it suddenly occurred to him that it must be Halloween and some girl was trying to find out which of three young men she would marry.

Giving a few back strokes, he dropped down beside the taper that had floated farthest and blew it out, then, not desiring a rival for the unknown maid's favor, picked up the second and the third taper and blew them out at a breath. Then he pulled cautiously on upstream with muffled rowlocks.

Ethel, standing on the brink, saw the first taper go out and remarked to herself, "It isn't Fred." When she saw the two remaining tapers go out at once she exclaimed: "It isn't any of them. I'm to be an old maid." When about to return to her home she glanced up to the sky and saw the new moon just passing out of sight in the west. She appealed to it in the following words that have been familiar to lads and lassies for many years:

"New moon, true moon, tell unto me
Who my true lover shall be;
The color of his eyes, the color of his hair,
The color of the coat that he shall wear
The day he marries me."

Not dreaming that any one was near to hear her, she spoke the words in a tone loud enough to be readily heard in the surrounding stillness. What was her surprise to hear a voice coming from out in the river:

"New moon, true moon, tell unto me
Who my true love shall be;
The color of her eyes, the color of her hair,
The color of the dress that she shall wear
The night she marries me."

Ethel stood mute till she heard the sound of oars, and in another moment the dark form of a man sitting in a narrow boat appeared. The boat grated on the pebbles at her feet, and the man stepped on shore and said impressively:

"My future bride, I greet you."

It was not so dark, the two being close together, but what they could distinguish each other. There is no greater aid to the imagination than a gloaming, and each pictured the other inordinately beautiful. It may be said truthfully that Ethel was fair, and Phil, if he was not good, was at least good looking. He was not lacking in audacity, and, stealing an arm around Ethel's waist, he earnestly imprinted a kiss upon her lips.

No one could ever find out how Ethel Auchincloss met the young collegian, who from Halloween was a frequent visitor at her home. His visits extended over a period of three years, when he was graduated and entered his father's counting room. Then he came to the country and took the farmer's daughter home with him. It would be useless for her husband to try to convince her that the moon had nothing to do with their union, for she maintains stoutly that the moon heard her petition and arranged the whole affair.

When the average man does make an honest confession he makes it in strict confidence to himself.

DARK OUTLOOK.

C. C. Walker, assistant general manager of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, has for cook on his private car an old negro who has been with the Walker family for many years. Recently Mr. Walker was compelled by business to stay in Covington, Ky., for about a month, and he lived in his car in the railroad yards there.

Nelson, the cook, grew homesick for Richmond, and wrote this letter to Mrs Walker:

Impossible.

Pennsylvania Hungry and Jersey Slim were waiting for a southbound freight when a builder drove up with a wagon and offered them $1 apiece if they would help him unload a car of lumber.

The hoboes thought the matter over, and, as $2 meant forty beers, they accepted the offer.

The builder climbed inside the car and pushed out a plank.

The hoboes lifted it up, one at each end, but found that they were face to face. Then they reversed themselves and picked up the plank, only to find that they were back to back. Pennsylvania Hungry twisted his neck and surveyed the situation in disgust. Tossing the plank down, he exclaimed:

"Aw, how can two men carry one plank?"

And when the builder sought his help they were on their way out of the yards.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Brutal Conduct.

"But why are you determined to get a divorce from your husband?"

"Because he is an absolute brute."

"You amaze me. You used to say that he was as gentle as a child."

"Yes, that's what I used to say. But you ought to see him now. Listen! Since the baby began teething nothing would quiet the little darling but being allowed to pull his papa's whiskers. And when he found that out what do you think he did? He went down and had his beard shaved off, that's what! Do you think I'd live with a man who has that sort of disposition?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Danger.

"What's the matter with our campaign?" asked the candidate.

"Well," replied the willing worker, "this scrupulous exactitude about funds is a good thing, but it has its disadvantages. I'm afraid I'm getting to be like a drummer I once knew. His firm kept him so worried about his itemized expense account that he didn't have time to go after business." —Washington Post.

No Misrepresentation.

"What makes you so sleepy today, old man?"

"I was up at 4 this morning."

"Come off! You never got up at 4 in your life."

"I didn't say I got up. I said I was up."—Boston Transcript.

Sportsman—Ah! I remember. But I gave you compensation at the time.

Villager—Yes. As I heard you were going out again today, I thought I would ask you for a little in advance.

BETTER PAY FOR THIRTY THOUSAND ENGINEERS

Washington, Nov. 25.—The thirty thousand locomotive engineers of the eastern railroads have won their fight for an increase in wages. The board of arbitration between the railroads and the engineers in its award does not grant all of the engineers' demands, but establishes minimum wages, which amount to a substantial increase on most of the roads.

The most important features of the award are:

A minimum wage of $4.25 per 100 miles or less for engineers on the passenger service with an overtime rate of fifty cents per hour with an average speed of twenty miles per hour; a minimum of $4.75 for engineers in through freight service per day of 100 miles, or less, with overtime pro rata after ten hours; twenty cents additional per day in local freight service, and $4.10 per day of ten hours or less in switching service. All existing rates higher than these minima are continued in force.

REMOVE THE RESTRICTIONS; ENCOURAGE THE FARMERS

N. C. Cameron, Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, reports that his association is seeking for [illegible] different cities regarding market regulations. Mr. Cameron expresses his own views as follows:—

"The market should be patronized by twice as many farmers as at present, and it is believed by several of the executive that if the time restriction was removed that we would have farmers drive nearly all night to get here to dispose of their product early in the morning, so as to return next day and not lose too much time away from the farm. It is found that this happens at the best markets in the Province, and and no doubt it would work here. Take, for instance, a farmer, he gets his big load of potatoes ready the night before and is early on the market. There he has to sit, possibly selling a bag here and there till 10 o'clock. Then he has to deliver them, and by that time he has not sold half his potatoes, and as a consequence he may have to draw the remainder home. One trip like that is enough for Mr. Farmer, and he is not likely to again patronize our market if he can sell his goods elsewhere.

On a wet day, the farmers don't want to come to market to sit out in the rain waiting till 10 o'clock for the buyers to come on the market and as it is wet the housewife will not come out, so that the farmer has to sit out in the rain. This is a very discouraging state of affairs for the farmer.

"The market in the first place was made for to get as many farmers to come and patronize the city, and making it a stationary place where they could come and easily dispose of their products, and in return purchase their supplies in the city, which is good business for everybody.

"The letter from the clerk of the Hamilton market, which is considered the best and largest in the Province, is self-explanatory."

The letter referred to in Mr. Cameron's letter appeared in the Review on Saturday, and should be read by all persons who take an interest in the produce market.

Men hate a nagging woman at the office, they get enough of that at home and feel they need a change down town.

The Late Mrs. Waterman

The sad intelligence was received by friends here of the sudden death in Saskatoon of a former Peterborough lady, in the person of Mrs. Albert Waterman. The deceased, whose maiden name was S. F. Five years ago the family removed to Saskatoon, where they have since resided.

While in Peterborough, the late Mrs. Waterman was a devoted member of St. Luke's church, and a faithful worker in all branches of church work. Hers was a beautiful life whom to know was to love. WILL YOU JOIN THE ST. NICHOLAS CLUB?

Every Lady in Peterborough is Eligible for Membership

Christmas is just a month away and many children are already wondering what Santa Claus is going to bring them. Some have made up their minds as to what they want, and are already wishing hard. Some, no doubt, will wish in vain, for the reason that older persons know, but little ones not aware of. That the number of children who will be disappointed on Christmas may be reduced to a minimum, the Review suggests the organization of a St. Nicholas Club, which every woman and girl in the city may join by sending her name to the Review office on a post card.

What will the cost be? Just whatever you want it to cost you—nothing more. The Review's St. Nicholas G.r. will send you the name of a little boy or girl who has a wish. You can go and see the little one, and find out his or her hopes or needs to make Christmas happy, and fulfil them according to your purse and the feeling of your heart.

The greatest joy at Christmas comes from giving.

Ladies, send your name and address on a post card now to the Review, or telephone 189.

People always demand more than is coming to them, don't imagine that you will be able to hold out any part of what is fairly due them.

GROCERS WANT FEES ABOLISHED

Will Discuss this Question at the Meeting To-morrow Night

D. H. Kerneghan, chairman of the Grocers' Section of the Peterborough Retail Merchants Association, hopes there will be a good turn out of grocers at the meeting to-morrow night. It is the intuition of the Association to ask the Government to abolish the system of fees, charged for the inspection of weights and measures. If this fees system were abolished it would mean a saving to the grocers here above, of about $150 or more on one inspection. Another important measure is to have a better understanding between manufacturers and wholesalers, as well as many other subjects of importance.

MACDONALD BYE-ELECTION IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Sir Wilfrid Moves a Vote of Censure in Reply to Speech From the Throne and Taunts Mr. Borden With Preparing for an Imaginary War Crisis.

PREMIER SCORES ON EVERY POINT

Ottawa, Nov. [illegible]—The debate upon the address, which began yesterday afternoon, may last for several days. It lost something of interest from the fact that the naval issue is being reserved for another debate, but it has already developed a great deal of partisan bitterness. The alleged misconduct of the Government in the Macdonald and Richelieu bye-elections furnished the basis for attack by the Liberals. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in opening the debate for the Opposition, offered an amendment to the address censuring Ministers of the crown, presumably Messrs. Rogers and Roche, for conniving at nefarious practices in these electoral contests. Hon. Frank Oliver, who followed Mr. Borden last evening, devoted almost his entire speech to the Macdonald bye-election. Mr. Borden had little time to reply before the recess for dinner and spoke almost too briefly.

The address was moved by Mr. Rainville, Conservative M.P. for Chambly-Verchere, who, like the ex-Premier, is eloquent in two languages. He spoke first in French and then in English. W. F. Nickle of Kingston seconded the address in a thoughtful speech, which touched upon the naval question and the highway bill slaughtered by the Senate at the last session. Rather out of the ordinary, but of interest, was his earnest advice to the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Agriculture to get together and evolve a plan by which the penitentiaries of the country could be transformed into farms of demonstration.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier explained that he would not discuss the naval policy of the Government until it was disclosed to Parliament. What that policy was no man knew. "The Lord knows," he continued, amid Liberal applause and laughter, "because He knows the minds of the Ministers. The Ministers do not know their own minds."

He would say, however, that the statement put in the mouth of the Governor-General to the effect that England needed assistance, was in direct opposition to statements made by Mr. Asquith and Mr. Churchill, who had declared over and over again that England feared no enemy. He would deal with the Government's proposals when they came before Parliament, with the evidence to support them.

Sir Wilfrid then criticized the action of the Government in having the railway companies procure special rates from the U. S. Commerce Commission for the transportation of western grain.

Reference was then made to the cut in the cement duty last summer, and complaint was made because the speech from the throne did not promise a redistribution bill. "What sinister design," enquired Sir Wilfrid, "is in the mind of the Government?"

The main portion of the ex-Premier's speech, however, dealt with the Macdonald bye-election. "The Government," he declared, "had connived at practices in Macdonald and Richelieu which would put to shame the most infamous practices of Tammany Hall."

Sir Wilfrid closed by offering an amendment to the address and reply to the speech from the throne, expressing regret that in the Macdonald and Richelieu bye-elections "practices calculated to terrorize and corrupt the electors were connived at by Ministers of the crown, for which they deserved the censure of the House."

Mr. Borden spoke briefly in reply. Referring to Sir Wilfrid's statement that England feared no enemy, the Prime Minister said he would prefer to say that the Empire feared no enemy, and we should all see to it that the Empire was well prepared for all dangers that might ever assail it.

He asked Sir Wilfrid whether he objected to the arrangement made for the speedy transportation of grain, and the latter said that he did not.

"Then we will not waste time upon it," Mr. Borden retorted.

Mr. Borden then intimated that the highway bill would be again passed by the House and advised the Opposition leader to warn the Senate against laying unholy hands upon it.

As to redistribution, Mr. Borden said that it could not become effective before the next general election, and that if redistribution was made by April, 1914, the present Government would have acted as promptly as did the Laurier Government after the census of 1901.

The charges made in his speech by Sir Wilfrid and in the amendment offered by him were characterized by Mr. Borden as baseless, supported only by newspaper gossip and unworthy a man who had been Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. Borden spoke glowingly of Canada's prosperity. No one in this country regretted the defeat of reciprocity. He said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was embarrassed by this issue which he had not the courage to abandon.

Hon. Frank Oliver, in the course of his speech presented affidavits showing that wrongful arrests of Liberal workers had been made just before the Macdonald bye-election. He denounced the Roblin Government for diverting the funds of the province to the [illegible] army of [illegible]

WHY CARNEGIE IS HAPPY MAN

He Has Higher Opinion of Human Race Than Ever.

New York, Nov. [illegible].—"The universe is well," according to a sweeping diagnosis of affairs which Andrew Carnegie made in a genial philosophical mood on his 77th birthday yesterday. He said that anyone who believed the country was going "to the bow-wows" was sadly mistaken. "We pick out our own kings," he said, in comment upon the elections, "and we always pick good ones."

"Do you know the reason I am so happy?" he asked. "It's because I have a higher opinion of the human race than ever and this higher opinion is caused by knowing many men and women. Woman has attained an almost angelic height."

Mr. Carnegie spent the day quietly at his Fifth avenue home, receiving many congratulations from friends who called or sent telegrams.

SPEAKERS AT BIG BOARD OF TRADE MEETING URGE THAT TRENT CANAL BE COMPLETED

Committee Appointed to Work Out Details for Sending Deputation to Ottawa.

The Board of Trade had by far one of the best meetings of the year last night. The appeal for a large attendance met with a most gratifying response, and the Council Chamber was filled to capacity. President Vincent Eastwood was in the chair.

The meeting was called mainly to discuss what steps could be taken to urge upon the Government the speedy completion of the Trent Canal, especially at the northern end. The members unanimously favored the idea of sending a deputation to Ottawa, composed of representatives and interested parties from all the constituencies along the canal, where the question could be laid before the Minister of Railways and Canals. Growing out of the suggestion, the following motion carried, with the assent of all present.

"That a committee, composed of President Vincent Eastwood, T. H. G. Denne, C. H. Pennefather, S. [illegible] Armstrong, and J. J. Turner, jr., work out the details necessary for the sending of a deputation to Ottawa, composed of representatives of interested constituencies on the route of the Trent Canal, to urge upon the Government the speedy completion of the waterway."

President Vincent Eastwood told the gathering that the Board had received word from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., intimating his hearty approval of a deputation and stating that such was the general desire of all interested constituencies and municipalities [illegible] Canal line. The member for West Peterborough had said that he knew positively of the Department's sympathy and interest in the matter, but that a certain amount of opposition was being encountered from various quarters.

Mr. J. R. Stratton was the first one in the gathering to express himself. He could not perceive any reason why the present government failed to take more active steps in letting the contracts for the completion of the northern route. The Georgian Bay and Welland Canal enterprises were being impressed upon and receiving the attention of the Government, and it was equally important that they should do something definite with regard to the Trent Canal.

DOUBLE THEIR PLANT

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Stratton said that he had been in conversation with a leading gentleman of the Quaker Oats Company, and they had been discussing the growth of manufacturing and the growth of Peterborough. The gentleman had informed him that he knew for a positive fact if the Trent Canal was completed, or could be completed shortly, that the Quaker Oats Company would have no hesitation about doubling its capacity here.

Mr. Stratton therefore proffered the suggestion that the Board of Trade communicate with constituencies along the canal, to ascertain their feeling about the proposal to send a deputation to Ottawa, and discover whether they felt it a desirable move. Mr. Stratton, at the time, was unaware that Mr. Burnham had expressed his approval of the deputation idea, and on learning that such was the case, he also put himself on record as endorsing

WOMEN NOT CRYING NEED

Canada Not Hard up For Women Says Harcourt

London, Nov. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Col. Yates, calling attention to the decision of the Canadian Government to establish a women's immigration branch in England, asked if Colonial Secretary Harcourt would consider the question of forming an Imperial emigration board with the overseas representatives, to go thoroughly into the question of women's emigration. The excess of female over male adults in 1911 was nearly a million and a half.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt was not prepared under present circumstances to consider the question of forming such a board. The subject, he said, is under consideration of the Dominion's royal commission. It has not been considered necessary for the British Government to offer any special encouragement to female emigration.

Col. Yates: "Will His Majesty's Government take no steps whatever?"

Hon. Mr. Harcourt: "I don't think there is any necessity for female emigration to Canada and other parts of the dominions has been greater in the last twelve months than at any previous period."

In the House of Commons last night Hayes Fisher proposed an amendment to clause 15 of the home rule bill, providing that the Irish Parliament should not be allowed to interfere with any Imperial taxes under the bill. He contended that the Irish Parliament could vary the income tax to any extent.

The amendment was rejected by 145 to 117.

COMMISSION OF FIVE TO INVESTIGATE CHARGES

Canadian Press Despatch.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 26.—The Saskatchewan government has appointed three Liberal and two Conservative members, Messrs. Bole, MacNeil and Meges and Tate and Bradshaw, a commission to investigate charges made by Hon. The commission will report to the assembly from time to time.

PEACE OF EUROPE SAID TO HANG BY SLENDER THREAD

The Effort Made by European Governments to Deny That Warlike Preparations Are Under Way is Taken as an Ominous Sign—Servia's Refusal to Negotiate With Austria Complicates Situation.

London, Nov. 26.—The extreme anxiety manifested by all the European Governments to deny the reports of warlike preparations and to represent the political situation as peaceful and satisfactory is in itself an indication of on how slender a thread the issues of peace and war in Europe now hang.

The danger arises not alone from the conflicting interests of Austria, Servia and other powers, but from the possibility that Turkey, following the traditional policy of profiting by the embroilment of the great powers, may adopt an irreconcilable attitude in the peace negotiations.

Beyond the fact that the plenipotentiaries met yesterday, nothing is yet known—even whether an armistice has been arranged. There appears to be a suspension of operations at Tchatalja, apparently by tacit consent rather than by formal government.

"The semi-official Bulgarian newspaper, The Mir, in an editorial, voices the Governmental irritation at Turkey's dilatory methods of negotiation, and accuses the Porte of deliberately nominating delegates from remote points in order to gain time. This probably refers to Osman Kizami Pasha, the ambassador to Germany, who only arrived at Constantinople from Berlin yesterday.

In the diplomatic field the most important reports are that Servia declines to reply to the Austrian demands until the war is concluded, and that Germany has not undertaken to mediate between Austria and Russia. The news that Servia is throwing further obstacles in the way of the Austrian representative in search of Prochaska, the Austrian consul at Prisrend, is another disquieting feature.

Fighting continues around Adrianople, where the besieging forces are reported to have drawn their investing circle to within two-thirds of a mile of the town.

No further operations have taken place on the Tchatalja lines, says The Morning Post Constantinople correspondent. The Bulgarians are believed to have withdrawn considerable of their forces in the direction of Adrianople and the Dardanelles. A vigorous action against the Dardanelles by the Greek and Bulgarian forces is expected unless an armistice is promptly concluded

The Daily News' correspondent in a despatch which evidently evaded the strict censorship, says the cholera is pressing north from Constantinople. Already there are several hundred cases at Mustafa Pasha, and the scourge has entered Bulgaria. The foreign doctors have met to consider what advice could be offered to the Government respecting precautions against the spread of the disease.

The cholera, the correspondent adds, is raging at Adrianople and is spreading among the Servians.

The losses to both Turks and Bulgarians have been enormous, but the demoralization of the main Turkish army has not extended to the garrison at Adrianople, which daily displays desperate gallantry.

BRITISH PAPERS ON NAVAL AID

London, Nov. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Nation contains a wholehearted protest against the "vigorous organized endeavor to induce, incite or compel all parts of the Empire to arm," and says the younger nations of the Empire are thereby drawn into the vices of the old. It incidentally touches Borden for seeking to scare dollars from his countrymen. It proceeds: "If these benevolences were really a spontaneous proceeding from a reasoned colonial policy, we would regard them with unmixed favor; the net result though will be to inspire Germany with new suspicions of our eagerness to increase our naval superiority."

Yesterday's Times insists Britain must never be suspected of saving money for domestic programs by shifting any part of Britain's burden as a European power to the shoulders of the dominion Governments.

FIRE ON THE WATERFRONT

Explosion Results in Huge Loss of Property

Fifteen Men Were Taken to the Hospitals

New York, Nov. 26.—Brooklyn's east river waterfront was the scene late yesterday of the most serious explosion and fire which that section has known for years. Fifteen men were removed to hospitals suffering from burns and injuries, from which a number may die, and several persons on the scene at the time were missing last night, but late reports discredited earlier beliefs, that several lives were lost. The area of three blocks was swept and a loss of nearly $1,000,000 caused, despite the fact that the Brooklyn firemen were aided by New York fireboats and apparatus rushed across the bridges from Manhattan.

The fire started with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Union Sulphur Co., in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. Of seventy men at work in the building, a dozen on the main floor were hurled in every direction, suffering terrible burns, bruises and broken bones. A series of four other explosions followed in quick order, and the building was soon enveloped in the weird blue flames of burning sulphur. Workers who had escaped from other floors, some by jumping, sought to fight their way through the billows of sulphur fumes to the rescue of their comrades, and were themselves overcome, but although late last night, half a dozen employes had not been accounted for, it was regarded as doubtful that any had been left in the building.

TWO KILLED IN BAD WRECK

Many Others Hurt in Disaster in the West

Engineer and Firemen Were Scalded to Death

Medicine Hat, Alta., Nov. 26.—The early morning crow train, due in Medicine Hat at 4.30 o'clock, from Kootenay Landing, piled in a heap about 3.30 p.m., at Fitzgerald, a small crossing between Seven Persons and Bull's Head. Two enginemen lost their lives and some 17 people were more or less seriously injured. Two or three of the injured are seriously hurt; one will likely die.

Engineer James Cain, a veteran at the throttle, lay under the firebox of his engine. He suffered a terrible death, as did also his fireman, H. H. Flower. When it struck the switch the engine careened and rolled completely over, the train broke loose and the baggage, express, mail car and coaches left the track and rolled over.

Engineer Cain's head was badly cut, but he evidently died as the result of escaping steam from the broken and twisted engine boiler. When the rescuers found him he was dead.

Fireman Flower of Calgary died like his chief, at his post, and in the same manner, only that there is not a mark of any kind on his body other than the scalds.

Of the eight injured who were taken to the hospital on the arrival here of the rescue train, one, Geo. Dowling, a carpenter of this city, will likely die. He is in a precarious condition. The others are seriously hurt, and it will be a few days before it is known what the outcome will be.

At the C.P.R. offices last evening the following official statement was issued:

"Herewith list of persons killed and injured at wreck of train No. 514 this morning at Fitzgerald:

"J. Cain, engineer, scalded to death.

"H. H. Flower, fireman, scalded to death.

"Injured: William Smith, passenger, Lethbridge, forehead cut; George Dowling, car repairer, Medicine Hat, right leg badly crushed, amputation necessary; William Cross, passenger, Lethbridge, right ear cut, shoulder bruised; George Russell, passenger, Keeler, Sask., hand cut; Henry Hendrickson, passenger, Finland, three scalp wounds; Joseph Wynn, passenger, Central Butte, Sask., abdomen injured, not seriously; Abraham Douglass, passenger, Kipp, Alta., scalp wound, five inches long, left shoulder severely injured; Martin Edwardson, passenger, Seven Persons, right arm broken in two places, right shoulder cut and bruised.

"All the above were taken to the Medicine Hat Hospital and attended to. Those able to do so returned to their homes.

So far the investigation shows that the accident was due to the excessive speed of the train when passing over the west switch at Fitzgerald."

Local Option Fight In Galt.

Galt, Nov. 26.—In Galt the local optionists have entered on a house to house canvass with the object of enlisting votes and influence to sustain the act, which the antis are making a systematic and vigorous effort to have repealed. Galt is said to be looked on as a test case of local option strength, and if the act can be repealed here, the antis will consider fighting chances good elsewhere.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE,

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY H. K. FLY CO.

"All right, dear, I'll obey you," she answered, meekly.

"Obey me!" Ira laughed with boyish swagger. "And you a missionary!"

"Well, I've converted one heathen, anyway," said Anne as she darted down the corridor, followed by Ira, who announced his intention to "go to the baggage car and dig up his old Prince Albert."

In their flight forward they passed the mysterious woman in the stateroom. They were too full of their own mystery to give thought to hers. Mrs. Fosdick went timidly prowling toward the observation car, suspecting everybody to be a spy, as Mallory suspected everybody to be a clergyman in disguise.

As she stole along the corridor past the men's clubroom she saw her husband—her here-and-there husband—wearily counting the telegraph posts and summing them up into miles. She tapped on the glass and signalled to him, then passed on.

He answered with a look, then pretended not to have noticed, and waited a few moments before he rose with an elaborate air of carelessness. He beckoned the porter and said:

"Let me know the moment we enter Utah, will you?"

"Yassah. We'll be comin' along right soon now. We got to pass through the big Aspen tunnel, after that, befo' long, we splounce into old Utah."

"Don't forget," said Fosdick, as he sauntered out. Ashton perked up his ears at the promise of a tunnel and kept his eye on his watch.

Fosdick entered the observation room with a hungry look in his luscious eyes. His now-and-then wife put up a warning finger to indicate Mrs. Whitcomb's presence at the writing desk.

Fosdick's smile froze into a smirk of formality and he tried to chill his tone as if he were speaking to a total stranger.

"Good afternoon."

Mrs. Fosdick answered with equal ice: "Good afternoon. Won't you sit down?"

"Thanks. Very picturesque scenery, isn't it?"

"Isn't it?" Fosdick seated himself, looked about cautiously, noted that Mrs. Whitcomb was apparently absorbed in her letter, then lowered his voice confidentially. His face kept up a strained pretense of indifference, but his whisper was passionate with longing:

"Has my poor little wifey missed her poor old hubby?"

"Oh, so much!" she whispered. "Has poor little hubby missed his poor old wife?"

"Horribly. Was she lonesome in that dismal stateroom all by herself?"

"Oh, so miserable! I can't stand it much longer."

Fosdick's face blazed with good news: "In just a little while we come to the Utah line—then we're safe."

"God bless Utah!"

The rapture died from her face as she caught sight of Dr. Temple, who happened to stroll in and go to the bookshelves, and taking out a book happened to glance near-sightedly her way.

"Be careful of that man, dearie," Mrs. Fosdick hissed out of one side of her mouth. "He's a very strange character."

Her husband was infected with her own terror. He asked, huskily: "What do you think he is?"

"A detective! I'm sure he's watching us. He followed you right in here."

"We'll be very cautious—till we get to Utah."

The old clergyman, a little fuzzy in brain from his debut in beer, continued innocently to confirm the appearance of a detective by drifting aimlessly about. He was looking for his wife, but he kept glancing at the uneasy Fosdicks. He went to the door, opened it, saw Mrs. Wellington finishing a cigar, and retreated precipitately. Seeing Mrs. Temple wandering in the corridor, he motioned her to a chair near the Fosdicks and she sat by his side, wondering at his filmy eyes.

The Fosdicks, glancing uncomfortably at Dr. Temple, rose and selected other chairs further away. Then Roger Ashton sauntered in, his eyes searching for a proper companion through the tunnel.

He saw Mrs. Wellington returning from the platform, just tossing away her cigar and blowing out the last of its grateful vapor.

With an effort at sarcasm, he went to her and offered her one of his own cigars, smiling: "Have another."

She took it, looked it over, and parried his irony with a formula she had heard men use when they hate to refuse a gift-cigar: "Thanks. I'll smoke it after dinner, if you don't mind."

"Oh, I don't mind," he laughed, then bending closer he murmured: "They tell me we are coming to a tunnel, a nice, long, dark, dismal tunnel."

Mrs. Wellington would not take a dare. She felt herself already emancipated from Jimmie. So she answered Ashton's hint with a laughing challenge:

"How nice of the conductor to arrange it."

Ashton smacked his lips over the prospect.

And now the porter, having noted Ashton's impatience to reach the tunnel, thought to curry favor and a quarter by announcing its approach. He bustled in and made straight for Ashton just as the tunnel announced itself with a sudden sweep of gloom, a great increase of the train-noises and a far-off clang of the locomotive bell.

Out of the Egyptian darkness came the unmistakable sounds of osculation in various parts of the room. Doubtless, it was repeated in other parts of the train. There were numerous cooing sounds, too, but nobody spoke except Mrs. Temple, who was heard to murmur:

"Oh, Walter, dear, what makes your breath so funny!".

Next came a little yowl of pain in Mrs. Fosdick's voice, and then daylight flooded the car with a rush, as if time had made an instant leap from midnight to noon. There were interesting disclosures.

Mrs. Temple was caught with her arms round the doctor's neck, and she blushed like a spoony girl. Mrs. Fosdick was trying to disengage her hair from Mr. Fosdick's scarf-pin. Mrs. Whitcomb alone was deserted. Mr. Ashton was gazing devotion at Mrs. Wellington and trying to tell her with his eyes how velvet he had found her cheek.

But she was looking reproachfully at him from a chair, and saying, not without regret:

"I heard everybody kissing everybody, but I was cruelly neglected."

Ashton's eyes widened with unbelief, he heard a snicker at his elbow, and whirled to find the porter rubbing his black velvet cheek and writhing with pent-up laughter.

Mrs. Wellington glanced the same way, and a shriek of understanding burst from her. It sent the porter into a spasm of yah-yahs till he caught Ashton's eyes and saw murder in them. The porter fled to the platform and held the door fast, expecting to be lynched.

But Ashton dashed away in search of concealment and soap.

The porter remained on the platform for some time, planning to leap overboard and take his chances rather than fall into Ashton's hands, but at length, finding himself unpursued, he oozed into the car and, seeing that Ashton had gone, he returned to his duties. He kept a close watch on Ashton, but on soberer thoughts Ashton had decided that the incident would best be consigned to silence and oblivion. But for all the rest of that day he kept rubbing his lips with his handkerchief.

The porter, noting that the train had swept into a granite gorge like an enormously magnified aisle in a made-up sleeping car, recognized the presence of Echo Canyon, and with it the entrance into Utah. He hastened to impart the tidings to Mr. Fosdick and held out his hand as he extended the information.

Fosdick could hardly believe that his twelve-hundred-mile exile was over.

"We're in Utah?" he exclaimed.

"Yassah," and the porter shoved his palm into view. Fosdick filled it with all his loose change, then whirled to his wife and cried:

A CERTAIN SHOT

The aged, wrinkled gamekeeper whistled his dog and scratched his towsled head before turning to the company.

"Yes, sir," said he; "the rummiest master I ever had were old Parson Sharpe. As blind as a bat, he were."

"And did he go shooting?" exclaimed the audience in the village workingmen's club.

"Shooting!" replied the gamekeeper, with a snort of contempt at the question. "Ay, that he did. Yes, he shot reg'lar. When he was in the woods, and anything rose I'd cry, 'Birds, sir!' and then I'd run behind the parson and the dogs 'd run behind me."

"And then?" asked the audience.

"Then the old gent'd blaze away with both bar'ls."

"And did he ever hit anything?"

"Oh, yes! Sometimes it wur a cow or a horse or a pig or a dog. Now and again it wur a man. But he always hit something. He were a certain shot, he were!"—London Answers.

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at these times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—MRS. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. R. No. 3, Murrayville, Ill.

Children's Coats.

The mother who wants to make a stylish and very up to date coat for her little daughter this fall should select either corduroy or velveteen, both of which fabrics will be worn more than ever this winter.

Corduroy was used quite a little last year, but few children's things were developed from it. Now, however, the Paris authorities say that it will be extensively used for both grown people and children's coats and dresses.

One may possibly expect to see corduroy suits for the small boy replace the now favorite middy suits. Many new kinds of corduroys are seen in the various exclusive shops these days, prominent among them being the novelty cords in partridge effects in both narrow and wide wales. The latest colors, too, are shown in these stylish fabrics, red, blue, brown, gray and black being the colors which will be most used for the coats of the little ones.

The simple Russian dresses look very well when developed from this stylish material and are nice for school when it is not cold enough to wear a heavy coat.

Velveteen, too, is lovely for children's coats and looks very well when trimmed with black fox. Especially is this so with blue, black and gray velveteen, while a deep shade of red also looks stylish when trimmed with black fur.

A neat pin striped velveteen is very new and would make up into smart costumes for the girl in her teens. Touches of velvet promise to be very fashionable this winter on children's clothes. Many of the newest frocks show trimmings of velvet or velveteen, which are very attractive and a relief from the two contrasting colors of materials from which little ones' dresses have been fashioned for so long. These cloth combinations will, of course, be seen, but velvet will trim many of the frocks intended for the girl in her teens.

Use Only Pure Soap.

Only pure, uncolored soap should be used in the nursery. The old fashioned white castile soap is probably the best kind. But there are soaps intended for baby which are quite safe.

Proverbs.

One of the party leaves the room, and the remainder agree upon a proverb, the words of which are divided among them. If there are more persons than words let the same words be taken by two or three. But the words must not exceed the number of players, as no one may say two words at once.

The leader, standing near the door, gives the word of command:

"When I drop my handkerchief each one of you must shout his or her word, and you (to the party entering the room) must guess the proverb chosen from the din."

This is a very amusing game, and proverbs should be chosen if possible that are short, so that each word may have a good, long chorus.

If the guesser can name the speaker whose voice or word gave him a clew to the right guess that one must leave the room the next time. If he does not guess correctly he must go out again. If he cannot name any one in particular who led to a correct guess the next one going out must depend upon the good nature of the company.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Coughs, Colds Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only. 50c and $1, at all dealers. 19

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

PILES

Nothing known to Science is better for this painful ailment than Zam-Buk. It reduces inflammation, stops bleeding, ends the agony. Easily applied and cleanly. Why go on suffering? Why not try it? Read the following cures.

Some Proofs of Zam-Buk's Power.

MR. THOMAS J. HOGAN, Champion Clog Dancer of Canada, 59 Chambord Street, Montreal, writes:—

"For some time past I have been troubled with Piles, but this year I suffered so much that I was obliged to cancel a number of engagements. I tried all the so-called remedies that were recommended, but they seemed to do me no good. Having been advised to try Zam-Buk, I purchased a fifty-cent box and after applying it a few times I felt marked relief. I continued with the Zam-Buk treatment and the relief was extended into a permanent cure.

MR. WILLIAM KENTY, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N. S., says:—"I suffered terribly from Piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments but all failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying remedies when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. I procured a supply, and after a very short time Zam-Buk effected what several other ointments and medicines had failed to effect—a complete cure."

Zam-Buk also cures ECZEMA, BLOOD POISON, ULCERS, COLD SORES, CHAPPED HANDS, SCALP SORES, CUTS, BURNS, BRUISES, SCALDS and all SKIN INJURIES and DISEASES. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, post free for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

PURPOSE.

"Better to vow and climb
And never reach the goal,
Than to drift along with time,
An aimless, worthless soul,

Aye, better to vow and fall
Or sow, though the yield be small,
Than to throw away day after day
And never vow at all."

But how easy a thing it is to be diverted from one's purpose. There are so many cross-roads and by-ways leading out from the way of life; so many distractions and allurements tempting to forbidden paths. And every last one of them is strewn with the weather-beaten and sun-bleached skeletons of those who have been induced to enter them.

It is but to play the part of men, then, to gather ourselves together, and to be dominated by one supreme purpose and to make everything else help us towards the realization of purpose.

"Fear not each sudden sound and shock.
'Tis of the wave and not the rock;
'Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale.
In spite of rocks and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea."

For—

"Behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow,
Keeping watch above His own."

PRIVATE NAME OF KING GEORGE

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer—

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which the house, dating from the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine—of the House of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittekind as the founder of the race.

Romance of a Statue.

The statue of Charles I. which now stands in London was sold to a brazier during the commonwealth with the understanding that it should be broken up. The buyer, however, saw a chance to make money and buried it instead. To cover his action he made a large number of bronze knives and forks, which were eagerly bought by both royalists and Puritans as souvenirs. When the monarchy was restored to power the statue was dug up again and bought by the government to be placed in its present position, where it has remained since 1674.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

Twelve are reported killed and more than one hundred injured in an explosion at the plant of the Corn Products Co., in Waukegan, Ill.

Over six inches of snow, driven by a high northeast wind, changing to the west in the latter part of yesterday forenoon, has fallen at Quebec city.

The funeral of the late Sir Edward Clouston, first vice-president of the Bank of Montreal, took place yesterday afternoon after the cremation of the remains.

The steamer Morien, Capt. Burchell, with her crew of sixteen, which left Sydney, N.S., for Louisburg, Nov. 16, bound for Placentia, Nfld., coal laden, is given up for lost.

By the time the crop of 1914 is ready to move, the C.P.R. will have a double-tracked line between Calgary and the lakes, according to a semi-official statement made yesterday.

The steamer Turret Crown has been found disabled at the entrance of the St. Mary's River, Lake Superior, by a tug sent to her assistance. There is a case of smallpox on board.

Stafford Juen was found guilty of shooting Charles Romancy, a delivery boy, on Thanksgiving Day. Judge Carman allowed Juen to go on suspended sentence, and assessed him with costs to the amount of $30.

The Queer Elephant Shrew.

One kind of African mice we seldom see or read about is the little elephant shrew. It is barely four inches long but the trunk and shortened tail combined gives it another four to five inches. The fur, though drab instead of gray, is otherwise like that of a chinchilla, as also are its large and delicate ears, while both in the formation and the manner of using its legs it reminds one of a new species of miniature kangaroo. Again, at times, when in a sitting posture, it looks not unlike a fluffy young chicken which is trying to put out of sight a worm that has proved almost too much for it. Indeed, at all times the elongated and highly sensitive nose or trunk is very much like a dark colored and uneasy worm—that organ, which during wakeful moments is always slightly on the wriggle. It has swift leaping powers. It will tuck up its appendages and, like a ball, roll over and over in a straight line, and, after a meal, which occurs at very short intervals and consists of several mouthfuls only, quite surprises one by standing stock still, apart only from a gentle quivering of the trunk.

C.P.R'S FINE DISPLAY AT N. Y. EXPOSITION

Montreal, Nov. 22. —Yesterday afternoon Mr. Thomas W. Bell, the assistant general advertising agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, returned from New York, where he has been for several days completing the exhibit of the company at the annual American Land and Irrigation Exhibition which is being held in the 71st Regiment Armoury. In conversation with one of our representatives Mr. Bell said this morning that the C.P.R. exhibit was easily considered the finest that had ever been placed in an exposition held in New York. The Natural Resources Department of the C. P. R. had a very massive and complete exhibit of the natural resources of Canada. A display cabinet worked by motor, shows a hundred and fifty-six photographs 2x30 taking the delightful scenery from Liverpool to Hong Kong, China, travelling more than half way round the world and without once leaving the Canadian Pacific Railway's property. Also two very fine models, one of the Field reduction loops and the other of the Banff Hotel and environments which are about five feet square and the largest picture ever made in the world is to be seen at the C.P.R. stand. It comprises of a representation of sixty-seven of the company's seventy-four steamers and is six feet by twelve feet in size. It is lighted in the rear by electricity showing the fleet of the C.P.R. at night. The decorative scheme of the booth is very attractive, the flags of the nations being used wherever the C.P.R. has a port of call. Two exceptionally fine paintings—one of a moose and the other of the world famous Canadian Rockies along the lines of the C.P.R.—the work of Carl Rungius, recognized as the leading animal painter in the United States. Lastly, but by no means least is the natural gas exhibit from the Province of Alberta. The gas is contained in a huge tank and two jets are used to show the power of the illumination.

CATTLE MARKET.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 23 were 2200 cattle, 1975 sheep and lambs, 2250 hogs and 750 calves, while the offerings on this market this morning for sale consisted of 1500 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 1460 hogs and 525 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was large and generally of a medium quality, a steady feeling prevailed in the market and prices showed no important change as compared with a week ago. The weather was stormy, but notwithstanding this fact the gathering of buyers was large. A good trade was done, with a fairly active market. Picked lots of choice steers sold as high as $6.25 and full loads of good cattle brought $5.75 to $5.90 per cwt. Canning stock was fair at prices ranging from $2 to $2.50 and cows $2.40 to $3.15 for bulls per cwt.

There were no further changes in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, but the feeling was strong and prices have an upward tendency on account of the falling off in the receipts and the continued good demand from butchers and packers. Calves were active. The tone of the market for hogs was stronger and prices advanced 25c per cwt. The demand from packers was good and sales of selected lots were made at $9 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

How the Run on the Bank Was Stopped

By EVELYN TISDALE

When I was married I had $50,000 in hard cash and had been assistant cashier in a bank. I concluded to go west to some promising town and open a bank.

There was one bank where I settled, Barton's, that previous to my entering the field had done all the business there was to do. Barton was very much disgruntled at having to give up any of it to me and did all he could covertly to injure me and my credit. He was not liked, being considered a skinflint, and I gradually cut into his business. This gain on my part was partly due to my wife, who made herself very popular with her acquaintances and brought me many valuable accounts.

The town was growing, and there was business for two banks. If I had not occupied the field some one else would have done so. But Barton wanted it all and acted accordingly.

All went well enough till the panic of 1893 came on, when we were all in for hard times. Barton was known to have much more capital than I, but most of those having deposits with me felt friendly to me or to my wife or to both of us, and I was able to keep a pretty steady rein on them. A few drew their accounts and placed them with Barton. This would have been all the detriment to me that would have occurred during the panic had not Barton, through others in his interest, circulated reports that I would not pull through.

One morning when I went to business I found a crowd waiting for the opening of my doors and knew that the blow had fallen. I was in for a run. Calling the employees together, I gave them instructions in practicing the usual delays resorted to by bankers while standing a run. Then at the opening hour the paying teller's window was thrown up—there was no likelihood of the receiving tellers having anything to do—and the struggle commenced.

I had got in some gold the night before by express after banking hours and had kept it at home. I thought it might be advisable to leave it there for awhile, for in case my bank should go by the board I would need something to put me on my feet again. When I went home at noon to dinner I told Lizzie that in case I should send for the money to bring it to me herself, carrying it in such a way that the waiting crowd of depositors would presume that she was bringing me gold.

Two days after this, when most of our ready cash had been paid out and it appeared that we would have to go under, I looked over a list of depositors still unpaid and decided to put in my reserve, hoping with it to weather the storm. So I sent a messenger to Mary to bring it to me.

In due time, looking out the window of my private office, I saw her alight from a cab with the messenger, who came in and said he wished a man to assist in removing treasure. The two went back to the carriage and brought in a sack that it required both of them to carry. I was astounded, for the amount I had at home could easily have been carried by Lizzie. The crowd, seeing the load going into the bank, set up a cheer, and some of them left the line and went away.

The sack was brought into my office. I opened it and found my gold on top of several hundred pounds of nut coal. I threw my arms about Lizzie's neck, praising her inventive genius, then ordered the gold—not the coal—dumped in a heap on the paying teller's desk. Those nearest the window set up another shout, and the paying teller, by my order, began paying out the gold with considerable alacrity. More of those in line went away without waiting to be paid, and I was pleased to see they were those to whom I owed the largest balances. Before the closing hour the line had dwindled to a few persons having merely household accounts. The backbone of the run had been broken.

But Barton in undermining me had destroyed confidence even in himself, and, while I was feeling the tail end of a run, he was in the hottest part of one. Lizzie, who had gone home, returned, passing Barton, and, seeing the crowd, conceived the idea of extending to him the succor she had given me. Continuing on to the bank, she confided her plans to me, and, placing $1,000 in gold on top of the coal, I sent two of our messengers with it to Barton. They were recognized by the crowd in line as our messengers, and the depositors, presuming they came with a loan, went wild with delight. I sent a note by the messengers to Barton suggesting that he pay out the gold as I had done.

I was greatly relieved to see the throng before Barton's gradually dwindle, and when both banks opened the next morning there were no depositors waiting before either.

I, or rather Lizzie, was wiser than Barton, who in destroying confidence in me had undermined himself. By helping him we re-established confidence and gained the name of having pulled him through. At any rate, from that time forward my bank, being supposed to be the stronger, did the bulk of the business.

I take no credit whatever in the matter, that all being due to my wife. Had it not been for her happy thought and her putting it into practice I am quite confident that Barton and I would have gone down together.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL, of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from The Warne Drug Co., Limited, 351 George st., Peterboro, Ont.

UNSIGHTLY POLES

The letter which appeared in last night's paper, protesting against the posting of bills on the telephone and telegraph poles on the main streets was timely. If Police Chief Thompson was correctly reported, that he had asked tthe Council to pass a by-law regarding the matter, and that no action had been taken, that body is to blame for the manner in which the poles on George street are made hideous. Posting of bills on telegraph poles is forbidden in most places, and should be stopped in any city or town that takes any pride in its appearance.

Without endorsing or recommending the bill board form of advertising, the Review believes that all who favor that kind of publicity should do it in the most approved way—use the bill board plant, which is one of the best in the country. While this may appear like a free advertisement for Billposter Stocker, it is not intended as such.

A POLITICAL SENSATION

The election of Sir George W. Ross as the leader of the Liberals in the Senate is one of the sensations of first magnitude in the political world. Sir George is undoubtedly one of the ablest of the Liberal senators, but his election is important especially because he is a strong Imperialist, and opponent of reciprocity. During the last session of Parliament Sir George was ill and did not attend in the red chamber. He returned from the south after the close of the season and not only voiced his opinion on the naval question as then discussed, but definitely expressed disapproval of the action of the Liberal sin the Senate in killing the Bill to give a subsidy to the Ontario Government Railroad and in mutilating the Highways Bill in a manner calculated to make its passage impossible.

The only other rival for the nomination was Senator Bostock, of Kamloops, B.C., who is also strongly Imperial in his sentiment. Either of these leaders would have introduced an element in the Liberal party at Ottawa considerably different to the trend of feeling as regulated under the Laurier regime. But the fact that Sir George Ross openly condemned the reciprocity agreement, and has also been known to have very little use for the Laurier naval policy makes the dissensions in the Liberal ranks over important articles of policy much more apparent. From a political standpoint it is a move in the best interests of the British Liberals. As Sir Richard Cartwright said in his "Reminiscences," while the Laurier policy was calculated to gain strength in Quebec, the Liberals lost strength in Ontario just as rapidly as they progressed in the lower province. It is said that the selection of Sir George Ross was made only after there had been much wire pulling and "hole in the corner" discussion on what the Liberals could do with the Borden naval policy. The plan originally was that the Liberals in the House of Commons should pass the Borden "emergency" proposals with a great hurrah, thus proving themselves to British Canada as quite as loyal to Britain, quite as eager to render aid in an emergency, as the Conservatives. The Liberal senators were to be used to insert amendments unacceptable to the Conservative Government, thus producing a deadlock, and possibly precipitating another election. It was a nice plan, but there has evidently been a very strong protest against any such shabby trickery, and the election of such a strong Imperialist as Sir George Ross is a safeguard against it.

Nugent's
EMULSION
OF COD LIVER OIL

If your little daughter is not so robust and sturdy as you would like to see her give her Nugent's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

This is a fine old standard remedy—a great flesh producer—prescribed for either children or adults who lack flesh or strength. It has been known to arrest the ravages of wasting diseases and is a great help in restoring thin or emaciated convalescents to complete health.

Children who cannot take pure Cod Liver Oil can take Nugent's Emulsion. Large bottle 85c, smaller bottle 45c.

Our customers tell us that Nugent's is better than any other Emulsion they ever used.

Won't you give us an opportunity, the next time you want anything in drugs or medicines, to prove this store's leadership?

NUGENT DRUG Co.
386 George St., Peterborough

Unquestionably there will not be obstruction in the Senate against the Highways Bill, the T. & N. O. Railway Subsidy Bill and other bills that were practically thrown out last session at the instance of the Laurier Senators. It is to be hoped that more sense and reason will prevail. The majority in the House of Commons which passed those bills did so in the carrying out of well known and settled pre-election pledges, and the use of a partisan majority in the Senate not being responsible to the people to defeat the popular will thus expressed, was a misuse of power seldom seen.

SESSIONAL INDEMNITIES

The members of Parliament at Ottawa are going to talk about the high cost of living. They also are going to discuss whether the increase in the cost of living does not warrant an increase in the sessional indemnity from $2,500 to $3,000. For all that many of the members do in the session, they are worth about $300 to the country. However, this is a matter in which the "peepul"—the rulers of this fine, democratic country, the bosses, and not the servants of the legislators, have nothing to say. If the increase goes into effect by common consent at Ottawa, or uncommon consent, there will be nothing more said about it a year from now, and at the next election the $3,000 stipend will be considered the ordinary thing. There is no doubt that salary standards generally, as they apply to the public service of Canada, and of the provinces, are woefully small compared with what is paid in most other countries. But the average member of parliament is not a public official in that sense. Some of them waste more of the country's time, and therefore of its money, than they are worth bag and baggage. If it were possible to have some test system, even the Binet-Simons standards, by which there could be some discrimination between the ones worth while, and the hacks, there would be no objection to giving the increase. What is wanted at Ottawa is a man who will act like W. F. Nickle, of Kingston, acted when there was to be a boost of the Ontario members' salaries.

TAXATION OF LAND

Of special interest to students of municipal taxation matters is the report of Assessment Commissioner Forman, of Toronto. There has been a lot of noise about the necessity of changing the present Ontario system, to exempt in whole or in part improvements, and put the tax on the land. Whether this would have the effect desired, that of stopping land speculation and encouraging the making of improvements, is open to some doubt. Certainly it is unjust that a man who puts a verandah on his house, and makes it look nicer, after a lot of hard work, should be penalized for his taste and progress. His neighbor, who may do nothing, reaps the benefit of the improved appearance of the neighborhood. But to exempt the improvements as a whole is putting an unwarranted burden upon the land. Up to a certain point, the improvements are as much revenue producing as the land. In fact while the land carries the substratum of value, it is the improvements in the cities at least which earn the revenue. Therefore, in a certain proportion it is the improvements that should bear part of the tax. The real basis of complaint is the habit of the assessors in valuing a house, to include minor improvements not of a revenue producing, nor of an intrinsically valuable nature. If a man puts a nice rockery in front of his house, he should not be called upon to pay more taxes. But to say that a man who owns a lot upon which he has erected a two story dwelling shall be called upon to pay as much as the man who has put a sixteen story building upon a similar lot, is really going farther than equity should allow. The value of the property is not by any means equal, and it is the property as a whole, and not one section of it in particular, that ought to be the basis for taxation. There are all kinds of tax faddists in the world these days, and they put forward many strange proposals. It can be said for them that their ulterior object is all right. They wish to make life easier and better for the poor man, to discourage the speculation in land that forces values away up out of the workingman's reach. Their object is laudable, but their means is faulty. If there were partial exemption in favor of land, it would probably meet the needs of the situation for the present, until experience taught the wisdom of the move.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Review is pleased to see that the Examiner has fallen in line in the matter of giving space for advocating improvement in market conditions.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON'S FAMOUS YACHT

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 25— Robert Louis Stevenson's famous schooner-yacht, Casco, weather-beaten, scarred, and mistreated, has been brought to Vancouver to be refitted as a pleasure yacht. The staunch old craft was slated for a season of halibut fishing, but G. Sydney Smith, the well-known Vancouver financier, removed the danger of this sordid chapter in an honored ship's varied career by purchasing her for his own use. The Casco will be thoroughly overhauled in Vancouver, and there will be restored to it, something of the elegance which distinguished it when "R. L. S." wrote many of his South Sea stories in its cabin.

"Treasure Island," is one of the Stevenson tales which was brought to light in the Casco.

It is understood that the Casco will be sailed around the Horn and to Edinburgh for the benefit of numerous admirers of R. L. S., who have often expressed a desire to see the famous ship.

TIE CUTTING PRIVILEGES

In accordance with the tie cutting privileges granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway by its Dominion charter, the company has notified Mr. R. H. MacMillan, Chief Forester of British Columbia that approximately 600,000 ties will be cut in the vicinity of Tete Jaune Cache. Under its agreement the G. T. P. is entitled to take all of these from live wood, but an arrangement has been made whereby 150,000 will be taken from wood fire-killed last year. This is an experiment to test the relative durability of live and fire-killed wood.

The railroad has further agreed to burn all the brush for a distance of 300 feet on either side of the right-of-way.

Now that the regulation breakfast in many families consists of boiled eggs bacon and toast, the members thereof are likely to be very particular that their eggs shall be done "to a turn."

The average cook's idea, however, of the three minute limit is apt to produce an egg that is boiled hard enough to be cut up for a sandwich. Now, all this trouble may be avoided if one of the new egg boilers is used by the mistress herself at table.

THE C. N. R. AND PETERBOROUGH

Question Brought up in Board of Trade Meeting

Do the Canadian Northern Railway Company intend to run a line into the city? Dr. M. A. Morrison asked the Board of Trade last evening if action had been taken towards interesting the Company to build a line to the city.

He was informed by City Clerk, S. R. Armstrong, that some two years ago, a deputation had waited upon Sir William MacKenzie, President of the C. N. R. and asked his consideration of such a step. On that occasion, Sir Willaim was in favor of the idea, although no action was taken. He had been again waited upon this year and his attention drawn to the new industries in Peterborough, and the volume of freight entering and leaving the city.

The only assurance or hope that Sir William had extended was his statement that he was afraid the matter would have to stand over a little while longer.

POLICE COURT

Dinis Daly Visits the New Court Room

Denis Daly, a familiar police court figure, admitted this morning that he had drank a little, but not enough to prevent him walking straight. However, the officer who arrested "Dennie" found him well under the influence of whiskey and using bad language.

Magistrate Dumble was lenient and imposed only a $2 fine with ten days of grace.

It was Daly's first appearance in the new court room.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

SAYS GROCER IS ONLY HUMAN!

To the Editor,—Jas. Sutherland, a grocer, is not only a good citizen, but an upright gentleman, yet only human. He says the farmers pay a few cents and can compete with him and others dealing in farm produce on equal footing, but he forgets the farmer comes to this city owing to its reputed market; the railways provide trains consistent with reaching this market in due time to meet the purchasing citizen, then after disposing of their produce they buy from Mr. Sutherland and merchants in other lines of business, more than their little market produce realizes; therefore if those privileges were not afforded, they would go elesewhere where they are given. Does Mr. Sutherland want Port Hope or Lindsay conditions to prevail here? These towns would give a free market to get our farmers.

COUNTY COUNCIL DISCUSS $3,000 CLAIM OF GOVERNMENT

Writ Has Not Been Issued and Council May Decide to Pay Full Amount of Government's Claim

The County Council met this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, with all the members present save A. E. Tanner, who was in Toronto.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Several communications were read and referred to the various committees.

The Council adjourned at three o'clock, presumably to go into a discussion on a letter from the Department at Ottawa regarding the threatened writ against the county for $3,000 in connection with the construction of the Buckhorn bridge. The Department, through their solicitor, intimated that the writ will not be issued, providing the county agreed to pay the amount which they promised at the time the bridge was commenced.

The Council will resume proceedings at 10 a.m. to-morrow.

OVER ONE HUNDRED CASES OF TUBERCULOSIS IN PETERBORO

That the dreaded white plague has a tenacious foothold in this city is shown by the fact that there are 104 known cases which have been reported to the authorities. There are also many cases which are never reported, people preferring to withhold the fact that their friends are afflicted with the trouble. Eight cases have been reported within the last two weeks alone.

REUNION ASSOCIATION BOOSTS POPULATION BY 28

Twenty-eight people have been brought out from England through the instrumentality of the Imperial Home Reunion Association in the short time it has been in operation in Peterborough. The total expenditures involved in the way of passage money was $750.00. No difficulty has been encountered by the Association in its work and every man who desired to bring his family to this country paid 20 per cent. of the passage money. The facts outlined were given the Board of Trade by Mr. C. H. Pennefather last evening.

Mr. Pennefather stated that at this season of the year there were no particular demands upon the Association and Englishmen prefer to wait until spring before bringing out their families.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., communicated the figures that have been given to Earl Grey in London where they were used by him on a public platform to illustrate the good work of Imperial Reunion Associations.

MASKED MEN GOT $2,000

Held up Gamblers and Made Clean-up in Short Time

Calgary, Nov. 25—Two masked men held up a gambling house on Ninth Avenue, after lining seven men up against the wall at the point of revolvers, and obtained between $1,500 and $2,000. After cutting the telephone wires the bandits made their escape. Up to a late hour to-night the police had not been notified of the hold-up. Fearing prosecution, the gamblers refrained from putting any information in the hands of the police.

The robbery took place within a stone's throw of the Canadian Pacific Railway depot. It was a few minutes after 1 o'clock this morning when the robbers, masked with handkerchiefs, walked boldly into the room and commanded the seven players to hold up their hands. There was no hesitancy about obeying the command. "Red George," Josh Henthorn and Morris Daly three of the visitors to the place and their four companions were promptly lined up with their faces to the wall. George was relieved of $685, Henthorn of $375 and the other player of lesser amounts. No shots were fired. One man attempted to slide his bank roll down his neck, and was rapped on the head with a gun by one of the highwaymen.

The general belief is that the gamblers, who knew of the high play of the place, had something to do with the hold-up.

Perilous Tobagganing.

Two parts novelty and one part danger is the formula that makes many sports attractive. Combine this with the fact that the railroad toboggan is a great labor saving device and one can readily understand why tobogganing down the cog railway which climbs Pike's peak, Colorado, is so fascinating, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. To make a drop of nearly a mile and a half in a distance of nine miles of track, sometimes at a speed of two miles a minute, is the reason why the railway toboggan has come into use, for the employees find it far more exhilarating to slide down the mountain than go on foot.

Living and Wages.

Speaking of the high cost of living, saleswomen's wages have not kept pace, it would seem. An old copy of the Revolution is authority for the statement that in 1868 "a saleswoman in one of our Broadway stores received eight or ten dollars a week." Forty-four years later living has quadrupled, and she is still receiving about the same.—New York Post.

Profitable Farming.

A Blenheim, New Zealand, paper states that a Taranaki dairy farmer who is visiting that town was asked by a resident if the milking industry was really the profitable thing it was said to be. He seemed to be surprised at the question. There was, he said, no doubt whatever as to the profitableness of the dairy farming, and the work was not so laborious as some people supposed. The property in which he was interested comprised 115 acres, and it easily ran 67 cows, 20 or 30 sheep, and four or five horses. The milking of the herd occupied not more than two hours and a half. It was estimated that this year the average return per cow would be at least $65, the milk being supplied to the factory, and in addition large numbers of pigs and calves were turned out.

G.T.P. SECURES MONTREAL BRANCH

Montreal, Nov. 26.—It is officially stated here that the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway's long-talked-of Montreal branch has been solved by an agreement entered into with the North Railway Co. whereby the G.T.P. will secure running rights over that line from Montreal to the Bell River, where the North Railway crosses the Transcontinental 250 miles from here and half way to the James Bay.

The North Railway, which has been subsidized to the extent of $6,400 per mile for the total 500 miles from Montreal to the mouth of the Nottaway, will be put under contract from the Bell River to the bay by the first of the year when the locating party of engineers are expected at the Transcontinental.

R. W. Newman, the naval architect of the North Railway Co., has also prepared plans for two 6,000-ton steamers, carrying each 200,000 bushels of grain and with accommodation for 100 first and 200 second-class passengers. These steamers to ply between Nottaway and Nelson will be named after those two ports.

Gibson's Fate In Jury's Hands.

Goshen, N.Y., Nov. 26.—The fate of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, charged with the murder of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo, last July, was delivered into the jury's hands at 7.30 o'clock last night by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins.

Niobe's Trip Cancelled.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 26.—There is much disappointment aboard the Canadian cruiser Niobe because of orders received from the naval service at Ottawa cancelling the cruiser's departure for England, which had been fixed for Dec. 10.

Prince Victor to Rule Albania?

Paris, Nov. 26.—Reports are current in Bonapartist circles that Prince Victor Napoleon, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, will be named as sovereign of the future State of Albania. It is said that with the support of Austria, Italy has secured the prince's candidacy, and that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria approves it. These reports, however, lack confirmation.

License Reduction In Guelph.

Guelph, Nov. 26.—It is understood that the citizens' league are seriously considering the bringing out of a number of candidates for municipal honors this year. The object, it is hinted, is to secure a council that will reduce the number of hotel licenses in the city.

Guelph Woman Hangs Herself.

Guelph, Nov. 26.—At an early hour yesterday Miss Christina Mackenzie, who resided with her sister, Neannette, at the corner of Queen and New streets, took her own life by hanging. When the body was cut down life was extinct. There will be no inquest.

Lavergne Sues La Patrie.

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Armand Lavergne, who took a prominent part in the recent Hochelaga campaign, has entered action for $10,000 against La Patrie for alleged libelous assertions given publicity by the latter journal in reporting one of the meetings of the contest.

the plan and in favor of arranging the trip to Ottawa.

WATER CONSERVATION

W. H. Denham said he was vitally interested in the operations at the northern part of the canal, but from the stand-point of Peterborough he was also keenly concerned about the southern section. He mentioned the great draw back to Peterborough that exists, owing to the high price of coal for smelting purposes, and considered that the city had practically no chance at present to secure steel industries owing to the high cost of smelting. In regard to the question of a delegation to Ottawa, he had spoken to Mr. Burnham about it. His opinion and that held by Mr. Burnham were somewhat at variance, but the latter had assured him that strong delegations created helpful assistance when the delegation desired to ask help from the Government.

Mr. Denham also thought the matter of water conservation should be given some prominence, and that it should be placed in as strong and favorable a position as possible to the Government. It was a question of immense import to every power user along the canal. Any money spent in water conservation he felt was well spent, and he therefore suggested that the deputation to Ottawa should be comprised of as many users of water power on the Trent Canal as possible.

Mr. Stewart, of the Quaker Oats Company, was vitally interested, and Mr. Denham quoted him as saying that the canal would be a wonderful thing for the city of Peterborough.

CHEAPER WATER RATE.

T. H. G. Denne referred to the high lake rate on their grain, namely, 11 cents on export grain from Georgian Bay to Montreal per bushel. The freight rate was 4 cents per bushel. If the canal were completed it would mean that grain could be moved from Midland to Peterborough by water and that the Quaker Oats Company would be in a position to compete with foreign manufacturers and reduce the present cost by 60 per cent. If the canal were completed they could also acquire shipping vessels of their own, which would assist greatly, seeing that the Company could not own their own railways.

The succeeding speaker was Alderman Duffus, who preluded his remarks by stating that he hoped it was the desire of all the citizens of Peterborough to see the city progressive. Personally he believed that Peterborough was on the verge of another boom, and the Quaker Oats, he thought, was one great boom for the city, and the completion of the canal would be a great boom for the Quaker Oats Company. It was extremely important that the Board of Trade should do everything in their power to continue the progressive forces at work.

"I for one am heartily in favor of a deputation of representatives from one end of the canal to the other, and let us show the Government that we mean business."

R. C. Braund dwelt upon the importance of a thorough waterway, and felt that it would not only benefit the Quaker Oats Company, but the whole community. He referred to the high transportation cost of sugar, which could be reduced measureably by a waterway route into the city.

"By a deputation we can hustle the Government and they can hustle the work on the canal, and that's all we can do," concluded Mr. Braund amid applause.

THERE WOULD BE OPPOSITION.

Dr. Morrison remarked that all Governments are susceptible to the feeling of the people and while the Government might be anxious to complete the canal there would be unquestionably, strong objections raised. These would emanate from members of the House who knew nothing of the usefulness and advantage it would be to the city. To get a deputation together therefore, that would impress the Government by its numbers and earnestness, would involve a large amount of preliminary work. Dr. Morrison favored a scheme whereby a strong committee would start to work and get in touch with every interest that could be reached and have them muster a strong delegation to go to Ottawa. This committee would work out all details in connection with the deputation's visit.

He introduced the resolution previously quoted and named the members whom he thought would be suitable to serve on the committee.

Mr. J. R. Stratton was suggested by the mover, but asked to have his name withdrawn.

FINISHED IN TWO YEARS.

Feeling that it was the desire of the Board to be more informed on the proposed route of the northern end of the canal, the President requested Mr. J. H. McClelland to come forward and enlighten the gathering. In reply Superintendent McClelland stated that his jurisdiction on the Canal extended only as far as Lake Simcoe. His position as far as imparting the information asked was not authoritive. Only the Minister of Railways and Canals was warranted in imparting any such information, and it was not for the speaker to say even if he was aware of the Government's intentions. The only knowledge he possessed of the proposed route, was that the Government had a large number of engineers at work in the northern region, and their report was being awaited at Ottawa.

Mr. McClelland, however, ventured the statement that the new northern route of the Canal looked as if it would be by the Severn River. With regard to the southern portion of the Canal, the Superintendent said that the contracts were all let and the contractors were pushing the work. Whilst the contractors had encountered difficulties in the way of high water, etc., he had every reason to believe that the southern portion would be completed in two years.

BAN JOHNSON HANDS OVER $1,000 AND LIBEL SUIT ENDS

New York, Nov. 23— Ban Johnson president of the American League, has settled the libel suit brought against him, by John M. Ward. The case was on the calendar of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Johnson withdrew his appeal and sent a cheque for $1,000 the full amount of damage awarded in the lower court, to Ward, who thereby received complete vindication.

The suit grew out of Ward's candidacy for the office of president of the National League in December, 1910. Johnson in a public statement declared that he would not stand for Ward's election and would refuse to sit with Ward as a member of the National Baseball Commission.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The announcement that Peterborough is to be represented in the O. H. A. by three teams, Junior, Intermediate and Senior is resultant of some very interesting discussion. Where is the material to come from someone asks.

* * * *

While this would be a hard question for some other cities and towns to answer, the question is a comparative easy one for the Electric City. The work of the City League and other organizations to a great extent gives the solution.

* * * *

Time was when the hockey player, unable to find a berth on a Peterborough O.H.A. team, hied away to the mill ponds and rivers and played the game. Of late years the situation has been different.

* * * *

The Trent Valley League, Junior and Senior City Leagues, Mercantile League, Church League and several other leagues, have been developing players. Some of them went to the semi-finals in the O.H.A. last season.

* * * *

While several of the most promising players have left the city, there are others only too anxious and willing to take the places of the departed, and the net result is that the Hockey Club, having decided to enter three O.H.A. teams, is in a position to do so.

* * * *

Three championships are not looked for. The Hockey Club is only recognizing the work of the players as a whole. There are plenty of seasoned players who have turned out to practice with faster men and in the final choices for the team fell by the way.

* * * *

This season those players unable to catch the senior team, have the opportunity of playing with the Intermediates and if not that seven, then the Juniors, providing, of course, they are eligible. With three teams doing business, experienced players for other leagues will be at a premium, and here is where the other fellow gets his chance.

* * * *

There's plenty of fun to be had in the Trent Valley League, or the Mercantile League, and if a player can make the season's voyage with his features unaltered and complete carcass he need have no fears of jumping into the O.H.A.

HOCKEY PLAYERS ASKED TO MEET

All hockey players who intend to go into training, are asked to meet the executive at the T.A.S. gymnasium to-night, when arrangements will be made so that training can commence immediately.

Spiking the Guns.

The expression "spiking guns" is a survival from the day when all that was necessary to put a gun out of action (provided, of course, that you had access to it) was a large nail or spike and a hammer. You simply drove the nail into the touch-hole at the breech. If the nail was long enough to turn round at the end on the bottom of the bore so much the better. It is just as simple, perhaps simpler, to put a modern gun out of action. All you want is a hammer. The breech block of the modern gun is held closed by screw threads. After the breech block is shut on the shell a turn of two or three inches engages the threads. By knocking a bur on these threads you prevent them engaging. Any attempt to fire the gun without the breech block being perfectly closed would, of course, be of material assistance to the enemy.

Office Lawyers.

"Office practice is what the average lawyer seeks for now," remarked an attorney, "and that is the business that makes the largest returns for the least waste of tissue. More money is made nowadays by keeping clients out of litigation and free from the dangers of the law's delay than by defending them, even successfully, in court. It is safe to say that there are some 6,000 lawyers who are making a very good living in New York from law business that rarely or never takes them into court and that there are a large number of lawyers who from their counsel work and directing great enterprises and corporations, advising and guiding wealthy clients, take in each year princely—yes, even fabulous—amounts."—Lawyers' Diary.

A Well Played Game

By ALFRED W. STOWELL

"Some is continually findin' fault with Providence," said Abner Sleek to the party sitting around the stove in the center of Jones' store. "They don't reckon that the Lord takes care o' his own, no matter whether they're good or bad, honest or tricky, wise or foolish. What 'ud the sharpers do if it wa'n't for the suckers, I'd like to know? Speakin' o' sharpers, the purtiest game I ever knew of was played in Calumet when I lived thar. The feller that played it wa'n't a real sharper neither, and considerin' the circumstances some thort he was justified in the doin' of it.

"Jack Ketcham was his name, and he was as likely a chap as you ever seen. He had fine blue eyes and a pleasin' way with him just calculated to ketch the girls. He wasn't much account—at least at that time. Them girl ketchers never are; they get the girls by their appearance. Well, as I was a-sayin', Jack Ketcham instead o' tyin' up to a girl who was free—and there was plenty o' 'em—had to tackle Amanda Jenkins, who was engaged to an old feller, Simeon Ruggles, a bachelor fifty year old, but wo'th $5,000 if he was wo'th a cent. Amanda's father wanted her to marry Ruggles to git the five thousand, and Amanda allowed she would, but when Ketcham come along she changed her mind and allowed she'd rather marry Ketch. But how could she, seein' that he hadn't nothin' but the clothes on his back? Her father could 'a' set 'im up if he had wanted to, but he wouldn't.

"One day old Jenkins was walkin' along the main street of the town when he seen a young man standin' lookin' at sumpin particular. Jenkins stopped and watched the feller, who kept his eyes in the same direction right along. Bimeby he says to him:

"'What 'r' lookin' at, young man?'

"He had to ax him twicet before he got his attention. Then he started, looked at Jenkins kind o' queer and said:

"'I wouldn't 'a' believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes.'

"'Seen what?'

"'Why, that wooden Indian down there in front o' that cigar store.'

"'What's the matter with him?'

"'He puffs smoke out o' that wooden cigar in his mouth.'

"'Bosh!'

"'Bosh yourself. I seen him doin' it.'

"'When?'

"'Jest now. He'll do it ag'in, I reckon.'

"'See here, young feller, if the fool killer comes along he'll get you shore.'

"'Who're you to talk to me that a-way?' says t'other. 'I reckon I know what I see with my own eyes.'

"'Have you got any money?'

"'No, but I mought git some if I tried right hard.'

"'Well, you go git it and I'll cover it that a wooden Indian don't smoke.'

"'Oh, you wouldn't pay if you lost.'

"'I'll put up the money.'

"'Supposin' I raise sumpin to bet with, where'll I find you?'

"Jenkins gave him his address, and the next mornin' the young man come to him with three $1,000 bills.

"'Phew!' says Jenkins. 'Where did you get 'em?'

"'My grandmother give 'em to me to set up a store with.'

"'And you're fool enough to lose 'em instead o' settin' up the store?'

"'I ain't a-goin' to lose 'em. I seen that wooden Indian smoke, and when a feller onct gits the habit fixed on him he can't stop. He'll be smokin' ag'in. All we have to do is to be thar to see him doin' it.'

"Jenkins was just mean enough to take advantage of the boy, and they called in a man by the name o' Becker, and they put up the money on a bet that the Indian would be seen smokin' within a week by three witnesses besides theirselves.

"One day the youngster rushed into Jenkins' house kind o' wild and hollered:

"'He's smokin'! Come quick before he stops!'

"Jenkins got up and follered the feller who met a man, and then another man, and still another, takin' all three of 'em with him to the corner opposite the cigar store, and the hull lot of 'em stood lookin' at the wooden Indian.

"'What you bring us here fur?' axed one on 'em, turnin' away mad.

"'Jest you wait a minute. I seen him smokin', but he's stopped. He'll be at it'—

"At that moment the Indian commenced blowin' a cloud from his mouth to beat the band. Jenkins looked at him bewildered. Jist then the stakeholder come along, and there was nothin' for it but to turn over Jenkins' $3,000 to the other feller.

"Jenkins went to the cigar store, pull-[illegible] and found a rubber tube leadin' from the mouth into the store and the cigar holler and full o' tobacco. A man inside had done the smokin'. Jenkins made a big fuss and swore he'd have the swindler jugged, but he couldn't, because he'd skipped.

"The next day the stakeholder called on Jenkins and explained that his money would be returned if he'd give his daughter to the winner.

"Then it come out that the winner was Jack Ketcham and Amanda was in the game. Jenkins was so mortified at bein' made a laughin'stock that in order to keep his neighbors' good opinion he gave his daughter the money he had lost for a weddin' present."

We would rather have our faults overlooked than overheard.

Kuntz's ORIGINAL LAGER

It's More Refreshing

"Did you ever notice how much more refreshing Kuntz's Original Lager is than ordinary lagers?" remarked a man to a friend, as they were enjoying a bottle the other day. "Yes," replied his friend, who, by the way, was a physician, "and the reason is because Kuntz's Original Lager is brewed from naturally pure spring water, instead of ordinary or city waters which require to be artificially or chemically purified."

Let your next bottle be Kuntz's Original Lager. See how much more enjoyable and refreshing is this famous spring-water lager. 66

A TWO LEGGED DONKEY.

Or How Pa Merivale Happened to Miss His Train.

"How many children have you, Mrs. Merivale?"

"Three—two boys and a girl—Mr. Borer."

"That's fine. I congratulate you."

"Thank you. You must come out and see them some time. Everybody says they're the dearest little things that ever were. I must tell you what my eldest boy, Harry, said when his father came home late last night."

"Was Mr. Merivale late last night?"

"Late to dinner, I mean. Oh, he was all right! Harry met him at the door and said:

"'Papa, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. We've been waiting more than half an hour for you.'"

"That was very clever."

"Oh, no; it wasn't Harry's remark that was clever, but I thought his father's reply was rather interesting. He bent down and kissed the dear little fellow and said: 'I couldn't help it, dear. I was stopped in the street by a donkey and couldn't get past him in time to catch my train. I've been wondering ever since what Jack could have meant.'"

"Very curious. I met him when he was on his way home last night and stopped and talked to him quite awhile, but he didn't say anything to me about a donkey."—Boston Journal.

Taking No Risks.

The other evening, on the top of a steep and dangerous hill in Lancashire, a reckless cyclist was about to mount his machine when he was accosted by an old man, who said, "Say, measter, art tha goin' to ride doon theer?"

"Yes," responded the cyclist. "Why not?"

"Verry weel," said the old man, "Ah'll trouble thee for two pun ten."

"Two pound ten!" gasped the cyclist. "What for?"

"Them iron railings round ma garden at t' bottom o' t' hill. Them railings cost me two pun ten, an' Ah's just aboot tired of hevin' 'em smashed wi' thick headed bysicklists."

"Who's going to touch your railings?" demanded the cyclist.

"Thoo is," said the villager, "if tha roides doon that hill. Ah used to wait for my brass at t' bottom o' t' hill, but it don't pay. T' last pair o' idiots wot broke their yeds again' them railings deed afore Ah could collect damages, an' Ah'm takin' noa risks noo."

The cyclist decided to walk down after all.—Penny Pictorial.

Mixed Metaphor.

"The worst case of a mixed metphor known," said a teacher of English at the University of Pennsylvania, "was the output of Sir Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, who belonged to a Philadelphia family. Sir Ellis once wrote to the London Times:

"'The concert of the powers in China is a mere delusive screen, agreeable in sound, very tickling to the ignorant ear, calculated to draw the cheers of the groundlings, but which really serves only as a blind to ourselves, as a cover for ministerial inaction, as a sounding board tells our foes of our plans, and as a lever wherewith they are enabled to checkmate our policy.'

"Imagine," ended the instructor—"imagine a screen doing all that!"—Washington Star.

Poor Girl.

"How long have you been married?"

"It will be six months next Thursday."

"And do you still regard your husband as the most wonderful man who ever was born?"

Then the poor girl broke down and sobbed piteously. When she could trust herself to speak again she said:

"No, Charles has disappointed me terribly. I'm af-fraid I have wrecked my in-life. Last night when I asked him to get up and see if there wasn't a burglar in our room he bumped his nose against the edge of the open door, and he said three simply awful swear words just as if they came natural to him."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CONSUMER PAYS THE PIPER WITH PRESENT CONDITIONS

Says Prominent Retailer Who Also Opines That With an Open Market, $100 Would be Spent in Peterboro for Every $10 Now Spent—Consumers Would Benefit

"Have the market open and for every $10 now spent, there would be $100," said one George Street retailer, to-day. He held that with an open market, the prices would be set earlier in the morning; the offering would be greatly increased and the consumer would receive the benefits. At present it was the consumer who was "paying the piper." Prices were paid on the market in excess to those paid in the stores.

Another point was that in the case of fowl, the consumer would have a better choice. As conditions were now, dealers going through the country had their pick, and that left over was brought to market.

PROTECT THE PUBLIC

Asked for an expression of opinion regarding the market, Mr. Robert Fair, said he would not be against changes being made, so long as the rights of the buying public were not encroached upon. He felt that market conditions were generally satisfactory.

Mr. J. Maher, manager of Oak Hall, is pleased at the way The Review has taken hold of the Produce Market improvement question, and hopes the Retail Merchants' Association will lay the matter before the aldermen in a convincing way with a view to removing the restrictions. "It might be well to consider the question of abolishing fees on Wednesday and thus encourage farmers to come to the city twice a week," he said. "We cannot overestimate the benefit to be derived by inducing farmers to come to the city to sell their produce, rather than sell it to buyers or traders who go through the rural districts."

Just when the people will reform, after centuries of earnest appeal, I don't know, and I don't care much. I'm getting along all right, and so are you, probably.

How often are you guilty of acts which can have no other object or result than mischief? Many men who do not wantonly kick dumb animals, wantonly kick sensitive human beings.

ONE OF THE FINEST OF IRISH PLAYS

Bernard Daly, in the superb production of "Dion O'Dare," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House next Saturday, Nov 30th, matinee and night, will no doubt be one of the important dramatic attractions of the season. The production is one of the finest in the way of an Irish [illegible] that has ever been presented in the popular price theatres and there is no gainsaying the fact that Bernard Daly is to-day the cleverest man in his line of work.

"Dion O'Dare" is adding fresh laurels to the wreath of the popular star, Bernard Daly. Mr. Daly's play is handsomely staged and in regard to his wardrobe he has an opportunity to wear the handsomest brocades and laces, and needless to say, he wears his gay apparel becomingly. With exceptional beauty Miss Hazel Harroun combines dramatic talent and so adds to the charm and interest of Mr. Daly's play.

TO DEVELOP WESTERN RIVERS

Portage la Prairie, Nov. 26.—Hon. Hugh Armstrong, who has just returned from Ottawa, states that Hon. Robert Rogers has promised to have surveys and estimates made at once for the proposed canals to connect Lakes Manitoba and Winnipeg, and also the last named lake with the Saskatchewan River, also for canals to connect Lake Manitoba with Lake Winnipeg via the Waterhen river, Lake St. Martin and the Dauphin river, with continuous navigation on these rivers.

Blames Bad Whisky.

Kingston, Nov. 26.—Believing doped liquor is being sold in local hotels, Canon Starr has called upon temperance workers to ask that an inspector be appointed to test the quality of liquor given over the bar. The canon states that inspection otherwise is good, but that drunkenness has not decreased as it should. He declares that there is more drunkenness on the streets here now than there was five years ago, and puts the blame on bad whisky.

U. S. Warships May Have To Go.

Washington, Nov. 26.—All United States naval vessels may be withdrawn from the great lakes as a result of a refusal of the shipbuilding companies on the lakes to enter into repair contracts with the Navy Department on account of their hostility to the eight-hour law. The lake plants are operated on a ten-hour basis, and, although Attorney-General Wickersham ruled that a company working on a Government contract could use its men on other work after employing them eight hours on the Government job, none of the companies wants a contract from the Department. The test case came when the Department vainly endeavored to have repairs made on the converted yacht Dorothea.

The situation is not considered particularly serious, because the U. S. keeps vessels on the lake only for use in training naval militia. Under existing treaties the Government has no police boats along the Canadian border, and if the training craft cannot be repaired on the lakes they will be withdrawn and sent to other waters.

Steamer Sinks; No Lives Lost.

She was built in 1899 and had an 84-foot keel with 20 foot beam.

CEMENT TARIFF CUT WAS NOT A POLITICAL TRICK

Declares Hon. W. T. White, Who Shows That the Action Had the Effect of Causing Cement Merger to Put [illegible] Fleet of Ships on the Lakes.

MR. BURNHAM ON POLITICAL MORALITY

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate upon the address made some progress yesterday and will be resumed to-day, probably by Hon. Mr. Rogers.

The speech of the day was delivered by Finance Minister White, who repudiated the charge that the cut in the cement duty made last summer had been made for the purpose of influencing the elections in Saskatchewan. He demonstrated that the suspension of the duty had been urgently demanded by the people and press of Western Canada, irrespective of party. The Government of the day, he said, had not hesitated to deal effectively with the cement combine when it failed to serve the people. The Macdonald bye-election was again to the front, being discussed interestingly and at some length by two of the visiting statesmen, L. J. Gauthier, M.P. for St. Hyacinthe, and G. Boyer, M.P. for Vaudreuil.

Mr. Burnham, West Peterboro, created a mild sensation by his reference to an alleged conspiracy in Canada to deprive French-Canadians of their language.

Hon. Mr. White, in opening the debate, resented the insinuation that the cut in the cement duty, made by order in council last summer, had been made as a political expedient. He read to the House a large number of letters and telegrams received by the Government from municipalities, boards of trade, construction companies and others throughout the west, urging suspension of the duty on account of a cement famine. These representations came from Winnipeg, Brandon, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and many other points. They were supported by all the western newspapers irrespective of party.

The Minister said that he found, upon investigation, that the Canada Cement Co., commonly known as the cement merger, supplied western Canada exclusively. He communicated with that company and the company admitted the existence of the famine in the west, but blamed conditions upon the transportation companies.

He found that relief could only be given by a cut in the cement duty, and the cut in the duty had been ordered, not as a political expedient, but in the public interest. It was the merest accident that the cement famine chanced to synchronize with the Saskatchewan election. He was glad to say as a result of the cut in the cement duty the cement merger had placed a new fleet of vessels on the great lakes and was about to establish branch factories in the west.

Mr. Gauthier, the Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, testified from personal experience, to the tribulations of the Liberals in the Macdonald bye-election.

"I was shadowed," he declared, "by provincial detectives for 11 days, my hotel bedroom was entered and ransacked and even my grip was examined."

He asserted that the liberty of the subject and the right of free speech had been assailed by the Roblin Government. He also complained of the alleged action of the Dominion Government in discharging men at Sorel shipyard because of their support of the Liberal candidate in the Richelieu bye-election.

Mr. Gauthier touched the naval question gingerly, insisted that if Mr. Monk was right in leaving the Cabinet, Messrs. Pelletier and Nantel were wrong to remain.

Mr. Burnham, the Conservative member for West Peterboro, was of the opinion that the persons arrested in Macdonald deserved more punishment than they got, at the same time lamenting the low standard of political morality in Canada.

"Had I been the Attorney-General," he said, "or a provincial constable, I would have made many arrests in West Peterboro at the last election."

Mr. Burnham, in closing, made a curious statement to the effect that he had heard that there was a conspiracy on foot to deprive the French-Canadians of their language. Personally, he would rather forego speaking English for the balance of his life than see any such conspiracy succeed.

Trip Cost $4,838.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—According to a return tabled Premier Borden's expenses while in England this summer totaled $4,838. Other items of unforeseen expenditure included in the return were $1,000 for the sufferers from the Titanic disaster, $20,000 for the Regina cyclone sufferers, and $3,000 to assist in the removal of buildings in Frank, Alta., to a site secure from danger from the crumbling mountains overhanging the town.

LIQUOR IN DRY BELT

Hungarian Sold Liquor and Was Fined $100.

Belleville, Nov. 27.—Blada Cerquasoqua, an Hungarian, who conducts a boarding-house at Point Ann, was yesterday, by Police Magistrate Masson of this city, fined $100 and costs, for having liquor upon his premises for sale, without license. Two other foreigners were similarly charged, and their cases were enlarged for a week.

D. Morrison, of Toronto, a provincial officer of the liquor license department, a few days ago, in company with other officials, entered the place and seized a large quantity of liquor.

Point Ann is under local option.

Child Smothered at Kingston.

Kingston, Nov. 27.—While his mother was out of the house for a short time, the two-year-old son of Captain Green, of the schooner Briton, Gananoque, tried to work itself out of its high chair, fell on its face, and was smothered.

ELVEVEN RUSSIANS WERE EXECUTED

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—Eleven men of the Black Sea fleet, who were recently condemned to death for inciting mutiny, were shot at Sebastopol yesterday by firing parties from the warships. Four hundred sailors of the fleet are being transferred to Reval and Vladivostok.

Strikes are being declared in various parts of the country as a protest against the action of the Government.

Saskatoon to Get Shops.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—The establishment of still another large car shops to cost $2,000,000 in connection with their transcontinental line is now being contemplated by the Canadian Northern Railway. It is the general opinion of western officials that on the completion of the through line shops should be erected at some point between Winnipeg and the coast, and Saskatoon in the place favored by the C.N.R. for their location.

Galt Cricketer Killed.

Galt, Nov. 27.—Wm. English, employed at the Brantford Roofing Co., while finishing a job on the molding shop of the Canada Machy Co., at noon, fell a distance of forty feet and sustained injuries causing his death, at the hospital last night. He was a popular citizen and famed as a crack cricketer.

FRANCE HAS AN EYE ON CHINA

Paris, Nov. 27.—A special mission composed of French deputies and senators, is to be sent to China, under the auspices of the Parliamentary group devoted to the development of Franco-Chinese friendship, to attend the opening of the Chinese Parliament in January next. The members of the mission will also devote some time to a study of the political and economic conditions of China.

Victim of Appendicitis.

Brockville, Nov. 27.—Jacob Willrich, a prominent young business man, died yesterday afternoon, following an operation for appendicitis. He was 45 years of age and married. He came to Brockville from Galt.

LABOR MEN ARE FOUND INNOCENT

Three Prisoners Kissed Each Other When Jury Gave Verdict.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 27.—"Not guilty" is the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti, and Joseph Caruso, for the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in a Lawrence textile strike riot last winter. When the three men had heard the words freeing them from the charge, they embraced and kissed each other in the prisoners' cage.

Giovannitti and Ettor addressed the jury.

The commonwealth maintained that they incited the riot in which the woman met her death, by inflammatory speeches to the strikers.

IS CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION

Galt, Ont., Nov. 27.—Fred. Flower, a young man charged with abduction of a young girl, was arrested here and will be tried Saturday on that, and perhaps more serious charges. The alleged victim is said to be living in Toronto, and the police have been asked to locate her.

Not To Relieve Britain.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Pall Mall Gazette, in its principal editorial yesterday, joins The Times in insisting that Dominion naval contributions must never be used to relieve the Home Government in any part of her responsibility.

"Nothing," says The Gazette, "has been more magnificent than the now fast-ripening fruits of Canadian patriots' long labor—but the fruit may yet be nipped by the chilly frost of our own indifference."

UNIONIST WON BYE-ELECTION

Suffragist Defeat Does Not Mean Lost Cause For Women.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Bow bye-election, through the resignation of George Lansbury, resulted: Blair (Unionist), 4,042; Lansbury (Suffragist), 3,291.

Lansbury resigned because he wanted a straight fight on the question of woman's suffrage, but owing to the many other issues which were introduced, the election cannot in any way be regarded as a reliable criterion of the views of the constituency regarding votes for women. The Liberal party ran no candidate, recommending the Liberals to abstain from voting. Suffragettes worked hard for Lansbury throughout the campaign.

In the general election of December, 1910, George Lansbury, running as a Labor candidate, polled 4,315 votes to 3,452 for L. S. Amery (Unionist), a brother-in-law of Hamar Greenwood, M.P. It will be noted that in the bye-election Lansbury's vote fell off by 1,024, while the Unionists' vote increased by 590. The Bow seat is one of the Tower Hamlet seats in the east end of London.

Dr. Bunmueller Dead.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.—Dr. Bunmueller, a German correspondent and a former attache of the German Foreign Office, died yesterday of cholera at San Stefano. He is the first cholera victim among the Europeans. Two other German correspondents have been stricken.

The death of Ecumenical Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church has produced a deep impression on the Greek community and the public generally. Joachin III., Archbishop of Constantinople, had attained the age of 78 years. He had a noteworthy career and had held the office of patriarch for eleven years. His body will lie in state for three days and the funeral services will be conducted with great pomp.

RIDE IN CABOOSE ENDS IN DEATH

Fire Followed Rear End Collision by Two Freights

Canadian Press Despatch.

Fort Francis, Nov. 27.—J. W. Redmond, office manager of Johnson Corey Co. here, was killed and the body burned in a rear end collision on the Canadian Northern, four miles east of here yesterday. One freight following another ploughed into a caboose, derailing it and a freight car as well as a locomotive. Both cars were burned, and Redmond who was riding in the caboose was burned with them.

Probe Into Election.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 27.—After an all-night debate on the question of an investigation into the registering and voting of aliens in the late Saskatchewan election, in which the opposition appealed for a judicial commission and cited the Gamey case of Ontario as a precedent, the Legislature, by a strict party vote, decided to refer the investigation to the House committee on election, consisting of three Liberals and two Conservatives.

The Opposition reiterated the charges that aliens were registered and voted, and that the Liberals repeatedly during the campaign insisted that citizenship was not necessary to vote providing the names were on the list. Further, no citizenship oath was required in preparing these lists.

HOME RULE AMENDMENTS

Three Are Voted Down in House of Commons.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Three Opposition amendments to clause 15 of the home rule bill were rejected in the Commons last night. The first, by Mr. Hewins, proposed that the Irish Parliament should not be empowered to discriminate in levying taxes, in order to provide bounties on production of export of native goods, was defeated by 111.

The second, moved by L. S. Amery, sought to reserve all power of Irish customs excise to the Imperial Parliament, was rejected by 153.

The third, proposed by Mr. Cassel, provided that the Irish Parliament should impose no taxes that were not of identical character with the Imperial taxes, was defeated by 130 majority.

Several others were guillotined.

On behalf of the Government, Postmaster-General Samuels moved the import amendment prohibiting the Irish Legislature from reducing customs duties. This carried by 106 majority, the Nationalists deciding not to interfere at the present juncture with the progress of the measure.

The final amendment relating to duties payable on release of goods from bond carried by 103.

Owing to the operation of closure clause 16 was then added to the bill.

Upon the discussion of clause 17, Mr. Goldsmith moved an amendment providing certain deductions should be made from the Imperial grant before the sum was transferred to the Irish Exchequer, urging that insertion of the amount would not add a single penny to the deduction which would be made by the Imperial Exchequer. The amendment was rejected by 108.

The guillotine fell on clauses 17 to 21, shutting out 38 amendments to clause 17, five to clause 18, four to clause 19, three to clause 20, and eleven to clause 21.

SIR GEORGE INDICATES NAVAL POLICY OF THE LIBERALS

Opposition Will Stick to the Policy of a Canadian Navy.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate on the address was commenced in the Senate yesterday and three strong speeches were made. The first, by Senator Daniel of St. John, who moved the address; the second by Senator Rufus Pope of Compton, Que., who seconded it, and the third by Sir George Ross, the new leader of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber, who eloquently foreshadowed the line he would take when the naval proposals of the Government came before the Senate. Sir George dealt chiefly with the main item in the speech from the throne.

The address, after saying four Ministers had conferred with the British authorities and "conditions had been disclosed which rendered it imperative," said that Canada should give naval aid. Imperative was a strong word. What was the matter with old England? Had she no more sailors to man her ships? Has she no longer the exchequer with which to build and maintain her fleet? If these were the conditions which rendered aid imperative, let Parliament know, and out of her abundance Canada would give aid cheerfully and take a part of the burden from the weary Titan. But before Parliament gives it must know the facts of the case.

"A Minister said during the summer that England was on her knees," said Sir George. "If she is let us help her at once, and if it takes a few millions to get her on her feet let us place here there by all means. If she is on her knees, it is the first time in the history of Great Britain that she ever was."

A naval policy on the basis of a contribution was no policy at all, he said. It was like throwing a penny in a beggar's cup. There was a naval policy on the statute book now. It had been put there by the late Government. It provided for the construction of a Canadian navy, which would have been built in Canada and which would have enabled Canada to send ships to the aid of the British cause in the Mediterranean, in Australia or anywhere in the world where aid was needed. Canada had the maritime people to man a navy, the steel with which to build and the spirit with which to maintain a navy. It was looking forward with eagerness to the Government's promised announcement.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed adjourned the debate, and the Senate adjourned until this afternoon.

Wouldn't Unionize Jobs.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—As tending to show the implication of labor union officials in plots, the Government introduced at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday, testimony that explosions on non-union ironwork followed the refusal of contractors to unionize their job after personal visits by some of the defendants.

Before two charges of dynamite exploded on a bridge in St. Louis, on August 9, 1908, John T. Garrett, president of a construction firm, testified he was visited by John H. Barry, of the local ironworkers' union. "Barry wanted me to unionize the job," said Garrett. "He said, 'you will find it a great deal cheaper, for you know what will happen,' he said. I told him I suspected he was going to dynamite the job and he had better be careful. It was blown up latter."

TORONTO BOYS CHARGED WITH SEVERAL CRIMES

Police Believe They Have Run to Earth Three Young Bandits Who Have Committed Many Outrages

LOADED REVOLVERS UNDER PILLOW

Toronto, Nov. 27.—By the arrests of three youths yesterday morning the city detectives believe they have solved the mystery of several daring robberies and also have in custody the young men who fired at John E. Bell, a farmer from Cooksville, about two miles west of Islington early Saturday morning.

Just after they had broken into W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store at 1,298 West Queen street about 4.30 yesterday morning Norman Ryan, aged 18; Windmere street; James T. Latimer, aged 17, Dovercourt road, and Wm. Reilly, alias Robert McCue, aged 16, Crawford street, were disturbed by Constable Courtenay. The three ran along Queen street, and the officer pursued them. At length he caught Ryan and took him to No. 6 Police station.

Detectives Guthrie, Murray and Jarvis searched until 8 o'clock for the other two youths. At 9 o'clock they visited a house kept by a woman at 539 West King street. After forcing an entrance the officers discovered Reilly and Latimer. Both boys had loaded revolvers under their pillows, and Ryan, when searched, also had a gun in his possession.

The three boys are charged with the following crimes:

Burglary at W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store, 1,298 West Queen street, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and match safes taken.

Burglary at R. Ball's house at [illegible] Dovercourt road, overcoat and [illegible] taken.

Attempted burglary at Smeath's dry goods' store at Garden and Sorauren avenue, several windows broken.

Theft of $125 from Moore's butcher store at Bloor and St. Clarens avenue.

Theft of three motor cycles.

Shooting of J. E. Bell, farmer, near Islington.

Stealing money from 544 Gladstone avenue.

With regard to the theft of the motor-cycles evidence has been secured showing that the youths were riding on two of the machines when they encountered the farmer. The motor-cycles were stolen from 452 Grace street, 562 Bathurst street, and 547 Crawford street. One of these machines was wrecked when it collided with Bell's wagon.

The boys all appeared in court yesterday.

ADRIANOPLE IN GRIP OF FIRE, FAMINE AND FLOOD

People in State Approaching Anarchy — Austria and Russia in Cordial Relations.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Mustapha Pasha, Turkey, Nov. 27—Fire, famine, flood and anarchy afflict the besieged fortress of Adrianople, according to reports brought by fugitives from the city. Buildings in the vicinity of Selim Mosque are on fire. Other parts of the city are inundated with water from the rivers, Maritza, Tunga and Arda, which have overflowed their banks. The civilian population is so short of food, that a state approaching anarchy now exists.

London, Nov. 27.—The possibility and danger of a greater war than that between the Balkan States and Turkey absorbs public interest far more than the first bout of diplomacy between the belligerents outside of Constantinople.

The steps towards mobilization which Austria and Russia are taking, although but preliminary precautions, have made possible a vision of the vast consequences which, as far as Great Britain is concerned, are considered nothing less than appalling.

The British public apparently has no desire to sacrifice lives and money, paralyze commerce and risk the navy over the settlement of the status of the Balkan peninsula. Yet its is uneasy, because ignorant of how far Great Britain's diplomatic engagements with France and Russia extend in the direction of an alliance, and of how much likelihood there is that the Government will be drawn into a conflict in which one or both of its partners in the entente may be engaged.

The Liberal press is unanimous in urging Great Britain to preserve neutrality. The majority of the Conservatives demand the same policy. The Times declaring that none of the European peoples want war, and says:

"Yet that is whither the nations are blindly drifting."

It asks: "Who then makes war?" and replies: "The answer is to be found in the chancelleries of Europe, among the men who too long have played with human lives as pawns in a game of chess, and who have become so enmeshed in formulas and the jargon of diplomacy that they have ceased to be conscious of the poignent realities with which they trifle."

The Pall Mall Gazette, almost alone, speaks in a warlike voice. It declares: "England ought to act firmly with France and Russia in refusing simply to be swept aside. If the conference desired by the British Government is refused, we ought to face the alternative and stand by our friends."

The mobilization of the Austrian and Russian armies requires weeks for what Germany and France can accomplish in days. In Russia's case this is on account of the great distances the troops must travel; in Austria's because the units of the army are on a peace footing, which is only one-third of their war strength. Therefore, considerations of safety compel them to begin when the danger signals are remote.

England, France and Germany are playing a peace-making role. Their efforts are directed apparently towards keeping the powers together in a compact to refrain from taking up piecemeal the questions which the war raises, and defer their consideration until the general conference.

The withdrawal of the Austrian warship at Constantinople to join the fleet is taken as an unfavorable sign, and the imminent Servian occupation of Durazzo [illegible] the Adriatic Sea, tends further to bring Austria and Servia toward the breaking point.

On the other hand, the safe arrival at Uskup of the Austrian consul, Prochaska, who it was feared had been killed, will lessen the tension, and the fact that the Austrian ambassador lunched yesterday with the Russian Emperor would seem to indicate that the relations between these two powers are still cordial.

The latest news received here yesterday foreshadows the breakdown of the armistice negotiations, probably over the demand of the Bulgarians for the evacuation of Adrianople, to which Turkey will not listen.

The Turkish view is that while the allies have no more reserves which they can draft upon, Turkey is drawing a plentiful supply of fresh troops from Asia and is able to continue the war for another year. The Turkish military authorities assert that Adrianople can hold out for another month and that the Tchatalja lines are impregnable. Hence Turkey's position is not desperate enough to warrant her accepting humiliating terms.

Discontent in Russia.

London, Nov. 27.—"Public opinion is slow to express itself in Russia," says a St. Petersburg despatch to the Reuter Telegram Co., "but indignation has been growing the last few weeks at the alleged lack of virility in upholding Russia's international and military dignity. A few brief statements have been issued denying all military preparations, and Russians are allowed to know nothing more about the Government's attitude.

"In a country where every family is represented in the army," the despatch continues, "serious sentiment is inevitable. The officers complain that they are treated as supers, while any display of enthusiasm for the Balkan states has been repeatedly repressed.

"Nevertheless, the pro-Balkan feeling is developing and societies to carry on the campaign are being formed in St. Petersburg and the provinces. A street collection at Moscow Monday for the war reached $100,000.

Horses at Winter Fair.

Guelph, Nov. 27.—Secretary Westervelt was here yesterday, and says the entries for the Winter Fair are practically all in, Monday being the closing day for entries. There will be a great exhibit of horses this year; the entries for the new class of Percherons exceeding all expectations.

The other entries for horses are larger than ever, and this feature of the show will exceed any previous one.

EXCUSE ME!

BY RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY A. H. FLY CO.

"Edith! We are in Utah now! Embrace me!"

She flung herself into his arms with a gurgle of bliss. The other passengers gasped with amazement. This sort of thing was permissible enough in a tunnel, but in the full light of day—!

Fosdick, noting the sensation he had created, waved his hand reassuringly and called across his wife's shoulder:

"Don't be alarmed, ladies and gentlemen. She's my wife!" He added in a whisper meant for her ear alone: "At least till we get to Nevada!"

Then she whispered something in his ear and they hurried from the car. They left behind them a bewilderment that eclipsed the wonder of the Mallories. That couple spoke to each other at least during the day time. Here was a married pair that did not speak at all for two days and two nights and then made a sudden and public rush to each other's arms!

Dr. Temple summed up the general feeling when he said:

"I don't believe in witches, but if I did, I'd believe that this train is bewitched."

Later he decided that Fosdick was a Mormon elder and that Mrs. Fosdick was probably a twelfth or thirteenth spouse he was smuggling in from the east. The theory was not entirely false, for Fosdick was one of the many victims of the crazy-quilt of American divorce codes, though he was the most unwilling of polygamists. And Dr. Temple gave up his theory in despair the next morning when he found the Fosdicks still on the train, and once more keeping aloof from each other.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Train Butcher.

Mallory was dragging out a miserable existence with a companion who was neither maid, wife, nor widow and to whom he was neither bachelor, husband, nor relict.

They were suffering brain-fag from their one topic of conversation, and heart-fag from rapture deferred. Marjorie had pretended to take a nap and Mallory had pretended that he would leave her for her own sake. Their contradictory chains were beginning to gall.

Mallory sat in the smoking room, and threw aside a half-finished cigar. Life was indeed nauseous when tobacco turned rank on his lips. He watched without interest the stupendous scenery whirling past the train; granite ravines, infernal grotesques of architecture and diablerie, the Giant's Teapot, the Devil's Slide, the Pulpit Rock, the Hanging Rock, splashes of mineral color, as if titanic paint pots had been spilled or flung against the cliffs, sudden hushes of green pine-worlds, dreary graveyards of sand and sagebrush, mountain streams in frothing panics.

His jaded soul could not respond to any of these thrillers, the dime-novels and melodramatic third-acts of nature. But with the arrival of a train boy, who had got on at Evanston with a batch of Salt Lake City newspapers, he woke a little.

The other men came trooping round, like sheep at a herd-boy's whistle or chickens when a pan of grain is brought into the yard. The train "butcher" had a nasal sing-song, but his strain might have been the Pied Piper's tune emptying Hamelin of its grown-ups. The charms of flirtation, matrimonial bliss and feminine beauty were forgotten, and the males flocked to the delights of stock-market reports, political or racing or dramatic or sporting or criminal news. Even Ashton braved the eyes of his fellow men for the luxury of burying his nose in a fresh paper.

"Papers, gents? Yes? No?" the train butcher chanted. "Salt Lake papers, Ogden papers, all the latest papers, comic papers, magazines, periodicals."

"Here, boy," said Ashton, snapping his fingers, "what's the latest New York paper?"

"Last Sat'day's."

"Six days old? I read that before I left New York. Well, give me that Salt Lake paper. It has yesterday's stock market, I suppose."

"Yes, sir." He passed over the sheet and made change, without [illegible]ing his monody: "Papers, gents. Yes? No? Salt Lake pa—"

"Whash latesh from Chicago?" said Wellington.

"Monday's."

"I read that before—that breakfast began," laughed Little Jimmie. "Well, give me Salt Lake Basoo. It has baseball news, I s'pose."

"Yes, sir," the butcher answered, and his tone grew reverent as he said: "The Giants won. Mr. Mattyson was pitching. Papers, gents, all the latest papers, magazines, periodicals."

Wedgewood extended a languid hand: "What's the latest issue of the London Times?"

"Never heard of it."

Wedgewood almost fainted, and returned to his Baedeker of the United States.

Dr. Temple summoned the lad: "I don't suppose you have the Ypsilanti Eagle?"

The butcher regarded him with pity, and sniffed: "I carry newspapers, not poultry."

"Well, give me the—" he saw a pink weekly of rather picturesque appearance, and the adventure attracted him. "I'll take this—also the Outlook." He folded the pink within the green, and entered into a new and startling world—a sort of journalistic slumming tour.

"Give me any old thing," said Mallory, and flung open an Ogden journal till he found the sporting page, where his eyes brightened. "By jove, a ten-inning game! Matthewson in the box!"

"Mattie is most intelleckshal pitcher in the world," said Little Jimmie, and then everybody disappeared behind paper ramparts, while the butcher lingered to explain to the porter the details of the great event.

About this time, Marjorie, tired of her pretence at slumber, strolled into the observation car, glancing into the men's room, where she saw nothing but newspapers. Then Mrs. Wellington saw her, and smiled: "Come in and make yourself at home."

"Thanks," said Marjorie, bashfully, "I was looking for my—my—"

"Husband?"

"My dog."

"How is he this morning?"

"My dog?"

"Your husband."

"Oh, he's as well as could be expected."

"Where did you get that love of a waist?" Mrs. Wellington laughed.

"Mrs. Temple lent it to me. Isn't it sweet?"

"Exquisite! The latest Ypsilanti mode."

Marjorie, suffering almost more acutely from being badly frocked than from being duped in her matrimonial hopes, threw herself on Mrs. Wellington's mercy.

"I'm so unhappy in this. Couldn't you lend me or sell me something a little smarter?"

"I'd love to, my dear," said Mrs. Wellington, "but I left home on short notice myself. I shall need all my divorce trousseau in Reno. Otherwise —I—but here's your husband. You two ought to have some place to spoon. I'll leave you this whole room."

And she swept out, nodding to Mallory, who had divined Marjorie's presence, and felt the need of being near her, though he also felt the need of finishing the story of the great ball game. Husbandlike, he felt that he was conferring sufficient courtesy in throwing a casual smile across the top of the paper.

Marjorie studied his motley garb, and her own, and groaned:

"We're a sweet looking pair, aren't we?"

"Mr. and Miss Fit," said Mallory, from behind the paper.

"Oh, Harry, has your love grown cold?" she pleaded.

"Marjorie, how can you think such a thing?" still from behind the paper.

"Well, Mrs. Wellington said we ought to have some place to spoon, and she went away and left us, and—there you stand—and—"

This pierced even the baseball news, and he threw his arms around her with glow of devotion.

She snuggled closer, and cooed: "Aren't we having a nice long engagement? We've traveled a million miles, and the preacher isn't in sight yet. What have you been reading—wedding announcements?"

"No—I was reading about the most wonderful exhibition. Mattie was in the box—and in perfect form."

"Mattie?" Marjorie gasped uneasily.

"Mattie!" he raved, "and in perfect form."

And now the hidden serpent of jealousy, which promised to enliven their future, lifted its head for the first time, and Mallory caught his first glimpse of an unsuspected member of their household. Marjorie demanded with an ominous chill:

"And who's Mattie? Some former sweetheart of yours?"

"My dear," laughed Mallory.

But Marjorie was up and away, with apt temper: "So Mattie was in the box, was she? What is it to you, where she sits? You dare to read about her and rave over her perfect form, while you neglect your wife—or your—oh, what am I, anyway?"

The Japanese Hades.

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word "hell," but has the word "jigoku" instead. Jigoku consists of, first, eight immense hot hells, ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many antechambers, so that there are in all 136 hot hells. Second, there are eight large cold hells, each with its sixteen ante-hells, making the same number of cold that there are of hot hells. Besides these 272 hot and cold hells for offenders of the common sort, the wily Japs have twenty mammoth "hells of utter darkness," into which will be consigned the spirits of children who take the name of Dai Butsu, or Great Buddha, in vain.

Some English Names.

It is a difficult matter sometimes to spell an English name from hearing it pronounced. For instance, Farquharson is pronounced Fuhrson. This, however, is "simple as A B C" compared with the weird renderings of some other names. Who, for instance, would dream of pronouncing Woolfardisworthy Oozry, Wrenfordsleigh Rensley or Wyrardisbury Raysbury?—Pearson's.

Points for Mothers

Arbitration in the Nursery.

Arbitration has come to be regarded by all thinking minds as the only civilized way in which to settle all international disputes. That it is not universally adopted in actuality is clear evidence of the fact that civilization exists in degrees throughout the world only not by any means as an entirety, says Louise D. Mitchel.

And this large thought we can condense into the smaller space of the punishments of children. What is the reason that corporal punishment comes as a first thought for correcting a misdemeanor of the child? Why do you resort to whippings, to the undignified "slap," the ear boxing, the shaking, etc.? That is symbolic of the warfare that exists at all times in some parts of the world. War is the nation's way of boxing the ears of its foe.

If you are angry, do not dare to punish your child. You will be merely taking advantage of your superior strength over his lesser prowess. Remind yourself of that when your hand is raised to promote "warfare" between your little child and your own uncontrolled temper.

Children—particularly little children—are subjected to many unsuspected cruelties. The "boxing" of ears is one of the most cruel. Many a child has had its hearing impaired for all time by just such a bit of "uncivilized" treatment on the part of its parent. Americans are peculiarly subject to deafness, and this is a fact that you should bear in mind when the temptation assails you to administer this impulsive blow to your helpless little child. It may not make him deaf, but you take a chance in doing it, and you cannot afford to do so. One of the most noted men of the day was made permanently deaf in early childhood by some one who lifted him by his ears in a spirit of fun.

The ears and the eyes are probably the most delicate organs that we have. We cannot, therefore, treat them too delicately. A sudden blow will split the eardrum and cause permanent deafness. The mark of our hand left upon any part of our little child's body cannot but be a reproach to us to the last day of our lives.

Jerking a child is another bad habit. This has a bad effect upon the spine and has been known to effect the brain of a child disastrously. Striking him on the head is a brutal cruelty, yet I have seen it done repeatedly. Much of the imbecile expression noticeable in the eyes of some children is due to this very habit of punishment.

Another thing to which I want to draw your attention is one that is of common occurrence—that of lifting a child up over a curbstone by one arm. The bones of a young child are what is known technically as "green"—that is, they will not break as easily as those of an adult. But they are very tender, and they will not stand a very great strain of any kind. In lifting a child by one arm he is bound to swing around a bit, and this will cause dislocations, either of the arm or the shoulder.

The Life of the Mystic.

Speaking at Kensington Town Hall, Eng., on "Christian Mysticism," the dean of St. Paul's said that mysticism was religion in its most acute, intense, and living sense, and it would be easy to show that there had been a strong under current of it running through the Christian church right down the ages. There had never been wanting a succession of mystics, from the head of the church down to Gen. Gordon, to justify them in saying that mysticism had been the very heart of Christianity. Indeed, the Christian religion had been most vital and elevated when it had been able to show the greatest number of true mystics.

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

Literally Translated.

On visiting Ireland the great traveler Livingstone was much feted. In Dublin at a dinner party he happened to be placed next to a literary lady who was a very stout woman. She worried him greatly about the language of the savage cannibals among whom he had managed to live and wanted to know the sound of their language. He spoke a sentence of it to satisfy her, and she answered, "Being translated, what does that mean?" "It means," he replied, "there is great cutting on you."

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 °/₀ on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ °/₀ compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy. [illegible] bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

Will You Join the St. Nicholas Club?

Every Lady in Peterborough is Eligible For Membership.

Christmas less than a month away and many children are wondering what Santa Claus is going to bring them. Some have made up their minds as to what they want, and are already wishing hard. Some, no doubt, will wish in vain, for the reason that older persons know, but little ones not aware of. That the number of children who will be disappointed on Christmas may be reduced to a minimum, the Review suggests the organization of a St. Nicholas Club, which every woman and girl in the city may join by sending her name to the Review office on a post card.

What will the cost be? Just whatever you want it to cost you—nothing more. The Review's St. Nicholas Girl will send you the name of a little boy or girl who has a wish. You can go and see the little one, and find out his or her hopes or needs to make Christmas happy, and fulfil them according to your purse and the feeling of your heart.

The greatest joy at Christmas comes from giving.

Motor Slaughter.

Roughly speaking, motor vehicles are killing in the streets of London today about twice as many persons as were killed by the horse vehicles. That is a hard fact which is not to be disposed of by the motorist's claim that he has far more control over his carriage than a horse driver ever had. He has more control, we believe, but that only makes it plain that the control is not exercised.—Westminster Gazette.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

THE NOMADIC OTTER.

The Merits and Demerits of a Frog-Eater.

There are two points at least in which the otter-hunter is of service to the naturalist. He has for the sake of his sport to study the migrations of the otter, though it would be more true to say that the otter is nomadic rather than migratory. He follows his food—the frogs in spring up the side streams, the spawning fish to their haunts, the salmon in autumn to the sea, and the eel everywhere. The otter travels far, and covers much country in his wanderings. "He is here to-day and gone to-morrow, and, so far as I know," says T.F.D. in Baily's Magazine, "he has no certain abiding place for his young. The female otter lies up in any convenient holt wherever she may be, and at almost any time.

The fine note of the otter hound often unravels for us the elaborate wanderings in search of food of an otter on a single night, and every drag that is worked out by the hounds is, if we only attend, a lesson to the naturalist. The angler and fish preservers are doubtful as to the otter. They well know he makes war on eels, rats, and keeps down the young water hens, and is so far valuable to them. The otter also devours numbers of frogs, though when we consider the value of tadpoles as fish food, that may be a doubtful advantage. Some people say frogs eat fish spawn; it may be so, but I think it will be found hard to bring it home to the frog. But in any case, if the frogs increased unchecked they would certainly get into some michief, and the otter helps to keep the balance of nature. On the other hand, the otters themselves would, if they increased be a disadvantage to the angler, not only because they devour a great many fish and kill many more than they eat, as all carnivorous animals do when they get the chance, but also because they drive fish for the time out of the reaches of the river they frequent.

In both these cases the otter hunter is useful, for the otter is saved from extinction by the goodwill of river owners and keepers for the hunt, and thus survives in sufficient numbers to do his work in keeping up the balance of nature on the river. On the other hand, the visits of the hounds not only keep the numbers down, but for a time drive the otters away from the reaches of the rivers visited by the hounds. If there were no otter-hunting to preserve, the otters would probably become almost extinct, and their services be lost; if, on the other hand, otters were not killed and driven off by hounds they would increase to such an extent as to injure the fisheries."

Isle of Man.

The oldest Government now to be found among men is that which obtains in the Isle of Man. The Tynwald, as the legislative body of the famous little island is called, is the oldest lawmaking assembly on earth. It dates back to the ninth century and is the only legislative body on earth that has had a continuous existence from that time to this. The Isle of Man is still independent of Great Britain so far as its local affairs go, the British Parliament exercising jurisdiction only in a federal way. The Manxmen are and ever have been stubbornly tenacious of their liberties and not even to the majesty of England do they propose to bow.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL TO THE
PEOPLE OF ONTARIO
FOR
The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor:—

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done by the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for the sick and deformed children of this Province. Let me, in a few words, tell you of the steady growth of this Hospital.

In the year 1875 there were only six cots and beds, one nurse, 44 in-patients and 67 out-patients. In 1912 there were 250 cots and beds, 64 nurses, 1,294 in-patients and 17,862 out-patients.

During the 37 years of the Hospital's existence, 19,370 in-patients have been admitted, and 133,724 out-patients have been treated, a total of 153,094, or an average of 4,138 per year. Of the 19,370 in-patients, 5,495 were from places outside of Toronto, 9,644 of the total in-patients were cured, and 5,711 were improved. This is a great record.

Of the 1,294 in-patients last year, 341 came from 218 places outside of Toronto, so that the Hospital is not a local, but a Provincial Institution.

In the Orthopedic Department in 37 years, nearly 700 boys and girls have been treated for clubfeet, and about 600 were corrected. Half of these came from places outside of Toronto, so surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

The Corporation of Toronto grants $25,000, not only for the city children, but towards the maintenance of all patients in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $15,000 annually to the funds of the Hospital.

Will you, kind reader, think of what your money will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

Remember that your pocket-book must be the Hospital's friend, if the Hospital is to be the children's friend.

Remember that Christmas calls you to open the purse of your kindness to the Hospital, so that the Hospital may open the heart of its help to the children.

Remember that your money can help the Hospital build a bridge over which the feet of little children may travel on the journey from sorrow to joy, from sickness to health—aye, from death to life.

Please send a dollar, or more if you can spare it, to Douglas Davidson, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Hospital, or J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Trustees, Toronto.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was good, and at a decline of 3d in the prices bid a fair volume of business was worked as prices were also lower in Winnipeg. A weak feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices declined 1c per bushel, and even at this reduction buyers were slow in taking hold as most of them are pretty well supplied for the present. A fair trade is passing in flour and the demand for millfeed is increasing. Butter is fairly active and firm and the demand for cheese is improving. Eggs active.

Truly British.

Perhaps few stories of battles so thoroughly illustrate the true British spirit and way of doing things as the little incident at a reconnaissance before the Battle of Ulundi, of which Lord William Beresford was the hero.

The British were almost led into a terrible trap, and discovered the danger only just in time. They turned to retreat, and the Zulus poured in a volley which brought down the grey horse of a mounted infantryman. His rider fell head foremost. The rest thought both man and horse were killed at first, but the former soon struggled to his feet, with his face covered with blood and dazed with his fall.

Lord William Beresford, seeing what had happened, pulled up, and, in the face of advancing hosts of yelling savages within easy range, quietly trotted back and told the man to mount behind him.

With a cool courage scarcely second to Lord William's, the man refused, noble fellow that he was, preferring the certain sacrifice of his own life to the probability of destroying his preserver.

The reply was admirable, terse, and telling. The savages swarmed closer and closer, bullets rattled around them; the two who lingered were almost within reach of the assegais, and Lord William said:

"Get up, or I'll punch your head!"

The man obeyed, and rescuer and rescued escaped.

WESTERNER CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

A Stubborn Case of This Painful Disease Cured After the Patient Had Suffered for Years by a Few Bottles of Sanol.

Slowly but surely it has come to be a recognized fact by both the people of Canada and the Medical profession that SANOL is the one remedy that may be relied on in cases of kidney disease, gravel, stones in the bladder, gall stones, kidney stones and all diseases and ailments due to the presence of uric acid in the system. This remedy has great numbers of cures to its credit and its makes have received many strong testimonials as to its powers. One of these testimonials was recently received from a gentleman who resides in Winnipeg, and who is well-known as a most reputable citizen. This letter reads in part as follows:

"For some years past I had suffered from my kidneys. About 18 months ago I had acute inflamation of those organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few months the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try SANOL, of which I had both read and heard. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles, I felt better than I had done for years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health."

The address of the gentleman who wrote the above will be given to any who may inquire. The makers of SANOL are able to give a large number of addresses of people who will give to inquirers similar testimony as to the benefits they have derived from the use of this remedy.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD, 977 Main street, Winnipeg. It may be purchased from The Warne Drug Co., Limited, 351 George st., Peterboro, Ont.

COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE

The question of compulsory military service is one which has been moot in England in and out of season. Lord Roberts has devoted his energies toward pleading with the people for universal service, that Britain may have a strong and well trained population fitted, if need be, to bear arms in the field, though not belonging to any active militia or reserves. "Bobs" has a great deal of logic on his side, and though it may not seem necessary that with such a navy as Britain has there should be as extensive a scheme for military defence, yet the risk to which the United Kingdom would be exposed were that navy to be crippled, is something that cannot be slightly regarded. The cities and towns of England are swarming to-day with men out of employment, undersized, wretchedly constituted from a physical standpoint, to whom military training in their youth would have been a great blessing. If the youth of the country served under the flag for a year or two years, beginning as cadets as in Australia and New Zealand, there would be a better physical standard, a better mental equipment on the average, than there is to-day. The total defence force of Britain, in a military sense is about 500,000 men. Compared with the German two millions Austria Hungary a million, Italy's half million, Britain has an insignificant supply of trained men who could take the field. The "expeditionary force" of 160,000 men that Britain has available for foreign service would not be of much use against the millions that the Continental countries could put into the field. The navy is and must continue to be Britain's first line of defence, but assuredly it would not be amiss if there were behind it a well trained active population every man of whom had been through some military training, and could readily take his place in the field if occasion need be.

MARKETING FRUIT

A few weeks ago Mr. Hicks of the Kootenay District, British Columbia, gave an interview to the Calgary Herald complaining that under the present American competition in fruit, the British Columbia fruit growers were not able to make any profit on fruit shipped to the prairie. He said that unless there were some change in the duty to give the Canadian grower more protection British Columbia fruit-growing already on its last legs, would be utterly destroyed. There had to be a larger Canadian market at better prices.

The Ontario fruit commissioner in the West, Alexander Earle, reports to the Government that the Ontario fruit growers are suffering severely from British Columbia competition on the prairie market. He says that the Ontario fruit shipments are falling off instead of increasing with the growth of the population on the prairie. The chief cause of this was the lack of skilful packing and grading by the Ontario growers. The product for which they expected to get as much money was much inferior to the British Columbia fruit.

The apple trade, which is the main trade of the fruit-growing provinces with the prairie, is a valuable one. It was recently reported that a barrel of Ontario apples sold in Manitoba for $5.75 which had netted the grower in Ontario $1.75. If this great disparity between the price paid by the consumer and the price received by the producer could be lessened, the trade would become much more profitable to the Ontario producer, because the lower price paid by the consumer would induce a larger consumption, and thus enable the producer to procure a higher price. In the West, the American competition is undoubtedly very keen, and interferes with both Ontario and British Columbia trade. But it would certainly be most unjust to the prairie people if the duty were raised so that a still high price could be exacted of the consumer and the transportation interests and middlemen reap a larger profit. What is wanted in Canada and what must come very quickly, is a cheapening of the cost of transportation for articles of food. There must be more co-operation by the farmers, such as have put into effect in so many parts of Ontario in the egg circles. The producer and consumer in the large cities and distant markets, must be brought into more immediate relation. The remedy for such matters as the high cost of living is not so much the lowering of the duties upon American and foreign products as a sane regulation of our own house.

PITMAN AND WOMAN

The hundredth anniversary of the birth of Isaac Pitman, founder of the Pitman system of shorthand will be celebrated in his native country, England, next year, and probably throughout a very large part of the world. It is certain that honor will be done this man in all English-speaking countries. He was born at Trowbridge, Wiltshire, on Jan. 4, 1813, was educated in the normal college of the British and Foreign School Society of London, was appointed master of the British school at Barton-on-Humber in 1832, established a similar school at Wotten-Under-Edge in 1836, and in 1837 published his work, "Stenographic Shorthand." This he followed in 1840 with another work entitled "Phonography or Writing of Sound." He soon organised a shorthand school, published the Phonetic Journal, and in 1853 produced his chief work on stenography, the "Complete Phonographic Class Book." His system was introduced into the United States, by S. P. Andrews, and A. F. Boyle in 1847. It soon spread to all the English colonies. Ben Pitman, brother of the founder of the system, was for years a famous stenographer in the United States.

Like everything else, stenography has undergone a great change since Pitman's time. Readers of "David Copperfield" will recall the hero's struggle with the system, and it has been claimed that Dickens pictured faithfully in his masterpiece, the common experience of shorthand learners in his days. Proficiency in the employment of Pitman characters was at that period attained only after years of practice. Under the improved methods of teaching in our times, as much headway may be made in months. It was the more modern method that made shorthand the common acquirement it is to-day. It was the simplified form that made it available, not only to thousands of young men but to tens of thousands of young women.

The claim has never been made for Sir Isaac Pitman that he was the original inventor of shorthand. His distinction and the knighthood conferred upon him are due to the fact that he was the first to reduce all of the crude methods in existence through the centuries to a system. Up to his time there were no accurate shorthand reports of parliamentary proceedings or important trials. But Pitman's system demanded students of extraordinary ability and patience. Those who have followed Pitman have brought shorthand within the reach of ordinary students. To Pitman belongs the credit of making this latter achievement possible.

Womankind has had few better friends than this man, for it was through his labors that woman first found her way into the real activities of the business world. It is a remarkable coincidence that the typewriting machine and the simplification of stenography came at about the same time. These two made a place into which woman fitted immediately and gracefully. But their influence has extended leagues farther than this. Tens of thousands of women are now employed in the business world who know nothing of stenography or typewriting, but who nevertheless owe to both of these their introduction to opportunities of making respectable and comfortable livings. It was the woman stenographer and typewriter who paved the way for them. They made woman's presence in the office and counting room tolerable in the first place; she has made herself desirable and indispensable in the second place. Stenographers and typewriters were the pioneer business women, and on the coming Pitman centenary women generally will have good reason for remembering and honoring one who was unconsciously a benefactor of their sex.

A quarter of a century ago, Rev. C. H. Marsh was transferred from Orillia to Lindsay, and he has worked faithfully for his parishioners and the church ever since.

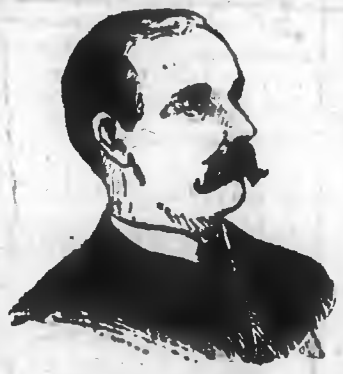
SEN. CORBY, "THE PEOPLE'S HARRY"

Newly Appointed Member of the Upper Chamber at Ottawa Has a Reputation for Genial and Affable Methods in Politics and Private Life—He Has a Record for Philanthropic Work.

"The People's Harry" is the favorite title for Henry Corby of Belleville, who has just been called to the Senate by Premier Borden. There was never a more popular or open-hearted man in Eastern Ontario than Senator Corby. His gifts to his native city have been many and generous. Among them may be mentioned a public park and one of the finest-equipped public library buildings in Canada. There were no stringent stipulations in any of his donations to the municipality—no string attached that so much money must be raised by the citizens before the offer took effect, etc. Of a genial disposition and affable manner, "Harry" Corby, who practically knew everyone in his riding, never stopped for an introduction when he ran across a new-comer. He had a bow and a pleasant word for all. During the thirteen years that he sat in the Commons as representative for West Hastings he always carried the seat hands down, and it was difficult to get a standard-bearer to oppose him. As a campaigner and organizer, he has few equals. He always imbued his followers with the idea of work, work, work, until the last vote was cast on polling day. On the night previous to each election, Mr. Corby would hold rousing meetings in the opera houses at Trenton and Belleville, which were the chief centres of population before the riding was extended north. The candidate would speak at both places the same evening, driving from one point to the other. At each of these final rallies he would wind up his stirring remarks by declaring: "Now, gentlemen, we are going to win to-morrow—that is if you all get out early and labor as you have been doing during the past few weeks. Remember, our opponents are not asleep. Keep your efforts up for just twenty-four hours longer, and we will have a magnificent demonstration right here to-morrow night. I want everybody to come."



SENATOR HARRY CORBY.

Could such an appeal be resisted? It was electrifying on the eve of battle. Mr. Corby resigned his seat in the Commons in 1901, owing to ill-health, and was succeeded by Mr. E. Gus Porter, the able Belleville lawyer. Of late years, the newly-created Senator has spent much of his time traveling, and to-day feels better than he has for many years.—Toronto Star Weekly.

A fairly large number were present and all expressed keen interest in the very instructive lecture. Rev. Dr. Marsh presided as chairman.

THE CONSPIRACY FOR THE EXTINCTION OF FRENCH RACE

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The Review's Ottawa Correspondent writes as follows—

The last hour before dinner last evening was occupied by Mr. Burnham, M.P., of Peterborough West, who, by request of the whip, followed Mr. Turgeon and replied to the Hon. Frank Oliver. Mr. Burnham closely analyzed Mr. Oliver's speech on the alleged Macdonald improprieties, and showed by quoting from the honorable member's own words that the latter was not prepared to make any definite charge, from which the House could be called upon to take action. The most interesting portion of the speaker's remarks however was in reference to what he called "the conspiracy for the extinction of the French race." Often, as the two races had been rivals and much as both races might have to complain of and much as these might have to be settled of a delicate nature in the future, the English-speaking portion of Canada would never consent to the extinguishment of a race, which stood true to Canada in the past and who showed so strong an inclination to be imperial and loyal at the present. The people of Ontario and of Canada, who joined this combination, would yet learn that they were being led into a trap.

He was warmly thanked by the French members, both Conservative and Liberal.

THE LADIES' AID MEETING

Drew Large Gathering to Charlotte Street Lecture Hall

The Ladies' Aid of Charlotte street Methodist church have every reason to feel proud of the success of their Olde Tyme Bysiness meetyng last night in the lecture hall. The entertainment drew a capicity audience, many standing throughout the entire evening. The Society intends repeating the concert.

The largest share of the entertaining was done by the ladies, who displayed all kinds of latent talent and bright, racy humor.

Even some of the participators were surprised at the easy manner in which they conducted themselves before the unaccustomed glare of the "foot-lights."

The staging represented a parlor in Mohawk Crossroads, a peaceful little village during the Victorian age. Two Boston ladies were guests at a meeting of the Ladies' Aid at the home of one of the members, and and the gathering were all apparelled in the quaint old-fashioned garb of the Victorian period. The business before the gathering consisted principally of discussing into how many pieces a pie should be cut, and transacting like "business."

No other performers but ladies could have carried out the amusing farce to such perfection, and the audience were kept convulsed most of the evening. Two of the most humorous characters were the lady from Boston, of abnormal literary tastes and the suffragette with her red flag and "votes for women" slogan. Every member of the cast, however, acted her part splendidly.

The ladies also exercised their keen but harmless wit, at the expense of local proceedings and celebrities. The local hits were all good, and aroused in some instances regular gales of laughter.

Miss Ida Sanderson, at the close of the sketch sang very sweetly, and had to respond to persistent encores. The elocutionary ability of Mrs. Christie was also evidenced in two readings, her first number being a recomposed selection, purely original and most appropriate.

The Ladies' Aid desire to heartily thank Miss Rochester, of the Y.W.C.A., for her assistance in training them, without which they could not have scored such a marked success. They also appreciate all donations.

The ladies who took part in the sketch were: Mrs. (Dr.) M. A. Morrison, Mrs. Lightfoot, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. W. A. Howard, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. Adamson, Mrs. James Lillico, Mrs. T. B. Wright, Mrs. Bookhout, Mrs. M. Lyle, Mrs. Wolstenholm, Mrs. S. Clegg, Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Whitcroft, Mrs. Watt, Mrs. Thistlewaite, Mrs. Corneil, Mrs. R. E. McKee, Mrs. F. Sandy, Mrs. Christie, and last, but not least, Miss Thomas, who capably essayed the part of an Irish domestic.

The entertainment will be repeated owing to the large number who purchased tickets, but who were unable to obtain admission.

The President of the Ladies' Aid is Mrs. Walter Stocker.

The proceeds were $110.

RETAIL GROCERS

A meeting of the Grocers Section of the Retail Merchants' Association met last night at the Y.M.C.A. and appointed officers for the coming year:

2nd Vice-Chairman—W. J. [illegible].
Treasurer—J. H. Connal.
Secretary—N. C. Cameron.

Resolutions were passed for the abolition of the fees charged for inspection of weights and measures; also favoring reduction of business assessment.

The illegal cupons were also dealt with and several members said they would immediately abolish their use.

BUTCHERS TO MEET.

A meeting of the butchers of the city will be held in the Y.M.C.A. Board Room to-morrow night at 8 o'clock, when Mr. E. M. Trowern Dominion Secretary will be present. The new Meat Act will be discussed, as it affects every butcher in the province, as well as other equally important subjects.

The Shallow North Sea.

The North Sea is so shallow that a vessel can sail from London to Hamburg in water not more than 120 feet deep except for one short stretch. If this depth could be decreased by one-half—that is, the bottom of the North Sea raised sixty feet—the islands of the Frisian shore would be linked together in an even coast line, a belt of land ten miles broad would be added to the Danish coast, a multitude of low islands would spring up off the English and Belgian coasts and a great island would rise up in the Dogger bank.

CONVICTED FINED $50

Bartender was Charged with Selling to Minor

Magistrate Dumble gave his judgment this morning in the liquor case in which Alfred Switzer was found guilty and ordered to pay a $50 fine, with costs, or take the alternative of one month in gaol.

G. N. Gordon, who has acted for Switzer will appeal against the decision.

Sullivan was given some sound advice by the Magistrate, who warned him what was in store should he continue frequenting bar-rooms and other unelevating resorts.

Sullivan promised to quit the use of liquor for good and get to work as soon as possible.

EXCELLENT WORK BY ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY

An Appreciative Audience Heard Concert in the Collegiate

St. George's Choral Society scored heavily in their concert at the Collegiate Auditorium last evening, when the program received most generous applause by a large audience. That the Society has a very promising future was indicated by the clever work in solo, quartette and chorus work, and the hearty manner in which each part was interpreted.

The concert was given, as Mr. R. J. Devey, the conductor, stated, simply to show what progress the Society had made since commencing rehearsals for the "Messiah" which is to be given next year.

To the audience, there was no doubt as to the advancement of the organization. The choruses were well sung—not alone to the music—but also with a true conception of the spirit and meaning. This is where the Society displays strength. It is with the manner of interpretation that an audience can enjoy a program of vocal music.

With the society growing in numbers and developing as it most assuredly will under the guidance of Mr. Devey Peterborough people may look forward to a decided treat when the Messiah is given. The tenor soloists, Messrs. George Chandler and Harold Lee were heard to splendid advantage and the male quartette of Messrs. Chandler, Allen Harris and Dickson made a pronounced impression. Their first number "My Lady Sleeps," was most pleasing to the ear and their interpretation of that familiar tale of the schoolmaster who failed to see the point was very clever. Mention might also be made of a laughing chorus by the choir, one of the most liberally applauded numbers.

Mr. Devey presided at the organ for the solos and quartettes and Miss Flowers for the choruses. Miss Pearl Ruth contributed a pianoforte selection.

Canon Davidson made a few commendatory remarks on the work of the Society.

SILVER CUP IS ON EXHIBITION

Was Presented to 57th Regiment by English Regiment

The cup presented to the local 57th Regiment, was taken out of custodis this morning and is on view in the window of Clegg's furniture store. It is in the form of a loving cup and it is doubtful if any other in the city can compare with it in form or worth. The inscription is—"Presented by the Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and men of the 1st Battalion, Duke of Cambridge's Own Middlesex Regiment late 57th Foot, to the 57th Regiment Peterborough Rangers, in Commemoration of their Affiliation 1911."

In upper corners are the crests of both regiments.

A wire frame partly covered with canvas the invention of a New York man, forms a back rest for a boat seat which can be snapped into place in an instant.

MADE TROUBLE FOR THE OFFICER

Disorderly Stranger Had to be Handcuffed

A fracas occurred in the waiting room of the C. P. R. station, which commenced when a stranger, who gave the name of Robson, resisted Constable Brown, who sought to arrest him. The officer discovered the man lying on the floor of the waiting room, after the 12.10 C.P.R. had pulled out. He requested that he bestir himself, but the young fellow refused, using some obscene language in enforcing his refusal. The man had his coat on with the back of it reversed, and his arms shoved into the sleeves in that position. Following the officer's attempt to arrest him, the man grabbed a chair and struck him on the forehead and on the leg. He was finally handcuffed and taken to the police station, using an extended vocabulary of oaths on the trip up George street.

This morning, in police court, he was fined $8.75 for being intoxicated. The assault charge was not pressed at the solicitation of his counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon and Chief of Police Thompson.

Sentence was suspended by Magistrate Dumble, who hoped that the fine might prove a sufficient salutary lesson, and assist him to abstain in future from the use of intoxicants.

BEN HOBSON

Was ordered to leave the city, with a promise of six months in Central Prison should he be arraigned again in Peterborough, was the Magistrate's disposition of Benjamin Hobson, charged with being drunk.

Hobson promised to forsake the city at the earliest possible moment.

MANY VISITORS TO PROTESTANT HOME

Yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock the beautiful and handsomely furnished building of the Protestant Home was thronged by a large assemblage of sympathizers with the institution and its inmates. The guests were received by Mrs. Roger, president, and Miss Lancaster, Superintendent, in the handsome board room which was decorated with pink chrysanthemums. After making a tour of the building those present were escorted to the tea room where Miss Brown presided at the tea table. The table and room looked charming with its profusion of yellow 'mums and ferns. A very generous donation of jams and pickles was presented by the various guests to the gratification of the directorate and the superintendent.

IMPROVEMENTS AT SHORTLY'S STORE

Mr. Benjamin Shortly, the well-known harness and leather goods dealer, George street, has made many improvements and changes in his store and two handsome new "silent salesmen" have also been installed which add attractiveness to the store fittings and where fine leather goods are effectively shown.

The general business of the store has also been facilitated by the addition of new shelving and wall fittings on the north side of the store in the space behind where the office formerly stood. Here the large and varied assortment of gloves, for which this store is noted, has been conveniently displayed, as well as other lines of a similar nature. An excellent stock of trunks of many varied styles suit cases, etc., occupy a central position in the store, as well as a fine range of club bags, shopping bags and other leather goods. The harness collars and stable sundries occupy prominent places in the store, where customers can conveniently examine the different styles and kinds with better light and service.

The Westerner's Ideal.

The westerner's willingness to give up home, heighbors and old associations for the sake of a "claim" on the prairie is not sordid. His stern preoccupation with "getting ahead" is a part of his inherited passion for personal independence. I have seen a gray hue steal over the face of the settler when speaking of some one who had "lost his farm" and "had to go out by the day." For the wage earner's lot the true born westerner feels a dread quite incomprehensible to cities and to old communities. If he ruthlessly sacrifices comforts and culture, it is that he may win a footing of his own and so call no man master. Once he has cleared off the mortgage, improved his place and gained a soothing sense of financial security, he will provide books, piano, music lessons, travel and college education for his children, even if in the meantime his own capacity to enjoy has been atrophied.—Professor Edward Alsworth Ross in Century.

Women and the Violin.

"A distinguished violinist of this city," writes Philip Hale in the Boston Herald, "was talking recently about women who fiddled and now fiddle. He complained that nearly all of them classed as great erred in this—they tried to play like a man; they wished it said of them that they had a virile tone. He did not except Lady Halle, Maud Powell or Miss Parlow. 'The only great woman violinist I remember was Teresina Tua, and her greatness consisted in the fact that she always played like a woman. She was womanly and fascinating.' Saint-Saens once said apropos of Augusta Holmes that when a woman wrote for the orchestra she was noisier than any man because she wished to show that she was not a poor, weak thing on account of her sex."

TAUGHT M.P.'S TO SPEAK

English Elocutionist Is a Famous Trainer of Budding Orators.

To the man in the street, perhaps, the name of Mr. John Duxbury is not very familiar; but among public men it is widely known, for Mr. Duxbury has probably trained more ministers and members of Parliament in the correct method of speaking than any other teacher in the kingdom, and the announcement that he is shortly leaving Manchester to settle in London has aroused great interest. For some years Mr. Duxbury has conducted a school of elocution in Manchester, and thousands of pupils have passed through his hands.

As a young man Mr. Duxbury was passionately fond of elocution, and studied the art under several teachers, with the result that he was ultimately appointed teacher of elocution at the Lancashire Independent College and at other theological colleges in Manchester, while three years ago he received his appointment at the Manchester University. Many of his students are now in some of the best pulpits in England, while he numbers several of the present members of Parliament amongst his pupils.

Mr. Duxbury now proposes, however, to give up teaching elocution and devote himself to reciting. He has a great reputation as a reciter, and possesses a prodigious memory. At some of his recitals he has delivered scriptural and other pieces lasting for a couple of hours.

When committing a long piece to memory Mr. Duxbury first goes over the work, and then puts down the book and endeavors to go through it from memory. Then he carefully reads the piece over again, and tries a second time to see it in his mind. "I think," he says, "it is the best way to learn a piece—to get the whole thing in one's mind, like a photograph. This is much better than learning it verse by verse, like a Sunday school reciter, who finds the task gets harder as he goes along, and consequenely loses confidence in himself before he gets to the end."

Leigh Hunt's Daughter.

General surprise will probable be felt at the announcement that Leigh Hunt's youngest daughter is still alive at the age of eighty-four. Leigh Hunt himself was born in 1784, and it was exactly 100 years ago that he was fined and imprisoned for describing the regent as a "corpulent Adonis of fifty," so that his daughter represents a remarkable link with the past. The daughter, who is now ill and in reduced circumstances, married the late Charles Smith Cheltnam, who died in April of this year after a remarkably diverse career in which he was successively a wood engraver, art critic to The Illustrated London News, manager of The Morning Chronicle, editor of The Belgravia Magazine and one of the subeditors of The Daily Telegraph.—London Globe.

ARE YOUR HANDS CHAPPED?

Zam-Buk Will Cure Them.

The particular danger of chapped hands and cold cracks (apart altogether from the pain) is that the cold is likely to penetrate and set up inflammation, festering, or blood-poison. Directly the skin is broken by a cut, graze or scratch, or chafed and cracked by the action of the cold winds and water, the one necessary precaution is to apply Zam-Buk freely.

The pure herbal juices from which Zam-Buk is prepared are so perfectly combined and refined that the immediate effect of these Zam-Buk dressings is soothing, antiseptic, and healing. Pain and inflammation are allayed, disease germs expelled from the wound or sore, and the latter is quickly healed.

Zam-Buk is not only a powerful healer and skin purifier; it is strongly antiseptic and germicidal, and so forms the ideal protection for the skin against disease germs.

It quickly heals cold cracks, chaps, chilblains, cold sores, etc.

Mrs. O. M. Ebson, Neuchatel, Alta., writes—"I must tell you how pleased I am with Zam-Buk. My husband had an old frostbite on his foot for many years, and had tried almost every known remedy without any effect, but the first application of Zam-Buk seemed to help him so much that he persevered and the sore is now cured. We would not be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, scalp sores, blood-poison, bad leg, eruptions, etc. Its purely herbal composition makes it the ideal balm for babies and young children. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price. Try also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

Saved In the Nick of Time

By RUTH W. MALTBY

The early settlers in Kentucky came largely from the same direction. Reaching America from the old world, they settled in Pennsylvania, later emigrated to western Virginia and, having worked out their lands there, moved on down the Ohio river to appropriate the virgin soil of Kentucky.

Among these movers was a family named Martin, the father and mother being elderly persons, their elder children grown. A daughter, Hester, was a girl of eighteen. They settled not far from where Bowling Green is now situated.

The war of 1812 was being fought, and soon after the arrival of the Martins in their new home the battle of New Orleans was fought and won by the Americans, or, rather, the woodsmen of the west, among whom the hunters of Kentucky were conspicuous. The war had been ended by treaty before the battle, though the news of peace had not yet got across the Atlantic, and soon after it was over the troops came marching home.

A company of Kentuckians recruited from the region about where the Martins lived was disbanded, and a young man, Abner Armstrong, who had marched away and returned as a lieutenant, was among the number. At the time of his appearance John Bartlet, a man of forty years of age, had asked Martin for his daughter Hester's hand. There were many mouths to feed in Martin's family, and Bartlet was the only suitor who had established himself in the new country; therefore Martin persuaded Hester to marry him.

But before the wedding had taken place along came the soldiers whose rifles had won the battle of New Orleans. Young Armstrong was a strapping, flaxen haired, blue eyed boy with every appearance of manliness, but withal an engaging smile. Hester looked at him and surrendered.

There is but little reason in youth. Instead of confessing to her father and her betrothed that she had not known what love was and that, having discovered it in the young soldier, she had changed, Hester resolved on the most desperate course to be conceived of. She told Armstrong, who was as deeply smitten with her as she was with him, that she could never face either her father or her betrothed to tell them of the change in her and the only course left for them was to run away. It was not likely that one who had but recently helped to win a battle should show the white feather.

The only means of conveyance in those days in Kentucky was a horse. Armstrong had but one animal, but it served for both. They started on an afternoon, and their flight was discovered about 9 o'clock the same night. Bartlet was notified, and when he learned how he had been treated he said:

"I'll go after 'em and bring 'em back. Then I'll tell 'em they kin git married for all me as soon as they like."

With this he mounted his horse, his rifle slung to his saddle and pistols in his holster, for no one went about unarmed in those wild days, and, assuming that the fugitives would make for the Ohio river, he rode straight northward. About midnight he saw a lurid light on the clouds to the northeastward, and, thinking the fugitives had bivouacked and built a fire, he turned his horse's head in that direction.

Suddenly he reined in to a stand and listened. A distant confused barking fell upon his ear. He shuddered. A picture came before his mind's eye painted by the hand of experience. A Kentuckian, he knew that the barks he heard were those of wolves and that one of the ways of fighting wolves was by fire. He saw the girl he had hoped to make his wife and the man she had eloped with besieged by hungry beasts.

Urging forward his horse, guided by the light, the barks growing more distinct as he approached, he finally burst in upon the very scene he had pictured. Armstrong and Hester occupied the center of a circle of fire they had built to keep off the pack. Armstrong's ammunition had been expended, and whenever a wolf snarled too close he beat it back with the barrel of his rifle or with a burning brand. Hester, like a true daughter of the forest, was bravely arranging the wood they had gathered to keep it burning.

Having ridden as far as his terrified horse would go, Bartlet dismounted and, aiming at a wolf, shot him dead. Then, while the pack were devouring their companion, the rifle was reloaded and another wolf was brought down. Drawing nearer to the besieged couple, Bartlet called upon them to run toward him while he covered their retreat. They started, Hester in advance. The wolves sprang after them, and just as their leader was about to spring upon Armstrong, who was moving with his face to them, Bartlet shot the beast dead. This gave Armstrong time to make good his retreat, and before the wolves had finished eating the carcass already slain the three persons had got away.

The next morning all appeared at the Martin home. Bartlet, without a word of reproach, released Hester from her engagement to him, and her father consented to her marriage with Armstrong as soon as he had a cabin to put her in. But the latter proved a better soldier than pioneer and never got the cabin. In time Hester married Bartlet of her own free will.

A Friend In Need.

"Had a queer experience recently," said the Billville poet. "Robber held me up on the highway. Didn't have a cent in my pockets, only a poem which I was takin' to the editor."

"Didn't take the poem, did he?"

"No. Read three lines of it, handed it back to me and said: 'Friend, here's $2. You need it worse than I do.'"—Atlanta Constitution.

Hard to Swallow.

"If you make any noise," threatened the holdup man, "I'll stuff this handkerchief in your mouth."

The victim regarded it with a ghastly smile.

"Oh, that's such an old gag!" he protested.—Chicago Tribune.

THE ANCIENT TRAVELER.

Outfit He Was Advised to Carry In the Eighteenth Century.

A small "Traveler's Guide," dated 1780, contains a good deal of serious advice as to the luggage which should be carried.

"Take," says the book, "two suits of clothes, one coffee colored and one blue; a chest flannel, a pair of leather breeches, a sleeping suit, three pairs of stockings, two pairs of gloves, two wigs, one hair bag (?), two caps, two hats, two pairs of shoes, one pair of slippers, six 'undershirts,' four 'overshirts,' six neckties, six collars, six handkerchiefs, four pairs of cuffs, three cravats, two pairs of cotton hose and two pairs of socks."

But this is not all, as is shown by the following items: "Take a Bible, a book of sermons, a 'Traveler's Guide,' two albums, a diary, a quire of white paper, quills and ink, an almanac, a mirror, a silver watch, a silver snuffbox, a silver spoon, a pair of silver shoe buckles, a silver tie pin, three silver studs, a gold seal ring, a knife and fork with silver handles, a sewing case, an opera glass, a compass, a wax light and a tinder box, a toothbrush, a silver toothpick, a sword, a silver mounted cane, a padlock with which to fasten your door at night inside, a clothes brush, a box of medicine."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Marking a Book.

There's a dear old chap in this town—too gentle and too modest to put his name or profession into print—who administered a rebuke worth remembering to a young friend. The young man showed him a book in which certain passages were marked with pencil. The older man asked if he might borrow the book.

"I—I can't lend it," said the other. "I borrowed it myself."

"Ah! And who marked these passages?"

"I did."

"Oh, my boy! You shouldn't make pencilled comments in a borrowed book."

"I—I—I know it—I"—

"The owner might erase them, you know. Always use ink and so pass your wisdom along!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Properly Boiled Meat.

To boil meat so as to retain the juices and soluble salts and yet cook it sufficiently it should be plunged into boiling water and boiled rapidly for about ten minutes. After this fast cooking the kettle must be pushed over to the back of the fire, where its contents will simmer gently. This tends to coagulate the outer rind of the meat so that the juices cannot escape. If meat is treated in this manner the inside will be found juicy and tender, but if the meat is allowed to boil it will be found hard and chippy, the goodness having all boiled out of it.

Dickens' Gay Clothes.

We were walking down Wellington street, Strand, and just passing the office of Household Words, when a hansom cab stopped, and out stepped a gayly-dressed gentleman. His bright green waistcoat, vivid scarlet tie and pale lavender trousers would have been noticed by any one, but the size of the nosegay in his buttonhole riveted my attention, for it was a regular flower garden. My father stopped and introduced me, and I, who had only seen engravings of the Maclise portrait and a very handsome head in my mother's photograph album, was astonished to find myself shaking hands with the great novelist, Charles Dickens.—From Miss Friswell's "Recollections."

Origin of Tapestry.

It is said that the art of weaving tapestry was borrowed from the Saracens, although it is claimed that the invention of tapestry hangings belongs to the Netherlands. They were made in France under Henry IV. by artists imported from Flanders. The art was brought into England by Sheldon, the first establishment for its manufacture being at Mortlake, 1606. Under Louis XIV. the art was greatly improved in France. Very early instances of tapestry making are mentioned by the ancients; hence the Saracens could only have received the art in what may be called modern times.

INCREASE OF TWO FOR THIS YEAR

Sixteen Deaths From Injuries in Football Game

New York, Nov. 27.—Football continues to exact its toll of death, despite the changes in the rules calculated to minimize chances for serious injury. The death list for this year is larger by two than that of last year. Sixteen players died during 1912 as a result of injuries sustained in the game. Fourteen died last year.

Of these, one was a college player, four High school youths, and the remainder were members of various professional and amateur teams throughout the country.

Forty one participants in the grand old sport were seriously injured, thirty of this number being college players.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The hockey players will commence training on Friday night. The regular nights thereafter will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the hour from 7 to 8.

PROVED HER WORDS.

The Ladies Knew Each Other Even Before Their Introduction.

There was a great crowd at the picture exhibition, and empty seats were at a premium, when two pretty women spied and made for a place at the selfsame moment. They reached the prize together, both pretending ignorance of the other, and, flopping themselves down, succeeded in squeezing breathlessly and miserably in. There they sat then, each scowling and staring at the rudeness of her respective neighbor, each wriggling and squirming as much as possible in order to crowd that neighbor still further. Finally the situation became acute, and one of the women spoke, with fine sarcasm, "I beg your pardon, but do you need the whole seat?"

"I beg yours," the answer came, "but I never talk to strangers."

Just then a third pretty woman passed, stopped and addressed the two at once: "Why, to think of finding you two here together! And I have always wanted to introduce you, because I know you will just love each other. Mabel, this is Maud, and Maud, this is my dear old Mabel. You are bound to love each other because you are so exactly alike in disposition."—New York Press.

Resting a Model.

Adolphe Manzel, the German painter, at one time was engaged on a work of mural decoration and kept a man posed in an exceedingly fatiguing position on a scaffold for two hours. The great painter worked away, heedless of his model's discomfort. Finally the victim called down, "Herr Professor, how about the recess?"

"Certainly, my dear sir. Come down right away and you shall have your recess."

As the model was descending from the scaffolding his limbs assumed a position which was one for which the artist had long been looking.

"Stop!" Menzel thundered. "Hold! Ah, fine! Keep that while I make a little sketch of it!"

The artist drew vigorously for half an hour, at the end of which he called out imperatively: "There, that will do for now. Get up on the scaffold again. We have had our recess."

"There," sighed the widow, pointing to a cottage, "is where my sweet romance ended."

"Ah, dear, and did your husband die there?"

"Dear me, no! That's where we were married."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

REPORT DENIED BY G.T.R. OFFICIALS

A report originating from Ottawa to the effect that the Delaware & Hudson Railway has refused to ship any more coal into Canada as they are unable to obtain return of their cars from the Canadian Railroads, is officially denied by the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. D. C. [illegible]rombie, Assistant to the Vice-President in charge of Transportation, states that far from this being the case the Grand Trunk has supplied the D. & H. with empty cars which is needed for its own purposes, in order to assist the latter company in getting anthracite coal into the Dominion. During the period between November 1 and November 17, 547 D. & H. cars were delivered to them by the G. T. R., as well as 452 cars the property of the Grand Trunk and other roads, making a total of 99[illegible] cars. During the same period, only [illegible] cars were received by the G. T. R. from the Delaware and Hudson, so that there is now a deficit of 621 cars, to be returned by the D. & H. to the Grand Trunk loaded with coal.

ELECTRIC HEADLIGHTS ON G.T.R. ENGINES

The Grand Trunk Railway has just placed 10 new engines on the Middle Division in Ontario, to take care of the manifest freight traffic and within a short time a total of 40 locomotives will be added to the power equipment for the same purpose. This first consignment has been assigned to the Sarnia terminal. The locomotives were built by the Kingston works and are modern in every detail. The latest improvements include the Walschaert valve motion, Smith's super-heater, and steam grate shakers. For the first time, it is understood, the company is equipping its engines with electric head-lights and a complete electric lighting system.

A ROMANTIC IMPOSTURE.

How Mary Wilcox Put Up a Trick on England's Wisest.

One April evening in the early years of the last century a Gloucestershire agricultural laborer was seated in his cottage, having supper with his family, when a timid knock sounded on the front door.

The good wife went and opened it, returning a moment later with a young woman of prepossessing appearance who made signs that she wanted rest and refreshment. Meat and bread, together with a mug of cider, were accordingly placed before her, and she was asked to sit down.

This hospitable invitation, however, she promptly declined, but all the while bowing and smiling, as if fearful of giving offence, and talking very rapidly in what her puzzled hosts took to be a foreign language.

Eventually, after much persuasion, she was induced to partake of a little plain boiled rice and a draught of water, after which, refusing an offer to share the bed of her hostess' grown-up daughter, she shrouded herself in an Oriental shawl she was wearing, and lay down on the floor to sleep.

The following day, as nobody could make head nor tail of the new arrival, she was taken before the nearest county magistrate, a Mr. Samuel Worrall, of Knole Hall.

But to this gentleman and his family the mysterious young woman proved an even greater puzzle than she had done to the humble laboring folk, upon whom she had first dropped from the sky, as it were.

They kept her with them for several months, and many learned professors of languages were called in to try and converse with her, but none succeeded. By dint of signs, however, and by drawing rough sketches, at which she was very clever, the girl gave the Worralls to understand that she came from a far Eastern country, that she was a great personage in her own land, and that she had been kidnapped as a move in some dynastic plot or other, and afterwards brought to England and set ashore in a destitute condition.

Incredible as this story may sound to our ears, it nevertheless met with pretty general belief, so that in a little while all England was agog with the news. The highest in the land came to Knole Hall to interview the Princess Caraboo, as she styled herself, and the young woman, attired in robes of gold brocade fashioned by herself from materials the Worralls provided her with, made a sufficiently imposing and interesting figure.

And now the excitement was intensified by the news that the mystery of the princess' speech had at length been solved. A tramping Portuguese sailor called at Knole Hall, and pretended to interpret her language, which he averred to be a dialect akin to Chinese, used in certain parts of Sumatra and other islands of the Far East.

The girl was, he said, undoubtedly of royal descent, the daughter of an Achinese Rajah. This made the East Indian Company prick up their ears, for the Dutch were then pressing them sorely in that part of the world, and it would obviously be a feather in their cap if they could restore to the Achinese—the native inhabitants of Sumatra—a kidnapped princess of the royal blood.

A ship was accordingly placed at her disposal to convey her back to her "native land" and great preparations were made for the voyage.

Meanwhile the girl held a species of miniature Court at Knole Hall, dispensing "royal" favors and signing innumerable autograph in what purported to be Arabic characters.

It was owing to this that she was undone. A certain Mrs. Neale, a Bristol lady, paid her a visit, and at once recognized her as a former serving-maid of hers, a Mary Wilcox, hailing from no further away than the little Devonshire village of Witheridge.

The story went that the recognition was mutual, and the "princess," being pressed, confessed to the fraud in the broadest of West Country tones. She had, she said, conceived it and carried it out entirely on her own initiative. But there were many who doubted this.

Certainly the tramping sailor who pretended to interpret the gibberish that she had invented, or which had been invented for her, must have been an accomplice, unless we assume that he perpetrated a minor independent fraud on his own account. It seems inconceivable, too, that an ignorant peasant girl could have shown so intimate an acquaintance with Oriental manners and customs, unless she had been carefully coached by somebody.

Mary Wilcox, it may be added, was never punished for her share in the affair, but was packed off to America soon afterwards by her friends the Worralls.

"Labby's" Bearded Friend.

Labouchere had a friend who spent a good deal of time and money in order to shirk the bestowal of tips. He had a conscientious objection against tipping barbers and could not shave himself. He told me once that, according to careful conclusion, he had been forced to travel considerably over a hundred miles in one year to find new barbers' shops where his unbending attitude on the tip question was unknown, and he spent rather more than $25 on bus and cab fares in doing so. Finally, having exhausted the whole of inner London and most of the suburbs, he had to give up the struggle and grow a beard.—London Chronicle.

Kiss Salutations.

Kissing as a form of salutation among Englishmen was abandoned in the eighteenth century. The nose kiss still exists in races so far apart as the Eskimos of the Arctic regions and the Maoris of New Zealand.

PIKEMEN OF OLD.

Their Ponderous Armor and Their Sixteen Foot Weapons.

The pikeman was covered with defensive armor, an iron headpiece, iron "back and breast" and "tasses," a kind of iron apron protecting him from waist to knee. He carried a pike sixteen feet long, with an ashen shaft, an iron head and a blunt iron spike at the butt end, whereby to fix it in the ground, and, besides the pike, a rapier.

The pike, from its great length, was a weapon which required deft handling in order to be of effective use and, as may be imagined, was excessively showy on parade. The modern lance exercise is a pretty sight enough, but the old pike exercise, perfectly executed by a large body of men, must have been superb. We are not surprised, therefore, to find that the postures or instructions for this exercise are extravagantly minute.

To give one example, at the close of the instruction, on the word "Order your pikes," we find after a mass of complicated details the following conclusion: "You place the butt end of your pike by the outside of your right foot, your right hand holding it even with your eye and your thumb right up; then, your left arm being set akimbo by your side, you shall stand with a full body in a comely posture."—Westminster Gazette.

There is no fun in beating rugs,

FIRST AID IN THE HOME.

The Way to Care For Wounds Until the Doctor Arrives.

There should always be some one in the home who understands the principle of "first aid in injury"—some one who can clean a wound, stop bleeding and apply a bandage.

Even the simplest wounds—where any blood flows—should be given prompt and scientific attention. This does not mean that every home should have a trained surgeon. The following ten emergency hints should be memorized:

Stop the bleeding if severe.

Do not touch an open wound with the fingers.

Note the nature of the injuries and put the injured person in a comfortable place and position.

Summon a surgeon.

Do not disturb blood clots.

Never probe for a bullet.

Pick shreds of clothing and splinters or dirt from a wound.

Then bring the edges of the wound together, but without touching them.

Pack the wound with gauze or absorbent cotton and apply bandage.

Bind on splints if bones are broken.

With a little study, a half hour a day for a week, and some practice, any one will be able to carry out the foregoing hints in a hygienic manner.—Kansas City Times.

A man once lived in my neighborhood, who, it was decided, would be better off in the insane asylum. He was a very active man, and full of schemes far ahead of the people. I happened to be in the courtroom when he was brought in and first told that people thought him crazy. I never saw quite so much astonishment as he displayed when told that the charge against him was insanity. "What!" he said; "me crazy! Why, I know more than the rest of you." I suppose we all have that notion more or less.

ORGAN OPENING AND RECITAL

Despite the inclement weather of last evening and many counter attractions an audience of very considerable numbers gathered in Murray street Baptist church, drawn thither by the attraction of the formal opening of the magnificent organ now fully installed, and the anticipation of hearing so capable and thoroughly perfect an artist as Mr. Richard Tattersall, of Toronto, who had been invited and had consented to come and play for the evening. Music lovers anticipated a treat and were not disappointed. Mr. Tattersall had come to Canada with an enviable reputation as that of one of the foremost masters of the organ in England, and displayed a technique at once varied and satisfying. It was a gratification to the officials of the church to have so eminent and well qualified a performer display the capabilities of the fine instrument. Before the opening number, Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the church, briefly introduced Mr. Tattersall, and spoke of his eminent position in the profession.

The instrumental numbers on the program assigned to Mr. Tattersall were six, selected to display the resources of the organ and to give appreciation to several of the finest works of the great composers. No extended criticism is in place, if indeed such were attempted. Following each number were explanatory notes in print, which gave a summary of the spirit and theme of the composition. The numbers were as follows:—

Imperial March Edward Elgar—This March was composed for the jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1897 and was also performed during the recent Coronation Ceremonies in Westminster Abbey.

Quologue (Bernard Johnson).—A delightful specimen of the works of the organist of Albert Hall, Nottingham, England, with the sub title, "The Smile."

Prelude and Fugue in D. Major (J. S. Bach).—This brilliant and effective show-piece represents the highest capabilities of organ music, and in its way is undoubtedly one of the most successful pieces of its kind ever written.

Priere et Berceuse (Guilmant).—In this delightful little piece by Guilmant the theme is preceded by short sentences or phrases, including a simple, childlike prayer, immediately reposeful character.

Elves (Joseph Bonnett).—This fanciful piece, of which the title is sufficiently descriptive, displays many charming and piquant effects obtainable from the modern organ.

(a) Scherza (b) Pastorale, (c) Finale (C. M. Widor) from the Second Symphony—The eight grand organ Symphonies by Widor—written with an absolute knowledge of the capabilities and limitations of the instrument.

At the close of each number the audience gave expression of approval and gratification, most thoroughly well deserved.

Most pleasing contributions were added to the program in the vocal solos of Miss Clara Kidd and Mr. Asa Huycke. It is a very creditable thing that from the excellent choir of the church, soloists of more than local celebrity could be called to assist on so important an occasion, and both singers well repaid the interest and confidence of their many friends. Both are favorites when ever heard, and strengthen any program which secures their assistance.

Miss Kidd sang "I Will Extol Thee," by Costa, a difficult selection, but which was sung with clear intonation and many charming passages. In response to an encore Miss Kidd gave "Sleep, Lady, Sleep," a a sweet little ballad, and on concluding the song was presented with a handsome bouquet, Miss Jessie Matthews being the bearer of the beautiful token.

Mr. Huycke is always sure of an appreciative audience, and his singing of "O Rest in the Lord," from Elijah, and the recitative preceding this familiar and always acceptable number, was exceedingly well given. As an encore he sang, "Mighty as a Rose," by Jean Everett, and only the lateness of the hour restrained further urging that he again sing.

In connection with the opening occasion some general description of the organ may be given, as such has not already appeared in print. The organ proper is at a higher elevation behind the show pipes in a recess prepared for its reception above the baptistry. A number of the show pipes speak, and the face of the opening is entirely filled with seventy, or more, of graded proportions. The finish is a rich, dark copper, subdivided, but effective. The console is placed close to the choir gallery with the bellows and wind pipes in the basement of the church. The whole arrangement is exceedingly good.

The specification is as follows:—

Great Organ—Open Diapason, Dulciana (stopped diapason 8 bass), Melodia (stopped bass), Principal fifteenth.

Swell Organ—Bourdon, Open Diapason, Salicional, Viol de Orchestre, Gedact Harmonic Flute, Piccolo Cornopean, Oboe, Vox Humana.

Choir Organ—Geigen principal, Viol di Gamba, Aeoline, Stopped Diapason, Flauto Traverso, Clarinet.

Pedal Organ—Open Diapason, Bourdon, Lieblich Gedact from No 6.

Triplet Couplers, Swell to Great Union to Sub, to Super, Choir to Great Unison and to Sub.

Many other combinations are also included, giving the instrument a great range and effect.

The case, or woodwork, is of polished quarter cut oak, and the action tubular pneumatic.

BERNARD DALY IN "DION O[illegible]ARE"

One of [illegible] prettiest [illegible] pictures ever produced will be seen at the Grand next Saturday, Nov. 30, matinee and evening, when Bernard Daly appears in his popular Irish comedy drama "D[illegible]are." The scene represents the exterior of Eon's home, with the mountains in the background. It is just twilight and little Gillie, a waif, that has been adopted by Dion, begs for one song before bedtime. Dion finally puts her up on a see-saw and sitting there with the moonlight breaking over the hills, sings the little one to sleep. It invariably brings forth round after round of applause.

Mr. Daly [illegible] renders many popular songs during the action of the play, among which are, "Many Years Ago" "Rose Serenade," "See-Saw," "Call of the Wind," "Macushla," and the latest compositions, entitled, "The Rose of Yesterday," and "Love is like a Shoogy-Shu."

CEMENT TARIFF CUT WAS NOT A POLITICAL TRICK

Declares Hon. W. T. White, Who Shows That the Action Had the Effect of Causing Cement Merger to Put Fleet of Ships on the Lakes.

MR. BURNHAM ON POLITICAL MORALITY

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate upon the address made some progress yesterday and will be resumed to-day, probably by Hon. Mr. Rogers.

The speech of the day was delivered by Finance Minister White, who repudiated the charge that the cut in the cement duty made last summer had been made for the purpose of influencing the elections in Saskatchewan. He demonstrated that the suspension of the duty had been urgently demanded by the people and press of Western Canada, irrespective of party. The Government of the day, he said, had not hesitated to deal effectively with the cement combine when it failed to serve the people. The Macdonald bye-election was again to the front, being discussed interestingly and at some length by two of the visiting statesmen, L. J. Gauthier, M.P. for St. Hyacinthe, and G. Boyer, M.P. for Vaudreuil.

Mr. Burnham, West Peterboro, created a mild sensation by his reference to an alleged conspiracy in Canada to deprive French-Canadians of their language.

Hon. Mr. White, in opening the debate, resented the insinuation that the cut in the cement duty, made by order in council last summer, had been made as a political expedient. He read to the House a large number of letters and telegrams received by the Government from municipalities, boards of trade, construction companies and others throughout the west, urging suspension of the duty on account of a cement famine. These representations came from Winnipeg, Brandon, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and many other points. They were supported by all the western newspapers irrespective of party.

The Minister said that he found, upon investigation, that the Canada Cement Co., commonly known as the cement merger, supplied western Canada exclusively. He communicated with that company and the company admitted the existence of the famine in the west, but blamed conditions upon the transportation companies.

He found that relief could only be given by a cut in the cement duty, and the cut in the duty had been ordered, not as a political expedient, but in the public interest. It was the merest accident that the cement famine chanced to sychronize with the Saskatchewan election. He was glad to say as a result of the cut in the cement duty the cement merger had placed a new fleet of vessels on the great lakes and was about to establish branch factories in the west.

Mr. Gauthier, the Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, testified from personal experience, to the tribulations of the Liberals in the Macdonald bye-election.

"I was shadowed," he declared, "by provincial detectives for 11 days, my hotel bedroom was entered and ransacked and even my grip was examined."

He asserted that the liberty of the subject and the right of free speech had been assailed by the Roblin Government. He also complained of the alleged action of the Dominion Government in discharging men at Sorel shipyard because of their support of the Liberal candidate in the Richelieu bye-election.

Mr. Gauthier touched the naval question gingerly, insisted that if Mr. Monk was right in leaving the Cabinet, Messrs. Pelletier and Nantel were wrong to remain.

Mr. Burnham, the Conservative member for West Peterboro, was of the opinion that the persons arrested in Macdonald deserved more punishment than they got, at the same time lamenting the low standard of political morality in Canada.

"Had I been the Attorney-General," he said, "or a provincial constable, I would have made many arrests in West Peterboro at the last election."

Mr. Burnham, in closing, made a curious statement to the effect that he had heard that there was a conspiracy on foot to deprive the French-Canadians of their language. Personally, he would rather forego speaking English for the balance of his life than see any such conspiracy succeed.

Trip Cost $4,838.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—According to a return tabled Premier Borden's expenses while in England this summer totaled $4,838. Othere items of unforeseen expenditure included in the return were $1,000 for the sufferers from the Titanic disaster, $20,000 for the Regina cyclone sufferers, and $3,000 to assist in the removal of buildings in Frank, Alta., to a site secure from danger from the crumbling mountains overhanging the town.

Belleville, Nov. 27.—Blada Cerquanoqua, an Hungarian, who conducts a boarding-house at Point Ann, was yesterday, by Police Magistrate Masson of this city, fined $100 and costs, for having liquor upon his premises for sale, without license. Two other foreigners were similarly charged, and their cases were enlarged for a week.

D. Morrison, of Toronto, a provincial officer of the liquor license department, a few days ago, in company with other officials, entered the place and seized a large quantity of liquor. Point Ann is under local option.

ELVEVEN RUSSIANS WERE EXECUTED

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—Eleven men of the Black Sea fleet, who were recently condemned to death for inciting mutiny, were shot at Sebastopol yesterday by firing parties from the warships. Four hundred sailors of the fleet are being transferred to Revel and Vladivostok.

Strikes are being declared in various parts of the country as a protest against the action of the Government.

Saskatoon to Get Shops.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—The establishment of still another large car shops to cost $2,000,000 in connection with their transcontinental line is now being contemplated by the Canadian Northern Railway. It is the general opinion of western officials that on the completion of the through line shops should be erected at some point between Winnipeg and the coast, and Saskatoon in the place favored by the C.N.R. for their location.

Galt, Nov. 27.—Wm. English, employed at the Brantford Roofing Co., while finishing a job on the molding shop of the Canada Machy Co., at noon, fell a distance of forty feet and sustained injuries causing his death, at the hospital last night. LABOR MEN ARE FOUND INNOCENT

Three Prisoners Kissed Each Other When Jury Gave Verdict.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 27.—"Not guilty" is the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti, and Joseph Caruso, for the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in a Lawrence textile strike riot last winter. When the three men had heard the words freeing them from the charge, they embraced and kissed each other in the prisoners' cage.

Giovannitti and Ettor addressed the jury.

The commonwealth maintained that they incited the riot in which the woman met her death, by inflammatory speeches to the strikers.

IS CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION

Galt, Ont., Nov. 27.—Fred. Flower, a young man charged with abduction of a young girl, was arrested here and will be tried Saturday on that, and perhaps more serious charges. The alleged victim is said to be living in Toronto, and the police have been asked to locate her.

Not To Relieve Britain.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Pall Mall Gazette, in its principal editorial yesterday, joins The Times in insisting that Dominion naval contributions must never be used to relieve the Home Government in any part of her responsibility.

"Nothing," says The Gazette, "has been more magnificent than the now fast-ripening fruits of Canadian patriots' long labor—but the fruit may yet be nipped by the chilly frost of our own indifference."

COLORADO MAN WINS SUCCESS BY PLUCK

SAMUEL J. BRYAN.

From helper in a roundhouse to County Treasurer is a part of the life story of Samuel J. Bryan, democratic Treasurer elect of El Paso county, Col. says a despatch in a Denver newspaper.

Crippled in a railroad wreck six years ago and so seriously injured that surgeons declared he could not survive handicapped by lack of education Bryan's steady climb up the ladder is referred to by his friends as an example of what pluck and perseverance will do. Bryan's friends gave him a plurality of nearly one thousand.

UNIONIST WON BYE-ELECTION

Suffragist Defeat Does Not Mean Lost Cause For Women.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Bow bye-election, through the resignation of George Lansbury, resulted Blair (Unionist), 4,042; Lansbury (Suffragist), 3,291.

Lansbury resigned because he wanted a straight fight on the question of woman's suffrage, but owing to the many other issues which were introduced, the election cannot in any way be regarded as a reliable criterion of the views of the constituency regarding votes for women. The Liberal party ran no candidate, recommending the Liberals to abstain from voting. Suffragettes worked hard for Lansbury throughout the campaign.

In the general election of December, 1910, George Lansbury, running as a Labor candidate, polled 4,315 votes to 3,452 for L. S. Amery (Unionist), a brother-in-law of Hamar Greenwood, M.P. It will be noted that in the bye-election Lansbury's vote fell off by 1,024, while the Unionists' vote increased by 590. The Bow seat is one of the Tower Hamlet seats in the east end of London.

Dr. Bunmueller Dead.

Constantinople, Nov. 27.—Dr. Bunmueller, a German correspondent and a former attache of the German Foreign Office, died yesterday of cholera at San Stefano. He is the first cholera victim among the Europeans. Two other German correspondents have been stricken.

The death of Ecumenical Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church has produced a deep impression on the Greek community and the public generally. Joachin III., Archbishop of Constantinople, had attained the age of 78 years. He had a noteworthy career and had held the office of patriarch for eleven years. His body will lie in state for three days and the funeral services will be conducted with great pomp.

RIDE IN CABOOSE ENDS IN DEATH

Fire Followed Rear End Collision by Two Freights

Canadian Press Despatch.

Fort Francis, Nov. 27—J. W. Redmond, office manager of Johnson Corey Co., here, was killed and the body burned in a rear end collision on the Canadian Northern, four miles east of here yesterday. One freight following another ploughed into a caboose, derailing it and a freight car as well as a locomotive. Both cars were burned, and Redmond who was riding in the caboose was burned with them.

Probe Into Elections.

Regina, Sask., Nov. 27.—After an all-night debate on the question of an investigation into the registering and voting of aliens in the late Saskatchewan election, in which the opposition appealed for a judicial commission and cited the Gamey case of Ontario as a precedent, the Legislature, by a strict party vote, decided to refer the investigation to the House committee on election, consisting of three Liberals and two Conservatives.

The Opposition reiterated the charges that aliens were registered and voted, and that the Liberals repeatedly during the campaign insisted that citizenship was not necessary to vote providing the names were on the list. Further, no citizenship oath was required in preparing these lists.

HOME RULE AMENDMENTS

Three Are Voted Down in House of Commons.

London, Nov. 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Three Opposition amendments to clause 15 of the home rule bill were rejected in the Commons last night. The first, by Mr. Hewins, proposed that the Irish Parliament should not be empowered to discriminate in levying taxes, in order to provide bounties on production of export of native goods, was defeated by 111.

The second, moved by L. S. Amery, sought to reserve all power of Irish customs excise to the Imperial Parliament, was rejected by 103.

The third, proposed by Mr Cassel, provided that the Irish Parliament should impose no taxes that were not of identical character with the Imperial taxes, was defeated by 130 majority.

Several others were guillotined.

On behalf of the Government, Postmaster-General Samuels moved the import amendment prohibiting the Irish Legislature from reducing customs duties. This carried by 106 majority, the Nationalists deciding not to interfere at the present juncture with the progress of the measure.

The final amendment relating to duties payable on release of goods from bond carried by 103.

Owing to the operation of closure clause 16 was then added to the bill.

Upon the discussion of clause 17, Mr. Goldsmith moved an amendment, providing certain deductions should be made from the Imperial grant before the sum was transferred to the Irish Exchequer, urging that insertion of the amount would not add a single penny to the deduction which would be made by the Imperial Exchequer. The amendment was rejected by 108.

The guillotine fell on clauses 17 to 21, shutting out 38 amendments to clause 17, five to clause 18, four to clause 19, three to clause 20, and eleven to clause 21.

SIR GEORGE INDICATES NAVAL POLICY OF THE LIBERALS

Opposition Will Stick to the Policy of a Canadian Navy.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The debate on the address was commenced in the Senate yesterday and three strong speeches were made. The first, by Senator Daniel of St. John, who moved the address; the second by Senator Rufus Pope of Compton, Que., who seconded it, and the third by Sir George Ross, the new leader of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber, who eloquently foreshadowed the line he would take when the naval proposals of the Government came before the Senate. Sir George dealt chiefly with the main item in the speech from the throne.

The address, after saying four Ministers had conferred with the British authorities and "conditions had been disclosed which rendered it imperative," said that Canada should give naval aid. Imperative was a strong word. What was the matter with old England? Had she no more sailors to man her ships? Has she no longer the exchequer with which to build and maintain her fleet? If these were the conditions which rendered aid imperative, let Parliament know, and out of her abundance Canada would give aid directly and take a part of the burden from the weary Titan. But before Parliament gives it must know the facts of the case.

"A Minister said during the summer that England was on her knees," said Sir George. "If she is let us help her at once, and if it takes a few millions to get her on her feet let us place here there by all means. If she is on her knees, it is the first time in the history of Great Britain that she ever was."

A naval policy on the basis of a contribution was no policy at all, he said. It was like throwing a penny in a beggar's cup. There was a naval policy on the statute book now. It had been put there by the late Government. It provided for the construction of a Canadian navy, which would have been built in Canada and which would have enabled Canada to send ships to the aid of the British cause in the Mediterranean, in Australia or anywhere in the world where aid was needed. Canada had the maritime people to man a navy, the steel with which to build and the spirit with which to maintain a navy. It was looking forward with eagerness to the Government's promised announcement.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed adjourned the debate, and the Senate adjourned until this afternoon.

Wouldn't Unionize Jobs.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—As tending to show the implication of labor union officials in plots, the Government introduced at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday, testimony that explosions on non-union ironwork followed the refusal of contractors to unionize their job after personal visits by some of the defendants.

Before two charges of dynamite exploded on a bridge in St. Louis, on August 9, 1908, John T. Garrett, president of a construction firm, testified he was visited by John H. Barry, of the local ironworkers' union. "Barry wanted me to unionize the job," said Garrett. "He said, 'you will find it a great deal cheaper, for you know what will happen,'" he said. "I told him I suspected he was going to dynamite the job and he had better be careful.' It was blown up latter."

TORONTO BOYS CHARGED WITH SEVERAL CRIMES

Police Believe They Have Run to Earth Three Young Bandits Who Have Committed Many Outrages

LOADED REVOLVERS UNDER PILLOW

Toronto, Nov. 27.—By the arrests of three youths yesterday morning the city detectives believe they have solved the mystery of several daring robberies and also have in custody the young men who fired at John E. Bell, a farmer from Cooksville, about two miles west of Islington early Saturday morning.

Just after they had broken into W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store at 1,298 West Queen street about 4.30 yesterday morning Norman Ryan, aged 18; Windmere street; James T. Latimer, aged 17, Dovercourt road, and Wm. Reilly, alias Robert McCue, aged 16, Crawford street, were disturbed by Constable Courtenay. The three ran along Queen street, and the officer pursued them. At length he caught Ryan and took him to No. 6 Police station.

Detectives Guthrie, Murray and Jarvis searched until 8 o'clock for the other two youths. At 9 o'clock they visited a house kept by a woman at 539 West King street. After forcing an entrance the officers discovered Reilly and Latimer. Both boys had loaded revolvers under their pillows, and Ryan, when searched, also had a gun in his possession.

The three boys are charged with the following crimes:

Burglary at W. J. B. Hayes' cigar store, 1,298 West Queen street, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and match safes, taken.

Burglary at R. Ball's house at 283 Dovercourt road, overcoat and $5 taken.

Attempted burglary at Sneath's drygoods' store at Garden and Sorauren avenue, several windows broken.

Theft of $125 from Moore's butcher store at Bloor and St. Clarens avenue.

Theft of three motor cycles.

Shooting of J. E. Bell, farmer, near Islington.

Stealing money from 544 Gladstone avenue.

With regard to the theft of the motor-cycles evidence has been secured showing that the youths were riding on two of the machines when they encountered the farmer. The motorcycles were stolen from 452 Grace street, 568 Bathurst street, and 547 Crawford street. One of these machines was wrecked when it collided with Bell's wagon.

The boys all appeared in court yesterday.

ADRIANOPLE IN GRIP OF FIRE, FAMINE AND FLOOD

People in State Approaching Anarchy -- Austria and Russia in Cordial Relations.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Mustapha Pasha, Turkey, Nov. 27—Fire, famine, flood and anarchy afflict the besieged fortress of Adrianople, according to reports brought by fugitives from the city. Buildings in the vicinity of Selim Mosque are on fire. Other parts of the city are inundated with water from the rivers, Maritsa, Tunga and Arda, which have overflowed their banks. The civilian population is so short of food, that a state approaching anarchy now exists.

London, Nov. 27.—The possibility and danger of a greater war than that between the Balkan States and Turkey absorbs public interest far more than the first bout of diplomacy between the belligerents outside of Constantinople.

The steps towards mobilization which Austria and Russia are taking, although but preliminary precautions, have made possible a vision of the vast consequences which, as far as Great Britain is concerned, are considered nothing less than appalling.

The British public apparently has no desire to sacrifice lives and money, paralyze commerce and risk the navy over the settlement of the status of the Balkan peninsula. Yet its is uneasy, because ignorant of how far Great Britain's diplomatic engagements with France and Russia extend in the direction of an alliance, and of how much likelihood there is that the Government will be drawn into a conflict in which one or both of its partners in the entente may be engaged.

The Liberal press is unanimous in urging Great Britain to preserve neutrality. The majority of the Conservatives demand the same policy. The Times declaring that none of the European peoples want war, and says:

"Yet that is whither the nations are blindly drifting."

It asks: "Who then makes war?" and replies: "The answer is to be found in the chancelleries of Europe, among the men who too long have played with human lives as pawns in a game of chess, and who have become so enmeshed in formulas and the jargon of diplomacy that they have ceased to be conscious of the poignant realities with which they trifle."

The Pall Mall Gazette, almost alone, speaks in a warlike voice. It declares. "England ought to act firmly with France and Russia in refusing simply to be swept aside. If the conference desired by the British Government is refused, we ought to face the alternative and stand by our friends."

The mobilization of the Austrian and Russian armies requires weeks for what Germany and France can accomplish in days. In Russia's case this is on account of the great distances the troops must travel; in Austria's because the units of the army are on a peace footing, which is only one-third of their war strength. Therefore, considerations of safety compel them to begin when the danger signals are remote.

England, France and Germany are playing a peace-making role. Their efforts are directed apparently towards keeping the powers together in a compact to refrain from taking up piecemeal the questions which the war raises, and defer their consideration until the general conference.

The withdrawal of the Austrian warship at Constantinople to join the fleet is taken as an unfavorable sign, and the imminent Servian occupation of Durazzo, on the Adriatic Sea, tends further to bring Austria and Servia toward the breaking point.

On the other hand, the safe arrival at Uskup of the Austrian consul, Prochaska, who it was feared had been killed, will lessen the tension, and the fact that the Austrian ambassador lunched yesterday with the Russian Emperor would seem to indicate that the relations between these two powers are still cordial.

The latest news received here yesterday foreshadows the breakdown of the armistice negotiations, probably over the demand of the Bulgarians for the evacuation of Adrianople, to which Turkey will not listen.

The Turkish view is that while the allies have no more reserves which they can draft upon, Turkey is drawing a plentiful supply of fresh troops from Asia and is able to continue the war for another year. The Turkish military authorities assert that Adrianople can hold out for another month and that the Tchatalja lines are impregnable. Hence Turkey's position is not desperate enough to warrant her accepting humiliating terms.

Discontent In Russia.

London, Nov. 27.—"Public opinion is slow to express itself in Russia," says a St. Petersburg despatch to the Reuter Telegram Co., "but indignation has been growing the last few weeks at the alleged lack of virility in upholding Russia's international and military dignity. A few brief statements have been issued denying all military preparations, and Russians are allowed to know nothing more about the Government's attitude.

"In a country where every family is represented in the army," the despatch continues, "serious sentiment is inevitable. The officers complain that they are treated as supers, while any display of enthusiasm for the Balkan states has been repeatedly repressed.

"Nevertheless, the pro-Balkan feeling is developing and societies to carry on the campaign are being formed in St. Petersburg and the provinces. A street collection at Moscow Monday for the war reached $100,000.

Horses at Winter Fair.

Guelph, Nov. 27.—Secretary Westervelt was here yesterday, and says the entries for the Winter Fair are practically all in, Monday being the closing day for entries. There will be a great exhibit of horses this year, the entries for the new class of Percherons exceeding all expectations.

The other entries for horses are larger than ever, and this feature of the show will exceed any previous one.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 by H. K. FLY CO.

"Edith! We are in Utah now! Embrace me!"

She flung herself into his arms with a gurgle of bliss. The other passengers gasped with amazement. This sort of thing was permissible enough in a tunnel, but in the full light of day—!

Fosdick, noting the sensation he had created, waved his hand reassuringly and called across his wife's shoulder:

"Don't be alarmed, ladies and gentlemen. She's my wife!" He added in a whisper meant for her ear alone: "At least till we get to Nevada!"

Then she whispered something in his ear and they hurried from the car. They left behind them a bewilderment that eclipsed the wonder of the Mallories. That couple spoke to each other at least during the day time. Here was a married pair that did not speak at all for two days and two nights and then made a sudden and public rush to each other's arms!

Dr. Temple summed up the general feeling when he said:

"I don't believe inwitches, but if I did, I'd believe that this train is bewitched."

Later he decided that Fosdick was a Mormon elder and that Mrs. Fosdick was probably a twelfth or thirteenth spouse he was smuggling in from the east. The theory was not entirely false, for Fosdick was one of the many victims of the crazy-quilt of American divorce codes, though he was the most unwilling of polygamists. And Dr. Temple gave up his theory in despair the next morning when he found the Fosdicks still on the train, and once more keeping aloof from each other.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Train Butcher.

Mallory was dragging out a miserable existence with a companion who was neither maid, wife, nor widow and to whom he was neither bachelor, husband, nor relict.

They were suffering brain-fag from their one topic of conversation, and heart-fag from rapture deferred. Marjorie had pretended to take a nap and Mallory had pretended that he would leave her for her own sake. Their contradictory chains were beginning to gall.

Mallory sat in the smoking room, and threw aside a half-finished cigar. Life was indeed nauseous when tobacco turned rank on his lips. He watched without interest the stupendous scenery whirling past the train; granite ravines, infernal grotesques of architecture and diablerie, the Giant's Teapot, the Devil's Slide, the Pulpit Rock, the Hanging Rock, splashes of mineral color, as if titanic paint pots had been spilled or flung against the cliffs, sudden bushes of green pine-worlds, dreary graveyards of sand and sagebrush, mountain streams in frothing panics.

His jaded soul could not respond to any of these thrillers, the dime-novels and melodramatic third-acts of nature. But with the arrival of a train-boy, who had got on at Evanston with a batch of Salt Lake City newspapers, he woke a little.

The other men came trooping round, like sheep at a herd-boy's whistle or chickens when a pan of grain is brought into the yard. The train "butcher" had a nasal sing-song, but his strain might have been the Pied Piper's tune emptying Hamelin of its grown-ups. The charms of flirtation, matrimonial bliss and feminine beauty were forgotten, and the males flocked to the delights of stock-market reports, political or racing or dramatic or sporting or criminal news. Even Ashton braved the eyes of his fellow men for the luxury of burying his nose in a fresh paper.

"Papers, gents? Yes? No?" the train butcher chanted. "Salt Lake papers, Ogden papers, all the latest papers, comic papers, magazines, periodicals."

"Here, boy," said Ashton, snapping his fingers, "what's the latest New York paper?"

"Last Sat'day's."

"Six days old? I read that before I left New York. Well, give me that Salt Lake paper. It has yesterday's stock market, I suppose."

"Yes, sir." He passed over the sheet and made change, without checking his monody: "Papers, gents. Yes? No? Salt Lake pa—"

"Which latest from Chicago?" said Wellington.

"Monday's."

"I read that before—that breakfast began," laughed Little Jimmie. "Well, give me Salt Lake Basco. It has baseball news, I s'pose."

"Yes, sir," the butcher answered, and his tone grew reverent as he said: "The Giants won. Mr. Mattyson was pitching. Papers, gents, all the latest papers, magazines, periodicals."

Wedgewood extended a languid hand: "What's the latest issue of the London Times?"

"Never heard of it."

Wedgewood almost fainted, and returned to his Baedeker of the United States.

Dr. Temple summoned the lad: "I don't suppose you have the Ypsilanti Eagle?"

The butcher regarded him with pity, and sniffed: "I carry newspapers, not poultry."

"Well, give me the—" he saw a pink weekly of rather picturesque appearance, and the adventure attracted him. "I'll take this—also the Outlook." He folded the pink within the green, and entered into a new and startling world—a sort of journalistic slumming tour.

"Give me any old thing," said Mallory, and flung open an Ogden journal till he found the sporting page, where his eyes brightened. "By jove, a ten-inning game! Matthewson in the box!"

"Mattie is most intelleckshal pitcher in the world," said Little Jimmie, and then everybody disappeared behind paper ramparts, while the butcher lingered to explain to the porter the details of the great event.

About this time, Marjorie, tired of her pretence at slumber, strolled into the observation car, glancing into the men's room, where she saw nothing but newspapers. Then Mrs. Wellington saw her, and smiled: "Come in and make yourself at home."

"Thanks," said Marjorie, bashfully, "I was looking for my—my—"

"Husband?"

"My dog."

"How is he this morning?"

"My dog?"

"Your husband."

"Oh, he's as well as could be expected."

"Where did you get that love of a waist?" Mrs. Wellington laughed.

"Mrs. Temple lent it to me. Isn't it sweet?"

"Exquisite! The latest Ypsilanti mode."

Marjorie, suffering almost more acutely from being badly frocked than from being duped in her matrimonial hopes, threw herself on Mrs. Wellington's mercy.

"I'm so unhappy in this. Couldn't you lend me or sell me something a little smarter?"

"I'd love to, my dear," said Mrs. Wellington, "but I left home on short notice myself. I shall need all my divorce trousseau in Reno. Otherwise —I—but here's your husband. You two ought to have some place to spoon. I'll leave you this whole room."

And she swept out, nodding to Mallory, who had divined Marjorie's presence, and felt the need of being near her, though he also felt the need of finishing the story of the great ball game. Husbandlike, he felt that he was conferring sufficient courtesy in throwing a casual smile across the top of the paper.

Marjorie studied his motley garb, and her own, and groaned:

"We're a sweet looking pair, aren't we?"

"Mr. and Miss Fit," said Mallory, from behind the paper.

"Oh, Harry, has your love grown cold?" she pleaded.

"Marjorie, how can you think such a thing?" still from behind the paper.

"Well, Mrs. Wellington said we ought to have some place to spoon, and she went away and left us, and—there you stand—and—"

This pierced even the baseball news, and he threw his arms around her with glow of devotion.

She snuggled closer, and cooed: "Aren't we having a nice long engagement? We've traveled a million miles, and the preacher isn't in sight yet. What have you been reading—wedding announcements?"

"No—I was reading about the most wonderful exhibition. Mattie was in the box—and in perfect form."

"Mattie?" Marjorie gasped uneasily.

"Mattie!" he raved, "and in perfect form."

And now the hidden serpent of jealousy, which promised to enliven their future, lifted its head for the first time, and Mallory caught his first glimpse of an unsuspected member of their household. Marjorie demanded with an ominous chill:

"And who's Mattie? Some former sweetheart of yours?"

"My dear," laughed Mallory.

But Marjorie was up and away, with apt temper: "So Mattie was in the box, was she? What is it to you, where she sits? You dare to read about her and rave over her perfect form, while you neglect your wife—or your—oh, what am I, anyway?"

THE greatest snowstorm in the experience of England began falling Dec. 24, 1830, and continued during Christmas day. The snow in some places reached a depth of forty feet. All travel was blocked. The Japanese Hades.

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word "hell," but has the word "jigoku" instead. Jigoku consists of, first, eight immense hot hells, ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many antechambers, so that there are in all 136 hot hells. Second, there are eight large cold hells, each with its sixteen ante-hells, making the same number of cold that there are of hot hells. Besides these 272 hot and cold hells for offenders of the common sort, the wily Japs have twenty mammoth "hells of utter darkness," into which will be consigned the spirits of children who take the name of Dai Butsu, or Great Buddha, in vain.

As to Papa's Wealth.

"Mamma, what is papa worth?"

"I don't know, dear, but it must be a great deal. I heard him say once that he had put $100,000 into a mining company's stock."

"What's the name of the mining company?"

"Wildcat, I think he said. I presume they named it that because it's in some unsettled country away out on the frontier."—Chicago Tribune.

Some English Names.

It is a difficult matter sometimes to spell an English name from hearing it pronounced. For instance, Farquharson is pronounced Fahrson. This, however, is "simple as A B C" compared with the weird renderings of some other names. Who, for instance, would dream of pronouncing Woolfardisworthy Oozry, Wrenfordsleigh Rensley or Wyrardisbury Raysbury?—Pearson's.

Points for Mothers

Arbitration in the Nursery.

Arbitration has come to be regarded by all thinking minds as the only civilized way in which to settle all international disputes. That it is not universally adopted in actuality is clear evidence of the fact that civilization exists in degrees throughout the world only not by any means as an entirety, says Louise D. Mitchel.

And this large thought we can condense into the smaller space of the punishments of children. What is the reason that corporal punishment comes as a first thought for correcting a misdemeanor of the child? Why do you resort to whippings, to the undignified "slap," the ear boxing, the shaking, etc.? That is symbolic of the warfare that exists at all times in some parts of the world. War is the nation's way of boxing the ears of its foe.

If you are angry, do not dare to punish your child. You will be merely taking advantage of your superior strength over his lesser prowess. Remind yourself of that when your hand is raised to promote "warfare" between your little child and your own uncontrolled temper.

Children—particularly little children —are subjected to many unsuspected cruelties. The "boxing" of ears is one of the most cruel. Many a child has had its hearing impaired for all time by just such a bit of "uncivilized" treatment on the part of its parent. Americans are peculiarly subject to deafness, and this is a fact that you should bear in mind when the temptation assails you to administer this impulsive blow to your helpless little child. It may not make him deaf, but you take a chance in doing it, and you cannot afford to do so. One of the most noted men of the day was made permanently deaf in early childhood by some one who lifted him by his ears in a spirit of fun.

The ears and the eyes are probably the most delicate organs that we have. We cannot, therefore, treat them too delicately. A sudden blow will split the eardrum and cause permanent deafness. The mark of our hand left upon any part of our little child's body cannot but be a reproach to us to the last day of our lives.

Jerking a child is another bad habit. This has a bad effect upon the spine and has been known to effect the brain of a child disastrously. Striking him on the head is a brutal cruelty, yet I have seen it done repeatedly. Much of the imbecile expression noticeable in the eyes of some children is due to this very habit of punishment.

Another thing to which I want to draw your attention is one that is of common occurrence—that of lifting a child up over a curbstone by one arm. The bones of a young child are what is known technically as "green"—that is, they will not break as easily as those of an adult. But they are very tender, and they will not stand a very great strain of any kind. In lifting a child by one arm he is bound to swing around a bit, and this will cause dislocations, either of the arm or the shoulder.

The Life of the Mystic.

Speaking at Kensington Town Hall, Eng., on "Christian Mysticism," the dean of St. Paul's said that mysticism was religion in its most acute, intense, and living sense, and it would be easy to show that there had been a strong under current of it running through the Christian church right down the ages. There had never been wanting a succession of mystics, from the head of the church down to Gen. Gordon, to justify them in saying that mysticism had been the very heart of Christianity. Indeed, the Christian religion had been most vital and elevated when it had been able to show the greatest number of true mystics.

DO YOU USE PILLS?
If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:
"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.
"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.
"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."
No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

Literally Translated.

On visiting Ireland the great traveler Livingstone was much feted. In Dublin at a dinner party he happened to be placed next to a literary lady who was a very stout woman. She worried him greatly about the language of the savage cannibals among whom he had managed to live and wanted to know the sound of their language. He spoke a sentence of it to satisfy her, and she answered, "Being translated, what does that mean?" "It means," he replied, "there is great cutting on you."

Dear Sir,
I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.
Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.
I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?
The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.
However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.
I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

Will You Join the St. Nicholas Club?

Every Lady in Peterborough is Eligible For Membership.

Christmas less than a month away and many children are wondering what Santa Claus is going to bring them. Some have made up their minds as to what they want, and are already wishing hard. Some, no doubt, will wish in vain, for the reason that older persons know, but little ones not aware of. That the number of children who will be disappointed on Christmas may be reduced to a minimum, the Review suggests the organization of a St. Nicholas Club, which every woman and girl in the city may join by sending her name to the Review office on a post card.

What will the cost be? Just whatever you want it to cost you—nothing more. The Review's St. Nicholas Girl will send you the name of a little boy or girl who has a wish. You can go and see the little one, and find out his or her hopes or needs to make Christmas happy, and fulfil them according to your purse and the feeling of your heart.

The greatest joy at Christmas comes from giving.

Motor Slaughter.

Roughly speaking, motor vehicles are killing in the streets of London today about twice as many persons as were killed by the horse vehicles. That is a hard fact which is not to be disposed of by the motorist's claim that he has far more control over his carriage than a horse driver ever had. He has more control, we believe, but that only makes it plain that the control is not exercised.—Westminster Gazette.

A

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

THE NOMADIC OTTER.

The Merits and Demerits of a Frog-Eater.

There are two points at least in which the otter-hunter is of service to the naturalist. He has for the sake of his sport to study the migrations of the otter, though it would be more true to say that the otter is nomadic rather than migratory. He follows his food—the frogs in spring up the side streams, the spawning fish to their haunts, the salmon in autumn to the sea, and the eel everywhere. The otter travels far, and covers much country in his wanderings. "He is here to-day and gone to-morrow, and, so far as I know," says T.F.D. in Baily's Magazine, "he has no certain abiding place for his young. The female otter lies up in any convenient holt wherever she may be, and at almost any time.

The fine note of the otter hound often unravels for us the elaborate wanderings in search of food of an otter on a single night, and every drag that is worked out by the hounds is, if we only attend, a lesson to the naturalist. The angler and fish preservers are doubtful as to the otter. They well know he makes war on eels, rats, and keeps down the young water hens, and is so far valuable to them. The otter also devours numbers of frogs, though when we consider the value of tadpoles as fish food, that may be a doubtful advantage. Some people say frogs eat fish spawn; it may be so, but I think it will be found hard to bring it home to the frog. But in any case, if the frogs increased unchecked they would certainly get into some michief, and the otter helps to keep the balance of nature. On the other hand, the otters themselves would, if they increased be a disadvantage to the angler, not only because they devour a great many fish and kill many more than they eat, as all carnivorous animals do when they get the chance, but also because they drive fish for the time out of the reaches of the river they frequent.

In both these cases the otter hunter is useful, for the otter is saved from extinction by the goodwill of river owners and keepers for the hunt, and thus survives in sufficient numbers to do his work in keeping up the balance of nature on the river. On the other hand, the visits of the hounds not only keep the numbers down, but for a time drive the otters away from the reaches of the rivers visited by the hounds. If there were no otter-hunting to preserve, the otters would probably become almost extinct, and their services be lost; if, on the other hand, otters were not killed and driven off by hounds they would increase to such an extent as to injure the fisheries."

Isle of Man.

The oldest Government now to be found among men is that which obtains in the Isle of Man. The Tynwald, as the legislative body of the famous little island is called, is the oldest lawmaking assembly on earth. It dates back to the ninth century and is the only legislative body on earth that has had a continuous existence from that time to this. The Isle of Man is still independent of Great Britain so far as its local affairs go, the British Parliament exercising jurisdiction only in a federal way. The Manxmen are and ever have been stubbornly tenacious of their liberties and not even to the majesty of England do they propose to bow.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO FOR The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor:—

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done by the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, for the sick and deformed children of this Province. Let me, in a few words, tell you of the steady growth of this Hospital.

In the year 1875 there were only six cots and beds, one nurse, 44 in-patients and 67 out-patients. In 1912 there were 250 cots and beds, 64 nurses, 1,294 in-patients and 17,862 out-patients.

During the 37 years of the Hospital's existence, 19,370 in-patients have been admitted, and 133,724 out-patients have been treated, a total of 153,094, or an average of 4,138 per year. Of the 19,370 in-patients, 5,495 were from places outside of Toronto. 9,644 of the total in-patients were cured, and 5,711 were improved. This is a great record.

Of the 1,294 in-patients last year, 341 came from 218 places outside of Toronto, so that the Hospital is not a local, but a Provincial Institution.

In the Orthopedic Department in 37 years, nearly 700 boys and girls have been treated for clubfeet, and about 600 were corrected. Half of these came from places outside of Toronto, so surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

The Corporation of Toronto grants $25,000, not only for the city children, but towards the maintenance of all patients in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $15,000 annually to the funds of the Hospital.

Will you, kind reader, think of what your money will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

Remember that your pocket-book must be the Hospital's friend, if the Hospital is to be the children's friend.

Remember that Christmas calls you to open the purse of your kindness to the Hospital, so that the Hospital may open the heart of its help to the children.

Remember that your money can help the Hospital build a bridge over which the feet of little children may travel on the journey from sorrow to joy, from sickness to health—aye, from death to life.

Please send a dollar, or more if you can spare it, to Douglas Davidson, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Hospital, or J. Ross Robertson, Chairman of the Trustees, Toronto.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was good, and at a decline of 3d in the prices bid a fair volume of business was worked as prices were also lower in Winnipeg. A weak feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices declined 1c per bushel, and even at this reduction buyers were slow in taking hold as most of them are pretty well supplied for the present. A fair trade is passing in flour and the demand for millfeed is increasing. Butter is fairly active and firm and the demand for cheese is improving. Eggs active.

Truly British.

Perhaps few stories of battles so thoroughly illustrate the true British spirit and way of doing things as the little incident at a reconnaissance before the Battle of Ulundi, of which Lord William Beresford was the hero.
